National Pills are sugar coated, mild but thorough, and are the best Stomach and Liver Pill in use. 14-4t

If a fire bell rings a false alarm can it be called a libel?

Use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap for Prickly Heat, Nettle Rash, Scaly Eruption, Itch, and all diseased condition of the Skin. 14-4t

What is the rate of interest when distance lends enchantment to the view?

The Hectic Flush, pale, hollow cheeks and precarious appetite indicate Worms. Freeman's Worm Powders will quickly and effectually remove them. 14-4t

Don't believe half you hear, but make sure that you believe all you say.

Fever colic, unnatural appetite, fretfulness, weakness, and convulsions, are some of the effects of worms in children; destroy the worms with Dr. Low's Worm Syrup. 14-4t

"Whalebone," remarks a learned contemporary, "is not a bone at all." Well, it isn't a whale, either. So what is it?

Boys and Girls who are growing rapidly should (to ensure strong and healthy constitutions) be given regularly Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion, to keep up the waste that is continually going on in the system during the growing period. 13-2t

Can it be that the increased fondness for violin playing among the fair sex is due to the fact that the ladies like four strings to their bow?

That slight cold you think so little of may prove the forerunner of a complaint that may be fatal. Avoid this result by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the best of known remedies for colds, coughs, catarrhs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, and all other throat and lung diseases.

What is the use of a dictionary if a scrub politician cannot find language to express his feelings when presented with a gold-headed cane?

Sure to Conquer.

The most troublesome cough is sure to yield if timely treated with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and safe for young or old. 14-2t

To grow old is quite natural; being natural it is beautiful; and if we grumble at it we miss the lesson, and lose all the beauty.

John Hayes, Credit P.O., says: "His shoulder was so lame for nine months that he could not raise his hand to his head, but by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the pain and lameness disappeared, and although three months have elapsed, he has not had an attack of it since."

A heavy frost occured at various points in the Mississippi Valley on Sunday night, destroying early fruit and vegetables in some places.

The Cheapest and Best.

On account of its purity and concentrated strength and great power over disease, Burdock Blood Bitters is the cheapest and best blood cleansing tonic known for all disordered conditions of the blood. 14-2t

It may seem funny to poke fun at women being so fond of talking; but, come to think of it, hadn't a man better be buried than to live with a woman who will not speak to him?

Mr. R. A. Harrigon, Chemist and Druggist, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia, Impure Blood, Pimples on the Face, Biliousness and Constipation such cases having come under my personal observation."

A boy named Griffith, while standing on a toboggan slide at Parry Sound on Monday night, was struck by a toboggan, and is probably fatally injured.

Accidental.

A. Chard, of Stirling, in a recent letter, states that he met with an accident some time ago, by which one of his knees was severely injured. A few applications of Hagyard's Yellow Oil afforded immediate and complete relief. 14-2t

Death does not destroy, but catches, crystalises, and makes permanent the character of a good man, leaving it a priceless bequest to society.

"How are we ever going to get through our spring and summer's work? We are all run down, tired out before it begins." So say many a farmer's family. We answer, go to your druggist and pay five dollars for six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This is just the medicine you need, and will pay compound interest on the investment.

Every copy of a good newspaper put into a household is practical help toward the suppression of the bad. The people will read—give them good reading.

Rheumatism

Cannot remain long with any one who uses NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS, and Neuralgia is driven away like smoke before the wind. Give one a trial. Every Belt guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, agent Peterborough. 19-4t

The action of a man is a representative type of his thought and will; and a work of charity is a representative type of the charity within the soul and mind.

A Princely Fortune.

A man may possess the fortune of a prince but can never possess happiness without good health; to secure which the blood must be kept pure and every organ in proper action. Burdock Blood Bitters purify the blood and regulate the organs. 14-2t

WIT AND HUMOR.

Georgia's "diamond belt" will never be worn by a pugilist.

The wrestling season does not end until the fall.

Slang never heard from the lips of a bride—"Don't give me away."

Rattler wishes to know what is a "full-dress" rehearsal by the belles?

"It is little bits of things that fret and worry us," says Josh Billings; "we kan lodge an elephant, but we kan't a fly."

Elephants are taken on subscription by editors in India, the cord-wood having given out.

The papers say that Gebhardt looks like a footman. Then Langtry must be a Lily of the valet.

"Sir," wrote a tradesman to a debtor, "if you will favor me with the account of my bill, you will oblige me; if not, I must oblige you."

One of the sweetest pictures of domestic economy is a poet blacking a white stocking so that it won't show through the fissures of his boot.

The Americans arrested in England for manufacturing dynamite were only trying to get even with that country for allowing Langtry and Oscar Wilde to come here.

The man who never saw a railroad train died again recently in Wakefield, N. H., aged 100 years. Ignorance of railway traveling appears to be conducive to long life.—Lowell Citizen.

It doesn't take a northern invalid very long to get well in Florida. When the first week's hotel bill is presented he generally says: "I guess I'm well enough to start for home this afternoon."

Blue Horse, a "good Indian," writes to the Great Father at Washington to send him a glass eye and a cane. Blue Horse will be tak[illegible] for a dude if he doesn't mind how he acts.

Euchred. (Jack admiringly): "You are a trump, Miss Marian." Miss M.: "Why do you call me such a name as that?" Jack (triumphantly): "Because of your taking tricks."

At a recent donation party the preacher received a large quantity of half-cooked bread, and he says now he doesn't want any more "donnation parties" in his.

A seaside belle having left her bathing-shoes out of the hotel window to dry, the town paper announced that the hotel had erected new awnings of an oblique design.

It was "darling George" when a bridal couple left Omaha; it was "dear George" at Chicago; at Detroit it was "George," and when they reached Niagara Falls it was "Say you!"

An old Judge told a young lawyer he would do well to pick some of the feathers from the wings of his imagination, and stick them into the tail of his judgment.

The New Orleans Picayune has discovered that "the dude has two watch-chains, but no watch." The dude is not such a fool as he looks, for he knows that the weight of a watch would make him bow-legged.

"Mean," said the Texas man of his neighbor, "why, there isn't a drop of the milk of human kindness in that man's body. He's got a dog that's an elegant match for Jenk's bull-pup, and he won't let 'em fight."

A Kentucky rural editor, whose paper is published on Wednesdays, makes the following request in a recent issue: "Parties who contemplate getting hurt, getting out of jail, killing somebody, running off with somebody's wife, or getting kicked by a mule, will please do so on Saturdays, Sundays and Mondays, as that will give us time to write it up in the fullest details while it is fresh and savory."

ROYAL VISIT TO IRELAND.

The Prince and Princess of Wales are to visit Ireland in April, landing at Dublin on the 16th. The proposed visit has occasioned warm discussion. The nationalists threaten a demonstration of some kind that will show their feeling. The idea of the visit originated, it appears, with the Queen, and not with the government of Lord Spencer.

The Brand on Cain

was not more fearful than are the marks of skin diseases, and yet Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a certain cure for all of them. Blotches, pimples, eruptions, pustules, scaly incrustations, lumps, inflamed patches, salt-rheum, tetter, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, old sores, are by its use healed quickly and permanently.

PHOENIX PARK INFORMERS.

Dublin, March 24th.—Joe Smith, who pointed out Burke on the day when the latter was assassinated in Phœnix Park, has just died. He has been in a dreadful state of health for months. He has suffered from constant fear of being assassinated. Miles Kavanagh, driver of the car in which the assassins escaped, is in a lunatic asylum.

The Boundary Line

Between comfort and discomfort is often very slight. Have you rheumatism or neuralgia? or are you a sufferer from obscure nervous pains? Why suffer longer? You can purchase for ten cents a bottle of that king of pain—Polson's Nerviline, or you can get a large bottle for 25 cents. It cures promptly. It is sure, pleasant, to take, and never fails to cure all kinds of pain. Don't wait an hour, but send to any drug store and get a trial bottle. Nerviline, the sure pain cure.

THE GENESIS OF GERRYMANDER.

The word "gerrymander" was originally derived from Elbridge Gerry, who, as governor of Massachusetts, sanctioned this fraud. A person on looking at a map of a portion of Massachusetts re-arranged for political purposes, remarked that it resembled a salamander. "Say rather a gerrymander," rejoined a bystander, and the name stuck.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES.

Very Palatable and Strengthening.

Dr. A. B. Demarius, Oswego, N.Y., says: "I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion for many years, and, have given it a thorough comparative test. I cannot speak in too high terms of its palatability, as well as its efficacy in all the wasting disorders in which it is indicated."

AFRAID FOR THE DUCATS.

German holders of Russian securities are in mortal fear of the Afgan frontier question bringing on a war between Russia and England. They are so loaded up that, should hostilities be declared, a regular financial panic would ensue, which would indirectly give Bismarck and his Government greater trouble than they imagine.

A Good Guarantee.

H. B. Cochran, druggist, Lancaster Pa., writes that he has guaranteed over 200 bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters for dyspepsia, bilious attacks and liver and kidney troubles. In no case has it disappointed those who used it. In Canada it gives the same general satisfaction. 14-2t

EITHER ONE THING OR THE OTHER.

Doctor—"Yes, sir, you have symptoms of Bright's disease."

Patient—"Great Cæsar! What shall I do?"

"Stop drinking whiskey."

"But I never drank a drop of the stuff: never touch anything but water."

"Well, perhaps you'd better stop water and try whiskey."

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City

A FEW HINTS

FOR THE USE OF

AYER'S PILLS

Dose.—To move the bowels gently, 2 to 4 Pills; thoroughly, 4 to 6 Pills. Experience will decide the proper dose in each case.

For Constipation, or Costiveness, no remedy is so effective as AYER'S PILLS. They insure regular daily action, and restore the bowels to a healthy condition.

For Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, AYER'S PILLS are invaluable, and a sure cure.

Heart-burn, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach, Flatulency, Dizziness, Headache, Numbness, Nausea, are all relieved and cured by AYER'S PILLS.

In Liver Complaint, Bilious Disorders, and Jaundice, AYER'S PILLS should be given in doses large enough to excite the liver and bowels, and remove constipation. As a cleansing medicine in the Spring, these PILLS are unequalled.

Worms, caused by a morbid condition of the bowels, are expelled by these PILLS.

Eruptions, Skin Diseases, and Piles, the result of Indigestion or Constipation, are cured by the use of AYER'S PILLS.

For Colds, take AYER'S PILLS to open the pores, remove inflammatory secretions, and allay the fever.

For Diarrhœa and Dysentery, caused by sudden colds, indigestible food, etc., AYER'S PILLS are the true remedy.

Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, and [illegible] often result from digestive derangements or colds, and disappear on removing [illegible] by the use of AYER'S PILLS.

[illegible], Dropsy, Kidney Complaints, and other disorders caused by debility or obstruction, are cured by AYER'S PILLS.

Suppression, and Painful Menstruation, have a safe and ready remedy in

AYER'S PILLS.

Full directions, in various languages, accompany each package.

HAS IMPORTED FROM FRANCE

Percheron Horses valued at $3,000,000, which includes

75 PER CENT OF ALL HORSES

Whose purity of blood is established by their pedigrees recorded in the STUD BOOKS OF FRANCE.

EVER IMPORTED TO AMERICA.

STOCK ON HAND:
150 Imported Breed Mares,
250 Imported Stallions,
Old enough for service.
100 COLTS,
Two years old and younger.

Recognizing the principle accepted by all intelligent breeders that, however well-bred animals may be sent to be, if their pedigrees are not recorded, and cannot be authentically given, they should be valued only as grades, I will sell all Imported Breed at Grade Prices when I cannot furnish with the animal sold pedigrees verified by the original French certificates of its inspection and record in the Stud Book in France. 140 Page Catalogue sent free. It is illustrated with Six Prize Horses of the Exhibition of the Société Nationale d'Encouragement de France, 1884, purchased by M. Dunham, and drawn from life by Rosa Bonheur, the most famous of all animal painters.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 12-3t

Wallace Point Bridge.

A meeting of the Wardens of Peterborough and Northumberland and Durham was held in the Court House a few days ago in reference to the repairing of Wallace Point Bridge. The latter urged the repair of the swing bridge at once. The Warden of Peterborough in view of the probability of a new bridge being constructed at another point, did not like to act without consulting other members, and Messrs. Moloney, Lang and Sanderson took part in the conference. The Warden of Northumberland and Durham advocated the erection of a wooden swing, while the Warden of Peterborough and the other members of the county council favored the construction of an iron swing if any new swing at all were put in. There was no decision arrived at, and the matter was laid over to come up at the June session.

The Best Black Orator.

On Friday evening this phenomenal lecturer delivered his noted lecture, "To and Fro in London," to a rather thin audience, the Old Folks' Concert of the evening before, having, evidently affected the attendance. The brilliant effort was of such a nature as to defy summary. It abounded with frequently recurring passages of fervid and stirring eloquence, alternating with gleams of genuine humour and flashes of mirth-begetting wit, and many a passage of deep pathos. The speaker's language is copious and well chosen, and emphasized with elaborate gestures, still suggestive of the stage of which Mr. Clarke was once a member. His lecture was full of interest and a specimen of real eloquence. Mr. Clarke is a clever dialectitian, and his excellently rendered imitations of Scotch and Irish dialect excited to laughter or melted to tears. Those who missed his lecture missed a great elocutionary treat, and if he ever appears again in Peterborough he is sure of a crowded house. On Sunday afternoon he addressed the children of the Charlotte street Sunday School, and in the evening occupied the pulpit, preaching a powerful temperance sermon to an overflowing house.

Lost "Confidence in the Breed."

It was a little remarkable on Monday, when the Toronto daily papers arrived, to see true and tried Tories eagerly reading the Globe's Nor'-West news. These men have heretofore considered it little less than high treason to read the Globe, but the Mail has kept its readers in the dark so deeply in respect to the incipiency and outbreak of the Riel rising, in order to shield the Government, that even Tories, "born in the purple," cease, it seems, to have confidence in the party paper and have recourse to the full, reliable and prompt news supplied by the Globe. The explanation is simple; the Globe is a newspaper, the Mail a mere party organ.

Roller Rink Masquerade Carnival.

Let the puplic mind fix the fact that the first grand Roller Rink Fancy Dress Carnival will take place in the Water-street rink on Friday evening, April 10th. This will be a novel entertainment, and many visitors from Port Hope and other places are expected to assist. Ladies who have engaged skates may practice for the carnival on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week without charge. All parties intending to appear in fancy dress should engage skates at once. Only those in costume will be allowed to skate at the carnival. Handsome prizes are offered for the best costumes. The full Fire Brigade band will be in attendance. All those intending so appear in costume are notified to be on hand at 8 o'clock to take part in the novel feature, the opening grand march. Admission, 25 cents. Tickets at Smart's music store, W. A. Sanderson's jewelry store, and at the Rink. Don't forget the date, Friday evening, April 10th.

The Nor'-West War

THE RANGERS READY FOR RIEL.

The Peterborough Detachment of Col. Williams' Battalion En Route—A Fighting Editor Commands the Corps Enthusiastic Send-off—The Mayor's Parting Speech—"The Girl I Left Behind Me" Good-by Greetings—Tears and Kisses—Parting Salutes.

The Peterborough citizen soldiers started for the Northwest on Wednesday morning. It only needed the alarming reports in reference to the Half-breed rising in the Nor'-West and the necessity of aid to smash the insurrectionists, to show that the loyalty of the Peterborough Rangers—the 57th Battalion—could be counted on for all that was demanded. Late on Saturday night Col. Rogers, commanding the Rangers, received a telegram from Col. Williams, of Port Hope, who was instructed to raise a Provisional battalion for Nor'-West service, asking the former to supply a company from the 57th. He at once communicated with the officers in town, and before Sunday evening there were forty men ready to go. It was decided, however, to select seven men from each of the six companies. But so liberal were the offers for service that it was a greater difficulty to know whom to leave than whom to select. Col. Rogers received so many applications that he was sure he could as easily raise a battalion as a company.

The Company was to be ready to march on Wednesday morning. On Monday afternoon the first draft of volunteers, commanded by Capt. Langford, marched to the O. & Q. station to wish the Queen's Own and Grenadiers God speed on their way to the Nor'-West. About two thousand civilians also assembled at the station and loudly cheered these crack corps as they passed through on the train.

On Monday evening the Norwood squad, commanded by Capt. Burke, arrived, and later on the squads from the Keene and Hastings Companies, officered by Captains Birdsall and Howard, came in.

On Tuesday the men were paraded at the Drill Shed and equipped as fully as possible, underwent the medical examination and signed the the service roll. There was great disappointment among the several that failed to pass the medical examination.

THE PHYSIQUE OF THE FORCE.

Dr. Kincaid made the examinations, and he asserts that a better lot of men physically than the forty-two he passed he never saw. They were every one sound as a bell, as they need to be to stand the hard work before them.

THE QUILL AND THE SCALPEL.

The Company is commanded by Captain Thomas Burke, No. 5 Company, Norwood, and Lieut. Fred. Brennan, of the same Company. Capt. Burke is a newspaper man, and Lieut. Brennan is in his last year in medicine. Capt. Langford was first offered the command, but his medical advisers refused to consent to his entering active service. He has been in delicate health for some time and the medical examiner declined to pass him. The command was then given to Captain Burke, (who, so anxious was he to see fight, had consented to take a lower rank and act as lieutenant) and Lieut. Brennan, the senior lieutenant of the Battalion, was put second in command.

THE DEPARTURE.

At 7 o'clock sharp the members of the provisional company were present at the drill shed, around which surged a dense crowd of people anxious to bid the soldiers good-by. The company formed in column of fours, and preceded by the 57th Battalion Band, started on the march, from which, alas, perhaps, too many will never return. As the detachment marched down George street, to the air of the British Grenadiers, the members of the Durham Field Battery ran out one of the guns and fired a salute of five guns, an accident to one of the gunners, referred to elsewhere, putting a stop to further firing. Both sides of George street on the route were packed with spectators, and here and there could be seen a mother standing silently weeping as the proud parade swept by, endeavouring to catch a glimpse through her blinding tears of the form of her boy. Arrived at the Midland station the huge platform was a perfect jam of spectators, men, women and children, so that it was with some trouble the company was marched in front of the cars they were to take.

KISSES AND TEARS.

Here an opportunity was again offered to say good-by. The general public first took their leave and wished the boys success, and at last the sisters and mothers of the men, with streaming eyes, bid good-by to brothers and sons. The boys kept their courage well up, and seemed to be in high spirits.

THE MAYOR'S REMARKS.

The men were called to attention, and Mayor Cox briefly addressed them. He said he wished to take this chance to thank the volunteers on behalf of himself, the corporation and the people, for the prompt and cheerful manner in which they had responded to the call of duty. He thanked them most sincerely, and wished them all success and God speed from the bottom of his heart, and a safe and speedy return. He was sure from the spirit already shown that every man would do his duty. England with her Soudan war, and the danger of trouble with Russia, had her hands full, and the call came especially to Canadians to deal with the Northwest rising. Again he thanked them for the prompt rally to the call of duty, and he prayed that God would bless and prosper them in the undertaking they were entering upon. Cheers for the Queen and the company made the welkin ring, and the soldiers responded with cheers for the mayor and corporation.

"THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME."

The men then countermarched by ranks and entered the cars. As the train slowly drew out of the station, the band struck up the time-honored parting military air, "The Girl I Left Behind Me," which was almost drowned in the ringing cheers that greeted the departing warriors. Every car window contained two or three heads, anxious to catch a last look—the last indeed, perhaps, for some of them. Amidst the continuous cheers of the crowd the train moved on, and at every crossing through the town, eager groups cheered the boys, the ladies waving their handkerchiefs and the Red-coated Rangers lustily singing "Good-By My Love." At the Ashburnham station a halt was made, and more farewells spoken. While passing from town to the latter station, Col. Rogers, Capt. Edwards and Capt. Langford took the chance to say good-by to all the force. The enthusiasm of the citizens was great, and the boys kept up their spirits to the last. On their arrival at Kingston they will be supplied with further stores necessary. We, with all our citizens, wish the boys the best of good luck in their great venture. They have have hard work before them, and we have no doubt they will give a most creditable account of themselves.

LIST OF THE LOYAL.

The following are the names of those composing the company:—Capt. Burke, Lieut. Brennan:

A. B. Rogers	James Anderson
Murray Mathison	Jacob Roberts
A. C. Ross	James McPee
Cyrenius Parks	James Thompson
M. Brackenridge	John Beach
Geo. K. Mark	M. J. Seerey
A. Phillips	M. H. Riggs
Hugh Hill	Wm. Cook
W. Reynolds	M. Sedgwick
James Hannah	Wm. McDowell
W. Tanner	Wm. Wedlock
Wm. B. Browne	John Lynch

EASTER EATING.

Meritorious Master of Meats for the Masses Juicy Joints and Rubicund Roasts—A Fine Finish for the Forty-days' Fast—Mervin's Masterly Manner. Howden's Happy Habit. Winch's and Wainright's Winning Way of Doing It.

Appetites, sharpened for flesh meats by forty days of Lenten abstinence, will not be required to furnish appreciation of the fine supply of prime meats prepared for the public for the breaking of the Lenten fast. Especially have the following butchers made elaborate preparations, and at their finely decorated stalls next Saturday the public will find a magnificent display of meats.

J. J. HOWDEN

has seen to it that the old familiar premises on George street have lost nothing under his management. His stock was supplied as follows:—Four tip-top thoroughbreds, fed by Mr. Geo. Dodge, Hamilton township. One two years steer, weighs 1,780 lbs., and three others, average nearly 1,400 each. One two years heifer, fed by Mr. H. Calcutt. Two prime steers, weighing 3,400 lbs., fed for the Easter market by Mr. R. Carter, Otonabee. Six steers, fed by self with extra care. Two calves, fed by Mr. A. Fitzgerald, Smith. Two spring lambs, each fed by Mr. John Woods, North Monaghan, and Mr. Humphrey, Otonabee. Eight beautiful Berkshire pigs, fed by Mr. J. D. Fowler, Smith. Besides a large number of sheep and spiced and fancy meats of every kind. See advertisement.

JOHN MERVIN,

Paterson's Block, Hunter street, has made excellent preparations. His display will be contributed to as follows:—Two extra fine steers, fed by Mr. Wm. Telford, Smith—perfect poems in beef. Three steers and a heifer fed by Mr. A. J. Gaddye, Otonabee. Six prime spring lambs, bred by J. Whitfield, Cavan. One good veal, bred by Mr. James Jackson, Otonabee. One fine pig, supplied by Mr. Thos. Fry, of Cavan; besides a fine collection of fancy meats of all descriptions. Don't forget to read his advertisement and call and see his display.

HARRY WINCH

is plump to the front with the following list: Six prime heifers from the herd of Mr. Geo. McKee, Smith. Two steers and one heifer from the herd of Capt. Wallis, "Merino." One Durham heifer, fed by Mr. J. Moore, Hastings. One Durham cow from the herd of Mr. R. D. Dundas, Cavan. One steer and one heifer, fed by Mr. Bulmer, Smith. Durham heifer, fed by Mr. Hugh Fife, Otonabee. Ayrshire heifer, fed by Mr. Carter, Otonabee. Grade heifer, bred by Mr. John Morrisey, South Monaghan, and one thoroughbred Durham raised by Mr. A. Grieves, Smith, both fed by Mr. Winch, himself. Spring lambs, supplied by Messrs. J. & C. McNeil, Cavan, John Richards, Hamilton, S. Davis, Smith, and Richard Thexton, Mount Pleasant. Calves, bred by Messrs. A. Goodfellow, Monaghan, and G. Learmouth, Otonabee. Besides a huge stock of fancy meats of all kinds. Read his advertisement.

R. WAINRIGHT,

is again to the front with a tempting bill of fare for Easter, and has supplied himself with the following choice animals:—1 Steer, 2 years old in May, fed by Mr. John Bertram, weighs 1380 lbs., and is the best animal of his age ever fed in the county. One Steer, 2 year old, fed by Mr. John Bertram. Two Heifers, fed by Mr. Sandy Matchett, Otonabee, extra fine animals. Pair of cattle (steer and heifer) purchased in Cavan by that noted drover, Thomas Howden. One steer fed by Mr. Clydesdale, of Dummer, very choice. Six cattle, fed by Mr. Sutton, of Cavan, and purchased from Mr. William Crough, Enniamore. One pair of Steers, fed by Mr. John Hall, of Smith. One Cow, fed by himself. Calves, fed by Mr. Geo. Elliot, Smith, and Mr. Philip Elmhurst, Ototabee. Sheep and Lambs from the folds of Messrs. P. Elmhurst, Otonabee: Geo. Connell, Asphodel; T. E. Fitzgerald, Smith, and other well known breeders. Several fine Hogs, fed by Mr. James Brown, North Monaghan, and himself. Read his advertisement.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet 18-tf

ROOM PAPER!

Keeping a complete stock of Wall Paper at the present time is not what it was a few years ago. Then, it meant a few hundred dollars; now, it means several thousand dollars; then, it consisted of low priced papers and borders; now, the decorations required frequently cost double what the papers do. In order to have a complete stock, we have invested no less a sum than $6,000.00 CASH!

This is why we have done so large a business in the past; our stock is so large, and the range of patterns so varied in each price, that we can suit those who can only afford to buy the cheapest, as well as the rich who will pay any price.

Our Patterns will Satisfy. Our Prices will Please.

THE NOR'-WEST WAR

A History of the Week's Warlike Operations.

Troops Pushing Forward—Slow Progress—The Indians Committing Outrages—Prince Albert still Invested—A Quiet Time at the Front—The Calm Before the Storm.

WINNIPEG, MAN., April 1.—The situation is becoming worse and worse. Riel is continually receiving accessions. Big Bear's band and the Fort Pitt Indians have joined him. It is also stated that in spite of all denials a number of Montana half breeds, to whom he is well known, are taking an active part in the movement. The Rev. Father Le Bret, of the Fort Q'Appelle mission, and one of the most popular and best informed priests in the country, says he speaks from practical knowledge when he states that affairs are much more serious than the people of eastern Canada imagine and that from between seven and ten thousand well-armed troops will be required to clear the country and suppress the rebellion. The movement, he thinks, has gone too far already to hope for an immediate peaceful solution. The government, in his opinion should have appointed their commission three months ago and then bloodshed at least would have been avoided. The grievances complained off are not of to-day but are of long standing. However, the crimes that have already been committed will have to be punished and the men in arms will take a deal of whipping and require something more substantial than promises before they consent to submit. The campaign may last all summer and will lead to distress that will give the government much trouble to grapple with after quietness has been restored.

DESERTING THEIR HOMES.

Many settlers on the Temperance colony lands at Saskatoon and other places have abandoned their homesteads, leaving everything to the merciless rapacity of the Indians, who plunder and destroy almost everything in their path. These poor people driven from their homes will have to be aided.

The half-breeds in this district are quiet, but fears are entertained of a disturbance. Several meetings were held by them lately. They seize every item of news from the north with avidity, and show a great tendency to approve of Riel's actions. The Bleeds and Flathead Indians talk of the late fight at Carleton and have a great opinion of Riel.

PRINCE ALBERT BESIEGED.

QU'APPELLE, April 1.—A courier has come through with the report that Prince Albert is entirely surrounded, and that Col. Irvine and Major Crozier with the police are hemmed in by a vastly superior force. The runner brought a request for doctors, and a party left this morning for there with Doctor Dodd, who is confident, by the aid of scouts, that he will take with him, of being able to get through.

The rebels refuse to allow any mail matter to come through.

The Touchwood Indians to the north of here are greatly excited, and it is feared that they will harrass the troops on their progress north.

THE SIEGE OF BATTLEFORD RAISED.

WINNIPEG, April 1.—The news from Battleford this afternoon states that the Indians have left the town and gone in a westerly direction.

A telegram to the Hudson Bay authorities confirms the shooting of yesterday and adds the name of one Clink, Indian instructor to the Mooseman band, as among the killed.

The population of Battleford is not more than 600, about one half of whom are white. There are some good farms in the neighborhood.

The feeling here is strongly adverse to the government sending Hon. Mr. Royal to treat with Riel. The volunteers are indignant at any such idea, and would resent it, as the blood of Canadian patriots is now upon the head of Riel by the treachery over a flag of truce.

The gloomy news from Battleford has excited troops so at Qu'Appelle that they clamor for a speedy advance to the relief of the beleaguered garrison.

Mr. Isbester, who was at Batoche's crossing on the day of the fight, corroborates the intelligence that the rebels lost heavily during the engagement.

NEW BATTALIONS AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, April 1.—Two new battalions commanded by Col. Scott and Col. Osborne Smith are now awaiting equipment to leave for the front. Col. Scott returned to-night from Ottawa. The Winnipeg Guards have also been formed six companies strong and a civil service company seventy strong under Capt. Graburn has been organized and are now protecting the government buildings.

A GENEROUS OFFER

MONTREAL, April 1.—A. Baumgarten, master of the Montreal hunt, has written to the government offering to equip and horse at his own expense fifty men for service in the Northwest, the troopers to be composed of members of the hunt club. This is a most generous offer on the part of Mr Baumgarten, considering that the horses alone will cost say $10,000. It is understood that Mr. Baumgartem is willing to expend $25,000 to sustain the hands of the government.

CANADA STILL!

CHICAGO, April 1.—The excitement over the insurrection in Manitoba is said to have aroused the Canadian residents of this city. To the number of about 150, they are reported to have tendered their services to the government at Ottawa, asking to be allowed to proceed at once to Winnipeg to assist in putting down the rebellion.

SCALPING NEAR BATTLEFORD.

Mr. James Latimer, of Ottawa, has received the following despatch from his brother at Battleford:

"BATTLEFORD, April 1.—The Indians are on the way here, and the whites are all in the police barracks. We can stand them off until help comes. Considerable scalping has been done to settlers. WM. LATIMER.

THURSDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 2.—A telegram just received says the field battery had a skirmish with the Indians at the Touchwood hills and killed two Indians. No soldiers were wounded and the Indians scattered.

THE GENERAL SITUATION.

WINNIPEG, April 2.—The situation remains unchanged, although the general opinion appears to be that the prompt measures taken by the government will lead to a quicker suppression of the trouble than at one time was expected. All agree that no overtures for peace can be made until Riel has been delivered up for punishment.

Lieut. Col. Scott arrived this morning from Ottawa with the second three hundred men enlisted for his battalion. He will take 200 men from Winnipeg, and one hundred from the country district. The battalion will be ready for active service at noon to-morrow. Arms and ammunition arrived by special train this morning.

Capt. Stewart arrived this morning from Ottawa, en route to Calgary, to take command of his mounted force of cow-boys.

PRINCE ALBERT STILL INTACT.

QU'APPELLE, April 2.—Prince Albert is still invested, but the insurgents have as yet made no demenstration. Riel, a recent arrival states, told the Prince Albert people that he would not molest them unless they became offensive. He would however take their stock if he wanted supplies.

Humbolt is reported to have been abandoned, the operators and others being in fear of an attack by Indians. A quanity of stores and supplies are thus left for the rebels.

TWO SCOUTS REPORTED KILLED.

WINNIPEG, April 2.—Telegrams are coming in from every town and village from the province that companies have been organized and they are clamoring for arms.

At a meeting of wholesale merchants held here complaints were made of the monopoly enjoyed by the Hudson Bay company in furnishing supplies.

A report from Battleford, received in a roundabout manner, states that two scouts, believed to be from Prince Albert, were captured and killed by Indians.

Large quantities of ammunition, arms and millitary supplies arrived to-day from the east and are being stored in Fort Osborne preparatory to their shipment west.

The citizens are preparing a great reception for the troops from the east.

RIEL'S ARMY.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 2.—A man named Howie of High Bluff, just returned from Batouche crossing, the headquarters of Riel, reports that under his command are twelve hundred half-breeds and seven hundred Indians, and all fully bent upon fighting.

Some idea of the devastation can be gained from the fact that settlers arriving at Fort Qu'Appelle from the north report that their path at night was lit up at stretches with the burning barns and houses.

The Indian insurrection has completely overshadowed the half-breed rising, not alone from the strength it gives to Riel, but from the fact that the redskins will prove less reasonable when terms of settlement are being made, and will for the future have exaggerated ideas of their power to cause trouble if their demands, no matter how exorbitant, are not complied with. They are urged on, first, by starvation, secondly by a natural love for plunder, and, thirdly, by a desire for revenge against agents and officials who have cheated and betrayed them. These form three powerful elements which will drive them to many acts of violence. It is noteworthy that so far their course has been unmarked by any deeds that come under the category of barbarism.

Agents have been sent from here to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo and other points to purchase all the repeating rifles and ammunition to be procured.

The burning and sacking of the town of Battleford by the Crees is confirmed. The half breeds around Duck Lake are expected to join in the attack upon the barracks to be made under the immediate direction of Pound-Maker. Three bands of Crees are now encamped on the south side of Battleford, and it is expected that Big Bear's band and the Fort Pitt Indians, numbering 300 warriors, will join them, the meeting place being the scene of last summer's conflict with the police.

RIEL'S FORCES.

QU'APPELLE, April 1.—It is estimated that Riel has now between fifteen hundred and two thousand men at his command. They are generally well armed, but the report that they have field pieces is untrue. It is undoubted that he is receiving aid from the other side, as some men have been seen with him who are not half-breeds, Indians or settlers, But are strangers entirely unacquainted with the country.

A family named Lorell arrived to-day from Batoche. They left there the day of the fight at Duck Lake. They say things are pretty serious, and that Big Bear and Beardy, with eight hundred warriors, are with Riel. All the settlers were ordered to stay on their farms or take up arms on pain of death. The Lorells escaped at night.

THE TOWN CLEANED OUT.

QU'APPELLE, April 2.—A despatch from Battleford states that three policemen and twelve civilians, under cover of a field-piece, made a sortie from the barracks and captured a buckboard and horse belonging to three half-breeds who were plundering a store. One of the breeds was wounded but they all got away. The party report the town badly plundered, some of the houses and stores being completely cleaned out.

The Taylor settlement, 25 miles west of Battleford, was raided to-day and everything destroyed. A large body of Indians with their families and cattle are encamped twelve miles out.

MOVEMENTS OF THE TROOPS AT QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE TOWN, April 2.—The troops at the Fort advanced last night to the Touchwood hills, and those here started this morning for the fort to make room at this point for the forces coming from the east. A general advance will be made from Fort Qu'Appelle, which will be the second base, when sufficient troops have arrived to quell the whole thing at one blow. The advance will take place in the latter part of next week, and will be made in two divisions, one from Qu'Appelle, the other from Swift Current by river. To prevent any rebels leaving the country, both divisions will advance at the same time. It has not been definitely decided who will command the second division, but rumour says it will be Col. Otter and Lord Melgund. The transportation service is thoroughly organized, 300 teams being now at work.

RIFLES FOR THE TROOPS.

OTTAWA, April 2.—The government has ordered 10,000 Martini-Henri rifles for immediate use, which will be at once despatched for distribution among the troops serving in the Northwest.

Capt. Gorrieu, of the Princess Louise dragoon guards, Ottawa, has tendered his regiment for service in the Northwest and the troopers are jubilant in the hope of being accepted.

EVERYTHING READY

WINNIPEG, April 3.—The news from Qu'Appelle announces that everything is in readiness for the expedition to move to the Touchwood Hills. The Hospital Corps has been organized under Drs. Whiteford and Codd, and is located in the immigrant sheds at Qu'Appelle. Trails are in a terrible condition, and transport to the scene of the troubles is going to be an arduous undertaking. The health of the troops, generally, is excellent, although some are suffering from diarrhœa.

A present the transport service consists of 400 teams, but these will have to be increased to 1,000 before the march is commenced in earnest. Every available team in the Qu'Appelle Valley has been pressed into service, and agents have been despatched to Regina, Moose Jaw, and other adjacent points to secure more horses. The difficulties of operating this part of the expedition are great, owing to the scarcity of fodder in the country to be travelled.

American troops are being concentrated at Fort Assiniaiboine to enforce neutrality.

A telegram from Calgary announces a consultation between Col. Strange, Col. Herchmer, and Capt. Cotton of the Mounted Police. Col. Herchmer will return to Medicine Hat on Saturday. He is making the necessary arrangements for steamboat transportation of troops and supplies down the Saskatchewan.

BATTLEFORD IN DANGER.

WINNIPEG, April 3.—There are no advices to-day from any point beyond Humboldt, where all is reported quiet. It is not known yet where the wire is cut, but it is likely in the vicinity of Clarke's Crossing. There is great anxiety as to the fate of the Battleford people, no faith being placed in Poundmaker and his followers. There seems to be no reason to fear trouble from any but the Saskatchewan Indians as all the others are reported quiet on their reserves. Gen. Middleton has kept all his men at Qu'Appelle, and will wait the arrival of the battery there. There is talk of the rebels scattering themselves along the route from Touchwood to Clarke's Crossing, but the general expectation here is that they have no such plans. The troops will likely find no opposition but from bad weather and worse roads. Riel has many emissaries out through the country spreading reports of the successful encounter with the police, and making the Halfbreeds and Indians believe that he will completely crush the forces sent against him. There is danger that the Battleford and Prince Albert people may be starved out, and that is principal thing to be feared.

WINNIPEG, April 3.—The last despatch received by Commissioner Wrigley, of the Hudson Bay Company, from the Battleford agent, Mackay, before the wires went down was as follows:—"No Indians in town, but large numbers six miles south and also west. Messengers not yet returned from Prince Albert. It is hard to say what outcome will be; troops wanted at once.

A COMPLETE BATTERY.

LONDON, Eng., April 3.—A complete battery of muzzle-loading nine pounders, with ammunition, has been shipped to Canada for use in suppressing the rebellion in the North-West.

MONTREAL, April 3.—About 300 Caughnawagna Indians have offered their services in the North-West.

A TORY COLONEL'S GOOD-BYE.

"If I am spared to return I will have something to say in the House regarding this North-West business, and the manner in which the militia of the Dominion is treated by the Department at Ottawa." These were the last words spoken by Lieut-Col. Ouimet as he said good-bye to a prominent artillery officer yesterday. "Fancy," said the officer in question, "the canteens asked for by the 65th on Monday only arrived an hour before the train started and were in the shape of great cumbersome tin cups. Three years ago we applied for a new outfit of sword belts. The requisition was sent to Col. Cotton, Quebec, and was passed by him. It was sent to Ottawa, and in a month or so we were informed that there none in store. A visit to St. Helen's Island proved that there were sufficient for probably the whole artillery force of the Dominion, and that in fact thousands of dollars worth of valuable stores were actually rotting away and becoming moth-eaten whilst the regiments were denuded of every requisite. After a lenghy correspondence the Department cut down our requisition to half, although we had not received sword belts for 22 years. This is the policy of the Department throughout, and you may depend upon it when our fellows get back from the North-West they will have their say about it."

AFTER THE HORSE IS STOLEN.

WINNIPEG, April 3.—A. E. Forget of Regina, one of the commissioners for the adjudication of half-breed claims, has received instructions to be in Winnipeg by Monday, when the first meeting of the commission will take place.

LONDON, Ont., April 3.—W. P. R. Street, Q. C., chairman of the North-West commission, accompanied by the secretary of the same, left last night for the west. They propose leaving Winnipeg for the Saskatchewan valley on Tuesday.

SUNDAY'S DESPATCHES,

AT PRINCE ALBERT.

WINNIPEG, April 5.—A message from Col. Irvine, at Prince Albert, received by the Hudson Bay company to-night sent via. Humbolt describes the situation in the settlements as very critical and says Riel and his followers are threatening a general attack upon the settlers. He urges that reinforcements of troops be sent, and says that at least 1500 men are required with supplies. The Teton-Sioux Indians are making trouble and stealing all kinds of eatables and provisions to gratify their hunger.

THE NEWS CONFIRMED.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 5.—A telegram to the Hudson Bay authorities confirms the previous despatch that things are critical at Prince Albert. The fort is anything but impregnable and to add to the difficulties supplies are short. The people are now on less than half rations. Another Duck Lake affair on a more extensive scale is feared. The news naturally causes intense anxiety, both in civic and military circles.

Settlers in the district are leaving their farmes from dread of the Sioux, who are in swarms throughout the country.

The Sioux band probably referred to is that under the leadership of Chief White Cap whose reserve is situated at Moose Wood near Prince Albert.

The report of a provisional government having been established by Riel would seem to be true, as the Hudson authorities have received from one of the officers a telegram confirming the idea that the half-breeds have formed a provisional government just as was done by Riel during the Red River rebellion.

RECEPTION OF A AND BATTERIES.

WINNIPEG, April 5.—The reception to the advance detachment of A and B batteries from the East last night was most enthusiastic, and fully five thousand people greeted the remainder upon their arrival this afternoon at three o'clock. A parade of horses and men showed both to have suffered but little from fatigue. A and B batteries left for the west at 6 o'clock to night. There was a large crowd at the station and they were heartily cheered till the train left the depot. They expect to reach Qu'Appelle about 6 o'clock to-morrow evening.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

Ottawa, April 6th.—The official war news and leading specials received here to-day are as follows:

The Minister of Militia, Hon. A. P. Caron, received a cypher despatch from Col. Irvine, who is at Prince Albert, yesterday. The message was dated on Saturday, and with some difficulty was forwarded to Humboldt by courier. It is understood that the telegram sets forth that while all is quiet at Prince Albert, the place is surrounded by rebels, and Col. Irvine and his forces are entirely helpless. He asks that reinforcements be sent at once. Scouting parties belonging to the rebels are in all directions, and the settlers' houses are being plundered, while their lives are spared. Riel's forces are increasing, and an attack on Prince Albert might any day occur.

MONTANA COWBOYS VOLUNTEER.

Calgary, April 6th.—A number of Montana cowboys are here ready to join the Canadian mounted contingent.

THE SASKATCHEWAN OPENING.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 6.—R. J. Molloy the telegraph operator at Clarke's crossing, says the ice is clearing out of the Saskatchewan, and that it will be free for steamboat navigation in eighteen or twenty hours from yesterday, thus opening a more rapid route for the advance of the troops to the relief of the endangered posts. By this means direct water communication can be had with Prince Albert, and the advance of the men to Battleford will be much expedited as they can proceed down the south branch of the river as far as Clarke's Crossing.

THE TRANSPORT SERVICE.

WINNIPEG, April 6.—S. L. Bedson warden of Manitoba penitentiary, has charge of the transport service, and has it now thoroughly organized. There are 350 teams divided into right and left divisions, each of which is sub-divided into subdivisions of ten teams, under a head teamster. They pay about $7 a day for teams, and drivers find their food and forage. Mr. Bedson is ably assisted by J. H. E. Secretan, so well known throughout this country. They estimate that they will have to transport for the troops now here, including teamsters, numbering 650 men, 72,800 lbs of food and 768,000 lbs of forage for the teams to last 30 days.

ORDER OF MARCH.

WINNIPEG, April 6.—When the troops reach Touchwood the entire force will be consolidated for a march across the salt plains. The order of the march will be as follows: Scouts will be thrown out about a mile on each side of the road. Half a company will act as an advance guard, with one field piece. The main body of the troops, the baggage, and one gun will be the rear guard. When they halt a lagger will be formed with the wagons and an outlook posted at frequent intervals.

TUESDAY DESPATCHES.

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS.

WINNIPEG, noon, April 7.—An exciting despatch was received from Moosejaw last night to the effect that about forty Cree Indians, in full war paint, entered Swift Current on Friday about 3.30 p. m. and after holding a war dance helped themselves to whatever they wanted.

The citizens were so much alarmed that they took all their families to the C. P. R. dining rooms, and determined to sell their lives dearly. The children and female part of the population have now arrived at Moosejaw for safety.

HEMMED IN BY HALFBREEDS.

A telegram has been received from Turtle Mountain district from settlers, who claim that they are surrounded by several thousand half-breeds on both sides of the international boundary, who are in avowed sympathy with Riel. Scouts will doubtless be sent to patrol the frontier, and to co-operate with troops in case of emergency.

Gen. Middelton has ordered arms and ammunition to be sent to Moosejaw for home guard formed there, and 25 stand of arms for Company at Buffalo Lake, in same vicinity, both places being infested with bands of treacherous Sioux.

TROOPS ADVANCING.

WINNIPEG, April 7.—The troops which left Qu'Appelle for the front made a march of 25 miles yesterday on the road to Touchwood Hills. It was cold and snowing, and if the wind was anything like it is here the troops must have suffered intensely. It was a perfect blizzard.

The new drill shed was blown down to the ground, as it was about ready for the roof, inflicting damages to the extent of $6,000. There is an uneasy feeling in Edmonton, and news is eagerly sought after. The Indians show a degree of restlessness which is rather ominous, but peace has not yet been broken by any of them.

It is feared that if reports of further rebel successes reach them they might be induced to act rashly, especially as Riel's runners are among them.

THE AFGHAN WAR CLOUD.

England rejects Russia's terms—Still danger of War.

LONDON, April 7.—Earl Granville has forwarded a despatch to Sir Edward Thornton, the British ambassador at St. Petersburg, refusing to accede to Russia's proposal to extend the line of debatable zone on the disputed Russo-Afghan frontier to the Parapainsus mountains. Earl Granville insists that the "Lessar" line be the farthest limit, and urges an early meeting of the joint boundary commissions. It is expected Russia will yield these points, but it is thought certain the boundary commission will disagree.

RENEWED WAR FEELING.

London, April 7th.—There was a slight renewal of the war feeling on the stock exchange to-day, owing to the reports from St. Petersburgh, that Gen. O'Brutcheff, chief of staff of the Russian army, had obtained the czar's assent to the acceleration of war preparations.

EXREMELY CRITICAL.

London, April 8th.—The Standard says: "It is premature to say that negotiations between England and Russia are broken down, but it is unquestionable that are relations between the two nations have reached an extremely critical state. We are no nearer an understanding now than when Russia refused to withdraw the Cossack from Pulikatam."

CONTINUED PREPARATIONS.

CALCUTTA, April 6.—Orders have been received from London to actively continue the war preparations, notwithstanding Russia's pacific assurances. The action creates a good impression in India. All officers have been ordered to join their regiments in India. The Daily Telegraph says 8000 reinforcements will [illegible] to India, mostly from Egypt wi[illegible]gland will surely abandon especially [illegible] of war with Russia.

BAILLIEBORO'.

The United Townships of South Monaghan, Cavan, Hope, Hamilton and North Monaghan Agricultural Society will hold their first spring show for stallions and bulls at Baillieboro, on Thursday, the 30th of April. Prizes will be awarded for imported heavy draught, Canadian heavy draught, agricultural and road or carriage stallions; also, for all thorough-bred bulls with pedigrees. The prizes are open to any horses in the Dominion. These townships comprise a fine section of country, where there have been some fine horses, and we have no doubt but that this exhibition will prove a successful one. The Baillieborough Society seem to be alive to the importance of using good animals, and this exhibition will bring together the competition a class of stock that will enable the shrewd farmer to make a good selection.

The Picture Teaching of the Bible

The Merciful Lessons of Affliction.

The Passage Across the Dark Valley Smoothened.

"As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."—Isaiah lxvi., 13.

The Bible is a warm letter of affection from a parent to a child, and yet there are many who see chiefly the severer passages. As there may be fifty or sixty nights of gentle dew in one summer, that will not cause as much remark as one hail-storm of half an hour, so there are those who are more struck by those passages of the Bible that announce the indignation of God than by those that announce His affection. There may come to a household twenty or fifty letters of affection during the year, and they will not make as much excitement in that house as one sheriff's writ; and so there are people who are more attentive to those passages which announce the wrath of God than to those which announce His mercy and His favor. God is a Lion, John says in the Book of Revelation. God is a Breaker, Micah announced in his prophecy. God is a Rock. God is a King. But hear also that God is Love. A father and his child are walking out in the fields on a summer's day, and there comes up a thunder-storm, and there is a flash of lightning that startles the child, and the father says: "My dear, that is God's eye." There comes a peal of thunder, and the father says: "My dear, that is God's voice." But the clouds go off the sky, and the storm is gone, and light floods the heavens and floods the landscape, and the father forgets to say:

"THAT IS GOD'S SMILE."

I remark in the first place that God has a mother's simplicity of instruction. A father does not know how to teach a child the A B C. Men are not skilful in the primary department; but a mother has so much patience that she will tell a child for the hundredth time the difference between F and G and between I and J. Sometimes it is by blocks, sometimes it is by the worsted-work; sometimes by the slate; sometimes by the book. She thus teaches the child and has no awkwardness of condescension in so doing. So God, our mother, stoops down to our infantile minds. Though we are told a thing a thousand times and we do not understand it, our heavenly mother goes on, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. God has been teaching some of us thirty years and some of us sixty years, one word of one syllable, and we do not know it yet—f-a-i-t-h, faith. When we come to that word we stumble, we halt, we lose our place, we pronounce it wrong. Still God's patience is not exhausted. God, our mother, puts us in the school of prosperity and the letters are in sunshine and we cannot spell them. God puts us in the school of adversity and the letters are black and we cannot spell them.

A mother teaches her child

CHIEFLY BY PICTURES.

If she wants to set forth to her child the hideousness of a quarrelsome spirit, instead of giving a lecture upon that subject, she turns over a leaf and shows the child two boys in a wrangle and says: "Does not that look horrible?" If she wants to teach her child the awfulness of war, she turns over the picture-book and shows the war charger, the headless trunks of butchered men, the wild, agonizing, bloodshot eye of battle rolling under lids of flame, and she says, "That is war!" The child understands it. In a great many books the best part are the pictures. The style may be insipid, the type poor, but a picture always attracts a child's attention.

God wishes to set forth the fact that in the judgment the good will be divided from the wicked. How is it done? By a picture; by a parable—a fishing scene. A group of hardy men, long-bearded, geared for standing to the waist in water; sleeves rolled up. Long-oar sun-gilt; boat battered as though it had been a playmate of the storm. A full net, thumping about with the fish which have just discovered their captivity, the worthless moss-bunkers and the useful flounders all in the same net. The fisherman puts his hand down amid the squirming fins, takes out the moss-bunkers and throws them into the water, and gathers the good fish into the pail. So, says Christ, it shall be at the end of the world. The bad He will cast away, and the good He will keep. Another picture:

God, our Mother, wanted to set forth the duty of neighborly love, and it is done by a picture. A heap of wounds on the road to Jericho. A traveller has been fighting a robber. The robber stabbed him and knocked him down. Two ministers come along; they look at the poor fellow, but do not help him. A traveller comes along—a Samaritan. He says "whoa" to the beast he is riding and dismounts. He examines the wounds; he takes out some wine, and with it washes the wounds, and then he takes out some oil, and puts that in, to stop smarting, and then he tears off a piece of his own garment for a bandage; then he helps the wounded man on the beast and walks by the side, holding him on until they come to a tavern. He says to the landlord, "Here is money to pay the man's board for two days; take care of him; if it costs anything more, charge to me and I will pay it." Picture—the good Samaritan or who is your neighbor?

Does God, our Mother, want to set forth what a foolish thing it is to go away from the right, and how glad divine mercy is to take back the wanderer? How is it done? By a picture. A good father. Large farm with fat stalls and dairy. Fine horses with exquisite wardrobe. Everything for every boy but the prodigal. He has gone away. The prodigal feeds his swine, gets hopelessly poverty-stricken, gets afoot and running. It is father! The head, torn of the brooks, gets a ring. The foot, inflamed and bleeding, gets a sandal. The tattered rag-der, showing through tatters, gets a robe. The stomach, gnawing itself with hunger, gets a full platter smoking with meat. The father cannot and has not kept the returned adventurer. Tears running down the face until they come to a smile—the night dew melting into the morning. No work on the farm that day; for when a bad boy repents and comes back, promising to do better, God knows that is enough for one day. "And they began to be merry." Picture—Prodigal son returned from the wilderness.

So God, our mother, teaches us everything by pictures. The sinner is a lost sheep. Jesus is the bridegroom. The useless man a barren fig tree. The Gospel is a great supper. Satan, a sower of tares. Truth, a mustard-seed. That which we could not have understood in the abstract statement God, our mother, presents to us in this Bible album of pictures God engraved. Is not the divine maternity over thee teaching us?

I remark again that God has a mother's favoritism. A father sometimes shows a sort of favoritism. Here if a boy—strong, well, of high forehead and quick intellect. The father says: "I will take that boy into my firm yet; or "I will give him the very best possible education." There are instances where, for the culture of the one boy, all the others have been robbed.

A BAD FAVORITISM:

but that is not the mother's favorite. I will tell you her favorite. There is a child who at two years of age had a fall. He has never got over it. The scarlet fever muffled his hearing. He is not what he once was. That child has caused the mother more anxious nights than all the other children. The last thing she does when going out of the house is to give a charge in regard to him. The first thing on coming in is to ask in regard to him. Why, the children of the family all know that he is the favorite and says "mother, you let him do just as he pleases, and you give him a great many things which you do not give us. He is your favorite." The mother smiles. She knows it is so. So he ought to be; for if there is any one in the world who needs sympathy more than another, it is an invalid child, weary on the first mile of life's journey; carrying an aching head, a weak side, an irritated lung. So the mother ought to make him a favorite. God, our mother, has favorites. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." That is one whom he especially loves he chasteneth. God loves us all; but is there one weak and sick and sore and wounded and suffering and faint? That is the one who lies nearest and more perpetually on the great, loving heart of God. Why, it never coughs but our mother, God, hears it. It never stirs a weary limb in the bed but our mother, God, knows it. There is no such a watcher as God. The best nurse may be overborne by fatigue and fall asleep in the chair, but God, our mother, after being up a year of nights with a suffering child, never slumbers nor sleeps.

"Oh," says one, "I cannot understand all that about affliction." A refiner of silver once explained it to a Christian lady. "I put the silver in the fire and I keep refining it and trying it till I can see my face in it, and I then take it out." Just so it is that God keeps his dear children in the furnace till the divine image may be seen in them; then they are taken out of the fire. "Well," says some one, "if that is the way that God treats his favorites, I do not want to be a favorite."

When I see God especially busy in troubling and trying a Christian, I know that out of that Christian's character there is to come some especial good. A quarry-man goes down into the excavation and with strong-handed machinery bores into the rock. The rock says: "What do you do that for?" He puts in powder; he lights a fuse. There is

A THUNDERING CRASH.

The rock says: "Why the whole mountain is going to pieces." The crowbar is plunged; the rock is dragged out. After a while it is taken to the artist's studio. It says: "Well, now I have got to a good, warm, comfortable place at last." But the sculptor takes the chisel and mallet, and he digs for the eyes and he cuts for the mouth and he bores for the ear and he rubs it with sand-paper, until the rock says: "When will this torture be ended?" A sheet is thrown over it. It stands in darkness. After a while it is taken out. The covering is removed. It stands in the presence of ten thousand applauding people as they greet the statue of the poet or the prince or the conqueror. "Ah," says the stone, "now I understand it. I am a great deal better off now, standing as a statue of a conquerer, than I would have been down in the quarry." So God finds a man down in the quarry of ignorance and sin. How to get him up? He must be bored and blasted and chisled and scoured and stand sometimes in the darkness. But, after a while, the mantle of affliction will fall off and his soul will be greeted by the one hundred and forty-four thousand and the thousands of thousands as more than conqueror. O, my friend, God, our mother, is just as kind in our afflictions as in our prosperity. God never touches us but for our good. If a field clean and cultured is better off than a barren field, and if a stone that has become a statue is better off than the marble in the quarry, then that soul that God chastens may be his favorite. Oh, the rocking of the soul is not the rocking of an earthquake, but the rocking of God's cradle. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." I have been told that the pearl in an oyster is merely the result of a wound or sickness inflicted upon it, and I do not know but that the brightest gems of heaven will be found to have been the wounds of earth kindled into the jewelled brightness of eternal glory.

I remark that God has a mother's capacity for ATTENDING TO LITTLE HURTS.

The father is shocked at the broken bone of the child or at the sickness that sets the cradle on fire with fever, but it takes the mother to sympathize with all the little ailments and little bruises of the child. If the child has a splinter in its hand, it wants the mother to take it out and not the father. The father says, "Oh, that is nothing," but the mother knows that it is something and that a little hurt sometimes is a very great hurt. So with God, our mother: all our annoyances are important enough to look at and sympathize with. Nothing with God is something. There are no ciphers in God's arithmetic, and if we were only good enough of sight we could see as much through a microscope as through a telescope; those things that may be impalpable and infinitesimal to us, may be pronounced real and infinite to God. A mathematical point is defined as having no parts, no magitude. It is so small you cannot imagine it, and yet a mathematical point may be a starting point for a great eterality. God's surveyors carry a very long chain. A scale may be very delicate that can weigh a grain, but God's scale is so delicate that He can weigh with it that which is so small that a grain is a million times heavier. When John Kitto, a poor boy on back street of Plymouth, cut his foot with a piece of glass, God bound it so successfully that he became the great Christian geographer, and a commentator known among all nations. So every wound of the soul, however insignificant, God is willing to bind up. As at the first cry of the child the mother rushes to kiss the wound, so God, our mother, takes the smallest wound of the heart and presses it to the lips of divine sympathy. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

I remark further that God has a mother's patience

FOR THE ERRING.

If one does wrong, first his associates in life cast him off; if he goes on in the wrong way, his business partner casts him off; if he goes on, his best friends cast him off—his father casts him off. But after all others have cast him off, where does he go? Who holds no grudge, forgives the last thing as well as the first? Who sides by the murderer's counsel through the long trial? Who carries the lamplight at the window of the culprit's cell? who, when all others think ill of a man, keeps on thinking well of him? It is his mother, God bless her gray hairs, if she be still alive; and bless her grave if she be gone; and bless the aching cheek in which she used to rock, and bless the Bible she used to read! So God, our Mother, has patience for all the erring. After everybody else has cast a man off, God, our Mother, comes to the rescue. God longs to take charge of a bad case. After all the other doctors have got through the Heavenly Physician comes in. Human sympathy at such a time does not amount to much. Even the sympathy of the church, I am sorry to say, often does not amount to much. I have seen the most harsh and bitter treatment on the part of those who professed faith in Christ towards those who were wavering and erring. They tried on the wanderer sarcasm and Billingsgate caricature and they tried tittle tattle. There was one thing they did not try, and that was forgiveness. A soldier in England was brought by a sergeant to the colonel. "What," says the colonel, "bringing that man here again? We have tried everything with him." "Oh, no," says the sergeant. "there is one thing you have not tried. I would like you to try that." "What is that?" said the colonel Said the man, "forgiveness." The case had not gone so far but that it might take that turn, and so the colonel said, "Well, young man, you have done so and so, what is your excuse?" "I have no excuse, but I am very sorry," said the man. "We have made up our minds to forgive you," said the colonel. The tear started. He had never been accosted in that way before.

HIS LIFE WAS REFORMED

and that was the starting point for a positively Christian life. O church of God, quit your sarcasm when a man falls! Quit your irony, quit your tittle tattle and try forgiveness. God, your Mother tries it all the time. A man's sin may be like a continent, but God's forgiveness is like the Atlantic and Pacific Ocean, bounding it on both sides.

The Bible often talks about God's hand. I wonder how it looks. You remember distinctly how your mother's hand looked, though thirty years ago it withered away. It was different from your father's hand. When you were to be chastised you had rather have mother punish you than father. It did not hurt so much. And father's hand was different from mother's, partly because it had out-door toil and partly because God intended it to be different. The knuckles were more firmly set and the palm was calloused. But mother's hand was more delicate. There were blue veins running through the back of it. Though the fingers, some of them, were picked with a needle, the palm of it was very soft. Was there ever a poultice like that to take pain out of a wound? So God's hand is a mother's hand. What it touches it heals. If it amite you it does not hart as if it were another hand. O you poor wandering soul in sin, it is not a bailiff's hand that seized you to-day. It is not a hard hand. It is not an unsympathic hand. It is not a cold hand. It is not an enemy's haud. No, it is a gentle hand, a loving hand, a sympathic hand, a soft hand, a mother's hand. "As one whom his mother comforteth so will I comfort you."

I want to say, finally, that God has a mother's way of putting a child to sleep. You know there is no cradle song like a mother's. After the excitement of the evening it is almost impossible to get the child to sleep. If the rocking-chair stop a moment the eyes are wide open; but the mother's patience and keep on until, after a while, the angel of slumber puts his wing over the pillow. Well, my dear brothers and sisters in Christ, the time will come when we will be wanting to be put to sleep. The day of our life will be done and the shadows of the night of death will be gathering around us. Then we want God to soothe us, to hush us to sleep. Let the music at our going not be the dirge of the organ or the knell of the church tower, or the drumming of a "dead march," but let it be the hush of a mother's lullaby. Oh, the cradle of the grave will be soft with the pillow of the promises. When we are being knocked into that last slumber I want this to be the cradle song: "As one whom a mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

Asleep in Jesus! Far from Thee
Thy kindred and their graves may be;
But Thine is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

A Scotchman was dying. His daughter Nellie sat by the bedside. It was Sunday evening, and the bell of the church was ringing, calling the people to church. The good old man, in his dying dream, thought that he was on the way to church, as he used to be when he went in the sleigh across the river; and as the evening bell struck up, in his dying dream he thought it was the call to church. He said: "Hark, children, the bells are ringing; we shall be late; we must make the mare step out quick." He shivered, and then said: "Pull the buffalo robe up closer, my lass. It's cold crossing the river; but we will soon be there, Nellie, we will soon be there!" And he smiled and said: "Just there now." No wonder he smiled. The good old man had got to church. Not the old country church, but the temple in the skies. Just across the river.

How comfortably did God hush that old man to sleep. As one whom his mother comforteth, so God comforted him.

Catarrh A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination —this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1882. 48-52t

Advice to Mothers.

"It has been said that doctors in their prescriptions, in an indirect, ingenious way, write an article, in an indirect, ingenious way,

"Or run it into some advertisement that to avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility.

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A LADY of Utica, N. Y.

My Dear Sir,—In accordance to your request, I have obtained Average Mercantile Samples of Land Plaster from dealers in Toronto, and beg to report as follows:

	Cayuga White.	Owego Grey. (Pt. Hope.)	Paris Grey.
Calcium Sulphate (Fertilizer)	77.18	52.00	54.00
Carb. Lime and Magnesia (Useless)	trace	15.27	15.01
Iron and Alumina "	trace	1.50	1.60
Insoluble Matter "	1.27	8.75	15.60
Water and Organic Matter "	21.55	22.48	13.60
	100.00	100.00	100.00

The insoluble matter consists of clay and sand, being the residue left after boiling with hydrochloric acid. Yours obediently, THOMAS HEYS, Analytical Chemist.

The above analysis adds theoretical proof to the practically known fact that Cayuga White is 25 per cent purer than any other Land Plaster on our market.

OILCAKE This popular Feed I offer at a LOW Price. Special figures given to purchasers wanting quantities. Will be glad to quote prices to Secretaries of the different Grange Societies, FLAX SEED and FLAX SEED MEAL.

BACON LONG, CLEAR, AND CUMBERLAND CUT. Stock Large and Prices Lower than for years past.

EGGS I am now prepared to take any quantity of Eggs at highest market price. Cash always paid.

My general business in Flour, Feed and Coarse Grain, still receives careful attention. I have recently made extensive alterations in my shop, and having taken the next store, have now all my stock together. Farmers will now find my premises very convenient for handling Salt, Plaster, and all bulky goods.

N. B.—Oats taken in exchange for Oatmeal, 14 lbs. to the bushel.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

In and Around Our Legislative Halls.

(Correspondence of THE EXAMINER.)

MONDAY, MARCH 30th.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Farrow introduced a Bill to make some slight amendments in the Bill respecting the indemnity of members of Parliament.

In reply to questions by Mr. Blake and others, Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Caron gave information respecting the forces to be sent to the North-West to take the field against the rebels.

Mr. Blake repudiated and denounced the articles in the Hamilton Spectator declaring that the Ontario Liberals had armed the rebels and incited them to revolt.

He said—If this paper had referred to myself alone I should have followed my invariable custom of not bringing a newspaper article before the attention of Parliament. But it refers to the whole Reform party of the Province of Ontario. It refers to a party of as loyal and devoted Canadians as any set of men that are to be found in this wide Canada. I say that that article is a gross and as atrocious and a malignant insult. I say that no viler calumny was ever perpetrated than this monstrous slander, false to the knowledge of those who uttered it. As for myself individually, the blood of my cousin already stains the snow of the North-West, a nephew of mine and six men out of my office are on the train to-day with the volunteers, and my son and my brother's son have offered their services to the country. (Cheers.) Sir, I cannot control myself when I think that a newspaper, claiming to be decent, and the organ of hon. gentlemen opposite, should dare to say such things as I have just now read.

Sir John Macdonald disclaimed all sympathy with the article.

Motions for papers were passed relating to depositors in the Postoffice and Government Savings Banks, trade with France, and mails to and from Ottawa.

TUESDAY, MARCH 31st.

In the House to-day Sir L. Tilley introduced a Bill respecting the Bank of Windsor, Nova Scotia. Mr. Costigan moved resolutions declaring the expediency of legislation regarding weights and measures, and regarding the inspection of gas. At the opening and close of the sitting, announcements were made regarding the North-West troubles, and confirming the reports of the murder of two Indian Instructors, and of a general uprising at Battleford. The greatest part of the day was spent in Committee of Ways and Means.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1st.

Sir John Macdonald informed the House this afternoon that the official news from the Northwest had not changed the general aspect of affairs from what was communicated yesterday. The Indians had retired from Battleford, a distance of about twelve miles, to hold a feast, taking with them a number of cattle and horses and pillage from the houses.

Mr. Blake put a number of questions to the Government about the movement of troops and the means of communication. He also wished to know if this government had communicated with the government at Washington in regard to the transport of ammunition and stores through, via Chicago, and why troops were not always sent by this route.

Sir John Macdonald replied that his government had not communicated with the Government of the United States on the subject.

Hon. Peter Mitchell censured the leader of the Opposition for putting embarrassing questions to the Government which could not be answered except by making public such information as would be of value to the enemy and his sympathisers.

Mr. Mills attacked the Government Indian policy and Sir John defended it.

Mr. Bergin's factory bill was discussed preparatory to its second reading.

THURSDAY, APRIL 2nd.

There was very little business transacted in the House to-day, the Premier having moved at the commencement of the sitting that when the House rise at six o'clock it should stand adjourned until Tuesday next. The afternoon was mostly occupied with answering questions regarding the North-west trouble. The Government gave assurances of Piapot's continued friendliness. Only measures on which there would be little discussion were taken up. A number of minor Government Bills were advanced a stage, including a bill respecting contagious diseases among cattle, a bill respecting explosive substances, and others. The House adjourned, at 5:20 p. m.

L'Etendard (The Standard), the organ of that section of the Conservative party represented in the Cabinet by Sir Hector Langevin and Mr. Caron, published an article yesterday morning defending the claims of the half-breeds and condemning the Interior Department for the dilatory and negligent manner in which these claims have been dealt with. The paper mentioned makes a stronger attack upon the Government policy than any Reform paper, and hints that perhaps the Metis of the Northwest have been made to suffer because of their relationship with the population of Lower Canada. L'Etendard, while admitting that the rebellion must be suppressed as promptly as possible, says that the half-breeds have rights which cannot be ignored.

KEENE.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—A meeting in the interests of the Scott Act was held in the Presbyterian Church in this village on Friday, March 27th. Dr. Massie took the chair at seven o'clock, and then the meeting was opened with singing and prayer, after which the chairman delivered a short address, in which he spoke of the drinking customs of the people of thirty years ago and of the great improvement that had taken place in that respect since that time. He then read a short statement, which is particularly interesting to the ratepayers of Otonabee at the present time. He had obtained from the Treasurer of the township a statement of the sums of money that had been received as liquor license fees for the three years ending in 1884, and averaging these sums and then taking the whole assessed value of the township as a basis it was found that the loss of revenue from the liquor traffic would be covered by an extra rate of six cents on every thousand dollars. The statement was signed by the Treasurer, and it shews clearly that if no advantages were to be gained by the passing of this Act, the taxes would not be materially increased. The above disposes of one of the strongest arguments of the anti-Scott Act party, viz: that were the Act passed there would be a large increase in the taxes.

Miss Bowes, the agent of the W.C.T.U., then addressed the meeting and reviewed the trade in liquor from every point of view, she showed clearly in what ways the revenue of the Dominion was injured by the liquor traffic, and that though the Government received annually a revenue of over five million dollars from duties on liquors, it required much more than that sum to support jails, prisons and poorhouses, which were largely the result of the trade. The speaker showed also how the individual, the family, the municipality and the Province were injured by the same cause; gave a short sketch of the Scott Act and of its principal provisions; spoke in emphatic terms of the success of the Act in Halton, and of the victory gained in that county last September, over the opponents of the measure, and, and of the much larger majority the Act had received at that time. The speaker pointed out very clearly how the merchant, the manufacturer and the farmer would be benefitted by the passing of a prohibitory liquor law. The whole speech was a strong argument in favor of the Act, every point being clearly brought out, so that the dullest person present could have no trouble in understanding it. The speaker, in a speech of an hour and a half, held the close attention of a large audience, who showed their appreciation by the hearty vote of thanks which they presented to Miss Bowes at the close of the address. The assembly dispersed after singing the national anthem.

SCOTT ACT IN LAKEFIELD.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—We are pleased to note the steady progress of the Scott Act in Lakefield in connection with the petition now in circulation. By the faithful services of Messrs. T. J. Cox and T. G. Bone, assisted by Messrs J. C. Sherin and J. Griffin, the secretary is able to report the signatures of over ⅓ (one-third) of the voters in Lakefield. As many men vote in other municipalities in the county, whose name is on the voters' list, this petition represents about one-half the actual voters in Lakefield, in accordance with the provisions of the Scott Act to that effect. The fact that the majority of those who do not sign the petition, will either vote for the Act or not at all, is very encouraging, and as those who are decidedly opposed to the Act are a very diminutive minority, the results thus far are gratifying and the prospects are bright for a Scott Act victory in Lakefield.

It certainly speaks well for our citizens that they take such a firm stand in favor of the temperance question and public morality, and we doubt not that when Drunkenness and Crime versus Industry and Morality are tried on election day that the plaintiffs will be defeated.

THOS. G. BONE, Secretary.

Lakefield, April 1st, 1885.

NORTH SMITH.

The North Smith Dairy Association have applied for incorporation as a company, with the following provisional directors:—President, M. E. Sanderson; Directors—Col. Blewett, William Graham, R. H. Braden and W. J. Northey. The Selwyn factory is to be removed and rebuilt in an enlarged and improved form on lot 28, in the 12th concession. The new company has assurance of a very large patronage, and with increased resources and better facilities will be able to carry on operations that promise to be very profitable to stockholders and patrons.

A petition is in circulation in this quarter for the submission of the Scott Act to popular vote. It is receiving numerous signatures.

Travelling on the lake is still good and will probably last for some time to come.

Shall we let the child die?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much any how. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. "Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!" Well, try a bottle of Shaker Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor little fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

There is a wide difference between medicines which affect merely the symptoms of disease and those which affect its cause. The first are useful as palliatives, the second, if of genuine efficacy, produce speedier cures. To the latter class belongs Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Thousands of operation is the special attribute in all cases of Biliousness, Costiveness, Indigestion, Kidney Complaints, and Female Weakness.

Quilting Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching, very distressing, particularly at night, sensation as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. Many persons suffer for years with this terrible disease, supposing it to be a very obstinate case of Itching Piles, when a few applications of Dr. Swayne's Ointment will afford relief, and a few boxes will effect a permanent cure. Don't be imposed upon by parties who have a nostrum which they say will cure Piles in from one to six days. Dr. Swayne's Ointment will cure any case of Piles, no matter of how long standing, in less time than any other remedy. Sold by mail, 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. Its cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted. "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the glow and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1883: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1882: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 9, 1885.

The Work of the Session.

The closing hours of the second session of the fifth Legislature of Ontario last Monday, were to a great extent lost sight of in the public mind through the momentous events connected with the Half-breed and Indian uprising in the North-West. Still there was during the session a great deal of good work quietly and effectively put in. There has been nothing extraordinary in the way of excitement. Last session the astounding disclosures of the Tory Bribery Plot came like a thunder-burst upon the House and the country. The weakness of the Opposition in debating talent and legislative ability has been perhaps more conspicuous this session than before. The Tory members were not nerved with hope from the knowledge of the fact that their emissaries were valiantly buying their way into power. They had to face the prospect of remaining in the cold shades of opposition and to make the best of it. The session just past has been a working session, and the legislation accomplished practical and useful. No other session has, perhaps, brought about the passing of so many measures "beneficially affecting great interests and permanently influencing the future of the Province." Among the most important in the way of reform may be mentioned the Bill for the extension of the electoral franchise, the leading features of which are published elsewhere. This measure recognizes the right of the full enjoyment of citizenship by every man whose intelligence and industry, conjoined to a fixed residence, betrays an interest in the permanence of our institutions. The Bill practically confers "manhood suffrage," guarded, however, by such prudential restrictions as experience has shown to be necessary. The Redistribution Bill, as a complement to the foregoing, was framed with a view of giving practical expression to the principle of representation by population. The populations of the several ridings has been as closely approximated as could be done with due regard to the integrity of their municipal boundaries. The Municipal Act has received such amendments as defects in its practical working suggested. The School Laws have been carefully and thoroughly revised, and altogether the interests of the public have been wisely and fully protected. The Ministers deserve credit for the practical common-sense programme of legislation presented to the House, as well as for the manner of its presentation. Government measures were presented for consideration in good time and in a well-digested and well-considered form. The House was not asked, in this regard, to evolve order from chaos, but to pronounce upon the wisdom of propositions maturely considered. As a consequence less time than usual was wasted in fruitless discussion. The Opposition, however, by factious opposition, managed to do considerable beating of the air, the greatest sinner in this respect being the member for West Peterborough. His elocutionary fishing expeditions for faults was one of the most sombre clouds in the sky. The Opposition showed themselves exceedingly barren in the origination of legislation, and utterly incompetent and imbecile in their criticisms. They entered upon the session numerically weak, and left it as weak in this respect and much more debilitated morally. They failed to show a single reason why the present efficient, honest and capable Administration should give place to the demoralised Tory party of Ontario.

The curt way in which Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Pope refused to entertain the request of the Ontario municipal delegations for a recoupment of the bonuses given to railways since absorbed by the Canada Pacific, was, remarks the Sarnia Observer, in striking contrast to the treatment given to the Quebec demands for a refund of the sums spent by that Province on similar railways. Our Quebec brethren are preparing for another foray on the Dominion treasury, and it will be interesting to note how they will be received. If Ontario Tories were as determined in demanding favors for their Provinces as the Quebecers are, the municipalities would not be long in receiving their just dues. But they are not, and that's why Sir John is so ready to snub Ontario delegations and show them the wrong side of the door.

A Big Responsibility.

The cost of the present campaign is over two thousand dollars per day. What a fearful load of responsibility the Dominion Government have to lie under. Immense expenditure of money, injuring the country by the interruption of business, the death and suffering of scores of Canadian citizens, and inconceivable injury to the settlement prospects of the North-West. All these are directly due to the criminal mismanagement of the present Tory Government. Firstly, by their permitting their creatures in official position in the North-West to harrass and defraud the Half-breeds and Indians till these simple-minded, misguided people were driven into rebellion. Secondly, in refusing to redress the grievances of the half-breeds, many created by the Government, when everything pointed to rebellion if they were not redressed. Thirdly, in neglecting, when an outbreak was imminent, to take prompt steps to crush it. If the Government had acted as promptly as they should have done the Canadian troops would in all probability have ere this stamped out the rising, whereas, it will be weeks before they can have a brush at the rebels. A Government that makes every interest of the country subordinate to its retention of power, that cares not for money, life, or commercial depression, so long as the places and salaries of its members are safe, are sure to be called to a sharp and heavy reckoning "when this cruel war is over."

Another Reason.

In our last issue we advanced a number of indisputable facts which all pointed to the conclusion that the Dominion Government, in the present uprising, were reaping the wages of political sin, and that on them rested the sole responsibility for its existence. Another cause not directly touched on is the outgrowth of the pernicious system of spoils and indirect bribery pursued by the present Government. No Tory henchman, the country well knows, will work without pay, and one favorite means of rewarding these political adventurers has been to send them in swarms over the Northwest, and place them in positions of responsibility, for which, as the present outbreak proves, they were no more fit than so many navvies. The overbearing insolence of these creatures, from Lieut-Governor Dewdney down, has had a big effect in making the people discontented and ultimately of driving them into rebellion. As a sample of the Government officials in the Northwest we have Big Push Wilkinson and Chaplean, who was dismissed from office at Ottawa on account of misdoing, but was considered good enough to hold a government position in the North-West. These men, and hosts of their kind, have earned their rewards by active work at corrupting the electorate in the interest of the Tory party. And these are the men sent to the Northwest to represent the Government, whose every motive is a self seeking promotion of their own interests, regardless of the rights of the original owners of the soil. Sir John himself has acknowleged that the bearing of, at least, one of these officials has been "irritating." Sir John must have known this before the outbreak of the rebellion, yet this person, who is but a type of half a hundred others, is too much a pet to be recalled, but must be allowed to retain his place and draw his reward at the expense of the peace of the country and at the risk of the integrity of the Dominion. Lieut.-Governor Dewdney is a great sinner; he is represented like all the others as a land grabber, and it is pretty evident that some of the half-breeds have been cheated out of their lands. His treatment of the Indians too, has converted these into active enemies, whereas, with half decent treatment, they might have been enlisted on the side of law and order in quelling the present rising. If Dewdney and his subordinates as well as his superiors at Ottawa, had done their duties in the public interest and in a proper spirit, there would have been no rebellion, and our volunteers, many of whom may find nameless graves in the Northwest, would have been at home peacefully following their several callings.

Editorial Notes.

Sir John sustained himself in power by mortgaging Canada to every bidder. The Riel mortgage is now being foreclosed, and it will cost the country a million to "lift" it. Statesmanship! quoth the Welland Tribune.

Where is the Charybdis! Canada has now a good army in the field, and when spring releases the ice in our waters we shall require a navy. We might ask the Government if it would not be well to purchase another Charybdis. There is no lack of money—it is not likely the C.P.R. Syndicate will make another demand on Parliament during the present crisis.

When the whole North-West is in a blaze of insurrection the Government sends out its commissioners to attempt to do tardy justice to the half-breeds. "Too late! too late!" as Archbishop Tache said. It is locking the stable after the steed is stolen. It is like a man trying to take out a policy of insurance after his house is in flames. But the Government feels its guilt, and by this commission is trying to ease its conscience.

From the fact that the Dominion Government is preparing a number of political pamphlets it is to be inferred that the party is preparing for the next election. But it is not certain that the howl of popular indignation that reaches them over their masterly mismanagement, which has embroiled Canada in an expensive war, will sharpen the Government's appetite for an election. The Riel outbreak has revealed the criminality of the government in a manner, which, under more peaceful investigation, would not so soon have been accomplished. The Government may have an election before they desire it.

In the last current number of Grip there appears a telling cartoon which speaks volumes of information in reference to Pacific Railway construction and the payment of the subsidy. Mr. Edgar, M.P., points to a long stretch of ram-shackle skeleton railway, representing the hastily and cruelly constructed Sudbury section of the C.P.R., and asks a Syndicate railway magnate, "What do you suppose you can draw on such a railway as that?" To which the bloated bondholder and subsidy-absorber answers—"Draw? Why, our subsidy, of course." This is the real secret of the matter. During the present session of Parliament Mr. Edgar moved for official information respecting the character of the work on the Sudbury section of the C.P.R., but on grounds as flimsy as the nature of the railway work, the information was denied. It is a fact that the work on the portion of the line in question is of the most wretched make-shift character. The rails and ties may hold together while the frost holds out; when that disappears, then good-bye to the railway and the millions advanced to the company on account of subsidy.

Remember that Turnbull's Millinery and Mantle Showrooms will be opened on Wednesday and Thursday of this week; inspection invited.

SANITARY.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Allow me to give a few extracts from the Health By-law, relating to sanitary work necessary at this season of the year.

Section 13 states that all wells shall be cleaned out before the 1st of July in each year.

As to disposal of sewage and refuse, Rule 3 says that all reservoirs, cesspools, or privy-vaults shall be cleaned out at least once a year, on or before the 15th of May, and from 15th May to 1st November they shall be thoroughly disinfected by adding once a month not less than 2lbs. of sulphate of copper (blnestone), dissolved in two pailfuls of water, or other suitable disinfectant.

Rule 5. All putrid and decaying animal or vegetable matter must be removed from all cellars, buildings and yards on or before the 15th May in each year.

Rule 6. All garbage shall be burned or placed in a proper covered receptacle for swill and house offal, the contents of which shall, between the 15th May and 1st November, be regularly removed as often as twice a week.

It is earnestly requested that the rules relating to spring cleaning be complied with as soon as possible, so that the work be not deferred till the last day. The colder the weather the less danger there is in cleaning up. There was too much typhoid fever last year, probably to a certain extent due to the late period at which work was begun. This year we have to think of cholera. Whether we have it or not an early start is important.

Yours, etc.,
J. Clarke, M. D.

A GRACEFUL DEED GRACEFULLY RECOGNIZED.

TETE DU PONT BARRACKS,
KINGSTON, April 2nd, 1885.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Through the medium of the Peterborough EXAMINER, I, for myself and the officers and men composing the Peterborough contingent of the Midland Regiment, under command of Lieut-Colonel Williams, organised to assist in suppressing the rebellion in the Northwest, desire to convey to Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, of Peterborough, my own and their sincere thanks for her great kindness and thoughtfulness in providing the members of the Peterborough company each with a complete and very suitable suit of underclothing, consisting of heavy flannel shirt, drawers and a pair of socks.

The men all thoroughly appreciate the kindness of Mrs. Cox, and will long remember her as their kind benefactress and well-wisher.

Yours truly,
THOMAS BURKE,
Capt. Commanding "G" Company,
Midland Regiment.

ANTI-SCOTT TACTICS.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—To show how far the opponents of the Scott Act are sometimes willing to lower themselves, I may state that I have it on good authority that a lawyer of this town, and a large property holder, offered money to a canvasser for signatures to the Scott Act petition if he would destroy the sheets containing the signatures he had secured. A cause that requires such disgraceful proceedings as that certainly cannot commend itself to the judgment of honest men.

I am, yours respectfully,
SQUARE-DEALING.

ROOM PAPER!

Keeping a complete stock of Wall Paper at the present time is not what it was a few years ago. Then, it meant a few hundred dollars; now, it means several thousand dollars; then, it consisted of low priced papers and borders; now, the decorations required frequently cost double what the papers do. In order to have a complete stock, we have invested no less a sum than $6,000.00 CASH!

This is why we have done so large a business in the past; our stock is so large, and the range of patterns so varied in each price, that we can suit those who can only afford to buy the cheapest, as well as the rich who will pay any price.

Our Patterns will Satisfy. Our Prices will please.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Reflected by the Contemporary Press.

A CURTAIN LECTURE.

L'Evenement a strong supporter of Sir John's speaks thus candidly:—"The general opinion is that the calamity (the Reil Rebellion) might have been avoided, and the responsibility falls back upon the Department of the Interior, and upon the 'officials' who have charge of that important branch of our Administration. The Metis, the settlers, and the savages have been ill-treated. The most hideous rumours of extortions are in very many mouths."

We have no wish for recrimination, far less have we the least desire to justify rebellion. On this point the sentiment of the country is all but unanimous, and the Premier will take account of this if he show his ordinary adroitness. At this moment the vital energies of the Conservative party are inactive, to the certain injury of that party as well as of Canada."

A DAY OF RECKONING.

The Detroit Free Press says:—"While there is no difference of opinion as to the necessity of putting down the new rebellion which has grown out of the broken promises, there is an evident determination on the part of the opponents of the Government to hold it responsible for the necessity and for the suffering which the war must entail. That the rebellion will be put down no one can doubt; but it may prove a longer, costlier, and bloodier affair than the Canadians dream. When it is put down there will be a bitter day of reckoning for somebody besides the Half-breeds and their Indian allies."

A GENERAL HOPE.

The Irish Canadian says:—In this free land there is no standing room for rebels, nor is there cause now-a-days for rebellion; but if it be found that injustice has been done those inhabiting the region now in revolt, this conflict of authority will be productive of good. Those who have been wronged will be righted; and the parties responsible for the injury, it is to be hoped, will receive their deserts.

CRIES FOR VENGEANCE.

The Orange Sentinel says:—The blood of the murdered Thomas Scott cries afresh for vengeance, and soon that long deferred but just revenge must be in the hands of his brethren.

SHOULD HAVE HANGED HIM THEN.

The Sarnia Observer says:—"If Sir John Macdonald had not provided Riel with the means to make good his escape before the Red River expedition reached Winnipeg, that mischievous rascal would not now be jeopardizing the lives of peaceful citizens. The treacherous chickens he helped to hatch during that murderous emeute are coming home to roost now in a way that should cover him with shame and disgrace."

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

The Montreal Times says:—"That 'curses like chickens, come home to roost,' is well manifested in the matter of the relations between Sir John Macdonald and Riel. He 'wished to God he could catch him,' but, at the same time, shut his eyes to his presence in Ottawa, and then paid him to get and keep out of the way. Sir John in the position of the thimble-rigger. 'Now you have him, and now you don't.' Sir John possibly may devoutly wish at the present time he could get his 'clean hands' upon the half-breed leader."

NOT ELIGIBLE FOR SERVICE.

Senator Alexander hit from the shoulder the other day when he made the following reference to Senator Macpherson. With regard to the remarks which fell from the Minister of the Interior, I scarcely took the trouble to listen to them, because I know of my own knowledge, and the House knows, that he was a pronounced advanced free trader all his life until he entered the Government of this country. It is possible we may have upon some future occasion a two-hours' sermon on the subject of loyalty from the honorable gentleman whose name was removed from the militia list in the year 1849 by Lord Elgin, because of his annexation proclivities

SIR JOHN'S INDIFFERENCE.

London Advertiser says: If Sir John Macdonald had exercised ordinary departmental activity the difficulties which have given rise to this insurrection could have been avoided easily, and it would have been put out of the power of any mischievous man to create a feeling of discontent and distress. It is to be hoped that Parliament and the country will hold the Government to the strictest responsibility.

TRUTH WRUNG OUT.

The Toronto Mail says "The half-breeds have good cause of complaint."

WASTING THEIR LABOUR.

The London Advertiser says: What does it mean? The Tory representatives are getting out a series of political pamphlets. Among them is a reprint of one which was used in 1882, made up of extracts from the Toronto Globe of 1856 and 1857, containing attacks on Roman Catholics. We understand that 100,000 copies have been reprinted within the past fortnight. Are the Tories getting ready for a new election? Has Sir John resolved on a dissolution? What means the publication of this pamphlet? In our opinion the Tories are wasting their energies. Who cares what the Toronto Globe said 30 years ago? The Roman Catholics of Canada to day are not such simpletons as to fix on the Reform party of to-day the responsibility of what a newspaper said 30 years ago. We might as well quote the blood and thunder denunciations of Ogle R. Gowan 40 years ago against the Tories of to-day. People care little about what was said or done by men who are now sleeping in the churchyard. What they want to know is what is said and done by those who are living and who are now in charge of public affairs. The present has questions of far too much moment to allow people to worry themselves over newspaper articles, some written by men who are not living, others by men who have taken no part in public life.

REFUNDING THE MONEY.

The Hamilton Times says:—Mr. Baumgarten proposes to supply 50 horses at his own cost for the Northwest expedition, and Mr. Tuckett contributes a couple of tons of tobacco for the volunteers.

Both these men will tell you, if questioned that the arrangement of duties by Sir Leonard Tilley has been advantageous to them. The wealth, they say, belongs by moral right to the public who produced it; to the public, therefore, it shall be returned, part in the form of horses and part in the form of tobacco. It is very gratifying, in this degenerate age, to see men acting justly without compulsion.

Turnbull's has purchased one of the most handsome ranges of Lace Curtains the wholesale trade has shown this season; if you want beauty and price look for your Curtains at Turnbull's.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

TELEPHONE.

A representative of the Bell Telephone Company was in Lakefield ascertaining what encouragement would be given by the business men. The probabilities are that there will be a telephone exchange established in this place ere long.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Mr. Clark and niece left Lakefield on Tuesday last. Mr. Clark will return for a short time before long.

Many will regret to learn that Mr. Joseph Nelson is seriously ill; there are hopes, however, that he will recover.

ACCIDENT.

On Thursday, 26th March, Mr. Robert Braden, while assisting Mr. Richard White to run a cutting machine, got his hand into the cogs, injuring it very badly. One finger had to be partly removed, while the back of the hand was badly mangled.

WEIGH SCALES.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Weigh Scales Company took place in the P. L. A. Hall on Tuesday evening last. The financial report was presented and received; a good business had been done during the last year. The following officers were re-elected:—Mr. T. J. Nelson, President; Mr. Wm. M. Graham, Secretary, and Mr. R. Graham, Treasurer.

[The above was unavoidably held over from last week.

EXCHANGE OF PROPERTY.

Mr. Josiah Blewett has exchanged his house and lot in the village for a farm in Smith, owned by Mr. Harvey W. Pearson, who takes Mr. Blewett's village property in part payment. Mr. Blewett thinks he will enjoy farm life better than the village.

FOR THE WEST.

Mr. James Horner and family left for the North-West on Tuesday last. He intends to make his home in Prairie land.

THE LOCAL MINSTRELS.

A troupe of local negro minstrels gave an entertainment in the P. C. A. Hall on Monday evening last. There was a good house. A number of old plantation melodies were well rendered, and there were frequent hearty encores, which were well merited. Wit and humor, with local hits, were interspersed, and a most enjoyable evening spent. The troupe, which numbers about seventeen members, will no doubt, be heard from again.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Geo. Cochrane has returned home.

Mr. Nelson, who has been very ill, is improving.

HASTINGS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The greatest excitement has prevailed here since Sabbath, 29th, over the North-West rebellion, and the events of each day are looked for with intense anxiety owing in a measure, no doubt, to the fact that some of our own boys are among the brave who have willingly gone forward to fight the foe. That success may attend their efforts and that all may return safe is the hearty wish of the entire community.

On Monday evening Miss Bowes, the organizing agent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, gave an excellent address on temperance in the Methodist Church. Mr. T. H. Clark occupied the chair. The Rev. Messrs. E. D. Lewis and D. A. Thompson had seats on the platform. The audience was small, owing to the unfavorable state of the weather. At the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Bowes for her admirable address.

On Tuesday afternoon a branch of the Union was instituted in the Council Chamber, when the following officers were elected, viz.:—President, Mrs. Wm. J. Fowlds; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. A. M. Paton, Mrs. Dr. O'Gorman, Mrs. A. N. Clark, Mrs. Wm. Orr, Mrs. W. Renwick; Recording Secretary, Miss Morton; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Annie Wilson; Treasurer, Mrs. E. D. Lewis.

The annual oyster supper and literary and musical entertainment under the auspices of the Hastings Literary Society was held in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening. The supper was all that could be desired, while the intellectual treat which followed has not, in our opinion, been surpassed by any this season. Miss Davis' recitation Mr. Berry's essay, and Mr. Paytons original poem "The River Trent," are worthy of special reference.

On Friday evening the many pupils of the efficient and popular music teacher, Miss Hurley, assembled at her rooms and, after expressing their regret at her early departure from the village, presented her with a handsome silver fruit dish and napkin ring. Miss Hurley replied, thanking the donors for the kindness shown her at all times during her term as teacher. We join the pupils in the hope that Miss Hurley may be as successful in her new home in Peterborough as she has been during her stay in Hastings.

On Sabbath Miss Bowes occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church and preached a powerful sermon to a large congregation.

Spring Gloves, Turnbull has just received the last Case of an immense stock; remember we can furnish you with any Price, Color or Quality you may ask for.

OTONABEE.

A BIG DAY'S SAWING.

The other day, Mr. P. G. Walker, the noted Otonabee inventor, using a machine which he invented himself, cut in one day for Mr. T. Fife of this township, twenty cords of double wood—dry beech and maple, with the help of four men. The machine used was a circular saw, devised by Mr. Walker for cutting small poles and cordwood. Mr. Walker's clever invention, the rack lifter, for elevating loads of hay and grain in barns, is well known and appreciated by scores of farmers.

Wonder what he will start up next? The farmers might well be glad that they have one of their own profession like Mr. Walker among them. He is like a singed cat in this respect, he is better than he looks.

Shall we let the child die?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much any how. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. "Let my child die! No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child shall not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!" Well, try a bottle of Shaker Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor little fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Your druggist sells it.

EASTER VESTRIES.

St. John's Church.

The Easter Vestry of St. John's church was held on Easter Monday evening. The meeting was a most harmonious and successful one. The financial statement was presented, and showed a surplus of some $200 as against a considerable deficit last year. It was referred to the auditors, Messrs. C. D. McDonald and F. E. Bell. Dr. Burnham was chosen Rector's churchwarden, and Mr. A. P. Possnette was elected financial churchwarden. The sidesmen for the current church year are Messrs. C. H. Sheffield, W. E. Sherwood, Wm. English, James English, H. Long, F. J. Jamison, F. E. Bell, F. Foote, Dr. Burnham and J. E. Hammond. Lay delegates to synod, Messrs. A. P. Possnette, J. E. Belcher and Dr. Burnham. Messrs. I. Robinson and C. H. Sheffield were appointed members of the tribunal to settle the registry of votes for lay delegates.

St. Luke's Church.

The annual business meeting of St. Luke's Church was held on Monday evening last. There was not a large attendance, but the proceedings were most harmonious and satisfactory. The Rector took the chair at 8 o'clock and opened the proceedings with prayer.

The Churchwardens' annual report and statement of accounts was read by John Burnham, Esq., M.P. It showed the finances were in a satisfactory condition. The Rector's salary had been increased during the year, and the interior of the church had been very much beautified at a considerable outlay. This caused a small deficit, which would, no doubt, be soon wiped out.

Mr. Burnham was again chosen by the Rector as his Churchwarden for the current year, and Mr. H. T. Strickland was re-elected as the people's Churchwarden.

Messrs. A. Ingram, W. Manelce, F. Adams and A. Dawson were elected sidesmen, and Messrs. H. Nesbitt and E. A. Peck were appointed auditors.

The Rector's report showed a large amount of work since Easter last. He said:—"I have held 422 services on Sundays and week days, and paid 740 visits. I have also delivered 244 sermons and lectures, including the weekly Bible class expositions and the holding of a large number of confirmation classes. I have celebrated Holy Communion 63 times in public and private, administered the Sacrament of Holy Baptism on 22 occasions and officiated at 19 funerals and 11 marriages. In addition to this "round of duty" I have also attended 59 meetings, which includes the pleasant and profitable task of presiding at the regular sessions of the Temperance Society: Yesterday the Church had 158 communicants, and the total number of communions made during the year was 1315."

A vote of thanks was passed to the Ladies' Aid Society for their contributions in aid of the decoration fund.

The meeting adjourned at an early hour, after having elected Messrs. H. T. Strickland and Richard Meade as Delegates to Synod.

ALLAN McCARTY,

A Romantic Wooing.

It was Florence Devime.

Her slender fingers clutched, her white teeth clenched.

Could a wish have slain, Ethel's eyes would never have again opened in this world.

That night Florence entered her mother's dressing-room.

"Well, mamma," she said, "have they told you? Do you know?"

"What?"

"Lord Tremayne has proposed to Ethel and been accepted."

"Well, Flo, it's what I expected."

"How calmly you speak! Why did you ever act as chaperon to her? It was wrong, mamma. Until she appeared, Lord Tremayne was almost at my feet. Oh, how I hate her!"

"My dear Flo, be reasonable. And do sit down. If you walk about like that you will make my head ache. If I had not been her chaperon, another would, and Lord Tremayne would have met her all the same. Bustle is really true!"

"True! Yes. He proposed to her in one of the conservatories, and she, exclaiming, 'I'll never give my hand to any other than you, Lord Tremayne,' fainted in his arms. Oh, it—if I could but part them! How I hate her!"

It might have soothed Florence Devime's jealous nature had she seen Ethel weeping in agonized distress in her own room, as she ejaculated:

"Oh, Pauline, if I were but dead! Imagine, my father says I must wed Lord Tremayne. He has proposed to-night, and I dared not say no."

"Why should you say no, mademoiselle?"

"Why? Oh, Pauline, do you think I could ever do Lord Tremayne the wrong of wedding him, my secret unrevealed? Then what will become of me? I am so—so weak, Pauline," she added, looking up; "when we get to Grey Towers I must see my child. That ever makes me strong."

CHAPTER IV.

THE SNAKE IN THE GRASS.

The next week Lord Breamore's household returned to Grey Towers, where later on Lord Tremayne was to join them.

Ethel told herself she had not accepted him, but her father made no count of that nicety of distinction.

He regarded the affair as accomplished, and announced it as such to the world, to Ethel's alarm, who, not possessing a strong reliant nature, suddenly found herself surrounded by circumstances, and carried on by them against her will or power of resistance.

Only one saw her distress, and with wonder—Florence Devime.

Jealousy had made her a spy, and, by crafty speech, she speedily discovered that Ethel had no liking for the proposed marriage.

Why?

She sprang at the same conclusion as had Lord Breamore.

Her love was given elsewhere, and, undoubtedly, to someone beneath her in station, else why secrecy?

"She is of the disposition," she reflected scornfully, "that would fall in love with some long-haired strolling artist, or music-master. If I could but find out! I'll try."

Hate favored her.

Flo and Ethel had never taken quite to one another, and the former usually, when no guests were at Grey Towers, passed the morning in her mother's apartments.

The third morning after her arrival she broke through the custom.

From Mrs. Devime's window she had seen Ethel slowly cross the lawn, then, when among the trees, increase her pace, evidently with a purpose.

Flo, on the qui vive for a clue, felt her suspicion aroused, her curiosity excited.

Supposing her rival had gone to meet some one?

Taking her hat, she followed. The grounds, however, were too spacious for her to do so easily. The paths diverged.

Flo, annoyed, wandered disappointed, until a sound like joyous laughter fell on her ear.

Stopping she listened. Yes, she was not mistaken. It was Ethel's laugh, and the girl was laughing as Flo had never before heard her.

The spy's pulses beat fast. She felt herself on the verge of a discovery. Softly, stealthily, she crept on.

The laughter, the murmur of voices grew louder, when suddenly an obstacle crossed Flo Devime's path—the river.

The voices came from among the trees on the opposite bank, under the drooping willows of which could be descried the prow of the Grey Towers boat.

Angrily Flo stood baulked at the very moment of success.

Stay! about half a mile down the river was a rustic bridge. Did she cross that way she might be too late. Still she might not. There was a chance, she would not lose it.

Before reaching the bridge, however, her, mind changed. Would it not have been better to wait in the shrubbery for Ethel's return?

Her companion might come with her down to the boat. She might obtain a glimpse of him—for "him" she pronounced it to be.

Deciding, she retraced her steps.

When she came within sight of the boat-house, to her vexation and disappointment, she perceived the boat was there. Ethel had returned. By her indecision she had missed her opportunity. When might it occur again?

To remain longer was useless. Angry with herself, she took one of the shrubbery paths back to the house.

As she quitted the bushes she beheld a woman, carrying a child, proceeding round the lawn towards the back premises.

It was Ethel's maid, Pauline.

Could Ethel have been laughing so gaily with them? Nonsense. But what child was it? There was only one in Grey Towers—the young heir.

Florence Devime acted promptly now. She crossed the lawn, and under a leafy arch entered the hawthorn alley, down which she knew the lady's-maid must come, and advanced to meet her.

In a moment they were face to face.

Flo saw the sudden start Pauline gave, and its quick suppression. Not a muscle of her own countenance altered, until nearer, when her dark brows rising, she said pleasantly:

"What a lovely child you have there, Pauline! Whose is it?" and she stopped in the other's path.

"It is my little nephew, mademoiselle," responded Pauline curtly. "Its parents are dead, and my mistress has kindly let me have him here on a short visit."

"No parents? Poor little fellow!" remarked Flo sympathetically, her gaze studying every infant feature. "What handsome eyes! Quite foreign! Do not spoil him, Pauline. Bon jour, petit!"

And smiling affably she passed on.

"How I hate her!" thought Pauline through her white teeth. "How I mistrust her! Most when she pretends to be amiable. If my mistress has an enemy, it's Mdlle. Florence Devime."

As to Florence, the smile had faded, an amazed startled expression had taken its place.

"It could not be," she murmured. "The idea is preposterous! I'm mad to imagine such a thing; but who can help their thoughts? And the likeness, save for the eyes, is striking. The child's chin and mouth are modelled as from Ethel's own. But the eyes are foreign."

For a space the idea which had flashed into Flo's mind frightened her.

Taking a turning, she hurried back to the house, shut herself in her own room, and in a half-scared fashion began to think.

Familiarity will accustom us to any thought, and Florence Devime began soon to be accustomed to the idea which had occurred to her, arising from the singular likeness of Pauline's "nephew" to Ethel.

Shadowinvented a device which rendered impossible the ceremony by delay if possible.

Ethel's education had been completed in Paris.

Afterwards she had resided at Grey Towers, with slight supervision.

Then Florence recalled Ethel's visit, over eighteen months ago, to France, her maid, Pauline, being her only companion.

Supposing the "old school friend" had never existed?

To have deceived Lady Breamore would have been easy where so much indifference was felt.

The longer Florence Devime reasoned, the quicker beat her heart with hope.

She saw now why Ethel showed reluctance to wed Lord Tremayne or anyone.

How could she marry, having this secret? How could she, if her husband yet lived?

Florence said "husband," and meant it. She knew Ethel too well to think she would ever give herself to one not her husband.

Yet Ethel was going to wed Lord Tremayne. Everybody said so, and she did not deny it.

"Oh, if I only knew—if I could only find out!" she reflected. "Supposing, saying Pauline to keep her secret, she intends to bury it and the past, and wed Lord Tremayne, taking the risk? She is weak, timid, and stands in dread of Lord Breamore."

Then, throwing back her head, with a short laugh:

"What castles I am building upon a slight foundation!" she said. "After all, I may be wrong. What I must do is to discover if my suspicion is right, to do which I must be cautious. Succeed I will."

She hesitated whether she should confide in her mother, but decided at present to keep her own counsel.

Meanwhile, Pauline had proceeded to Ethel's apartments.

The young mother hardly waited until the lady's-maid had closed the door before she ran forward, caught the little Paul in her arms, and pressed him to her bosom.

"My pet, my darling!" she whispered, nestling her soft cheek against the soft, dark, fluffy curls, pressing the waxen fingers to her lips and soft warm throat. "Ah, I am happy. I can laugh almost at trouble when I have my boy. How beautiful he is! He has his father's eyes, has he not, Pauline? Dear good Pauline, what should I have done without you? See how he crows. Oh, Pauline, you must keep him at Grey Towers a long, long time. I," gaily, "give you full permission."

The lady's-maid had stood at a little distance, silent, watching her young mistress with an expression full of affection, blended, however, with sadness.

Now she said:

"Mademoiselle, I think le petit had better return at once."

"Return! Leave Grey Towers! Not stay!" ejaculated Ethel rapidly, looking up surprised. Then, smiling: "You unnatural Aunt Pauline! Stay—how grave you look! What do you fear?" anxiously.

"Mademoiselle Florence Devime, mademoiselle."

"Florence! Why?"

"She is a snake in the grass, mademoiselle."

"Nonsense, Pauline! What an antipathy you have taken to her!"

"With reason, mademoiselle."

"Absurd! What could she do?"

"Anything—everything, I believe, mademoiselle, if she learned your secret."

"How could she—how even suspect it?"

"I can't tell, mademoiselle, but I met her in the hawthorn alley just now, when I was bringing le petit."

"And she saw my boy?"

"Yes, mademoiselle. She stopped to speak about and admire him. Then as she was looking at him, I saw a surprised, startled expression break through the smile she always assumes."

"What startled her?"

"That, mademoiselle, which you will not admit—le petit's likeness to you. Each day it increases. Mdlle. Devime saw it, I feel certain."

Ethel did not speak for a moment.

She bowed her head over little Paul, her tears fell and sparkled among his curls.

Abruptly she burst into a paroxysm of weeping, as she exclaimed:

"Oh, Pauline, what a wretched lot is mine. Sometimes I feel that I could run away, and live with my boy where no one could find me! But then, how could I keep him? How could I see him starve, nor even dear mamma's fortune I lose if—if I wed without papa's approval?"

"Did Signor Marecshi know that, mademoiselle?"

"Of course he did, Pauline. And he said he was glad, as it would prove he loved me for myself alone. Oh, why—why did he not live!"

Pauline let the poor girl give vent to her grief for her dead young husband, then said:

"But the child, mademoiselle?"

"Pauline, you are right. I dare run no risks for his sake. You must send him back to-day."

Florence Devime was skilful enough not to appear to be watching Ethel when they met at luncheon.

She fancied, however, that her victim glanced rather nervously at her; but she took no heed. She had a shaft ready to launch, but not yet.

She waited until they sat together in the drawing-room; Mrs. Devime dozing on a distant couch.

A pause had ensued.

Ethel appeared to be reading, but the glittering eyes furtively observing her, saw that she had fallen into a deep reverie.

Then Florence drew her shaft to the head, and fired it.

"What a lovely little fellow Pauline's nephew is. Don't you think so?"

Ethel started into consciousness, coloring and confused.

By an effort she recovered herself, saying with ill-acted indifference:

"Yes; he is handsome."

"Pauline tells me he is an orphan."

"Y—yes."

"Poor little fellow! How a mother would dote on such a child!" and Florence, working her embroidery, launched forth in praise of little Paul.

She never seemed to look towards Ethel, and yet not a change in the sweet face escaped her.

The young mother acted her part well, but how could she hear her boy, her darling, extolled without her eyes sparkling now and again with delight?

Once, so pleased was she with her companion's remarks, that the idea crossed her:

"Shall I make Florence my confidante? Dare I?"

Florence Devime's next words decided.

"The child has splendid eyes," she said; "but if I were you, Ethel, I would tell Pauline to take care."

"Of what, dear?"

"Why—I may be mistaken, of course, still such things should be seen to in time, and you might break it to her gently."

"Break what to her? Pray, go on, Florence."

Ethel was sitting, bending forward a little, her lips slightly parted, hanging on the other's words.

"Why, I fancied I noticed a white speck in the child's eye, and a white speck might mean cataract, and cataract often means blindness."

It was cruelly done.

The color fled from Ethel's cheeks, a look of horror was on her face, she uttered a pained startled cry.

"Oh, Florence! you—you don't, you can't mean that?" she gasped. "You must have been mistaken. I—I—never saw it, and surely——" She stopped, meeting the other's fixed gaze. It recalled her, and she added: "Surely Pauline would have discovered it. If anything like that happened to little Paul—it—it would be terrible to her.

"Yes; a blind child is such a poor helpless thing."

Ethel tried to speak, but her lips could not form a syllable.

Fortunately for her, at that moment the door opened, and Lord Breamore entered, assuming Mrs. Devime from her slumber, and interrupting the conversation.

Ethel seized the opportunity to move to another part of the room, and in a few minutes quitted it.

"I am not wrong. I know it," reflected Florence triumphantly. "My foot is on the right path, and success awaits me at the end."

"It was a plot—a cruel trap," ejaculated Pauline indignantly when she heard. "Mademoiselle, did I not tell you she was a snake in the grass? You must be brave and crafty, too, mademoiselle, or she will work you harm, depend upon it; for she suspects."

"Heaven help me!" moaned poor Ethel. "If discovery is to come, it must. How can I be crafty when—when she threatens such terrible things to my boy?"

"By remembering, dear mademoiselle, the things are not true, and she is a snake."

CHAPTER V.

THE MARRIAGE-CERTIFICATE.

Florence Devime was in a dilemma. She was convinced she had discovered an important secret, but how, without further evidence, was she to make use of it?

To charge Ethel upon the fragile ground of her own suspicion would be madness, while it would bring opprobrium on herself for causing a scandal in her own family.

Still, in a week Lord Tremayne was to arrive at Grey Towers. If she could but make sure before then!

The important point was, if Ethel had contracted a secret marriage, where had the ceremony taken place? In England or France?

Florence decided the former.

In France Ethel had been under the surveillance of Madame Valmy. In England, residing at Grey Towers, she had, despite Mrs. Butler, been pretty much her own mistress.

A few hours would be enough to have reached some church, been married, and to have returned to Grey Towers, no one the wiser.

There would exist but one proof against her—the entry in the church register. Easy to be seen and read if she did but know the church, or rather the town or village where the church was.

To discover this Flo regarded as hopeless. She began to despair, when fortune again favored her.

One day Lord Breamore accompanied her and Ethel in their afternoon ride, which they extended in consequence.

Reaching a small town, Lord Breamore remarked upon the quaintness of the high-street.

"It is something like Warminham," said Ethel.

"Warminham!" ejaculated Lord Breamore; "why, that is some distance from Grey Towers. I was not aware you had seen it, Ethel."

"In pictures, papa," replied Ethel hastily.

Flo, riding at the other side of the road, had caught the word, and the color of Ethel's cheek.

"I have got it!" she ejaculated mentally in triumph. "The secret is mine now."

On returning to Grey Towers, before changing her habit, she proceeded to her mother's apartment.

"What is it, Flo?" queried Mrs. Devime. "Nothing has happened, I hope? You seem very excited, my dear."

"I am, mamma. I wish to speak to you particularly, and privately," answered Florence, looking into the dressing-room, then closing the door. "Where is Judson?"

"Gone into the village. Flo, whatever is it?"

"Wait, mamma. Can we be overheard or disturbed?"

"No, Florence—you are frightening me."

"There is no need, mamma. Only I have made a discovery, and I want to tell it you; but, first, mamma, you must promise—really promise, to tell it to no one else as yet—not to seem to know it even—and to help me in—in making certain."

"Florence, what do you mean?"

"Mamma, do you promise?"

"Yes, if you wish it, Flo—if you think it necessary."

"It is necessary. You may disclose it when the time comes, but not until we are sure."

Flo had tossed aside her hat, and was seated on a low ottoman at Mrs. Devime's feet, her beautiful face flushed, her dark eyes sparkling with victory.

"Mamma, listen, Ethel will never marry Lord Tremayne."

"Never, my love!" said Mrs. Devime with a sigh of evident relief. "Why?"

"Because, mamma, I have reason to believe she is not only already a wife, but a mother."

Mrs. Devime uttered a cry, then ejaculated almost sternly?

"Florence, are you mad?"

"No, mamma. Listen, and judge for yourself."

Rapidly she recounted everything—the child she had seen with Pauline, its likeness to Ethel, the test she had used—Mrs. Devime shuddered a little at that, and was scarcely proud of Flo's acuteness and craft—her difficulty in learning more, until the word Warminham had placed all in her hands.

"If this be true, Flo, it's very terrible," said Mrs. Devime nervously.

"She can never marry Lord Tremayne," retorted the girl with a triumphant laugh.

"Flo, Flo, you seem to rejoice!"

"I do not weep. I loved Lord Tremayne; I was near winning him when she slipped in. All is fair in love, mamma. If Ethel would wrong him by keeping her secret, we have no right to be her accomplices."

"You would reveal this to Lord Breamore?"

"Would you, mamma, keep it secret?"

"No, he must be told. But—but, Florence, what will they think of you worming it out?"

"Mamma, they shall not know it. If I prove her wedded, I have formed my plan as to how it shall reach Lord Breamore's ears."

"And how do you intend to prove it?"

"By going to Warminham and searching the church registers. I should have done it before telling you, only it will necessitate my being away perhaps two days, and I want your help, mamma."

Mrs. Devime was dazed by the rapid delusive manner of her daughter, in whose hands she was customarily helpless. Not to do as she was desired by Flo would have been beyond her power.

Again, she remembered that she too had hoped Lord Tremayne would wed her daughter, and she thought that all chance had not yet gone was pleasant.

"You say, Flo, you have formed plans. What are they?"

"This, first, mamma. You know the Graylings of Derbyshire; to Lord Breamore they are strangers. If you receive letters to-morrow morning, you must say one is from them, asking us to visit them the next day, and stay the night.

"We shall go, but changing at the junction proceed to Warminham; then leave the rest to me."

Mrs. Devime was nervous; she needed much persuasion; but when Flo went off to change her habit, she had succeeded, as she had known she would from the first.

Mrs. Devime did not receive any letters until the second morning, when, a trifle nervously, she announced the invitation of the Graylings, and her desire to accept it.

Lord Breamore saw no reason why she and Florence should not, while Ethel felt an immense sensation of relief.

"How glad I am," she said, smiling faintly, to Pauline, "to see them off!"

"I only wish, mademoiselle, they'd never come back."

"And yet, Pauline, at times I fancy our fears have made us suspect the presence of suspicions that do not exist. I have watched her lately much. She has been kinder and more open than usual."

"Tiens! The make may look kind before it strikes, mademoiselle, though I don't know that it does."

Despite Ethel's doubts, she felt happier, her spirits lighter, for Florence Devime's absence, being ignorant of the cause which had taken her away.

About four hours after their departure, Pauline, with quickened pulse, dilated eyes, was breathlessly reading in the register of a certain church in Warminham the entry of the marriage of Ethel Breamore to Paolo Marecshi, and beneath was Ethel's name, in Ethel's own writing.

Yes, she had run the secret to earth at last.

By her side stood an elderly man in a shabby brown coat, with a slightly stooped figure, iron-grey hair, and commonplace matter-of-fact features.

"May I take a copy of this?" asked Flo. She might for a consideration.

Flo took it, placing half-a-sovereign on the table.

"If I should require a service done which would be well rewarded, would you do it?" she said.

"Certainly, miss, if I could, and it ain't against my dooty. I couldn't—I couldn't permit any altering of the books, you know."

"Of course not," smiled Flo. "It has nothing to do with the books. All I as yet shall require is strict secrecy, and for you to meet me where we can speak privately in about an hour's time."

The sexton agreed, and following Flo from the vestry, fastened the door, while she hurried to the small hotel where Mrs. Devime was waiting in a state of exceeding nervousness.

a widow—can be no suitable wife for Lord Tremayne."

"What about the sexton?"

"I see him in an hour to make arrangements."

"I do hope, Flo, we shall not be suspected," said Mrs. Devime kindly. "It seems rather underhand."

"Nonsense, mamma; you need not fear. The sexton is not a genius, but he is quite capable of performing the service, for which we must pay him."

The next day the Devimes returned to Grey Towers, Flo quite excited by the visit, and full of lively descriptions of the people they had met.

When the blow fell it would not do for Ethel to suspect that their absence had anything to do with the hurling of the thunderbolt.

"Gentle as the Breeze of Evening."

This line of an old hymn is quite appropriate when applied to "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." "I don't like to take pills if I can avoid it," we often hear persons say, "because they constipate me so." Now the "Pellets" never do this. They are so gentle and mild that their effect is almost precisely similar to a natural movement of the bowels, and no unpleasant effects are left behind.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND GALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-13s

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its other symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is an effectual and alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as the

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

A Party Play.

On Good Friday afternoon there was a curling contest at the rink between three rinks on each side, representing respectively Reformers and Conservatives. The result was that the Conservatives won by a majority of 31—81 to 50. This result was to be expected; as it is well known that Reformers must yield the palm to Conservatives, where anything of a "slippery" character is concerned.

Thoughtful Generosity.

On Wednesday of last week the thoughtful kindness of Mrs. Geo. A. Cox found expression in a well-filled box of clothing for the members of Company G of the Midland regiment, now on their way to the North-West. The box, forwarded to Kingston, contained for each man a complete suit of underclothing, consisting of woollen shirt, drawers and socks, and, as will be seen by a letter of acknowledgment published elsewhere in this issue, was heartily appreciated.

Back to His Old Love.

Mr. Enos G. Stone formerly connected with the fruit store business of Stone & Bailey, in Peterborough, has purchased the business of the late John E. Bailey and intends to hereafter conduct it. Mr. Stone is doing a good business in Rochester, but from his previous experience of Peterborough, he prefers it, both as a business place and place of residence. He will put new life in the popular business he has purchased. He will put in a first-class new stock and will, in every way, make the business worthy of public patronage.

Easter Markets.

As usual with the butchers' guild in Peterborough, there were splendid displays of Easter meats made, especially by Messrs. J. Mervin, J. J. Howden, R. Wainwright and Harry Winch. The immense displays of daintily decorated and appetising meats, would have done credit to St. Lawrence market, Toronto, and show that our butchers while being enterprising, have a splendid stock-growing country to draw supplies from. We referred last issue specifically to the source whence their supplies were procured. The public, by a most liberal patronage, showed their appreciation of the successful efforts made by these gentlemen to assist them in breaking their Lenten fast.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 12-3s

"Popular Amusements."

The Rev. Mr. Manning will preach next Sunday evening in the Charlotte street Methodist church, his subject being "Popular Amusements." Mr. Manning is a forcible preacher, and will, no doubt, deal trenchantly with the subject. The line will altogether likely be drawn, so go and hear him.

Peterborough Driving Park.

At a joint meeting of the Directors of the Peterborough Driving Park Club and the Committee of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, held on Tuesday evening, April 7th, it was decided to open the Park and the new Lacrosse Grounds for the season on Monday, 25th of May, when the finest programme that has yet been given to the public will be presented. $500 will be distributed in prizes for athletic amateur and professional sports and horse races. Arrangements have been made to have a first-class lacrosse team play Peterborough's first twelve that day. Large posters out next week.

Those who need a Mantle or Dolman should visit Turnbull's Showroom on the opening days Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Scott Act.

The work of canvassing for signatures to the Scott Act petitions is nearly completed, both in the town and in the other parts of the township. The indications are, the promoters say, that the Act will carry by a good majority. A large number who do not care to sign the petition will, it is said vote for the Act at the proper time. It is proposed to have the vote take place soon after the middle of June. Those canvassing for signatures have been requested to return their sheets completed on or before the 15th April. It is thought that considerably more than the 25 per cent. of voters' signatures required have been secured.

Young Men's Bible Study.

This study, conducted by the Rev. A. H. Munro, in connection with the Young Men's Christian Association, still maintains the great interest that has attended it throughout. The subjects of late have been on the life and work of St. Paul. Last Tuesday night the topic was "Paul at Corinth," and those present were delighted with the graphic account given of the ancient city. The subject for next Tuesday evening will be from the last chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. As this will be the International Sunday School lesson of the following Sunday it will be a good opportunity for Sunday School teachers and scholars to learn more of that lesson.

A Towering Family Tree.

Mr. Duncan McLeod, who has recently returned from a trip in the county of Ontario, kindly furnishes us with the following particulars respecting the remarkable physical altitude of the McRae family. Mr. Alex. McRae, who is a brother of Duncan McRae, who once represented Victoria county in Parliament, lives at Long Point, on lots 28 and 29 in the 8th concession of the township of Mara, and if he is not a lineal descendant of Anak, by virtue of the immense physical proportions of himself and progeny, he might reasonably claim to be one. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. McRae, six sons and four daughters, and their respective heights in stature is as follows:—Alex. McRae, the father, 6ft. 4in.; and the sons: John A., 6ft. 4in.; Alexander A., 6ft. 7in.; Donald, 6ft. 4in.; Farquhar, 6ft.; Hugh, 6ft. 4in., and Duncan, 5ft. 11in. Of the female members of this lofty family, Mrs. McRae, the mother, is 5ft. 7in., and the daughters as follows:—Flora, 6ft. 1½in.; Isabella, 6ft. 1½in.; Clementina, 15 years of age, 5ft. 10in; Mary, 13 years of age, 5ft. 10in. The male members of the family, if standing on each other's head, would make a column of 43ft. 10in. in height; if the females were added as another story, it would be 29ft. 6in higher, or a total height of humanity of 73ft. 4in. The weights of the boys range from 190, the lightest, to 250, the heaviest. The fairy forms of the female members of the family raise the beam at from 175lbs. to 190 lbs.

An Important Test Case.

At the spring sittings of the Chancery Court which opened here on Monday last, the 30th March, before the Hon. Vice Chancellor Proudfoot, an important insurance case of very considerable interest to the public generally, and the insurance men particularly, was heard. The action was taken by the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, against Mr. A. Hutchinson, of Cavan, to recover the amount of the first premium, $368.95, on a $5,000 policy issued by the company on the fifteen year endowment plan. The defendant refused payment claiming that misrepresentations as to profits had been made by the agent, Mr. E. E. Henderson, Peterborough. The claims of the defendant were shown to be without foundation. The company held no note for the premium, only the defendant's promise to pay, but claimed recovery on their application, which, together with the medical report, was the basis of the contract. The learned judge declared or held that no misrepresentation had been made, and gave judgment for the company for the full amount with interest and costs. This may be considered a test case here, as it is said no similar case was ever tried in the courts in this part of Canada before—no record can be found. The application was taken in good faith, a policy was issued in good faith, and the company carried the risk, therefore claimed payment from the defendant. No doubt this case will be quoted and referred to in all insurance matters in the future throughout Ontario. Mr. C. Moss, Q. C., Toronto, and Mr. R. E. Wood, Peterborough, for the company, and Mr. W. Cassels, Q. C. and Mr. H. B. Weller for the defendant.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Regular Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Peterborough Board of Education was held in the Board rooms on Tuesday evening, April 7th. There were present, Messrs. Stevenson, Chairman, Dumble, Errett, Dunse, Weir, Wrighton, Burnham, Kendry, Sawers, Sproule and Rutherford.

After routine,

Mr. Wrighton made verbal explanations respecting changes in teachers rooms and furniture in the Central School buildings.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received

From Geo. C. Robb, boiler inspector, respecting the boiler.

From Mr. Coleman, headmaster, presenting report of attendance for March, as follows:—

	On Roll.	Av. Att.
Central School	695	536
South Ward School	189	156
West Ward School	187	128

The attendance at the Collegiate Institute for March was: on roll, 122; average attendance, 119.

From the Department of Education, stating the half-yearly Legislative grant amounted to $690.

From Cole Barret, Janitor of West Ward School, asking increase of salary.—Finance Committee.

From the Secretary, stating that he had received on account of Institute fees, $69.25; Public School fees, $15; $84.25.

REPORTS.

Mr. Stratton, Chairman of the Committee on School Supervision, verbally reported that the Committee had supplied the different teachers with printed copies of the rules and regulations as directed by the Board.

Mr. Dumble, from the Committee on Appointments, submitted their report, recommending that the applications of Miss Graham and Messrs. Coleman and Long for increase of salary be not complied with at present, and that the salary of the Janitor be increased from $400 to $450 per year.

Mr. Errett presented a minority report of the committee, setting forth that the signers could not agree with the report, and that it was necessary in the interests of the school to retain the services of thoroughly efficient teachers, and to make the position of such teachers as permanent as possible. That the schools were prospering under the present staff, and the minority respectfully submitted that the report be not concurred in but that the salary of Mr. J. H. Long be fixed at $1,000 per year, and that of Mr. Coleman at $800, from January 1st, 1885. The minority report was signed by Messrs. Errett, Stratton and Millar.

Mr. Errett moved, seconded by Mr. Stratton, that the minority report be concurred in.

Mr. Dumble said that though he had, as a matter of routine, brought in the report he concurred in the sentiments of the minority report. He thought the present staff of the Institute was one which would, if retained, place the status of the Institute higher than it has ever before attained. He paid high tribute to Mr. Long's efficiency as a teacher, and he thought it would be false economy to prefer $100 a year to the loss of his services.

In answer to Mr. Rutherford Mr. Stevenson explained that Mr. Long had an offer of $1,000 a year in Brockville.

Mr. Rutherford dissented from the minority report, and moved, seconded by Mr. Denne, the adoption of the report.

Mr. Dumble explained that Messrs. Long and Horning were doing much more than the work of two teachers, to save the employment of an extra teacher.

The report proper was adopted.

Mr. Sproule called attention to the action of the interim teacher of drawing, in reference to drawing books and pencils, but no action was taken, and the board adjourned.

LADIES are now reminded that Hall, Innes & Co's Millinery Show Rooms are now open with all the season's novelties.

The Billiard License Case.

On Tuesday the case of A. D. Faucher, charged with evading the Billiard License By-law was argued at the police court, and judgment reserved till Wednesday morning, when the defendant was convicted and a fine of $50 imposed.

Oceans of Tea.

The advertisement of the Peterborough branch of the Atlantic Tea Company contains very tempting offers to purchasers of the prime and cheap teas offered for sale. Such liberality should be recognized. Read their advertisement and call at their store, George street, one door north of the Opera House entrance.

Announcement to the Ladies.

Owing to the unpropitious weather, Fair, VanEvery & Co. have deferred their formal Spring Millinery Opening till Wednesday and Thursday of next week, April 15th and 16th, and following days, when they will exhibit a most superb assortment of new goods, with all the exquisite novelties of the season. Ladies will please remember the date when the "Golden Lion" will rebound with all its resplendent grandeur and excellence.

Spring Millinery Openings.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week the following firms held, are holding and will hold their spring millinery openings:—Messrs. Hall, Innis & Co., Jas. Alexander, Fairweather & Co., J. C. Turnbull. We shall try to do justice to the fine displays made in our next issue. Miss Delaney and Messrs. Fair, VanEvery & Co. will hold their openings on April 15th and following days.

Matrimonial.

On Tuesday last Mr. A. C. Baldwin, of the city of Quebec, was united in marriage to Miss Rose Lundy, of Ashburnham. The ceremony was performed at Verulam House, the residence of Mr. J. J. Lundy, brother of the bride, by Rev. Alex. Bell. The wedding was a quiet one, yet the numbers of presents were exceedingly numerous and elegant. The newly wed started east in the evening for a tour in the Eastern States. Our congratulations and best wishes.

Call and see Turnbull's magnificent display of Trimmed Millinery, opening days Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The Scott Act has been adopted in Wellington county by a majority of 1,430.

In the Federal by-election for West Northumberland on Tuesday, Mr. George Guillet, Conservative, was elected by a majority of 67.

On Tuesday the special jury empanneled to try Benting, Wilkinson, Meek and Kirkland, charged with conspiracy to bribe members of the Ontario Legislature, returned a verdict of not guilty. They were not satisfied that evidence was sufficiently direct, and they gave the accused the benefit of their doubt.

Royal Arcanum.

A meeting of the Peterborough Council, No. 735, Royal Arcanum will be held in the Forester's Hall, over Long, Bros.' confectionery store this (Thursday) evening, at 8 o'clock p. m. A full attendance of the members is requested.

Bible Characters.

Last Sunday evening, Rev. A. H. Munro preached the first of a series of sermons on "Remarkable Characters in the Bible," the subject being "Abraham," and it was treated in the speaker's usually happy, instructive and entertaining style.

Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army will engage in its first pitched battle with Satan in Peterborough in the old Baptist Church, Aylmer street, on Saturday evening next, April 11th, Staff Captain Eadie, A.D.C., commanding. Four engagements will take place on Sunday, at 7.30 a.m., 11 a.m., 3 and 7.30 o'clock p.m.

Concert To-Night.

This evening (Thursday) a very interesting concert, interspersed with new and effective tableaux, will be held at the Town Hall, Ashburnham. The closing number on the programme will be a laughable comedietta, entitled "The Little Sentinel," the parts to be filled by amateurs. Admission twenty-five cents. The proceeds are for St. Luke's Sunday School.

Roller Rink Carnival.

Remember the first grand masquerade carnival takes place at the Roller Skating Rink Water street, on Friday evening. All the preparations are complete, showing that it will be the event of the season. The new galleries are finished, giving abundant seating room for spectators. The opening grand march will begin at 8 o'clock, before which time no skater will be allowed on the floor. Only those in costume will be allowed to skate that evening, and all masks must be removed at 9.30 o'clock. On Thursday and Friday, during the day, the rink will be free to practice for ladies holding carnival tickets, and about 9 o'clock on Thursday evening there will be a practice for those taking part in the grand march. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance; the costumes will be exceedingly fine and taking; several of the best skaters of Port Hope are expected to be present, and everything combines to make the first roller skating carnival a grand success. Be sure to go and see it. Admission 25 cents.

"The Illustrated War News."

The Grip Printing and Publishing Company of Toronto have issued a paper with the above title. It contains twelve large pages, and is well filled with illustrations of incidents and events connected with the Northwest rebellion. A very fine double page picture graphically describes the departure of the contingents from the Queen's Own and Tenth Royal regiments, and the men of the Infantry School, from the Union Station, Toronto, on which occasion probably the largest crowd of people that ever assembled in Canadian territory was gathered together. This picture will be well worth framing as a memento of Riel's second rebellion. Besides this the paper will contain a graphic sketch of the battle at Duck Lake, and also numerous other striking illustrations in connection with the rebellion, including portraits of the principal Indian Chiefs and the town of Battleford, showing the besieged garrison. The engravings are finely lithographed, and the publishers promise a really interesting publication. We are sure their efforts in this direction will be appreciated by all Canadians, and that the paper will have a very large sale. It is placed at the low price of 15 cents, and can be procured either from the office of publication in Toronto or from local stationers.

SPRING ASSIZES.

A Light Docket in Both Kinds.

The spring sittings of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice began at the Court House on Tuesday, Hon. Mr. Justice Rose presiding.

The following gentlemen composed the

GRAND JURY:

Melville Millar, foreman.

T. E. Bell	R. B. Lundy
Joseph Cochrane	Duncan Campbell
James Campbell	T. G. Hazlitt
Billings Kilburn	W. H. Manson
John Leahy	Richard Meade
R. B. McKee	Wm. Mathison
Richard Nimmo	Walter Renwick
Wm. Simpson	John J. Smith

W. G. Patterson.

His Lordship congratulated the jury on the fact that their duties at the present sittings would be of the lightest. They would be called to pronounce upon the evidence in respect of one criminal case only—one of forgery. The jury were then dismissed to make their usual inspection of the jail premises.

The bar was represented by the local members and by Messrs. K. B. Osler, Q. C., Hector Cameron, Q. C., G. T. Blackstock and E. R. Creelman.

The first case entered upon was that of STRICKLAND vs RAMA TIMBER TRANSPORT COMPANY.—This was an action brought by the Messrs. Strickland to recover damages to the amount of about $4,000. It appears that the Transport Company had conveyed for the plaintiffs a quantity of logs through the canal from Black River to Lake St. John, and over the steam portage from Lake St. John to Lake Couchiching. A dispute having arisen as to the way of arriving at the amount of dues to be collected, the company in the meantime held the logs in their booms, and the plaintiffs claim damages for the detention. The case occupied the attention of the court all day Tuesday and most of Wednesday, and was undecided when we went to press.—Messrs. Poussette and Hector Cameron, Q. C., for plaintiff; E. R. Creelman and E. B. Osler, Q. C., for defendants.

GRAND JURY PRESENTMENT.

May it please your Lordship,—

The Grand Jury of our Sovereign Lady the Queen, beg to make the following presentment:—

We have to congratulate your Lordship and the county on the entire absence of criminal business at this Court, showing that the citizens of Peterborough are desirous of living at peace and harmony with one another, and obeying the laws of the land.

We have examined the gaol buildings and surrounding premises, and are pleased to bear testimony to the strict cleanliness and order which prevail, evincing the careful oversight of the gaoler and assistants. The inmates of the gaol (14 in number) are almost entirely composed of an indigent class, chiefly old men who are unable to work or obtain a livelihood, and committed for the winter season as a means of protection to themselves.

The Grand Jury would take this opportunity, on the occasion of your first appearance in a judicial capacity in this county, of congratulating your Lordship upon your elevation to the bench, and of expressing the belief that the authorities acted wisely in recognizing the breadth and maturity of your legal knowledge, in placing you in a position in which their exercise would best conduce to the promotion of the ends of justice, and he still another addition to the members of a judiciary of which Canada may be justly proud. We trust your Lordship may long be spared to occupy a position upon the bench, which your legal acquirements and personal integrity so justly entitle you to.

MELLVILLE MILLAR, Foreman.

Peterborough, April 15, 1885.

In reply His Lordship reciprocated the congratulations expressed by the jury, and regretted that the only criminal case had not been satisfactorily disposed of. Referring to the state of the Court House, his Lordship congratulated the county upon their condition. The court room especially was worthy of great praise, for he asserted that it was the most commodious, well appointed and best ventilated court room he had been in in this province. He thanked the jury for their personal congratulations and the compliment paid himself and his brother judges, who had reason to be gratified so long as they retained the esteem of the public. He dismissed the jury and wished them a safe return to their homes.

The only criminal case was the Queen vs. Charles Correa, forgery. No Bill. No witnesses, one dead and one out of the county. The prisoner was discharged.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, March 30th, 1885, all the members present, except Mr. Middleton. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The auditors' report was received, and on motion of Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. McIlmoyle, was adopted, and the clerk instructed to have 150 copies printed for distribution. A by-law authorizing the expenditure of $2,050 on the roads throughout the township passed its several readings and was signed and sealed; also a by-law to alter certain school sections therein mentioned. Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. McIlmoyl, that overseers of highways in Smith be instructed to secure all dangerous banks or bridges in said township, by railing or otherwise, so as to protect the travelling public.—Carried. The treasurer was instructed to pay the account of the Review Printing and Publishing Company, amounting to $53.87. The council then adjourned till Monday, May 25th, then to meet as a court of revision.

THE AFGHAN WAR CLOUD

Still Darkly Looming Up.

Russia Still Intriguing—Great War Preparations—Both Sides Active—Peace Trembling in the Balance.

FRIDAY'S DISPATCHES.

ATTACK ON PENJDEH.

At 12:30 p.m., Russian securities were falling rapidly. A despatch from Gulran, April 3, states that the Russians, while making pretext of changing the position of their outposts on the Afghan frontier, attacked Penjdeh March 30, and drove the Afghans out of their positions. The Afghans stubbornly resisted. The weather was wet, and rendered the muzzle-loading guns of the Afghans useless. Two companies held one position against the Russians, until its defence were killed. The Afghans retreated to Maruscham in perfect order.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone said a reply was received from Russia last night, stating that Russia had already asked Komaroff to explain his conduct in attacking the Afghans at Penjdeh. Mr. Gladstone added that the Russians do not occupy Penjdeh.

London.—Wheat has risen four shillings per quarter; at Glasgow wheat is three shillings dearer.

Russian agents have visited the offices of a number of steamship companies, and made heavy bids for fast-going vessels. The facts have been reported to the British Admiralty. Russia has not yet replied to the demand of England for full explanations respecting the attack on the Afghans.

WILL RETURN AT ONCE.

It is reported that the Queen will return immediately, on account of the crisis. Sixty thousand men from the army reserves and the whole of the militia will be called out. The naval reserves will be used for home defence.

The reports from military centres, Indian and the tension between England and Russia.

New York, April 11.—The Stock market was strong and showed a spirit of activity after 11 o'clock, on the rumor that England would declare war before Monday.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

London, April 13. Mr. Gladstone in the house of commons stated that the government upon receipt from Russia of Gen. Komaroff's explanation had telegraped to Sir Peter Lumsden for information as to the correctness of the Russian commander's justification of his conduct. He had also telegraphed Gen. Komaroff's version of the affair, but had received no reply. He admitted that Russia had failed to answer the material parts of England's communication sent on the day of the receipt of the news of the battle.

Mr. Gladstone further announced that the governmrat had received a full report of the communications which had passed between Lord Dufferin and the Ameer in the councils recently held. These communications were entirely satisfactory.

Lord Hartington, in moving the reply to the queen's message summoning the reserves, stated he was unable at present to speak concerning the military measures under consideration, because recent events had notified the views of the Indian government concerning the number of reinforcements required. He hoped to submit to the house of commons a vote of credit next Monday when perhaps more might be said. Sir Stafford Northcote gave notice that his party would not oppose the credit.

WAR ECHOES.

Lord Granville, immediately after the adjournment of the cabinet, had an interview with Fehmi Pasha, special envoy from Turkey, and Count Kraroloi, the Austrian ambassador.

Lord Dufferin has gone to Lahore to meet the magarajah of Cashmere.

The steamship Oregon, formerely of the Guion line, is to be transformed into a man of war by order of the British government.

TUESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WAR PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, April 14.—The government has decided to purchase four more steamers similar to the America and equip them as armed cruisers. The number of British men of war now being prepared for service is so great that that it is believed the retired list will have to be resorted to to provide active officers for them. The steel plated turret ship Colossus, 9,150 tons, one of the most formidable iron clads in the British navy, will soon be ready for sea and will be attached to the Baltic fleet.

Gibraltar and other British strongholds will be put in a complete state of defence. Torpedoes of the latest approved pattern are being forwarded to all naval stations.

Bombay harbour has been lined with torpedoes, and 4,000,000 cartridges have been landed at Bombay.

NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT.

LONDON, April 14.—The Russian military organ sums up the situation thus: "Forward to Herat; now is the time."

MORE PACIFIC.

LONDON, April 15.—The daily News this morning says the situation shows a more peaceful tendency, but if war is to be avoided, it must be shown that Gen. Komaroff's action is no part of the Russian policy. Then there must be no further Russian advance. If Russia is as anxious for peace as England, peace ought to be secure.

THURSDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—News from the front states that the Winnipeg militia camped last night thirty miles north of Qu'Appelle. They wait there for A Battery to overtake them. Supplies had also to be waited for, the transport service being unequal to the work of supplying so large a body. The Queen's Own and B Battery are to be taken on to Swift Current for transport down the river by boat.

FORMING A JUNCTION

with the other division at Clarke's Crossing. The Grenadiers and Foot Guards, who got here at four o'clock, will probably follow the Queens Own. It is said that Middleton is yet undecided whether he will separate the the forces at Clarke's Crossing and march on both Battleford and Prince Albert, or march on the latter with the full force. In either case it is to be feared that the Battleford people before they are reached. Gen. Middleton expects to reach the Saskatchewan in twelve days, but the people here familiar with the trail say that he cannot reach it so soon.

WILL BE STARVED OUT

ARRIVAL OF THE GRENADIERS.

WINNIPEG, April 8.—The Grenadiers arrived here this morning at six, and notwithstanding Monday night's terrible march all are in capital condition, except a few slight colds and frost bites. The men breakfasted in the hotel, and are now doing the

FRIDAY'S DESPATCHES.

FROG LAKE MASSACRE.

WINNIPEG, April 9.—Word has been received this day from Battleford of the massacre of the white people at Frog Lake, northwest of Fort Pitt. Following are the names of the victims:—T. T. Quinn, Indian agent, John Delaney, farm instructor, Gowanlock and wife, Father Fafard, and Father Lemarshard, priests, and two other men whose names have not yet been learned. Mrs. Delaney is a prisoner. It is not known what became of Cameron, the Hudson Bay Co.'s agent. This word was brought to Battleford yesterday by W. Quinn, nephew of the Indian agent who escaped. The wire between Battleford and Clarke's Crossing apparently is not cut, but has been lying on the ground, and the circuit was established a short time to-day, allowing the message to come through. It is stated in the same message that Battleford is but no attempt has been made on the barracks. Indian Agent Rae has not been killed as reported. The Hudson Bay officer received intelligence by way of Edmonton and Calgary that the Saddle Lake Indians raided the government warehouse at that point, and had gone to join the rebels. They had also received a message from the Factor at Prince Albert dated March 31st, in which he says:—"The whole population is on our hands; am scouring the country for provisions. Send flour and bacon at once. Indians quiet, except Sioux and 50 Crees, who have joined rebels."

SURROUNDED BY A THOUSAND INDIANS.

TREACHEROUS SLAUGHTER.

Further particulars show that on April 2nd the Indians at Frog Lake invited Quinn and others to a conference in their camp, and shot them as soon as they entered. The killed are Agent Quinn, Fathers Fafard and La Marchard, Instructor Delaney, Mr. and Mrs. Gowanlock, John Millescroft, Charles Goun, and others, making eleven in all. Twenty-five police and a few settlers are entrenched in the Hudson Bay houses.

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS.

BRANDON, April 10.—Word from the Indian settlements in the Turtle Mountain, south of here, says the Indians are troublesome and stealing right and left. American Indians are coming in from St. Peter's. The settlers are greatly disturbed, and request Mayor Short to send them assistance. If the troops are not sent south the settlers think there will be serious trouble.

SUNDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, April 12.—No new massacre is reported this morning though the statement from Battleford that the Indians have again left in a body is highly suggestive of mischief. The number known to have been killed at Frog Lake is eleven.

MIDDLETON'S MARCH.

Gen. Middleton has made a splendid march across the Salt Plain. The weather having become cold, he was able to make excellent time across a piece of country which, had a thaw occurred, would have been all but impassable. At date of the latest despatches he was within twenty miles of Humboldt, and expected to reach Clarke's Crossing on Thursday. The Swift Current division, under Col. Otter, is expected to start to-day on the Saskatchewan steamers, and if they have good luck they may reach Clarke's Crossing by Saturday next.

THE OTHER FORCES.

The York Rangers and the Simcoe troops are on their way to Calgary, whence, it is said, they will march to Edmonton and Fort Pitt. The Quebec Voltigeurs have arrived at Qu'Appelle, the Governor's Body Guard is by this time over the last gap, the London Regiment is supposed to be about twelve hours behind, and the Quebec cavalry and the Halifax regiment are somewhere between Ottawa and Sudbury. If everything goes right, the whole of the troops now ordered to the front will be in Winnipeg by the end of this week.

THE FROG LAKE BUTCHERY.

BATTLEFORD, April 12.—Details of the recent terrible tragedy at Frog Lake here to hand, but nothing is said of any further murders having been committed beyond those first reported. The Indians entered Gowanlock's house and, without saying a word, deliberately shot him dead. Another Indian raised his rifle and aimed it at W. C. Gilchrist. Mrs. Gowanlock, rushing forward, pinioned his arms by clasping him around the body. He shook her off and fired, killing her instantly, and immediately afterwards killed Gilchrist. The fate of Mrs. Gowanlock is admitted on all hands to be preferable to that of Mrs. Delaney, who is held a prisoner by the Indians. Quinn, the Indian agent, was married to a Cree woman, who, it is presumed, was cognizant of the intended murder.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, April 13.—The most important news from the front to-day is that the two columns of troops are making excellent progress, the weather being very favourable. Gen. Middleton camped last night at Humboldt, fifty-five miles from Clarke's Crossing, and about sixty-five miles from Batoche's Crossing, where Riel is said to be entrenched. It is believed in Ottawa that Hon. Mr. Royal, who returned yesterday, was successful in his mission, and as he passed through Toronto on Sunday it is not wholly impossible that he may have dropped by the way an alleged Fort Qu'Appelle despatch published yesterday, in which Riel's case is put in a light extremely favourable to the Provisional President. It is also rumoured in Ottawa that telegraphic negotiations are going on between Gen. Middleton and Riel—which is not likely inasmuch as an old soldier would not be likely to treat by telegraph with a rebel in arms. When Middleton marches out again this morning he may be considered as fairly within the enemy's country, and news of a skirmish may be looked for at any moment.

COL. OTTER'S COLUMN.

Col. Otter's column is on the march from Swift Current, and expects to reach the Saskatchewan to-morrow night. The idea of going down the river appears to have been abandoned, and the probabilities are that the troops will take the Battleford trail. This is much much the quickest route, but it is not likely that the journey will be accomplished without at least one fight.

A column of 500 men is expected to march north in a few days from Calgary to Edmonton under Gen. Strange.

Latest advices from General Middleton indicate that the supply service is failing to prove adequate to the necessities of the situation. The General is waiting for supplies to arrive, and it seems, does not expect to leave Humboldt before Thursday. Riel's scouts are said to be scouring the country, and there is no doubt that the rebel leader is thoroughly informed as to the movements of both General Middleton and Col Otter.

THE BLACKFEET UNEASY.

The information obtained from courier at Humboldt is in some respects startling, but in view of positive information to the contrary the story that the Blackfeet are rising cannot be accepted as other than a sensational rumour. It is beyond belief that the Chief of the Blackfeet could make the Government believe that he had the most pacific intentions while at the same time some of his own people were on the war path.

TUESDAY'S DISPATCHES.

THE SINEWS OF WAR.

OTTAWA, April 14.—A message from the governor general was read asking the house to consider a vote of seven hundred thousand dollars to meet the expenses of troops in the Northwest.

READY FOR THE REBELS.

WINNIPEG, April 14.—News from the west would indicate the prospect of Gen. Middleton having a brush with the rebels by Saturday. Col. Irvine will make a sortie from Prince Albert on the rear of the enemy the moment the troops reach Batoche crossing.

Indian scouts say that Blackfeet runners, who have arrived at Battleford, promise the Crees assistance. This is not believed as the Blackfeet are supremely loyal.

Red Deer settlers are arriving at Calgary to escape raids from the Crees.

The situation at Battleford remains unchanged. No Indians have been seen during the past two days. F. A. Smart and Robert C. McDonald arrived there this morning, having made a daring ride on horseback from Swift Current in less than four days. They avoided the trails and saw no Indians en route.

Great anxiety is felt at Battleford in regard to the fate of the whites at Fort Pitt, as no news has been received from that point for eight days, and while there is a possibility that they are all right, it is feared the Indians have taken the most.

INSUFFICIENT EQUIPMENTS.

Grave news comes from Calgary. Colonel Ouimet (a Tory M. P. who strongly denounced the government on his departure for its neglect of the volunteers) in command of the 65th (Montreal) battalion, which arrived at Calgary on Sunday, suddenly returned to Winnipeg last night. It is stated that he utterly refused to march to Edmonton with his men so poorly equipped as they are. It will be remembered that he made a strong protest about this before leaving Montreal. It appears also that there is a pronounced lack of enthusiasm among the white settlers around Calgary; that scouts and teamsters refuse to move with outmore money; also that General Strange is so extremely unpopular in that neighbourhood that people refuse to serve under him. It is probable that this unpopularity arises from the connection of the General with ranching and colonization company schemes. Altogether the situation with respect to the Calgary corps is serious.

It is to be trusted that Gen. Middleton's plan of campaign will not be frustrated from what appears to be the total collapse of the project for an advance from Calgary.

TO SPEAK OUT IN PARLIAMENT.

An Ottawa despatch says: "Since his return from the Northwest Mr. Royal expresses his views somewhat strongly and independently on the question of the troubles. It is understood that he will ventilate his views on the subject on the floor of parliament, and that while he hesitates to attack the premier, he will not spare the minister of the interior (Sir David Macpherson) and Mr. Dewdney, who has much to do with the troubles.

POLITICAL NOTES

Two rebellions in the Northwest within fifteen years, led by the same man, rendered possible by the incompetence of the same Premier, are a little to much. The people will put down the present outbreak, but they will come short of their duty if they do not discharge their unfaithful servants. Macdonald, Dewdney & Co. have misruled long enough. The Northwest had been turned into a dumping ground for political incapables, and their misrule has caused the present rebellion.—Stratford Beacon.

THAT FATAL DELAY.—These half-breed claims are many of them so just, and all of them so natural, that while, as a matter of course, the rebellion must be stamped out immediately at all costs, it will ever be a matter of regret that they were not investigated in time to prevent a rising which is as calamitous as it is unnecessary.—Calgary, N. W. T, Herald.

RETURNING THANKS.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly find a place in your paper for the following resolution passed at last meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of George street Methodist church.

Resolved that the members of this Society return their sincere thanks to the friends who so ably assisted us at the "Old Folk's Concert." We feel that we cannot sufficiently appreciate their kindness in giving their services so cheerfully, and attending so faithfully the practices during very stormy weather. And while we take this opportunity of thanking all who took part, we feel especially indebted to our friends from other choirs, and our earnest wish is that they may realize the truth of the promise, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." We desire that a copy of this resolution be sent to the papers and also to the leaders of those choirs who so kindly helped us.

Young and middle-aged men, suffering from nervous debility and kindred affections, as loss of memory and hypochondria, should inclose three letter stamps for large illustrated pamphlet suggesting sure cure. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Wm. Boyd Hill, Cobourg, writes: "Having used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for some years, I have much pleasure in testifying to its efficacy in relieving pains in the back and shoulders. I have also used it in cases of croup in children, and have found it to be all that you claim it to be."

The Wonders and Analogies of the Resurrection.

The Beauties of the New House not Made With Hands.

"The Queen of Festivals," and the text was taken from I Corinthians, xv., 54: "Death is swallowed up in victory."

About 1851 Easter mornings have awakened the earth. In France for about three centuries the almanacs made the year begin at Easter until Charles IX. started the year at January 1. In the Tower of London there is kept on the royal pay-roll of Edward I. an entry of eighteen pounds for four hundred colored and pictured Easter eggs with which the people sported. In Russia slaves were freed and alms distributed on Easter. Ecclesiastical councils met at Pontis, at Galles, at Rome, at Achaia to decide the particular day, and after controversy more animated than gracious decided it, and now all through Christendom in some way the first Sunday of the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21, is filled with Easter rejoicings. The royal court of the Sabbaths is made up of fifty-two. Fifty-one of them are princess but Easter is queen of the household. She wears a richer diadem and swings a more jewelled sceptre than any one of our courts, and in her smile nations are irradiated. Unusually welcome this year because of the harsh winter and late spring, she seems to step out of the snow-bank rather than from the conservatory, to come out of the north instead of the south, from the artic instead of the tropics, dismounting from an icy equinox. But welcome this queenly day that holds high up in her right hand the wrenched-off bolts and in his left the key of all the cemeteries of Christendom. My text is an ejaculation. It is spun out of hallelujahs. Paul wrote on deliberately in his great argument, observing all the laws of logic until he came to the words of the text and then his fingers and his pen and the parchment on which he wrote took fire and he shouted: "Death is swallowed up in victory!"

It is an exciting thing to see an army routed and flying. They run each other down. They scatter everything valuable in their track. Men, horses and artillery! Hoof of horses on breast of wounded and dying men! You have read of the French falling back from Sedan or Napoleon's track of 60,000 corpses in the snowbanks of Russia, or the retreat of our forces from Manassas, or the five kings tumbling down from the rocks of Beth-Horon with their armies while the hailstones of heaven and the swords of Joshua's host struck them with their fury. In my text is a worse discomfiture. It seems that a black giant proposed to conquer the earth. He gathered for his host all the aches and pains and malarias and distempers and epidemics of the ages. He marched them down, drilling them in the north-east wind and amid the slush of tempests. He threw up barricades of grave mound. He pitched tents of charnel houses. Some of the troops marched with slow tread commanded by consumptions, some by double-quick commanded by pneumonias. Some he took by long besiegement of evil habit and some by one stroke of the battle-axe of casualty. With bony hand he pounded at the door of hospitals and sick rooms and won all the victories in all the great battlefields of the five continents. Forward, conqueror of conquerors! and all the generals and commanders-in-chief and all presidents and kings and sultans and czars dropped under the feet of his war-charger. But one Christmas night his antagonist was born. As most of the plagues and sicknesses and despotisms came from the east, it was appropriate that the new conqueror should come out of the same quarter. Power is given him to weaken all the fallen of all the cemeteries and of all lands and marshal them against the black giant. Fields have already been won, but the last day of the world's existence will see the decisive battle. When Christ shall lead forth his two brigades, the brigade of the risen dead and the brigade of the celestial, armies of the black giant shall fall back and the brigade from the riven sepulchres will take him from beneath and the brigade of the descending immortals will take him from above and death will be swallowed up in victory.

The old braggart that threatened the conquest and demolition of the planet has lost his throne, has lost his sceptre, has lost his palace, has lost his prestige, and the one word written over all the gates of mausoleum and catacomb and necropolis or cenotaph or sarcophagus or the cairn of lone arctic explorer, on catafalque of cathedral, written in letters of calla lily, written in musical cadence, written in doxology of great assembly, written on sculptured door of family vault, is

"VICTORY."

I proclaim the abolition of Death. The old antagonist must be put back into mythology, with all the lore about Stygian ferry and Charon with oar and boat. Melrose Abbey and Kenilworth Castle are no more in ruins than the sepulchre. We shall have no more to do with death than we have with the cloak-room at a Governor's or President's levee. We stop there at such cloak-room and leave in charge of servants our overcoat and overshoes that we may not be impeded in the rounds of the brilliant drawing-room. When we go away from this world we are going to a King's banquet and a reception of monarchs, and at the door of the tomb we leave the cloak of flesh and the wrappings with which we met the storms of this world. At the close of an earthly reception, under the brush and broom of the porter the coat may be handed from better than when we consigned them. And the flesh clothed with will finally be restored, improved, beautified and purified. You and I do not want our bodies restored to us just as they are now. We want to get rid of all their weaknesses [illegible] slowness of locomotion. They will be put through a chemistry of the soil and heat and cold and changing season out of which God [illegible] they are now as the body of the rosiest and healthiest child treading the lawn on Prospect Park is better than the body of the sickest patient in Bellevue Hospital. But as to our soul, we will cross right over, not waiting for obsequies, independent of obituary, into a state every way better, with wider room and velocities beyond computation, the dullest of us into companionship with the very best spirits in the best mood, in the very parlor of the universe, the four walls burnished, panel-pictured and glorified with all the splendors that the infinite God during all the ages has been able to invent. Victory!

This view, of course, makes it of but little importance whether we are

CREMATED OR SEPULCHRED.

If the latter is dust to dust, the former is ashes to ashes. If any prefer incineration, let them have it without caricature. The world may become so crowded that cremation may be universally adopted by law as well as by the general consent. Many of the best of men and women have been cremated. P. P. Bliss and wife, the singing evangelists, cremated by accident at Ashtabula. John Rogers, cremated by persecution. Latimer and Ridley, cremated at Oxford. Pothinus and Blandina, a slave, and Alexander, a physician, and their comrades, cremated at the order of Marcus Aurelius. If the world lasts as much longer as it has already been built, there might be no room for the large acreage set apart for resting places. But that time has not come. Plenty of room yet. The race need not pass that bridge of fire till it comes to it. Most of us prefer the old way. But whether out of cremation or natural disintegration, we shall get that luminous, buoyant, gladsome, transcendent, magnificent, inexplicable structure called the resurrection body. "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?"

That far up cloud, higher than the hawk flies, higher than the eagle flies, what is it made of? Drops of water from the Hudson and other drops from the East River and other drops from a stagnant pool out on Newark flats. Up yonder they are embodied in a cloud, and the sun kindles it. If God can make such a lustrous cloud out of water drops, and some of them soiled and impure and fetched up from miles away, can He not transport fragments of bodies from the earth, and out of them build in the sky a radiant body? Can the God who owns all the material out of which bones and flesh are made not set them up again after they have fallen? If a manufacturer of telescopes drop an instrument on the floor and break it, can He not mend it again so as it can be looked through? And if God drop the eye which he originally fashioned into dust, can He not restore it? Aye, if the manufacturer of the telescope by a change of the glass and focus may improve the telescope, could not the Fashioner of the eye improve it sight and multiply the natural eye by the thousand-fold additional facilities of the resurrection? "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?"

Things all around us suggest it. The radiant butterfly, where did it come from? The loathsome caterpillar: that albatross breasting the tempest with its plashed wing, where did it come from? A senseless shell. Near Bergerac, France, in a Celtic tomb, under a block, were found flower seed that had been buried two thousand years. The seed planted, they put forth the bloom of bluebell and heliotrope. Wilkinson, the traveller, found in a mummy pit in Egypt some garden peas that had been buried there some

THREE THOUSAND YEARS.

On the 4th of June, 1884, he planted them, and in 30 days they sprang up. Where did all this silk come from—the silk that adorns your persons and your homes? In the hollow of a staff a Greek missionary brought from China to Europe the progenitors of those worms that now supply the silk of many nations. The pageantry of bannered host and the luxuriant articles of commercial emporium blossoming out from the silkworms! And who shall be surprised if, out of this insignificant earthly life our bodies spread into something worthy of the coming eternities? Put silver in diluted nitre and it dissolves. Is the silver gone forever? No; put in some pieces of copper and the silver reappears. If one force dissolves, another force reorganises.

The insects flew and the worms crawled last Autumn feebler and feebler and then stopped. They have taken no food. They want none. They lay dormant and insensible. But soon the south wind will blow the resurrection triumph, and the air and the earth will be full of them. Do you not think that God can do as much for our bodies as He does for the wasps and spiders and snails? Within a month there will be a resurrection in all our gardens. Why not some day a resurrection in all our graveyards? This morning at five o'clock there was a resurrection. Out of a night, a day. Ever and anon there are instances of men and women in a trance. A trance is death followed by resurrection after a few days. Total suspension of mental power and voluntary action. Rev. Mr. Tennett, the great evangelist of the past, Dr. Archibald Alexander, the most sentimental of men, his eulogist, lay in a trance for many days, but the departed soul that had seen wonders in its absence, came back again and recited what it had seen. It will be found some time that what is called suspended animation or comatose state is brief death, giving the soul time for an excursion into the next world, from which it comes back—a furlough of a few hours granted from the conflict to which it returns. Does not this waking up of men from trance and this waking up of insects from winter lifelessness, and this waking up of grains buried three thousand years ago, make it easier for us to believe that our body and mind, after the vacation of the grave, shall rise and rally, though there be three thousand years between our last breath and the sounding of the Archangelic reveille?

Physiologists tell us that while the most of our bodies are built with such wonderful economy that we can spare nothing, and the loss of a little finger is a hinderment, and the injury of a toe-joint makes us lame, still that we have two or three useless physical apparata, and no anatomist or physiologist has ever been able to tell us what they are good for. They are, no doubt, the foundation of the resurrection body, worth nothing to us in this state, to be of indispensable value in the next state. The Jewish rabbins had only a hint of this suggestion when they said that in the human frame there was a small cove which they called "luz," and R. Josuahan Hanniah said that that was to be the basis of the resurrection body. And though there may have been nothing in that idea, the Christian scientists of our day have found in two or three superfinities of body something gloriously suggestive of another construction.

I called at my friend's house one summer. I found his front yard filled up with the rubbish of masons' and carpenters' work. The door off, the plumbers had torn up the floor, the roof was being lifted and cupoled. The walls had lost their pictures and the paper-hangers were getting ready, and all the modern improvements were to be introduced. There was not a room fit to live in, although a few weeks before when I stopped there it was so beautiful that it did not seem to me that any improvement was possible. My friend had gone with his family to the Holy Land and would not be back until about six months, at which time the house would be complete. And what a time they did have when they got back to the old place and found it

SO WONDERFULLY RECONSTRUCTED.

That is your body. It looks well now, all [illegible] home filled with health, and I could [illegible] suggestion. But after a while your soul will go to the Holy Land, and while you are gone the old house of your tabernacle will be entirely reconstructed from cellar to attic. Every nerve, muscle, bone, [illegible] artery must be healed over, and the old structure will be burnished, and adorned, and raised and cupoled and enlarged, and all the improvements of heaven introduced, and then you will move in on Resurrection Day. If the house of this tabernacle be dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

What a time when body and soul meet again. They are fond of each other. Did your body ever have a pain and your soul not pity it? Did your body ever have a joy and your soul not re-echo it? Or, changing the question, did your soul ever have a trouble but your body sympathised with it, growing wan and weak under the depressing influence? Or did your soul ever have a gladness but your body celebrated it with kindled eye and cheek and elastic step? Surely God never intended two such good friends to be forever separated. And so, when on the world's last Easter morning the soul shall descend, it will cry, "Where is my body?" And the body ascending will cry, "Where is my soul?" And the Lord of the Resurrection will bring them together, a perfect soul in a perfect body, introduced by a perfect Christ into a perfect heaven. Victory! Do you wonder that we swathe this house with garlands to-day? Do you wonder that we celebrate with the most consecrated voice of song that we can invite, and with the delicate fingers on organ and cornet, and with doxologies that beat these grand arches above us with the billows of sound as the sea smites the basalt at Giant's Causeway?

Only the bad despise the resurrection. Macaba, a cruel heathen warrior, heard Mr. Moffatt, the missionary, preach about the resurrection. The chieftain cried out: "Will my father rise?" "Yes," said the missionary. "Will all the slain in battle rise?" "Yes," said the missionary. Then the chieftain cried out: "I don't want to hear this about the rising dead. The dead can't rise. The dead shall not rise. I have slain my thousands. Shall they rise?" On the day of which I speak too much will rise for those whose published or hidden crimes shall be exposed. But for all others who allow Christ to be their pardon, and their life, and their resurrection, it will be a day of triumph. The thunders of the last day will only be the salve that greet you into the harbor. The lightnings will only be the torches of triumphant procession marching down to escort you. The burning worlds tossed through immensity, the rockets celebrating your coronation on the throne of power where you will reign forever and ever. As your reunited body and soul swings off from this planet, you will see deep gashes all up and down the hills and valleys of the earth and they will be the emptied graves, the abandoned sepulchres, with rough ground tossed on either side of them and slabs lying uneven on the round hillocks, and there will be falling monuments and cenotaphs, and then for the first time you will understand the full exhilaration of my text:—"Death is swallowed up in Victory."

"Hail, the Lord of Earth and Heaven!
Praise to Thee by both be given.
Thee we greet, triumphant now.
Hail the Resurrection, Thou!"

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to begin an article, in an elegant, interesting style,

"Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

Did She Die?

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility.

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A LADY of Utica, N. Y.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1883. 48-52t

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Thursday evening, 9th instant. Present,—Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Mayor, and Councillors Cahill, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Yelland, Menzies, Rutherford, Kendry and Hartley.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were received.

From W. H. Banfield, stating he was prepared to furnish dog tags if the Council wished to procure them.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

From Wm. Collins, North Monaghan, in reference to an unpaid account for keep of late Wm. Hicks.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From W. H. Moore, declining the position of member of the Board of Health.—Refered to Committee on Appointments.

From Warren Taylor, Secretary of the Peterborough Cheese Board, asking for the use of the Council Chamber for the meetings of the Board.

From Joseph Datcher, asking rebate of dog tax.—Granted when statutory declaration is taked.

From W. G. Ferguson, Valentine Best and B. Z. Rogers, asking Council to direct the Treasurer to refund the fines imposed upon them last season for infraction of the building by-law.—Referred to Finance Committee.

From Mrs. Mary Brown and Eliza Jane Brown, stating that they had been advised by a number of citizens to bring the matter of the assistance given by the town to their sister, Miss Toole, before the Council. Instead of receiving two dollars per week as voted to them, they had only got one dollar per week, and were informed by the Chairman of the Charity Committee that that was all they could get, and that they would have to take it out of his shop.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented and referred to the Finance Committee, except the last, which was ordered to be paid:

Carlton Bros., charity orders	$25 00
Gas Company, Council Chamber	23 15
Gas Company, Fire Hall	21 60
Review Printing Company	45 45

RED CROSS AMBULANCE CORPS.

The Mayor read the following telegram, which he had received that evening:—

TORONTO, April 9th.

Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Peterborough:

We are getting up a Red Cross ambulance corps for the North-West, by permission of the Government, who provide transportation and rations. Our corps will take hospital tent and all necessary equipments and medical appliances, and will be used at the front with the troops to take care of the sick and wounded from the first. Can you collect any subscriptions in Peterborough, as some of your men have gone. We want about $3,000 in all. Corps will leave next Wednesday, so what is done must be done to-morrow.

E. WRAGGE.

It was received, and at a later stage of the meeting a grant of $50 was given, on motion of Councillor Menzies, seconded by Councillor Kendry.

AN EXPLANATION.

His Worship said he wished to make an explanation. At the last meeting of Council, when the Market Clerk question was up, he had done Mr. Doherty's predecessor an injustice, as he was then under a wrong impression as to the way Mr. Green, had discharged his duties, and he wished the same publicity to be given to this explanation as had been given his remarks at the last meeting.

THE CHARITY MATTER.

In disposing of the communication of Mrs. Brown,

Councillor Green (Chairman of the Charity Committee) said he could truthfully deny the charges made against him and would like the Mayor to appoint a commission to enquire into the matter. For the information of those present he would give a statement of the case: Mrs. Brown, on behalf of her sister, Miss Toole, applied to him last January for charity. They were then living in Ashburnham, and the application was not then received. Afterwards they moved to town and again made application for relief. As he considered her a fit subject for charity he brought the matter before the committee and he was instructed to pay her one dollar per week. This he did for four weeks, when Councillor Yelland spoke to him, stating that the woman was very ill and that a dollar a week was not sufficient. The matter was referred to the Council and the grant increased to two dollars per week. This was three weeks before she died. For those three weeks she received two dollars per week, and for the four weeks previous to that one dollar per week, or in all ten dollars. This did not include an order for $7.50 for burial expenses. Some one had told the old lady that she should have received two dollars per week all along, and no doubt from that she had formed a wrong impression. The books of the committee were open for inspection, and this account would be found as he had stated.

Councillor Rutherford said from the reports current throughout the town in reference to this matter it was due to all that a thorough investigation should be made. If the charges were unfounded Mr. Green would have an opportunity to clear himself of them. He would move, seconded by Councillor Menzies,—That the charges preferred against Councillor Green be referred to a commission composed of Councillors Cahill, Yelland, Kelly and Menzies.

Councillor McNaughton thought the matter should be gone into in Committee of the whole Council, and do it all above-board.

Councillor McClelland thought, in justice to all, an examination should be held, but he could not see how it could be done satisfactorily in open Council. He would favor the appointment of an outsider to act with the Councillors.

Councillor McNaughton—I will consent to that.

Councillor Rutherford said he had named one from each Ward, and if the ratepayers had not confidence in the Council they had better resign at once.

The motion was put and carried.

ASSISTANCE TO VOLUNTEERS' FAMILIES.

The Mayor said he understood the families of two of the volunteers who had gone to the North West needed assistance, and he thought that something should be done at once for their relief. He believed they both belonged to the 4th Ward.

Councillor Hartley said applications had been made to him in favor of Mrs. Billings and Mrs. Roberts. He believed they should receive attention.

Councillor Cahill, Yelland, Kendry and McNaughton thought the matter should not be viewed in the light of giving charity.

Moved by Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor McNaughton,—That the matter of rendering assistance to the families of two married men who went to the North-West as volunteers be referred to the Councillors of No. 4 Ward, with power to act, and that the Treasurer be directed to honor their orders.—Carried.

REMISSION OF TAXES.

Councillor Hartley moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry,—That the taxes of Chas. Billings be remitted.—Carried.

AN ENQUIRY.

Councillor McNaughton drew the attention of the Council to the case of a Mrs. Nicholls, in the south part of the town. Her husband was a worthless, drunken character and would not contribute to the support of his family, who were in a very bad state. He would like to know if the Council could not order his arrest. He intended to notify all the liquor dealers not to give him any liquor.

THE NIGHT WATCHMAN.

Councillor Menzies moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry,—That a policeman's baton, shield, nippers and belt be procured for officer McGinnity by this Council.—Carried.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

In answer to Councillor Cahill, as to whether any notice had been taken by the Board of Health as to its duties, Councillor Rutherford replied that a meeting had been called but there was no quorum present. Those present, however, had intimated to the Sanitary Inspectors that they should at once commence the execution of the work.

THE SEWER.

Councillor Cahill moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford,—That in the future no person or persons, corporation or company, be prohibited to break into or in any way interfere with the sewer on George street, but, when necessary that the connection should be made with the said sewer, the same shall be done under the supervision of the Street and Bridge Inspector, who shall ascertain the actual cost of such work and charge the work to the party requiring such connection to be made.—Carried.

NEW TOWN OFFICES.

Councillor Cahill asked if anything had been done in reference to fitting up the old Bank of Toronto into town offices.

Councillor Rutherford stated that the Property Committee had taken active steps in the matter, and the plans and specifications were now nearly ready. The offices would be complete, comprising a council chamber, clerk and treasurer's office, police court and lock-up. The plans would be submitted at the next meeting of the Council, and he trusted that they would give every satisfaction.

The Council adjourned until Monday evening, April 20th.

LADIES are now reminded that Hall, Innes & Co's Millinery Show Rooms are now open with all the season's novelties.

We Do Not Claim that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the Blood.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup. The skin would become dry, chap, crack, open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefitted me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
C. A. HOWARD, West 11th St., New York.

WEATHER NOTES.

March has been of unequalled severity, having little fine, pleasant weather, the first week giving only a few days low temperature. Snow, cold and drift has been the ruling power; 15 days at sunrise, and 5 at sunset has the thermometer been at or below zero, leaving the average for the month 12° 26-31. Although not having any extra fall of snow, we had some severe gales, drifting and impassable roads, having to take to the fields, as our only chance of travelling. The morning of the 22nd was the coldest, falling to 17° below zero, and the morning of the 31st being the mildest, standing at the freezing point. Snow fell on 15 days to the depth of 17 inches, which is considered light for March; rain falling only once, on the 27th, to the depth of 15-100 of an inch. Crows made their first appearance on the 7th, and graybirds on the 19th. At sunrise the wind was blowing, the number of days from the respective points, namely: South, 5 days; north-west, 8 days; south-east, 1 day; south-west, 8 days; east, 7 days; north-east, 1 day, and north, 1 day.

FRASERVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On the evening of the 2nd, inst., about 30, representing the Methodist congregation, Baillieboro, came through the heavy rain and took possession of the parsonage, Fraserville. A most enjoyable time was spent in hearty greetings, pleasant conversation and music. A beautiful repast was spread by the party, who came heavily laden with choicest edibles, to which justice was done. After which the pastor, Rev F. Johnson, was called to a chair in the midst of the group, when Thos. Box, Esq., read in behalf of the friends a very kind and appreciative address, which, with a handsome purse of money, he presented to their pastor in token of their esteem, to which Mr. Johnson replied in brief and suitable terms, concluding with prayer and "The Sweet By and By," after which the party left, leaving the parsonage pantry and sideboard well filled with choice provisions.

The North Smith Diary Association have engaged Mr. Wilson, a first-class cheese maker, to take charge of the company's factory this season. We look for an extra good quality of cheese.

The Dominion License Commissioners have done one good turn in refusing to grant a license to the hotel of this place. We do not require any liquor here, and it was becoming a terrible nuisance. We suppose the Crook's Act Inspector would have shut the place up any way.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "20 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1883.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1883. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 16, 1885.

An Explanation.

In fixing the responsibility of the present disastrous rising in the North-West, the Tory organs in their insane desire to make a point against a Reform Administration have conceded a point which will materially assist in determining the question. They assert that the amnesty granted to Reil in 1875, made it possible for Reil to incite the present trouble. In this they are no doubt correct. If Reil had at that time been hanged he could not have been on hand as at present to stir up rebellion.

Let us look at the facts in relation to the amnesty and show who is responsible for the the granting of the amnesty to Riel and Lepine. Documentry evidence is in existence in the archives of the Canadian Parliament, distinctly showing that Sir George Cartier, as Minister of Justice, had given to certain persons of prominence and influence in the North-West, particularly Archbishop Tache, Father Ritchot, Hon. Mr. Girard and Hon. Mr. Royal, the most positive assurances that a complete amnesty in respect of all offences committed by anybody during the rising of 1870 would be granted. This assurance Archbishop Tache believed, and impressing this belief on the people of the North-West led to the Dominion getting peaceful possession of the Territory. It is also capable of undoubted proof that Lieut.-Governor Archibald assured Riel and Lepine that if they would assist in repelling an imminent invasion of the Fenians, they would be the subjects of "most favorable consideration." In proof of this, the Lieut.-Governor accepted the services of a corps of Halfbreeds, and in an interview with Riel and Lepine shook hands with them and received them as the leaders and defenders of the Province. It is as true as the Gospel that subsequently to this Sir John Macdonald, in proof of the promised amnesty, paid Riel, through Archbishop Tache, a large sum of money—between $3,000 and $4,000—to induce him to take refuge in the United States. And Riel went. Not one of the above facts, which all point to a distinct effort and deliberate intention on the part of Sir John's Government to secure the escape of Riel and his confederates from justice, is incapable of categorical proof. This was all during the tenure of power by Sir John Macdonald, so that when Mr. Mackenzie came into power he did so with his hands tied by the official acts and assurances of his predecessors, as far as dealing with Riel was concerned. Indeed no less an authority than Lord Carnarvon, in view of the facts above advanced, held that it was not within the competence of the Canadian Government to carry out the death sentence on Lepine. In his case, the Governor-General dispensed with the advice of his ministers and sentenced him to two years imprisonment and forfeiture of political rights. The same would have been done with Riel, in view of Sir John Macdonald's action, had he not been a fugitive from justice, so that the five years outlawry declared by the Crown as the condition of indemnity, was really a heavier punishment than would have been inflicted on him had he given himself up as Lepine did.

The amnesty granted by the Mackenzie Government was thus not given on the motion of the Government, but directly in consequence of the dealings of Sir John Macdonald and Sir George Cartier with Riel. One can admire the superlative cheek with which the organs of incompetency can turn round and condemn the Mackenzie Government.

The visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Ireland has been a very pleasant one. They have enjoyed a delightful trip and have been warmly received everywhere. The Prince should be shown the squalid poverty, the abject misery that lie behind. Let him examine the terrible depths of misery to which the Irish peasant has been sunk—depths of misery which the late General Gordon said could not be equalled even among the teeming millions of China. From him the Irish people can hope for an amelioration of their misery sooner than from the hopeless inanities of dynamite scares. The Prince of Wales is capable of seeing this necessity and of changing public opinion and policy in England so that Ireland's happiness shall be more thought of in England.

The Afghan War.

Now that hostilities have actually commenced between Russia and Afghanistan, it is well to consider briefly the cause of the outbreak, which is likely to propel the two great powers of England and Russia into open and deadly opposition.

For a long time past Russia has been pressing on towards Herat. To open the way to this fortress is to surrender to the invader the key of the citadel to India. Lying to the north of Afghanistan is a certain debateable territory claimed by both the Russians and Afghans. No doubt the exact frontier of the latter country is uncertain. In 1872 it was defined in a general way by Earl Granville. But the Russians have forcibly taken possession of this debatable country and have come close upon the ancient and independent realm of Afghanistan. Nay, they have endeavored to occupy Pendjeh, which is only one hundred miles from Herat. Here, indeed, hostilities have actually broken out between the rival forces. Now, the possession of Pendjeh is essential to the preservation of the Ameer's hold on the roads leading to Herat. Suppose we grant it lies within debatable territory—a sort of no-man's-land. Let it be remembered that commissioners have been on the spot for months, to discuss the whole question, and indeed are only waiting the promised arrival of their Russian colleagues. As yet Russia has done nothing in the direction of peace or for an equitable settlement of the boundary. She has certainly made fair promises, but all the while she has pushed onwards with an army, and has 65,000 men within a few day's march of the Afghan frontier, and has, at last, attacked the Afghans near Pendjeh. She has appropriated by force the very places in dispute. It is clear she does not desire to have a definite line drawn between her possessions and those of England's ally. What she wants is a good strategical position from which to advance to the conquest of Herat. And if this cannot be obtained by strategy, her argument is, we will try force.

Now, as we have said, the possession of Herat is of immense importance to England and to India. The natural bulwark of India to the north and west is the huge and rugged mountains of the Hindu Kush. Let this obstacle be surmounted and Herat reached and any invader would be in the heart of a great mountain plateau. From that point an easy road runs to Candahar, and from thence, Cabul on the north, or Quettah on the south, can be reached with comparative ease. Having secured Herat, the first natural line of defence to England's possessions in India is absolutely mastered. Now, to command the roads leading to Herat is the very object the Russians have in view at present.

Undoubtedly the whole past conduct of Russia is indefensible. She has, as we say, seized the debatable territory by force. She has, though admittedly willing to have the conflicting claims settled by a commission, refused to take one step to further this object. She refuses to give up the territory in dispute or to recall her troops, and now, to give the crowning touch, she has actually attacked the Afghan armies, in the face of the strong opposition of England to all her movements. The collision feared for such a length of time has actually taken place. Should the Afghans invoke our promised aid, the two great nations will be at war.

Russia, it is plain, has thrown down the glove. England must take it up unless Gen. Komaroff, who attacked Pendjeh, is recalled and the Russians immediately retire from Afghanistan. Nothing save war will repair the mischief already done. So far as our nation is concerned, in mere self-defence, we undertake it. It would appear as almost incredible, however, that Russia should wish to precipitate a quarrel on such indefensible grounds. But we believe the matter has now gone too far for negotiations to settle it, and from the preparations going on so actively in both countries, we should not be surprised if war was declared before these lines appear in print. We are not surprised at Mr. Gladstone's anxiety to secure a peaceful solution of the problem which the possession of India has forced upon the empire. No one knows better than he that a war with Russia, even if successful, means a great sacrifice of British life and British resources. Once the conflict is begun there is no guarantee that the whole Eastern question may not have to be opened up and the war of races be extended to Turkey, to Austria, to Italy, to Germany, and perhaps to France. Mr. Gladstone is to be commended rather than condemned for his great attempts to prevent what would undoubtedly be a bloody war. It is to be hoped that his efforts may yet prove successful.

A Tory Backhander.

The defeat of the Conservative candidate, Belleau, by a majority of 400 in a Conservative constituency, Levis, P. Q., which he carried by a majority of 800 two years ago, is an event which the Tory organs will find it difficult to explain away. It is true that Belleau had the Liberal support in the former contest, but that does not account for a Liberal gaining a seat which ex-Speaker Blanchet had no difficulty in holding against all comers.

Editorial Notes.

What the North-West requires is that the bad officials, from Dewdney to the Indian instructors be cleared out. Then give the natives right and justice.

Hamilton Times:—Gum Swamp Anderson and Captain Kirwan, two of the notorious Muskoka bribery brigade, have been attached to the staff of General Middleton in the North-west. No department of the public service is safe from the presence of the meanest of Sir John Macdonald's creatures.

Mr. Samuel Livingstone, of New Brunswick, now of Calgary, a good Conservative, when presiding at a meeting of the Farmers' Union Settlers of that district, is reported to have said: "If our demands are not agreed to we shall 'get behind our Winchesters.' Riel and his half-breeds never used stronger language. There is a wide spread sympathy throughout the whole Northwest with the half-breeds.

Referring to the attempt to "buy out" the Mowat Government, the Bobcaygeon Independent says:—"It has been a disgrace to the people—a deep dyed blot upon the fair fame of the Province. * * The Brigade was charged with a crime that, if proved, should have tabooed them from the society of men, and expatriated them from any country where honor was not entirely lost.

Montreal Times:—"In their efforts to divert attention from the real authors of the rebellion, the conservative organs charge that the Reform party incited the half-breeds to rebel, and furnished them with arms. A more atrocious, cowardly and false charge was never hurled against any man or party of men. * * * The Reformers comprise the most loyal, intelligent, patriotic, and wealthy men of the Dominion. * * * They have, man for man, perhaps a greater stake in the country than the Conservatives.

Now that the rebellion has broken out in the Northwest, the government is making somewhat of a mess of the matter. After persistently ignoring the rights of the half-breeds for months, when the latter show by armed resistance to authority that they are in earnest. The government extend both hands to effect a reconciliation. In one is a large armed force, in the other a commission impowered to grant their demands. One of these modes is a mistake, at this time. Is it proposed to first treat with the half-breeds and grant them their rights and then shoot them, or first shoot them and then consider their demands?

The defeat of Mr. Kerr in West Northumberland is not now so inexplicable as it seemed to be a few days ago. The return of Mr. Guillett was at first regarded as an endorsation of the government's policy, but the questions of the day appear to have had very little to do with it. The issue upon which most attention centred was, says the Whig, the temperance one. Mr. Guillett (Tory) was the candidate of the liquor men; Mr. Kerr (Reformer) championed the Scott Act, and reasonably hoped for the support of all its supporters. Did he get it? Nay, he was as badly sold as Mr. Allison was in Lennox not so long before. Mr. Guillett got the solid vote of the anti-Scotts, Grit and Tory, and he got the votes of about all the Tory temperance men, who, as usual, put politics before principles. Such treatment is manifestly unfair, and Mr. Kerr, an ardent Scott man, will have occasion to remember it. Such treatment, too, will do more to make the public men distrust the professed temperance people than anything that could possibly occur. For it there can be no apology.

A correspondent with General Middleton, Commander-in-Chief, writes that the half-breeds in the Qu'Appelle district are behaving well, considering the grievances they labour under and the neglect of the government to give them any redress. As long ago as last summer, when Sir Hector Langevin visited the Northwest, the grievances of the half-breeds of the Qu'Appelle District were presenseented to Sir Hector plainly and unmistakably by Mr. Jackson, a member of the Northwest Council. The half-breeds here did not participate in the half-breed allotment of lands as in Manitoba, and in justice they are entitled to their 160 acres free as was granted in the Province of Manitoba. Many have occupied their present holdings four or five years, and have not received the slightest assurance whether or not their claims will be recognized. The government has long been aware of the existence of these grievances, yet not the first step has been taken in the way of doing justice. The Qu'Appelle settlers have been pacified by the efforts of Mr. Jackson, and have, so far, submitted to the injustice at the hands of the government, but the Saskatchewan breeds have discarded the virtue patience and taken the law into their hands. They honestly think they are justified in so doing, and, in fact, the manner in which they have been treated would not have been submitted to in any county in Ontario for a fortnight.

Hall, Innes & Co's. Millinery Show Rooms are now open. Ladies should not fail to pay a visit, and inspect the finest display in Peterborough.

The West Northumberland Election.

Referring to the result of the contest in West Northumberland, the Port Hope Guide, after denouncing the unblushing corruption used to secure the return of the Conservative candidate, says:—"One of the causes that led to the defeat of Mr. Kerr, was his pronounced attitude on the temperance question. The Scott Act Association met a few days before the nomination, prepared a series of questions to present to each candidate, and pledged the support of the Association, and, as far as they could the support of the temperance electors of the riding to the candidate who would answer the questions in a satisfactory manner. The questions were placed in the hands of Messrs. Guillet and Kerr on nomination day. Mr. Guillet refused to entertain them at all. Mr. Kerr came forward and manfully adopted every plank in the Scott Act Association platform. What was the result? Mr. Kerr weaned some of his most active friends from his side, and the Scott Act Association, including its officers, did not carry out its pledge by supporting him. Mr. Kerr's attitude on the temperance question also incensed the liquor dealers against his candidature, and they banded together, almost unanimously, as they never did before, to secure his defeat. The base action of the Tory leaders of the Scott Act Association in West Northumberland in this particular, will do more to impair the reputation of the temperance party in this locality than anything else that could have been done; and we trust it will prove a warning to Reform politicians throughout the country. The temperance sentiment of this province has been largely created by Reform leaders and journalists, and they can now understand just how much support they can expect from the temperance Tory wire-pullers of the local associations. Crossen's car works were again made to do duty as a Tory electioneering dodge. Co-incident with the issue of the writ, Crossen secured a car contract from the C. P. R., and the number of employees in the works were suddenly raised from eighty to one hundred and sixty-six. In the face of such influences is it a matter of surprise that the Government candidate was re-elected? Mr. Kerr made a gallant fight. He was defeated while fighting for principles—political and temperance—that he has never hesitated to defend.

Grip's leading cartoon last week is a very good one. It represents Reil and Pi-a-pot on Indian ponies, with their repeating rifles, galloping off, after setting fire to and pillaging one of the villages of the Far West. In the distance is "Old To-morrow" (the title bestowed upon Sir John by Pi-a-pot) holding out a document which is supposed to be the Royal Commission appointed to adjudicate upon their grievances. But, "Too late!" is their exclamation, which the blood already shed proves to be too true.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE.

A Motion of Censure on the Dominion Government.

Hon. Mr. Turcotte Independent member of the Quebec Assembly for Three Rivers, gave notice that he would move on Monday for an address to the Lieutenant-Governor, representing that the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Quebec desires to solemnly assert its loyalty towards the person of Her Majesty the Queen, that this House has learned with deep regret the unfortunate events which have occurred in the North-west, and takes the first occasion afforded it to declare that it cannot approve of the subjects of Her Majesty attempting to settle by force of arms and bloodshed difficulties of a simple administration; that this House was proud to see, a few days ago, volunteer soldiers of the Province of Quebec rallying around the colors and marching to battle to defend the integrity of our liberties and our constitutional authorities; that this House, while disapproving, as it has, of the rising which has broken out in the Northwest, cannot but believe that it has been brought about by carelessness and neglect in settling certain claims which are perfectly equitable and which have been pending for a certain number of years, and it is inclined to think that, taking into consideration the character of the half-breeds, this rising is more a result of momentary despair than of conscious and premeditated disloyalty; that this House is convinced that had it not been for the evident neglect and incapacity of the Federal authorities this insurrection would not have occurred, and that this Province would not have been called upon to send its children to fight with their fellow-citizens, driven to bay by a too long continued season of vexation and denials of justice; that this meeting constitutionally represents the Province of Quebec and has an incontestable right to express its opinion when its sons are called to shed their blood in a cause the justice whereof is, to say the least, a matter of discussion; that without in any way desiring to encroach upon the attributes of the Federal Parliament, this House is also of the opinion that it should complain, in the name of the families whose sons are serving under the colors, of the insufficient equipment and arms supplied to the officers and soldiers, and of the want of precaution taken to secure their comfort and to protect their lives both during the journey and while in the field; that this House, while again asserting its loyalty to the Crown, deeply regrets the troubles in the Northwest, and its members, as citizens, solemnly protest against the Federal Government, which they hold responsible for the blood which has been shed, and in particular for the culpable neglect of the Minister of the Interior, who has, so to say, driven the half-breeds to take up arms; and again, the incapacity of Minister of Militia, which seriously exposes the lives of our volunteer soldiers; that this House prays the Lieutenant-Governor to be pleased to consider the advisibility of recommending the voting of a sum of money to assist the families of our volunteer soldiers who have been placed under arms, and to cause a copy of this address to be forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Dominion.

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

THE SCOTT ACT IN DUMMER.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—A well attended meeting for the purpose of organizing for the submission of the Scott Act was held in the Town Hall, Warsaw, on the 16th March last, at which Warren Taylor was appointed chairman of the township association; Thos. Campbell, secretary, and Sidney Payne, treasurer. A central committee of 27 was appointed for the township; those members from each polling sub-division to form also a committee for their own division, with power to add to their numbers.

Samuel S. Spence was appointed to obtain signatures to the petition for sub-division 1 and 2. Alexander Watts, for 3, and W. Darling, for 4; to have canvas completed for a committee meeting to be held on April 6th, 1885.

Committee met on above date and discussed matters. Canvassers returned the petition sheets to the secretary. They obtained 40 per cent of all the names on the list, including non-residents and duplicates, and 48 per cent of the resident vote. A much larger percentage would have been obtained, if all those entitled to sign had been home, and the roads had been such that all could have been called on.

A public meeting was held the same evening in the commodious Presbyterian church, Warsaw. Mr. James Robb was appointed chairman, and in a few earnest remarks asked those present, among which were a large number of ladies, to do all they could to procure the passage of the Act. He then called upon Rev. W. W. Lloyd to address the meeting.

Mr. Lloyd gave statistics and opinions of high authority, showing that liquor was in no real sense either drink or food that strengthened and sustained the body or mind; that its influence was deleterious to the best interests of mankind; and concluded by appealing to the audience to protect the home and the young from the baneful influence of the traffic.

Rev. P. Fleming was the next speaker. He gave figures showing the enormous amount spent for intoxicating liquors; that 75 per cent of the crime, and 90 per cent of the pauperism was due to its use; that we ought, even at a sacrifice, to try to abate the evil, and asked the votes and influence of those present for the Scott Act.

Mr. Watts rather humorously answered the objections of some, to whom he applied to sign the petition; he gave some facts relating to the amount spent for liquor in Peterborough county; and said all engaged in the production and sale of liquor, from the man who raised the barley, to the man who retailed the liquor over the bar, might make money, but those who drank the liquor had to foot the bill.

Judging from the plaudits of the audience, that showed they were in full sympathy with the speakers; and from the hearty manner the matter has been taken hold of from the outset, it is safe to predict a good majority for the Scott Act in Dummer.

OBSERVER.

THE SCOTT ACT.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—If you can find room in your valuable journal for the enclosed article, an extract from the Stratford Beacon of April 10th, 1885, you will oblige,

Yours truly,

A CONSTANT READER.

"HIGH LICENSES.

"Although local option, as the measure which answers to the Scott Act in Canada is called across the lines, has been in operation for some time in parts of different States of the Union, the result has not justified the expectations of its promoters, nor done away with the sale and consumption of liquor. A much more successful measure, because founded on more common sense principles, is the Harper high license law, which has been on trial in Illinois long enough to give a fair idea of the working in a large and populous State. That law, passed in 1883, as we learn from the N. Y. Sun, fixes the minimum license fee for dram shops at $500, and for malt liquors at $150 only in cities towns and villages, and authorizes county boards to grant licenses on like terms upon petition of the legal voters of any town or precinct.

"Reports have recently been obtained from half the counties in the State. In Cook county, in which Chicago is situated, the liquor men are most able to prevent the execution of the law, and yet even there the number of saloons has been diminished by from 500 to 1,000, and the city revenue has been increased by more than a million dollars. In 19 other cities and towns there were, before the enforcement of high license, 733 saloons, yielding a revenue of $93,865. There are now in these places only 668 saloons, but the revenue has been increased to $263,000.

"The high license fee has had the effect to shut up the low groggeries in towns and their suburbs, which were always the resorts of vile characters, and the consequence is less crime and less drunkenness. The number of arrests has fallen off and drunkenness has decreased in the larger cities by thirty per cent. There is also an improvement in the quality of the men who keep the saloons, for the business has grown to be more decent and respectable, so that even those who sell liquor acknowledge that the law is working beneficently.

"The report from Cairo is that 'disorderly conduct and arrests have decreased not less than fifty per cent.;' from Quincy, that 'it has materially lessened the police court cases for drunkenness;' from Springfield, that 'the number of arrests has diminished over fifteen per cent., and the increase in the degree of deference paid by saloon keepers to public sentiment and legal authority is fully as distinct as the betterment in other respects;' from Joliet, where the license is placed at $1,000, that respectable liquor dealers and the police are enforcing the law, which has vastly improved the order of the town. From the rural counties equally favorable reports are sent.

"No other method of regulating the liquor traffic and diminishing the evils caused by it has been so effective as high license. The taxes of the communities are lessened and their expenses for maintaining public order are decreased. The liquor business gets into the hands of better men, whose interests induce them to assist in enforcing the laws, and both those who drink and those who refrain are better served and protected."

Fermentation of Baker's Dough.

It has hitherto been supposed that the fermentation of bread dough set up by sour leaven, or beer yeast, was a real alcoholic fermentation. We learn from a paper in Comptes Rendus, that G. Chicandard has investigated the subject microscopically. He found that the Saccharomyces cerevisiæ put into the dough very soon disappeared and numerous microbes, which he took for bacteria, made their appearance. These bacteria multiplied with great rapidity on the yeast in dough, and they can be be cultivated in water containing yeast. Hence he concludes that the beer yeast favored the growth of these microbes. An analysis of the gases evolved during fermentation proved the presence of 70 per cent of carbonic acid, while the rest consisted of hydrogen and nitrogen. The composition of these gases is similar to those formed by the putrefaction of albumen.

From this it would appear that the fermentation of bread does not consist in liquefying the starch by alcoholic fermentation, but in the conversion of one portion of the insoluble albumen of the gluten first into soluble albumen and then into peptone. Starch is first decomposed by heat in the process of baking, forming soluble starch and some dextrine. The cause of the fermentation is, however, a bacterium.

MALADIES MULTIPLY ONE ANOTHER. A simple fit of indigestion may—especially if the constitution is not naturally vigorous—throw the entire mechanism of the liver and bowels out of gear. Sick headache follows, poisoning of the blood by bile ensues, and there is grave and serious disturbance of the entire system. Check the threatened danger at the outset with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, the medicine that drives every impurity from the blood.

Nothing to Do.

Boarding-house life is responsible for a great deal of illness among women. I was recently brought in contact with a young couple whom I will call Smith. The wife spends her time doing fancy work, reading novels, and making calls. The husband is a clerk, on a salary of $1,200 a year. They live up to every cent, with, apparently, no thought of the future. Mrs. Smith said once that she supposed she spent over a hundred dollars a year in worsteds, patterns, fancy braids, gimps, and the like. And she buys all her underclothes ready-made, while a dressmaker is employed to make her dresses. She has a sewing-machine, which was a wedding present from a sensible uncle, but she never uses it.—She has a piano, but can play only the most simple tunes; and she has a box of oil-paints, and a dozen or more brushes, but she has painted only a few shells and a small panel.

She is irretrievably lazy, and calls herself delicate. She never gets up out of bed until half-past eight in the morning, and lies on the sofa certainly half of every day. If a visitor comes in, she monopolizes the conversation, and invariably manages to lead it to the subject of physical ills. Her personal ailments is a subject of which she never tires. I believe that in the few weeks I spent at that hotel with her, I heard the history of every pain and ache which had ever visited her body or her imagination since childhood. Not an ache could be mentioned by any one, that she had not had, only in a more aggravated form.

When her husband comes home, her method of entertaining him is to describe at length every particular pain she imagines she has felt during the day. He loves her now, and is very attentive and kind; but how much longer will his patience endure? How much longer will he submit quietly to hearing the tedious details of her headaches, backaches, neuralgia, sideaches, rheumatism, etc.? Even now he sometimes looks a little bored and weary, as she begins the same old plaint as soon as he enters the room. He knows quite well—for he is a man of good common sense—that, for the most part, it is only in her imagination that she suffers. She forgets all her aches and pains very quickly, if there is any project for amusement on foot.

As it is, she is a burden to herself and a bore to her acquaintances. Of real friends she has none. How can such a woman gain affection and esteem?—Pittsburg Sunday Traveler.

If you want to find a good logician, go to your tailor. The other day one of these fractions of the human family was overheard to remark: "I never ask a gentleman for money." "But suppose he doesn't pay you?" "Well, if he doesn't pay me within a reasonable time, I conclude he is 'not' a gentleman—and then I ask him."

A newly-married couple from "Wagback' were in the city yesterday, and, of course, found an oyster saloon the first thing. "How do you want them, on the half-shell?" the waiter asked the groom. "Nah-sir-ee! thar's no half-shell business with this weddin' trip: give 'em to us on the whole shell."—Rochester Post-Dispatch.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1867 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied you. CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GERSHEY."

150 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE PRINCESS DE MELANO.

The next day dawned dull and gloomy. It was a letter from Lord Tremayne, announcing his arrival that evening. The colored maid took at Ethel. When she did she saw she was very pale.

When breakfast was over, Lord Breamore, as usual, went to the study, Ethel to bear the unwelcome news to Pauline, and Mrs. Devime and Florence to their own room to wait.

About noon there came up the Grey Towers avenue an elderly man in a shabby brown coat, and with a commonplace manner-of-fact face, who, reaching the house, asked to see Lord Breamore on particular business.

It was the sexton of the church in Warminham.

Being ushered in he stood silent, turning his hat in his brown hands.

"Well, my man, what do you want with me?" enquired Lord Breamore, who was ever condescending to his inferiors.

"I be, my lord, the sexton of St. Thomas's, Warminham."

"Really. How am I concerned in that, my man?"

"That's what I want to know, my lord. P'raps I'm mistaken. Then I hope you'll forgive me, but I felt it my dooty to tell you, in case you didn't know already."

"Go on."

"Well, my lord, at our church, over two years ago now, a marriage by special license took place. The lady's name was Miss Ethel Breamore."

"What!" ejaculated Lord Breamore. "Fellow, what do you mean? You do not dare ——"

"One instant, please, my lord. I didn't notice the marriage more'n others; but a few days ago I happened to be in this neighborhood here, and—and I saw the same young lady. I asks who she is, and they tells me Miss Ethel Breamore, who's about to marry a great lord from Lunnun.

"It took me all aback like. Then I thought p'raps it was all right, or that I'd made a mistake.

"But the circumstance worrited me, for the more I thought on it—the special license—the quiet marriage for a great lady like she—the more I couldn't help expecting summut might be wrong.

"So, my lord, as it's best to be on the safe side, I made up my mind you wouldn't think it impertinent if I came and showed you this."

Advancing he placed a copy of the marriage-certificate on the table.

Lord Breamore had sat rigid, his features immovable.

He had made no attempt to interrupt. Now mechanically he took the paper and read it.

Then he said quietly:

"You have done quite right. I see you are a wise man, and can be discreet. This is for your trouble. You can return to Warminham at once. You understand?"

"Yes, my lord," replied the sexton. "Thank you, my lord."

And, gathering up the five sovereigns, bowing low, he withdrew.

Lord Breamore, his expression growing sterner, darker, going to the window, watched the sexton down the avenue; then he took two or three turns in the room, afterwards rang the bell.

"Ask Mrs. Devime to favor me by coming here for a few minutes," he said to the footman.

"Yes, my lord."

"He has been," murmured Mrs. Devime, on receiving the message; "that unhappy girl!"

Flo, too, was tremulous. She might have felt pity, but for the knowledge that Lord Tremayne would be there that day.

"You must go, mamma," she said.

Mrs. Devime obeyed, but reluctantly.

"What is it, Arthur?" she asked on entering. "I—I hope nothing is the matter."

He placed a seat for her in silence, then handing the certificate, merely said:

"Read that."

Mrs. Devime did so, and gave a cry.

"Oh, Arthur, it is not true. It cannot be."

"It is true," he retorted in hard tones. "I have proof."

"You, Arthur!"

"Yes. Her reluctance to marriage. Her knowledge of Warminham. Still, she must confess it with her own lips. I will send for her."

Lord Breamore rang the bell.

"Bid Miss Breamore come here," he said.

"Yes, my lord."

In less than three minutes, Ethel entered.

"You want me, papa?" she said.

"Yes, to deny that. Can you?"

He put the paper in her hands.

The poor girl glanced at it, uttered a piteous cry, fell on her knees, covered her face with her hands, and ejaculated:

"Mercy, papa! Pardon!"

"It is true!" said Lord Breamore in stern anger.

"It is."

"Great Heaven!" he cried, his fury breaking forth. "And you are my daughter! This—this man is your husband?"

"Yes," sobbed Ethel, weeping almost hysterically.

"Who—what is he?—this Paolo Mareschi? Speak! Confess! Your dancing or singing master?" he demanded scornfully. "What is the man whom you have honored by making my son-in-law? Answer, do you hear?"

Terrified, despairing, poor Ethel allowed the truth to be drawn from her, even to the existence of little Paul.

Lord Breamore's passion was almost beyond control.

For a space there was silence, then hoarsely he spoke.

"And you—you had sunk so low that you would have disgraced Lord Tremayne as you have me?"

"No, no, papa. I have not accepted him—I never would."

"You say that because you have been detected, prevented. Henceforth you are no daughter of mine. Rise, go to your room, and remain there until I have made arrangements for your removal from this roof, which you have disgraced."

"Papa, papa!" and she tried to cling to his knees.

Mrs. Devime, pitying, went to her, but Ethel, her manner changing, with flashing eyes shrank away.

"Do not touch me. Though you may not be to blame," she exclaimed, "it is to your daughter I owe all this. She has been a spy—a detective upon me. A snake in the grass that at last has stung."

"Ethel!" ejaculated Mrs. Devime.

"It is true—you know it. Oh, papa, send me away if you will, but do not hate me."

While this scene was transpiring, a guest had arrived.

"Stay," he said, as he was being conducted to the drawing-room, "where is Lord Breamore and his daughter?"

The footman answered.

"Announce me," and the guest placed a sovereign in the servant's hand.

The footman hesitated, remembered he was to leave the following day, and opening the study-door announced:

"The Prince de Melano!"

At the unexpected intrusion the three turned.

Then, as the dark foreign guest entered, Ethel sprang up with a great cry, ran forward, and falling in the arms extended to receive her, exclaimed:

"Paolo—Paolo—my husband! Thank Heaven, not dead—alive!"

"Ethel, my wife," answered Paolo Mareschi, fondly bending over her, while Lord Breamore and Mrs. Devime gazed stunned, bewildered.

The former was the first to recover himself. Advancing haughtily he said:

"Prince de Melano, or Signor Mareschi, for I am unaware how to address you, I demand an explanation."

"My lord, I am here to give it, and with the hope to receive your forgiveness for what I have done. I have been wrong, but clear my history. As to my name, I have both—one by birth, the other by inheritance."

"Are you then related to Prince Andrea de Melano?"

"I am my uncle's heir. My story is a painful one; let me tell it to you."

Lord Breamore looked at the speaker's handsome features, the dignity of his bearing, and remembered that the principality was no mean one.

Paolo, taking a seat near Ethel's whose hand he would not relinquish, began:

"My lord, my mother was an English lady and a Protestant. When of an age to reflect, I chose her religion, which, with my adoption of the cause of liberty, bitterly incensed my uncle, an Ultramontane, who, I being his heir, had adopted me.

"He reasoned, expostulated, for his desire was that I should return to the Church of Rome. In fact, he was a bigot, a fanatic, an ascetic. I refused, and he cast me off, angry furious that at his death I must still succeed despite him.

"Comparatively penniless, feeling my life was in danger in Rome, I went to Paris, and there met Miss Breamore. I loved her. Aware of what my position might be—that I was her equal—I wooed and won. Yet I had already joined the Garibaldian party, and I was loth to let my history be known.

"When, however, carried away by love and sorrow at parting, I persuaded your daughter to a secret union, for which, my lord, I know I was to blame, I placed in her hand a packet containing my history, to show her and you that, did I fall, she had made no mésalliance by her marriage with Paolo Mareschi."

"Paolo," murmured Ethel, "the packet was lost that same day, I never knew. But how is it you were said to be dead?"

"Through base treachery and bigotry, often such. I fell, truly, in fight, and badly wounded. When I recovered. I was in a solitary monastery in the Apennines. My uncle's emissaries had secretly carried me off the field.

"I was a prisoner, refused all communication with the outer world, my only chance of liberty being to renounce my religion and devote my services and wealth to the Vatican.

"I refused, and might still have been a prisoner but for the sudden death of my uncle, when my existence was discovered by a letter among his papers.

"My friends hastened to release me, and the first use I made of liberty was to fly to England to claim my wife. My lord, she is your daughter. Will you give her to me?"

Lord Breamore did not hesitate.

In Paolo Mareschi, the supposed Italian master, he knew he saw one who in rank and wealth took precedence of even the earl.

"It is late, prince, to ask for what you have already taken," he said with a cold smile. "But as you have shown that circumstances were not under your control, I give her to you, congratulating her and you."

"My Ethel—my queen!"

And the prince drew his now happy blushing wife to his bosom.

"Ah, Paolo," she whispered, "when you called me queen, how little I guessed I was a princess!"

A pang of envy shot through Florence Devime's heart when she heard of Ethel's exalted position; but she consoled herself by the knowledge that Lord Tremayne was free.

This, however, was much damped by finding that Lord Tremayne, on his arrival, recognized the prince as an old friend, and overcoming his sorrow at losing Ethel, accepted Paolo's invitation to accompany him and the Princess de Melano, with their son and heir under the care of the delighted, faithful Pauline, to Italy.

"Still," reflected Florence, "he will come back next season."

But two seasons elapsed, and he did not.

Then one morning, in the Morning Post, Florence read of the marriage of Lord Tremayne with Lady Editha Lambourne, at the British Embassy, Rome.

Among the witnesses present were the Prince and Princess de Melano.

Florence Devime turned pale to the lips. She had schemed, spied, to shoot her arrow only for the barb to pierce herself.

A Smart Young Man.

The would-be smart young man of the village who obtains a position connected in some way with the railroad say freight agent, invariably puts on lots of airs and makes himself obnoxious to sensible people. We have one of these chaps in our town. He parts his thin, yellow hair in the middle, wears celluloid collars and cuffs, says "certs" for certainly, and wears much jewelry of little or no value. A few days ago an agent for patents came along with a new churn and put it on exhibition on the sidewalk in front of the principal hotel. Yesterday, while several gentlemen were noticing its operations, our heavy freight-agent came strutting down the street with his book under his arm, and, interrupting the remarks of the patent-right man, exclaimed in an affected tone of suprise: "Hullo what have we got here? By Jove will the darned thing explode?" Then, pretending to be frightened, he jumped to the rear of a by-stander and peered at the machine over his shoulder. The agent was annoyed, as was everybody else in the vicinity, and turning his attention to the "Smart Aleck," mildly said: "My son, this machine will not explode, but I would kindly advise you to keep away from it. It contains milk, and, naturally partaking of the nature of the cow, it always kicks whenever a strange calf comes about.—Parmenas Mix in N. Y. Mercury.

Making Him Happy.

A dumpy, disconsolate-looking small boy was leaning against the wall at the corner of Woodward avenue and Congress street, when along came a tall, raw-boned stranger with about four drinks in him, and said:

"Bu-bubby, do you feel bad?"

"Yes."

"Hain't you got nom-money for Chrisslemas?"

"No."

"Jus' like me! I'm travelling on my last fifteen cents 'smorning, and it'll be all gone 'forenoon. Going to h-hang up your stocking?"

"No."

"Neither 'm I. I haven't got anybody to love me an' put toys in my stocking. Say, do you want a lizzie toy mule in your stocking?"

"Yes."

"So do I, but I won't get one. Tuff to be poor—tuffest kin' o' tuff. Say, bub?"

"What."

"There ain't no hog about me. I'm the bizzest hearted man in the world. I'll make you happy if I have to sleep in the middle of the road. Here, take that, and this, and this—yes, take it along and be happy."

And he handed out a pint bottle half full of gin, a plug of tobacco and a dime song-book, and as the bewildered boy stood holding them in his hands the donor continued:

"That all—that all but a saucher-dock and a pistol, and I'll keep them to make some other boy remember Chrisslemas. Run along, sonny—run home and be happy!"

Golden weddings seem to be numerous now all over the United States. You must hurry up and have one, if you wish to be in style.—Lowell Citizen.

Features of the Franchise Bill.

The following are the main features of the Franchise Bill which by the sanction of the Lieut.-Governor became law on Monday, March 30th. The following persons have the right to vote at parliamentary elections:

1. Owners, tenants and occupants of houses in cities which are assessed to the value of $200 (instead of $400, as now) will have a vote.

2. In villages and townships franchise will be $100, instead of $200 rating. In cases where there is joint ownership, if the land is of value to give each a vote if divided, each shall have a vote.

3. The income franchise is to be reduced from $400 to $300, and the right to vote shall not depend on payment of taxes.

4. All "wage earners" other than and in addition to those who have been hitherto on the rolls as income voters, shall be intitled to a vote if they are earning, in day wages or otherwise, $250 per annum as wages.

5. Every person in cities, and towns, villages, etc., who is a bonafide householder, shall have a vote, though the house be of the assessed value of less than $100; provided always that the "household" is a real separate dwelling, not part of a house nor rooms, but a house of tenement, separate and apart.

6. The "farmers' sons' franchise" is abolished as such, but is continued in a landholders' franchise which confers a vote on the sons of owners of 20 acres of land in counties, of land of $200 value in towns and villages, and of $400 value in cities. The sons or stepsons or grandsons of such persons resident with their parents in the electoral district for a year before the making up of the list shall have a vote if of age. The assessment roll is to be made complete so as to be the sole basis of the electoral machinery.

7. As to Indians, the law is to be as present, subject to the amendment made last session.

8. In such places in Algoma, North Victoria, East Peterborough, North Hastings, North Renfrew, South Renfrew, Muskoka, and Parry Sound, as have no assessment roll that is in the unorganized districts, a resident of six months previous to the election, or an ownership of real estate of $200 value in this electoral district, is required to entitle a person to vote.

C. P. R. Proposals.

(From the Montreal Herald.)

"If we are not mistaken—and we have no reason to believe that we have been misinformed—the scheme to be submitted to the House provides for the entire relinquishment of the Government lien on the railway and its branches. The company will then issue $35,000,000 of bonds, $15,000,000 of which will be transferred to the Government, which, in return, is to lend the company a further sum of $5,000,000, with which to complete the work, and, as far as possible, equip it. As soon as can be how long no one knows the company is to repay the sum of $5,000,000, just mentioned, when it is to receive back lands to that amount, the remaining $10,000,000 bonds being redeemable by the company on a payment, sooner or later, of $5,000,000 more at, in fact, fifty cents on the dollar. There is no provision for interest, and this ten million dollars is all the country will ever obtain in return for the thirty millions odd advanced last session, the five millions to be granted before the present session is prorogued, and all the special benefits given to and conferred upon this most rapacious and unsatisfiable enterprise that was ever brought into existence.

The Government will doubtless plead that all the company is receiving is the paltry five millions, and that this is the last time of asking. But this is not the case, for, in addition, the company is to have a clear discharge from all existing obligations, the Syndicate being thus placed in full and undisputed possession of a railway that will have cost the country over a hundred millions of dollars at the very lowest calculation, while the company, or rather, the members of the Syndicate, will, in addition, have obtained from time to time dividends out of capital upon their nominal stock far exceeding any trifling sums of money they may have embarked in the enterprise. This, the final phase of the scheme, is, we admit, scarcely as startling as some features of it that have been anticipated and described, but it is one which the members should pause before ratifying. In itself the proposal is a most dishonest one, and amounts to the consecration of a principle that ought under no conditions to be ratified. As honest men, let the directors and stockholders do what they have undertaken.

Literary Notes.

HARPERS MAGAZINE.

An article of very great importance to every farmer is promised for the May number of Harper's Magazine, on "Jersey Cattle in America," by Hark Comstock. Portraits are given from direct photographs, of a number of the most notable butter producing cows of this stock, one of which, "Alphea," owned Col. R. M. Hoe, produced under unforced tests over twenty-nine pounds of butter a week; while her granddaughter, "Kurotas," owned by Mr. A. B. Darling, produced seven hundred and seventy-eight pounds of butter in eleven months and five days. The writer, who is one of the best authorities on this subject, gives an interesting sketch of the means taken in the Channel Islands to keep the breed pure, the laws having for a hundred back excluded all foreign cattle except such were imported for meat, which had to be slaughtered at the port of arrival; and his remarks on the present state of the stock and its prices in this country are of practical value.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.

Godey's Lady's Book for May is a number of which the publishers may be proud. It opens with a very attractive steel plate frontispiece, representing a beautiful child with boots a quarter of vine leaves. The face is a charming study of juvenile beauty and brightness. The picture, which has been fitly named "Without a Cloud," adorns as an illustration to the story entitled "Lola." Christian Reid's two-part serial, "An Instrument of Superstition," opens in this number, and the winning little story of "Beauty's Child" is charming reading. "Under Gray Skies" is also concluded this month. Among the short stories are "Phantom," "A Slight Misunderstanding," and "Her Two Loves," which go to make up an interesting budget of light literature. All of the departments of Godey's Lady's Book are well conducted and comprehensive. It is proposed, if possible, to make Godey's Lady's Book still more attractive, and especially utilitarian so that it may meet still more the every-day wants of women in every station in life.

We have received copies of the first issue of the Fort William Echo, published at Fort William, by M. C. J. Stillwell. It is a well printed paper, and newsy sheet and deserves the hearty support of the people in that vicinity. We trust that it will be not only profitable to the publisher but a great benefit to Fort William.

Mr. John Clark, of Milkridge, Ont., declares it can, and that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the remedy that cured him. It is also a specific for all inflammation and pain. 16-2t

"Astonishing, isn't it, how things are taxed?" said Straddles. "Why, I hear lots of people talk about taxing their brains."

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are suited to every age. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take, and though mild and pleasant in action, are thorough and searching in effect. Their efficacy in all disorders of the stomach and bowels is certified to by eminent physicians, prominent clergymen, and many of our best citizens.

Truth is immortal. Lies are inventions, and the patents will expire. A lie never, from repetition, becomes truth.

The Secret Out.

The secret of success of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts upon the bowels, the liver, the kidneys, the skin and the blood; removing obstructions and imparting health and vigor.

Awkward Idiot—"Your train is quite long, Miss Lucy." Miss Lucy—"It will not be so long if you take two feet of it."

Mr. C. E. Higgins, Bentinville, writes: "A customer who tried a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery says it is the best thing he ever used; to quote his own words, 'It just seemed to touch the spot affected.' About a year ago he had an attack of bilious fever, and was afraid he was in for another, when I recommended this valuable medicine with such happy results."

An ounce of cabbage seeds contains from 8,000 to 10,000 seeds. These may be relied upon to produce one-quarter that number of plants.

Well to Remember.

A stitch in time saves nine. Serious results oft follow a neglect of constipated bowels and bad blood. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate and purify the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and the blood. Take it in time. 16-2t

There is no better time than now and during early May to cut back evergreen trees to induce a more compact growth.

A Good Test.

For over sixteen years Mr. M. Everest, of Dorset, has sold Norrett's Cough Syrup, and its sales are steadily increasing. It cures coughs, colds and all lung complaints; is pleasant to take and always reliable. 16-2t

Paper wheel spokes are coming into use. The paper pulp is forced into iron moulds under heavy pressure, where it dries and hardens.

Perfect soundness of body and mind is possible only with pure blood. Leading medical authorities of all civilized countries endorse Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best blood-purifying medicine in existence. It vastly increases the working and productive power of both hand and brain.

Waterloo News.

Walter Linton, of Waterloo, writes that Hagyard's Yellow Oil has done great good in his family, his wife being cured of Callous lumps that other medicines failed to remove, he also states that a neighbor was promptly relieved of rheumatism by the same remedy. 16-2t

We want all our readers who can afford to do so to plant roses in their door-yards this spring. The daughters of the house and their beaux will appreciate them if nobody else does.

Nervousness

May be entirely cured in a short time by using one of NORMAN'S KINETRIC BELTS, without any fear of injury. Try one and be convinced. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 16-4

Let us do our work in faith. It will take care of itself. We need not be troubled about it. All that is great or good will live. If we deserve good it will come to us.

A Great Mistake.

It is a great mistake to suppose that dyspepsia can't be cured, but must be endured, and life made gloomy and miserable thereby. Alexander Burns, of Cobourg, was cured after suffering fifteen years. Burdock Blood Bitters cured him. 16-2t

The electric light is pronounced by an English scientist, who claims to have exhaustively examined into the subject, the only illuminant by which the surrounding atmosphere is not vitiated.

After her grandmother had given her a good scolding, a little mischief was overheard to say to herself: "Somebody is cross in this room; 'taint me, and 'taint dolly, and 'taint kitty. I wonder who it is.

No Such Evidence

Can be offered for any other preparation as supports our claim that Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor is the best and safest corn cure remedy in the world. Dr. Considine, Port Dalhousie, writes:—"I can testify to its efficacy together with many others here." This is a universal opinion. Try Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, and avoid poisonous and cheap substitutes. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine.

METALLIC PAPER.

Metallic paper is a French invention, and upon it chromo-lithographs are rendered transparent by a coating, and backed with tin-foil. The effect is said to be very striking, and the possible applications of the invention are very numerous and useful.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES.

For Affections of the Lungs and Wasting Diseases.

Dr. J. SIMONAUD, New Orleans, La., says: "I can candidly declare Scott's Emulsion is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice. I affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we may consider it our most reliable agent. In a perfectly elegant and agreeable form."

NEVER GET ENOUGH.

"Young man," said a stern old professor to a student who had been charged with kissing one of his daughters—"Young man, don't get into the habit. You'll find that kissing is like eating soup with a fork." "How so, sir?" asked the student. "Because," answered the stern old professor, "you can't get enough of it."

An Important Discovery.

The most important Discovery is that which brings the most good to the greatest number. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds will prove this to all who give it a trial. Particulars free at the Drug Store. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Throat, Bronchial Troubles, and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, yield at once to its curative powers. If you doubt this, get a Trial Bottle Free, at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store.

A Small Leak

will sink a great ship; and what at first appears to be a trifling cough is apt to culminate in consumption if not properly attended to in time. For consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, and for all blood and skin diseases, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has no equal. By druggists.

THE BEST NAME.

The mother of a family consisting of two grown-up daughters, living in Gosfield, E. R., recently died, and when the undertaker came to perform his duties the father was asked the name of his wife. His reply was, "Mother." No other name could be remembered, and the daughters were equally ignorant, having never known their parent by any other name than "Mother."

NEW USE FOR GLASS.

Tuning forks and grindstones are now made of glass. Rails and sleepers are manufactured from the same transparent material. The new process is a simple one, and produces hard glass castings at a cost of $1.25 a hundred weight. If iron does not reform its oxydizing habit it may be replaced by this temperate and attractive rival.

Joy in Every Drop.

This may be truly said of Polson's NERVILINE, the greatest pain remedy of the age. It brings comfort to the weary sufferer when failure has attended the use of every known remedy. Nerviline is an absolute cure for all kinds of pain, internal, external, or local. Purchase a 10 cent sample bottle and try this great remedy. Nerviline, nerve pain cure. Don't forget the name, at any drug store.

ABSENCE OF CHILDHOOD.

Lord Coleridge says that when in the United States, he was struck by the absence of childhood. We defer to our children, ask their opinions, allow them to engross the general attention, force social obligations on them, and cut them off from "all the sweet dependence of their years," making grown persons of them before English children have left the nursery.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for over 8 years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Taylor & McDonald.

A STRANGE CUSTOM.

A strange sight was presented in the streets of Tucson, Arizona, one day last month. A woman appeared carrying a child's empty coffin on her shoulder, followed by a lot of little girls. Later the scene was reversed, and the coffin was borne by four little girls, followed by several women. It is no uncommon sight there to see a coffin borne to the grave on the shoulders of a man, but a woman rendering the service was a novel spectacle.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATE AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-13t

A COLD-AIR SUPPLY.

Four large cold storage warehouses are now in operation in New York city, and it is said that the time is not far distant when cold air will be served in pipes throughout the city, just as gas and water are now. One of the novel features of the new Washington market, now being constructed, is a network of pipes running through the building, through which cold air will be furnished to the different meat-stands.

Dangers of Delay.

If we were allowed to look into the future and see the fatal consequences that follow a neglected cold, how differently would our course be; could we realize our danger, how speedily we would seek a cure; but with many it is only when the monster disease has fastened its fangs upon our lungs that we awaken to our folly. What follows a neglected cold? Is it not diseases of the throat and lungs, bronchitis, asthma, consumption, and many other diseases of like nature. It is worse than madness to neglect a cold, and it is folly not to have some good remedy available for this frequent complaint. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Hickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. This medicine is composed of several medicinal herbs, which exert a most wonderful influence in curing consumption and other diseases of the lungs and chest. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, soothes irritation and drives the disease from the system.

A DANGEROUS LUXURY.

The St. Mary's (Md.) Enterprise relates that a few days ago a buggy occupied by a gentleman and lady caught fire from a brick that was heated for the benefit of the lady's comfort, and, owing to the wind being in their faces, it was not discovered until the bottom of the vehicle was almost consumed by the flames. Their wrappings were very much damaged, but no personal injuries were sustained.

HE TOOK THE HINT AND WENT HOME.

"Will you sing something, Miss Clara?" asked young Featherly.

"Certainly, Mr. Featherly," she replied, hiding a little yawn with her fan. "What shall I sing?"

"Oh, a love song, please," he said, with a sigh.

She sat down at the piano and sang with great feeling, "I am Lonely To-night, Love, Without You," and a little later Featherly put on his hat and overcoat and went home.

Church News.

Rev. Mr. Manning preached in the Charlotte street Methodist church last Sunday evening a very instructive sermon on "Popular Amusements."

Rev. Mr. Munro, on the same evening, preached the second of his interesting course of sermons on "Remarkable Characters in the Bible."

New Story.

The initial chapter of a new story will be given in next week's EXAMINER. It is scarcely necessary to say that the story is by a popular author and that it is likely to prove very interesting to all our readers. We will forward THE EXAMINER from now to January 1886 for 60 cents. Subscribe now and secure the cheapest and best local paper.

Auction Sale of Buggies.

Mr. C. Stapleton will sell by public auction for Messrs. Porter, Bros., Peterborough, on the market square, Peterboro' on Saturday the 2nd of May, 1885, a number of second hand buggies, phætons, carriages, waggons etc. These vechiles are all in a good state of repair, and will be sold positively without reserve. Sale at 10:30 a. m. 16-2t.

Queen's Birthday Celebration.

Mr. H. Calcutt is going to have a royal celebration on the 25th of May at Idyl Wild. Excursions will be run from all available points, and it is expected that one of the largest crowds that ever visited this summer resort will be there that day. Contests - atheletic and otherwise - will take place, the whole to conclude with a hop in the evening.

Hazel Brae.

Another large consignment of boys from London reached the Home last week. From all appearances they will make sturdy citizens. Applications for them have been received from all parts of the country, and there will be no difficulty in getting them suitably provided for. The majority are strong fellows who will be able to work with a will, and with proper care and education ought to make a successful strike in the world.

Warlike.

It is reported that a second draft for active service will be made on the 57th Battalion. In order to prepare the recruits for possible contingencies, our officers are constantly drilling the raw material. Mr. T. G. Haslitt, with very commendable forethought and liberality, has lit up the drill shed with two electric lamps, and our volunteers stand in uniform for the first time under the brilliant fire of an electric battery.

Lacrosse.

Lacrosse will boom this year to judge from its first meeting. A large number of the club met last Thursday evening to elect officers and transact business. The following were elected officers for the current year: Mr. R. A. Morrow, Hon. President; Mr. H. LeBrun, President; Mr. R. H. Fortye, 1st Vice-President; Mr. W. A. Sanderson, 2nd Vice-President; Mr. James Coughlin, Captain; Mr. James Dolan, Assistant Captain; Mr. G. H. Giroux, Secretary; Mr. C. Rutherford, Treasurer; Messrs. W. J. Scott, Jos. Henderson and M. Halpin, Committee of Management. The first match of the season will be played on the 25th May, at the Driving Park.

A meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Association was held in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday afternoon. There were about thirty ladies present and great interest was manifested in the work of the Association. A resolution was adopted requesting the ministers to preach more frequently on the subject of temperance. Miss Bowes, general organizer for Ontario, was present and addressed the meeting. She has delivered eighteen lectures during the past month, and organized associations in Lindsay, Oakwood, Little Britain, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Dunsford, Norwood, Keene, Hastings, Westwood, Warkworth and Madoc. The regular meetings of the Peterborough branch will be held on the second and fourth Mondays of each month in future, instead of on the first as heretofore.

Rollicking Recreation on Rollers.

Masked Mass of Beauty and Bravery on Whirling Wheels.

The first of a series of grand fancy carnivals at the Roller Rink, on Water street, took place last Friday evening. A Boom in Wedding Cakes.

We notice in the show window of Messrs. Baptie, Bro's. shop on Charlotte street, at very frequent intervals, beautifully built wedding cakes. These signs of domestic felicity have made frequent appearances since this firm established business. Their wedding wares must be of the very highest quality to command such a demand.

New Series of Readers

The first, second part of first, and second readers of the new series are now ready and can be procured from the booksellers. The other readers will be issued by the middle of May. The use of the old series is to be entirely discontinued after the present year. This will be good news to every teacher who is anxious for the improvement of his pupils in the principles of good and expressive reading.

The Golden Horseshoe.

The sign of the golden horseshoe brings good luck to the City Clothing Store, for Mr. H. LeBrun has secured, in the person of Mr. F. B. Dresser, of Montreal, who, as a dresser of men has few equals, one of the best cutters in the Dominion. Mr. Dresser, while in Moutreal, was at the head of his profession, and for the past two years, he has held a position in the largest clothing house in Chicago.

Provincial Sunday School Convention.

The semi-annual meeting of the General Executive Committee of the Sunday School Association of Canada will be held in Peterborough on Friday afternoon, April 24th, at 2 o'clock to consider important matters in the interest of the Association. A public meeting will be held in a place to be mentioned hereafter, which will be addressed by Rev. S. J. Hunter, Rev. H. M. Parsons and Mr. S. H. Blake. Prof. E. O. Excell, of Chicago, will conduct the musical part of the service.

Salvation Army Onslaught.

On Saturday evening last a detachment of the Salvation Army made an attack on Peterborough, The old Baptist Church, Aylmer street, was the battle ground. The assailants evidently did not want to be taken at a disadvantage by having too large a body of the enemy to encounter, for they dexterously thinned the ranks of the enemy by imposing a war tax of ten cents per head on all entering the hall. Consequently there was a scanty supply of auditors when the hour for beginning operations arrived. At the proper time three persons emerged from the vestry and took their places on the platform. Capt. Eaddie, A. D. C., "gave out" a hymn which was sung with great vigor, a young man accompanying on the cornet. After singing, followed prayer, by Capt. Dyer, interspersed with a "load-and-fire-at-will" round of shouts of "glory!" hallelujah!" etc. Capt. Mills—a lady—then announced a song from the War Cry, and sung the song herself. Happy Jack Rogers related his experience. Capt. Mills sang another song. In a similar manner the services continued throughout. On Sunday the Army paraded the streets, singing their peculiar songs. Services on Sunday were better attended, and two converts are reported. The meetings are to be continued nightly. These strange evangelists seem to be in earnest, and the good they may accomplish will be appreciated.

Sale of Fancy Articles.

The Ladies Society of St. Andrews Church, intend having a sale of useful and fancy, articles in the school room on Thursday, April 23rd of which further notice will be given.

Lansdowne Rink.

The Charlotte street roller rink that is soon to be, has been christened "Lansdowne." A dozen workmen are busy chopping into blocks and removing the ice, to make ready for the laying of the floor of the rink.

Masonic.

Dr. Turner, D. D. G. M., visited the Masonic Fraternity of Peterborough on Good Friday. After work, he was entertained by the local brethren at a supper at Chamberlain's restaurant, where a very pleasant couple of hours was spent.

New Tapestry Carpets at Turnbull's bought at a big discount call and see them, you will be pleased with the prices.

Signs of Appreciation.

Belleghem has been called on again. Yesterday he shipped for Trenton the furniture for a fine new hotel, to be opened by a Mr. Daly in Trenton. If Mr. Daly shows as good judgment in buying everything from the best makers, as he has done in selecting his furniture, his hotel will be a pleasant place to stop at.

Complimentary.

A very flattering tribute to Mr. H. LeBrun's interest in lacrosse was paid by the Dominion Lacrosse Association, in electing him president. Mr. LeBrun deserved by the honor, and no man could have been found who will wear his blushing honors so modestly, yet gracefully.

The Roller Rink.

The management of the Water street Roller Skating Rink have engaged Mr. Kerr, of Belleville, to give exhibitions of fancy skating and to give instructions in the same to any who may wish to learn. Instructions free to patrons of the rink, who should all avail themselves of the excellent chance thus presented. Mr. Kerr will be present every evening this week. Fire Brigade Band on Friday night.

Those who need a Mantle or Dolman should visit Turnbull's Showroom on the opening days Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The True Masonic Way.

Mr. J. Harrison, a member of King Solomon's Lodge A. F. and A. M. of the City of Toronto had his name removed from the roll of the lodge, at the regular meeting last week, a charge of infidelity, preferred against him some time ago, having been proved to the satisfaction of the lodge. It appears the constitution of the order is very emphatic as to the views held by its members on such matters, and each member before being initated, is taken into an ante-room where a bible is handed to him and where he is challenged before being admitted into the mysteries of the order.

Card of Thanks

The following explains itself:

PETERBORO', April 14, 1885.

D. D. GALLETLY, Esq.,

DEAR SIR, I have been instructed by the Ladies' Aid Society of George street Methodist Church, to forward to yourself and choir the following:—

Resolved,—That the sincere thanks of this Society be presented to D. Galletly and the members of his choir for the very able assistance rendered at the "Old Folks Concert." We cannot praise them too highly, as we feel that much of the success of our concert was due to St. Paul's church choir. We fully recognise their sacrifice of time and comfort in attending the numerous rehearsals, and we take this opportunity of wishing them continued success as a choir.

All of which is respectfully submitted, by yours sincerely.

E. KENDRY, Sec. of L. A. S.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston, of Port Hope, was in town on Monday on his way to Ottawa.

Miss Bowes was present at the Saved Army meeting on Tuesday evening and took part in the service.

Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, Inspector for the British Empire Life Assurance Company, for Western Ontario, was in town over Sunday.

Mr. W. Bate left town on Tuesday to take charge of Messrs. Taylor & Co's. saw mills at Gravenhurst.

Mr. Max. Hall, of Longford, was in town on Friday last, on business for the Longford Lumbering Company.

Mr. A. E. Yelland, of Peterborough, has passed his Primary Examination in medicine at Trinity Medical School, Toronto, with high honors.

Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, was entertained by his numerous friends in Ottawa at a banquet in the House of Commons Restaurant on Saturday evening last.

Capt. Bridgewater, of Apsley, was in town on Thursday last and offered his services to Col. Rogers should they be required in either the North-West rebellion or any other part the battalion should be called to go.

Mr. S. S. Peck, Stipendary Magistrate for Haliburton, has resigned. Mr. Peck, we understand, proposes removing to Dakota. What will the member for West Peterborough in the Legislative Assembly, find to write about now? His pet subject has vanished.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

All Merit Meritorious Mention.

The people may cry "hard times" and deplore the dullness of trade, but, to adopt a current form of phraseology, "it's a cold day when fashion gets left" by hard times or any thing else. Last Wednesday was a cold day, meterologically, for millinery displays, but, nevertheless, four establishments carried out the announcements previously made. The weather was indeed forbidding, and the contrast between the bleak dreariness of the outside world and the inner world of artificial bloom and beauty was as great as that between the shivering repulsion of a winter landscape and the soft-aired fragrance and gay bloom of a conservatory.

HALL, INNES & CO.

this season excel, perhaps, any former effort. An immense stock of the latest designs in millinery was displayed with a taste and judgment only equalled in the selection and purchase of the goods. The show rooms were decorated in a manner to both add to the beauty of their appearance and to display the goods to the best advantage. A fine display of French and German hats and bonnets challenged admiration. An endless variety of the newest shapes, and a perfect forest of trimming material, and plumes, feathers, tips, flowers, etc., testified to the elaborate completeness of the millinery stock. A large range of handsome pattern mantles in silk, Ottoman, and Jersey cloth was much admired. The dress goods department in every branch is uncommonly complete. The display made by the firm this spring is a splendid indication of the great preparations they have made for meeting satisfactorily the most exacting demands of the purchasing public.

J. ALEXANDER,

in whatever business he undertakes, enters with his whole soul, and this season's millinery display is characteristic of him. His millinery premises are not the largest in town, but it is hard to find a spot with more fine millinery to the square foot than these same rooms. Under Miss Winter's deft decoration they assumed a beautiful appearance, and the stock, a show of beautiful hats and bonnets trimmed in the most attractive style, is worthy of great praise. All that fashion demands has been supplied, and in addition the latest shapes only await orders to be clothed upon with the latest and most approved trimmings and decorations, of which samples of a large stock tastefully decorate the walls at every turn. The mantle department was also represented with splendid specimens of mantles, dolmans, etc., in the newest fabrics and designs.

J. C. TURNBULL.

This enterprising merchant was out in full bloom in the millinery line. His whole shop as well as millinery rooms, is, so to speak, redolent of millinery bloom. His show room proper is attractive with a varied display of elegantly trimmed hats and bonnets, comprising in their shapes, styles and trimming, all that is newest in mode, ornament, color or decoration. His stock of dolmans, mantles, ready made, and of materials suitable for such is extremely full and varied, and nothing but a personal inspection can give the least idea of what Turnbull has in store in these lines, for them that patronize him. Those who have hitherto done so will find an additional inducement to the excellence and extent of his millinery stock, in the fact that Miss Irons still manages this department with her old time skill.

W. FAIRWEATHER & CO.

This firm made a very successful and creditable display of millinery goods. Their rooms were profusely decorated—the decorations being designed to show to excellent advantage the fine stock of millinery trimmings, ornaments, etc., on hand. The trimmed hats and bonnets shown, spoke very highly of the skill with which Miss Elliot, the capable and courteous head milliner, employs the excellent materials at her command in the artistic trimming and decoration of the shapes submitted to her. In this department are also shown a fine line of dolmans, mantles, ready made and of suitable materials, such as Ottoman silks, velvets, etc. Old customers can come back this spring with confidence in the assurance that more complete preparations than ever have been made for serving them in a superior manner.

MISS DELANEY.

On Wednesday, April 15th, Miss Delaney formally opened her millinery rooms to the public, and visitors were delighted with the view that presented itself. Her premises, always looking well, were on this occasion beautifully decorated, and presented a grand array of seasonable goods. The display of London, Paris, and New York pattern hats and bonnets was superb, both in quality and in the style and variety which they presented. In addition to these there was a bewildering stock of flowers, ornaments, ribbons, feathers, plumes, etc. Flowers being the ornament this season, the rooms were a perfect bower of bloom with an endless stock of beautiful flowers. Miss Delaney's millinery department is this year unrivalled. Her mantle department is also unusually complete in its fulness of stock. Ready made mantles and dolmans were in abundance, richly supplemented with the latest materials in Ottoman and silk, Jersey cloth and velvet brocade, the latter being the very latest in this line. The stock of fancy goods shown was very attractive and embraced all the newest and most fashionable novelties, laces of all kinds and lawn embroideries in all widths to match. An endless variety of splendid stock was presented to select from.

FAIR VANEVERY & CO.

This enterprising firm make a splendid appearance in their second annual spring opening. With premises well fitted to make a grand display, they spare no collection of stock of adequate proportions. Their millinery stock presents splendid specimens of trimmed hats and bonnets of the latest and most stylish London, Paris and New York fashions, while the wealth of trimming and ornament incidental to this department is exceedingly elaborate and complete. No one, however exacting, either in the matter of style, quality, or other consideration, can find any deficiency in this department of this firm. The mantle department is equally complete in its selections, and contains an elaborate stock of the newest and best material that fashion has demanded for the ensuing season. The millinery and mantle departments are both under the management of experienced artistes, with skilled assistants, and the public have every inducement to bestow their patronage upon Fair, VanEvery & Co.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Alas for April—he is here in name, but March weather rules. The old time suns and showers, which are to produce May's bonny flowers, where are they? Sunny memories of the past, they have become, and poor humanity fails to discover genial spring in the present gloomy outlook. We learn that great distress for want of cattle food prevails in the northern townships, and we fear that it will become worse instead of better, many animals have died already—what the end will be is hard to say.

Messrs. Campbell and McNeil, of this village, have purchased the property they have so long occupied as a general store, etc., and are intending to improve, repair and renovate the whole premises.

A volunteer drill took place in the Town Hall on Saturday evening; very few volunteers were present; let us hope that it was on account of the bad weather and roads, which, last Saturday, could not well be worse.

The Keene Brass Band have commenced practice again.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union are now at work. On Wednesday they were to meet, and Miss Bowes was expected to be present.

The German newspapers comment upon the fact that the Queen did not send her congratulations to Prince Bismarck upon the occasion of his birthday. The King of Denmark and King of Portugal and all the other rulers sent their felicitations.

The Albion Hotel at Brandon was burnt down at an early hour on Saturday morning. Two persons were burned to death, Miss Bachan, sister of the proprietor, and a boarder. Miss Beaubier jumped from a second story window and was badly scorched. The rest of the boarders escaped with great difficulty in their nightclothes.

The Port Hope Times says:—"Messrs. Thompson & Son, of Peterborough, have entered the settlement in the vicinity of Janetville, with a large gang of men, and are clearing the woods around there of all the valuable pine, for which they are paying very high prices, going as high as $25 and very seldom less than $10 a tree. In this settlement they have got 13 ship masts ranging from 72 to 85 feet long, for which they paid a very high price, and the square timber in of the best quality. They have a large number of teams employed hauling the timber to Franklin station. A large sum of money has been spent by this firm in Manvers.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Regular Session.

Our Civic Sires Burn the Midnight Oil—The Alleged Charity Scandal More Investigation to be Had—The Separation By-Law Repealed.

The Council met in regular session. Present,—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, Yelland, Rutherford, Douglass, Menzies, Kendry and Hartley. In the absence of the Mayor, Mr. Menzies was voted to the chair.

A number of communications and accounts were presented and referred to appropriate committees. Among the communications was the following in reference to

THE ALLEGED CHARITY SCANDAL.

To the Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—We, the undersigned, hearing from good authority that the "Green Investigation Committee" intend bringing in a report whitewashing the Chairman of the Charity Committee, and as we were concerned in seeing that justice was done in the matter of the late Miss Toole, we wish to submit a few facts for the consideration of your board:

We believe that Mrs. and Miss Brown now repudiate the letter which they sent to the Council. Now, that paper was signed by them after being read over by Miss Brown in the presence of Mr. John Robertson and Mr. Croft and Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Brown then said that the statements were not strong enough.

A document was put into the Committee by these same persons, exonerating Mr. Green from all blame. We have good reason to believe that that was obtained by threats of legal proceedings being taken against the Browns, who, being poor people, expressed a willingness to sign anything rather than be badgered by the law.

We simply state these facts to place ourselves in a proper position.

In witness whereof, we have this day set our hands and seals.

W. CROFT.
Signed, JOHN ROBERTSON.

Sworn before me this 20th day of April, 1885.
THOS. MENZIES, J.P.

FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson, chairman, presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of the following accounts:

Gas Company	$45 05
A. Elliott, R.R. tickets	2 35
Rolph, Smith & Co.	17 20
Review Printing Committee	45 45

The Committee also recommended that a grant of $100 be made to the Fire Brigade Band, and $50 to the City Band, to be paid quarterly, and that the petition of W. G. Ferguson and others be not entertained. The report was adopted.

APPOINTMENTS.

Mr. Rutherford (Mr. Menzies, chairman, being in the Mayor's chair) presented the report of the Committee on Appointments, which recommended:

(1.) That Mr. Edg. Pearse be appointed a member of the Board of Health instead of Mr. W. H. Moore, resigned.

(2.) That Charles McGinty be appointed Assistant Constable, Sanitary Inspector and Building Inspector.

(3.) That the Chief Constable had handed in a recommendation as to the time the constables are to be on duty, as follows:

The Chief and one of the assistant constables to be on duty from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. The Chief and one of the assistant constables to remain in the police station turn about all day, to receive complaints. One of the assistant constables to patrol continuously George street, from Charlotte street to Murray street, between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m.

A by-law was passed in accordance with the above recommendations of the committee and the Chief Constable.

LICENSES.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman, reported, recommending that the clause of the the Market and Butchers' by-law referring to limits be amended, and the by-law was deferred till the next meeting.

CHARITY.

Mr. Green, chairman of the Charity Committee, presented a statement of the amounts given in charity and the parties to whom given and by whom recommended; also a statement of goods and wood given out on account of charity, by wards. The total amount of charity distributed between Jan. 20th, 1885, and April 20th was $409, of which $242 was for goods, and $167 for wood.

Mr. Green explained that owing to the exceptionally hard times the demand for charity had been excessive.

THE ALLEGED CHARITY SCANDAL.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the Special Committee appointed to investigate the charges preferred by Mary Brown and Eliza Jane Brown against Mr. Green, chairman of the Charity Committee reported as follows:

(1.) The evidence submitted by the said Mary Brown and Eliza Jane Brown does not sustain the charges preferred, but on the contrary the said Browns have put in the following paper:

PETERBOROUGH, April 14th, 1885.

As to the rumour that I was complaining about the treatment I received from the Charity Committee of the town through Mr. R. H. Green, on behalf of my deceased sister, I have to say that I had no desire to complain of such treatment. He supplied us with goods out of his store at our request, and I am satisfied we got our proper allowance.

Signed, MRS. MARY BROWN.
ELIZA JANE BROWN.

Witness:
(Signed) JOHN CRAIG.

(2.) Under the circumstances the committee felt it must report that in its opinion the charges had not been proven. But the committee found that Mr. Green had been very imprudent in supplying goods from his own store to these and other parties, which in their opinion was contrary to the Municipal Act.

(3.) The committee, therefore, under these circumstances, strongly recommended that for the future all orders for charity of any kind be drawn by the chairman of the Charity Committee on the recommendation of other members of the said committee through the town clerk.

The evidence taken before the committee was attached to the report.

BUILDING COMMITTEE.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the Building Committee, presented plans for the conversion of the Bank of Toronto buildings into town offices, etc., the estimated cost being $3,800.—Referred to Finance Committee.

REPEAL BY-LAW.

Mr. Davidson introduced the first reading of a by-law to repeal the by-law separating the sale of groceries and liquors.

Mr. Rutherford moved in amendment the six months hoist. The amendment was lost and the by-law read a first time.

On motion to go into Committee of the Whole on the second reading, Mr. Rutherford again moved the six months' hoist. This amendment was lost on the following division:

YEAS.—Messrs. Yelland, Kendry, Rutherford and Hartley.

NAYS—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, McNaughton, Green and Douglass; and the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading.

After considerable squabbling and discussion, the Committee rose and reported the second reading of the by-law.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the by-law be read a third time, which was carried on the following division:

YEAS—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Kelly, McNaughton, Green, Douglass and Menzies—7.

NAYS—Messrs. Yelland, Kendry, Rutherford and Hartley—4.

CARTERS' BY-LAW.

A by-law to provide a carters' stand was duly read and passed, fixing the stand on Water street, from Brook to Hunter street.

The matter of laying down a sidewalk on Rubidge street, between Simcoe and Charlotte streets, was left to the Street Committee with power to act.

THE CHARITY SCANDAL AGAIN.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the charges implied in the communication of Mr. Croft and the report presented be referred back to the committee for reconsideration.

Mr. Green wanted to know how often he was to be sat on by the Council. He had been tried once and answered all questions fully, and he didn't see why Mr. Rutherford wanted to push the matter.

Mr. Rutherford said the matter was a serious one and should be thoroughly investigated and should not be allowed to slide through in a slip-shod manner. Mr. Croft's communication contradicted the evidence of the women before the committee. If Mr. Green were innocent he should court the fullest investigation.

Mr. Cahill said the women were before the committee and they said their former charges were untrue. He did not think a committee of this Council was the proper one to deal with the matter.

Mr. Rutherford was willing to have the matter investigated by the County Judge. For Mr. Green's sake the matter should be probed to the bottom. Mr. Green had stated that all was fair and above board. But he (Mr. Rutherford) did not think that it was fair and above-board for Mr. Green to use the bill-heads of other grocers and then supply the goods himself.

Mr. Douglass said Mr. Green was not the only sinner in the Council in this respect. He thought Mr. Green was wrong in placing himself in a position to give orders on himself.

Mr. Kendry explained that he seconded the resolution because he wanted to place himself right, he did not wish to make himself responsible for the payments of the accounts of Mr. Green. For Mr. Green's own sake the matter should be cleared up. If the thing were hushed up now the people would be warranted in saying that the Council wished to cloak the matter over and whitewash Mr. Green. He for one wanted Mr. Green to receive justice.

Mr. Hartley thought Mr. Green should be anxious for a thorough investigation.

Mr. McNaughton asked Mr. Rutherford if he had asked the parties whose bill-heads Mr. Green had used if the town owed them anything, and Mr. Rutherford replied that they had nothing against the town except as to two items. Continuing, Mr. McNaughton strongly denounced those parties who had allowed themselves to be used as tools by Mr. Green. He was in favour of a thorough investigation.

Mr. Menzies made explanations in reference to the action of the committee.

Mr. T. W. Robinson explained that Mr. Green deals with the firm he was connected with and pays his account monthly, and in paying one account Mr. Green requested him to collect a charity account and apply it to the monthly account, and he asked Mr. Green if it was right to do the thing in that way, and Mr. Green said it was perfectly right, and he accepted his assurance and he did not think anything wrong in collecting the bill and applying it. He was personally responsible for collecting the account, as none of the directors of the company were cognizant of the matter.

Mr. Kendry said he now felt more strongly than ever in favour of a thorough investigation.

Mr. Green said he exonerated Mr. Robinson from any blame. He (Mr. Green) thought he was doing right in supplying the goods so long as he did not send in the bill in his own name.

The reference to the committee for further investigation was agreed to.

On motion it was decided to receive tenders for an extra team for street watering.

The Council adjourned for one week, at 12 o'clock.

Mail, Innes & Co's. Millinery Show Rooms are now open. Ladies should not fail to pay a visit, and inspect the finest display in Peterborough.

THE SPRING ASSIZES.

The Business Concluded.

STRICKLAND vs RAMA TIMBER TRANSPORT CO.—This action was alluded to in our last issue. The dispute as to measurement of logs, was decided in favor of plaintiffs, but the question as to damages was reserved to be argued in term.

SAWERS vs BRADBURN.—An action brought by Mr. C. W Sawers, assignee of the estate of Mr. C. B. Smith, against Mr. Thos. Bradburn to recover for illegal distress as landlord. Defendant had a note given him by Mr. Smith for an amount of rent due by the latter. The note matured in February, but the defendant distrained for rent in January and sold goods to the amount of $125. It is provided by statute that in case of illegal seizure the landlord is liable for double the amount of goods. Verdict for plaintiff and $250. Mr Blackstock for plaintiff, Mr. Dumble for defendant

CAVANAGH vs MOORE & SAWERS.—An action brought by T. Cavanagh to recover the amount of an account against defendants as as executors of the Henthorn Estate. A counter claim was put in and judgment was given for defendants.

DIXON vs ADAMS.—An action of trespass, the plaintiff claiming $500 damages for timber cut on his lands in Harvey. Verdict for plaintiff and $10. Mr. Edmison for plaintiff, and Mr. Edwards for defendant.

THE NOR'-WEST WAR.

History of the Week's Warlike Operations.

Another Butchery by the Aborigines Pillage Perpetuated—Closing in on the Rebel Camp—A Brush with the Rebels probable any day.

WEDNESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

HUMBOLDT, April 15.—All quiet so far. Daily reconnaissances are made by Gen. Middleton but nothing has been gleaned to justify the belief that there is a rebellion of any proportion in progress. No signs of the enemy are observed and except for report the country round here is perfectly peaceful.

COL. OTTER'S COLUMN.

WINNIPEG, April 15.—Col. Otter's column for the relief of Battleford reached the ferry to-day on the South Saskatchewan, 28 miles from the supply depot. At this point scows will take the expedition across, occupying about a day. The river is about 450 yards wide. After crossing the column will have twenty miles of hard travel over wet ground to what is called Flat Lake, which they will have to wade through knee deep for nearly a mile. They will then begin to ascend to the height of land and will reach a fine rolling prairie with plenty of lakes and plenty of water, but no wood.

POOR AMMUNITION.

WINNIPEG, April 15.—Much of the ammunition carried by Gen. Middleton's column is absolutely useless, and if there is any fighting it will have to be of the hand to hand description, in which the troops must take the aggressive. If they wait for the attack they will simply be shot down wholesale as they stand. Gen. Middleton and the men are highly incensed at the want of foresight manifested by the militia department in not having constantly tested the stores at Winnipeg and elsewhere. The ammunition brought by the 90th and Winnipeg battery had laid in the magazine unheeded and uncared for for ten years. The result is that at a test of the artillery to-day out of fifty shots fired only three proved effective.

The Midland battalion is at Swift Current and will follow Col. Otter's column, guarding its rear, keeping open its communication and forming a reserve. Col. Williams will push forward as rapidly as possible.

Col. Osborne Smith's Manitoba battalion, 400 strong, recently organized, has left Winnipeg for Qu'Appelle. In appearance it is said to comprise the hardiest lot of men seen in any battalion, having been made up from the province at large and comprising men accustomed entirely to out-of door life. The battalion is destined for service at Edmonton.

THURSDAY'S DESPATCHES.

April 16th.—The 7th Fusiliers arrived at Winnipeg yesterday morning and in the evening took the train for Qu'Appelle.

The Governor-General's Body Guard, armed with Winchesters, left Winnipeg yesterday morning under orders from Gen. Middleton to push forward in his wake.

The Midland battalion under Col. Williams has arrived at Swift Current and gone into camp with the 35th battalion (the Simcoe Foresters), under Col. Tyrwhitt, to await orders. It is expected that they will be instructed to push on after Col. Otter to-day.

Col. Otter's column has crossed the ferry at the South Saskatchewan, and has commenced the march across the prairie to Battleford, which it is hoped will be reached by Saturday week, the distance being about 160 miles. All the men are reported well and marching in excellent form.

WILL THERE BE A FIGHT?

WINNIPEG, April 16th.—As the time draws near for Gen. Middleton to reach Riel's supposed stronghold at Batoche's crossing, the question everywhere discussed is, "Will there be a fight?" Some say there will be, and a bitter one. Others declare Riel is too cunning to risk a regular engagement; that he will either keep himself and his force completely out of sight until Gen. Middleton has passed and then follow in his rear and harass him until he reaches Prince Albert, or that a prolonged parley will be held, resulting in an arrangement.

A serious phase of the situation is the state of public feeling in the district surrounding Calgary. The settlers there are largely from Montana and British Columbia, and neither have nor ever had any sympathy with "Canada," meaning the eastern provinces. They think the laws oppressive and the interior department officials objectionable.

AFFAIRS AT BATTLEFORD.

BATTLEFORD, April 16.—The situation here is unchanged. Terrible fear is expressed by the weaker portion of an immediate attack by Indians. Constant reports of depredations in the vicinity come to hand and it is felt certain that their success in their frequent marauding expeditions will at length embolden the red savages to try an attack upon the barracks.

A GARRISON AT CLARKE'S CROSSING.

WINNIPEG, April 16.—Gen. Middleton has intimated that it is his intention to establish strongholds at Clarke's Crossing, as a base of supplies for Northwest points. It will be strongly garrisoned, and supplies can be forwarded to it both by overland route and by the Saskatchewan.

FRIDAY'S DESPATCHES.

AT CLARKE'S CROSSING.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N. W. T., April 17.—Troops arrived on the banks of the Saskatchewan at this place about 11.30 this morning. A flying column with Gen. Middleton came here last night to seize the ferry at the point. A report reached here this morning that half-breeds had seized Riel and Dumont and were holding them as prisoners, but this is not credited. The weather the past two days has been very cold and wet, with a strong gale blowing in the face of the troops, which made marching difficult. The force will probably remain till the 10th Royal Grenadiers arrive, and also the forage for the horses. The Royals are expected to arrive to-morrow evening.

BLACKFEET ON THE WARPATH.

WINNIPEG, April 17.—A despatch from Medicine Hat this afternoon reports that a band of Indian Blackfeet had left their reserve and started on the warpath. It is also reported from the same source that the Blackfeet, Pigeons and Bloods will rise in a body, and put on war paint, should the command under General Middleton get defeated in the first encounter with the rebels, which it is expected may take place to-morrow, there are no troops, and only six mounted police at Medicine Hat.

The fate of the Edmonton stage still causes anxiety at Calgary, and there are fears that it has been attacked. Captain Steel's scouts start north to-day, and will endeavor to discover what has happend the stage.

A SCOUTING EXPEDITION.

Capt. Steel's scouts, under command of Lieut. Coryelle, will go to-morrow north to the crossing of the Red Deer River, 100 miles They will be preceded by Rev. Mr. McDougall, with four faithfull Stonsys acting as an advance guard of scouts. The officer has instructions to take possession of the settlers' houses nearest the crossing of the Red Deer, fortify and hold the position at all hazards until the arrival of the force.

COL. OUIMET'S RETURN.

Col. Quimet, M. P., in command of the 65th, who has been here the last two days from Calgary, left for Ottawa this morning. His mission is shrouded in mystery, and a storm is predicted at the capital upon his return.

A POSSIBLE PARLEY.

There is no news from Gen. Middleton up to 6 o'clock, but private despatches would indicate that he is treating with the rebels for peace. It is estimated that 1,000 head of cattle and 600 head of horses have already been carried off by Indians around Battleford.

BUTCHERED AND MACKED TO PIECES.

A despatch from Battleford Friday says: Every house on the south side of Battle River has been looted and destroyed, and property unappropriated has been rendered useless. Scores of farmers and their families are in a destitute and starving condition. It is learned that the Indians, after slaughtering Instructor Payne, cut the body in pieces and scattered them about the barnyard. Inspector Jefferson is a prisoner with Poundmaker, and his fate is a foregone conclusion. There are now 500 souls within the stockade, and all are in a state of anxiety, nightly fearing an attack.

SATURDAY'S DESPATCHES.

MIDDLETON'S INSTRUCTIONS.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 18.—Governor Aikins informed your reporter that Gen. Middleton's instructions were to force a surrender before negotiations would be opened. So far as he could judge, Middleton's operations had been conducted in a most general-like manner. He was attacking the rebels at three points, he was keeping up all communications and bases, he was forcing his different columns ahead, and he expected to effect an early junction with Crozier.

Just what Irvine's orders are could not be learned, but it is supposed that he is to make a dash at Riel's rear. Irvine's command is not in a bad way; he is staying where he is on Middleton's orders rather than that he cannot come out.

RIEL WILL DIE FIGHTING.

WINNIPEG, April 18.—News from Clarke's Crossing indicates that Riel's men are deserting him on the approach of troops, General Dumont, the most active rebel, is forcing the followers by threats of death not to desert. He denies having incited the Indians and says they are rising to avenge their own suffering. Riel has abandoned his threatened march upon the settlers in the temperance colony. A battle may occur any day, as the rebels are still defiant. There is no change in the state of affairs at Battleford except that the Indians talk of going to Montana. Riel's last manifesto says his people never intended shedding blood and did not fire until after Crozier; that war is being forced upon them and that they are being hunted to death although parliament at Ottawa knows that they have been wronged. In conclusion he says under these circumstances as death by public executioner or in battle must be theirs they must die fighting.

THE PROBABLE DAY OF BATTLE.

FORT QU'APPELLE, April 18.—General Middleton is now at Clarke's Crossing, where all the troops arrived yesterday. They are expected to begin crossing this morning. Should the whole force be taken over it will occupy about four days, but the probability is that a portion will be sent down the east side of the river to Batoche. In any case there is no chance of an engagement before Tuesday at the soonest.

NEWS FROM THE REBEL CAMP.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 18.—Riel is entrenched at Batoche, 40 miles north of here, and has 600 half-breeds with him. White Cap, a chief joined him two weeks ago. A settler named Caswell; living here saw George and John Kerr, who escaped from Riel. He says George has been to Saskatoon, 20 miles south and, made his escape by getting a pass from Riel to Prince Albert and McIntosh settlement, and then skipped. He was followed an hour afterwards by five of Riel's men. John has gone to Moosejaw. Caswell says Riel threatened the Saskatoon settlement some time back. It is hard to get food and ammunition. In the rebel camp flour is $10 a sack.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

FORT PITT MASSACRE.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 21, 2 a.m.,—A despatch just received from Battleford says messengers just returned from Fort Pitt say that Fort Pitt has fallen. Two police have been killed and it is feared the whole party have been massacred. An Indian told the messengers that the Indians had gone down the river, but this is not credited.

A REVIEW OF THE TROOPS.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 20th.—Major General Middleton reviewed the troops in camp this morning. Considering the hardships of the march they presented a really remarkable appearance. The men were all brousad and their uniforms though clean, and for that matter tidy, did not exactly look as they do when on parade in their respective drill sheds, but the tout ensemble of the small army would have reflected credit on any body of troops far away from their homes. The major-general was greatly pleased and seemed sincerely proud of their devotion and evident attempts to distinguish themselves in their trying and novel position.

WINNIPEG, April 20.—John Kerr, a storekeeper at Batoche's, who was made prisoner by the rebels but escaped, has reached Winnipeg. Interviewed he said,—

"The rebels had, according to my estimate about 300 half-breeds, 100 Crees, and 75 Sioux. So enraged were the insurgents that they wanted Riel to shoot his prisoners. I am satisfied Riel will fight, and his followers have the utmost confidence in their ability to defeat any force that can be sent against them."

THE MIDLAND BATTALION.

WINNIPEG, April 20.—The Midland battalion have joined Col. Otters's column. The right wing of the battalion will form an escort to the steamer Northcote carrying provisions, ammunition and a Gatling gun on the dangerous trip down the Saskatchewan to Clarke's crossing. The stores and Gatling are for Major Gen. Middleton. The escort force will be commanded by Col. Williams.

TUESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, April 23.—Later telegrams confirm the reported massacre at Fort Pitt. It is stated that the event occurred five days ago, and as it is reported that the refugees had sought shelter in the York boats, which can make the passage in three days, there is considerable anxiety felt for their safety.

COL. OTTER'S PROGRESS.

SASKATCHEWAN CROSSING, via Swift Current, April 20.—Col. Otter is pushing on a flying column of cavalry, artillery, one Gatling gun, scouts and infantry in waggons to-night. He has advanced about sixty miles from the river. Indians were seen on bluffs on the north shore of the river, but they appeared to be friendly. The Midland battalion will go as an escort with the steamers from here to Clarke's Crossing with supplies for Gen. Middleton's force. The boats are barricaded with bales of hay.

A TRIP TO PRINCE ALBERT.

Clarke's Crossing, April 20.—Captain Bedson, chief of the transport staff, and Factor McDonnell, of the Hudson Bay company, returned here last night from Prince Albert. They report Irvine and Crozier's force all well. Col. Irvine is now at Prince Albert with 175 police and about 80 volunteers. The latter are badly armed. The pickets who are on the outposts, in some cases are only equipped with clubs. The residents at Prince Albert are in good health, but provisions are running very short.

REIL'S CAMP.

Clarke's Crossing, April 20.—A Mr. McIntosh of McIntosh settlement, just north of Clarke's crossing, came into our camp this morning. He has frequently visited Reil's camp at Batoche's Crossing. He says that all told there are not more than 200 half-breeds in the rebel's camp. There are only a few Indians on the ground, but small bands of hostiles are scattered through the surrounding district. The rebels' stock of provisions is running short, and they are now eating cattle stolen from settlers near Prince Albert. McIntosh believes Riel is unaware of the advance of the troops or of the fact that Middleton's brigade is so near Batoche's. Reil keeps the breeds in the rebel camp by telling them there is only a small force of police coming against them, and that the government has been frightened into sending out a commission to adjust their grievances.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

April weather fair and fine
Sunny days and nights divine
Birds in every bower and tree.
Chirping sweet and merrile.

The delightful weather which we have experienced for some time past is rapidly playing havoc with the remaining shreds of grim old winter. Farewell old tyrant! sullen, cold, relentless, though you were, you still leave behind some sunny memories.

Local events have sunk into insignificance in the face of the great national turmoils of the day. The great Northern Bear is on his haunches and showing his teeth in anger over the mountains of Afghan; already has he lapped human blood. While far in the west is heard an ominous growl and the huge bulk of the old British Lion appears on the horizon as he rises from his lair, while with mane erect and uplifted paw, he matters in sounds low but terrible, Thus far but no further. At the foot of the Rockies we have a baby war of our own, the natural outcome of imbecile and selfish policy. We were startled by the news that one of Keene's volunteers, Marshall Weir was dangerously ill at Winnipeg, but later news is encouraging as we learn his illness is temporary and he will soon be, if not ere this, on duty again.

The Otonabee Council met last Monday and in its old, quiet reliable way transacted the public business.

Our township is fortunate in the possession of competent and faithful public servants.

The Presbyterian Church is fast nearing completion under the supervision of Mr. Harper's competent and gentlemanly foreman, Mr. Fitzgerald.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Keene prospers. It began with fourteen members, there are now thirty-five. At its meeting last Wednesday a deserved vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Marks and Mrs. David Kerr for energy and faithfulness in canvassing the village. Mrs. A. McIntyre is corresponding secretary, and Mrs. T. Campbell, Treasurer. The fee of membership is only 25 cts.

The Indian River will soon be open, a ribbon of ice remaining only where the winter sleigh track was, and yet as late as last Saturday a man with horse and cutter passed down it and across the lake. The ice on the lake is still firm and good.

The appointment of the 8th of May as a holiday (Arbour Day) by the Minister of Education, for the purpose of planting trees and beautifying our school grounds is an excellent arrangement; it is hoped our Keene friends will make good use of the day.

BELLEVILLE.

The latter part of last week was a serious time for Belleville. Owing to an ice jam, many cellars on Front and Bleecker streets were flooded. Murney ward was also deeply flooded, and immense blocks of ice jammed the streets. It is thought that the loss will amount to between $75,000 and $100,000.

Those who need a Mantle or Dolman should visit Turnbull's Showroom on the opening days Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A regular meeting of the L. P. S. Board was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening, 4th inst. Members present; Messrs. S. Gordon, W. J. Wallace, Dr. Armour, and Mr. R. Q. Dench in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, a communication was received from Mr. Thos. Casement tendering his resignation as a member of the board, which on motion was accepted; also from Mr. August, Head Master, tendering his resignation to take effect after Summer Holidays; the reason assigned was that he was going to give up teaching.

Mr. August's resignation was accepted.

The school meeting for the purpose of electing a trustee in place of Mr. Casement, resigned, was appointed to take place on Wednesday, 29th April, in the Council room at the hour of 12 o'clock. Mr. W. J. Wallace was appointed returning officer.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

Isaac Watson, salary 2 mos.	$ 20 00
" Repairs	3 00
W. H. Casement, supplies	2 16

The Board adjourned.

HIGH WATER.

The water rose rapidly on Sunday last and washed in round the end pier on the south side of the river, endangering the foundation of Mr. Hull's grist mill.

A gang of men was put on to stop the washout and prevent further damage.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The board met on Thursday morning in the Council Chamber.

Members all present.

A resolution was passed recommending to the Council, Mr. James Smith as Health Inspector, also as to the drainage of certain streets.

The Secretary was instructed to notify the authorities of the Midland Railway not to clean the cattle cars at the public crossings of the streets.

THE AFGHAN AFFAIR.

On the Very Verge of War.

War and peace between Russia and England are trembling in the balance. A good deal depended on who provoked the conflict between the Russians and Afghans. Sir Peter Lumsden has sent in his report of the affair, which shows that Gen. Komeroff's assertion that the Afghans made the attack is as straight a lie as a Russian can tell—the Russians are the assailants, and war will almost surely be the result.

PEACE IMPOSSIBLE.

LONDON, April 21.—The lobby was excited over Mr. Gladstone's statement in the House of Commons, which is considered to mean the evacuation of the Soudan. His repeated references to the necessity of holding the troops in the Soudan in readiness for service whenever wanted, indicate that England is on the verge of war. Such words by a responsible minister it is thought will soon make peace impossible. It is believed Sir Peter Lumsden's despatch is certain to influence the British war feeling to an alarming degree. Despite the fact that the credit of $55,000,000 means an increase of sixpence on the income tax, the bulk of the Conservative and Liberal members will vote for the credit cheerfully.

THE LAST WORD SPOKEN.

LONDON, April 22.—The Daily News says: "We must not yet assume that the Russians will not allow peace. Our last word has doubtless been spoken, but we have not yet seen whether Russia will recognize its fairness and reason. Mr. Gladstone's speech told the House of Commons that England must be prepared to hear, without surprise or excitement, that the controversy was closed."

PREPARING FOR ACTION.

LONDON, April 21.—The war office has issued a notice calling out the first class of the army reserves, comprising 15 regiments, for immediate and permanent service. Other classes of reserves have been notified that they will probably be called out at an early date.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 21.—All the military reserves of the first class in Russia, Poland and the southwest provinces of Russia have been ordered to be mobilized. Several newspapers here urge the government to seize Herat.

IN THE SOUDAN.

GENERAL GRAHAM'S WORK.

Attention has been so completely diverted from the Soudan, designedly so, some say, by the immensity of the question pending between Russia and England, that the good work being unostentatiously performed by Gen. Graham is almost lost sight of. He went to Suakim without a flourish of trumpets, and he is pursuing his work without the beat of drums. His work has been onerous rather than great, and useful more than ostentatious, and the result is that he has received but little notice. As a matter of fact, he has cleared the district surrounding Suakim of rebels. He has not defeated Osman Digna in pitched battle, because that worthy has taken to the hills, but he has reduced many hostile tribes to submission, and has opened the way for the construction of the Suakim-Berber railway far beyond the present requirements of the contractors. With the exception of the one mishap, for which Gen. McNeil is entirely responsible, Gen. Graham's work has been uniformly good, and greatly enhances his reputation as a commander.

ENNISMORE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

At St. Mary's Church, by the Rev. Father Kelly, on Tuesday of last week, Mr. Harry Moher, son of Wm. Moher Esq., of Duro, and Miss Mary Crough, daughter Mr. Michael Crough Sr., of this township were united in bonds of matrimony. The bride was dressed in garnet silk and looked superb. She was attended by Miss C. McCann of Otonabee, while the groom was attended by his brother Mr. T. J. Moher. Upwards of a hundred people were assembled in the church to witness the ceremony. The choir furnished suitable music. We wish the young couple every happiness and feel assured that we but echo the voices

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

A PRACTICAL DISCOURSE ON AMUSEMENTS.

Recreation Conducive to Health and Longevity.

ONLY THOSE WHO WORK ENTITLED TO AMUSEMENT.

The Necessity of Moderation and Restriction.

Dr. Talmage chose two texts—Ezekiel iii., 13: "The noise of the wheels over against them," and Nahum iii., 2: "The noise of the rattling of the wheels."

In the one verse are the wheels of help, and Ezekiel heard them. In the other verse are the wheels of destruction, and Nahum heard them. The good wheels and the bad wheels will decide the destiny of this planet. Archimedes eulogized the lever, and said if he could find a fulcrum for it to rest on he could move the world. But he found no such fulcrum, and it is not the lever which is to lift or sink the world but the wheel, whether a solid disk or composed of outer rim and spokes and hub. Wheel of the rail train that accelerated travel! Wheel of printing press that multiplies intelligence! Wheel of ship, wound with tiller ropes, guiding navigation! Wheel of sewing machine that alleviates toil! Whel of chronometer that measures the flight of the hours! Balance wheels, fly wheels, belt wheels, spur wheels, racket wheels, driving wheels. The wheel, invented by whom I know not, but it is suggested to us by the fact that the planetary system is a wheel and constellations and galaxies are wheels and all of their smaller wheels work in and into the great wheel of the universe, the axis of which is the periphery on which reats the throne of God. Show me which way the majority of the world's wheels turn and I will tell you whether it is rolling toward redemption or ruin, and tell me how many revolutions they make in an hour and I will tell you how near the world is to its disenthralment or demolition. In our day the principle of the wheel has come to be applied to amusements and recreations, and the velocipede and bicycle and tricycle and the roller skate are the consequences, and the thousand-voiced question to be met is: Are the roller skates wheels of help like those which Ezekiel heard or wheels of destruction like those which racketed in the ears of Nahum?

Never within my memory or yours has there been in this country such wide, deep, high, popular agitation on and all ministers of religion, and all parents and all young people and all old people must answer the question, and answer it right, and have a reason for the answer. Let me premise that I have for 25 years been waiting for some new style of amusement, healthful for body and mind, hoping it might come in time to rescue this generation. Such amusements have been appallingly scarce. Plenty of places to blast and blight and consume body, mind and soul. Never any lack of gambling saloons. Within one hour of every home and hotel in New York and Brooklyn there are places where a young man can get divorced from his money, while the old spider of the gaming table officiates at the funeral of innocent flies. Plenty of places where you can lose ten cents, or a house and lot, or all you have, in one night. Plenty of drinking saloons where the owner, by outlay of twenty dollars' worth of alcohol, can mix up stuff that he sells for $250. They will let a young man trade all he wants as long as his money lasts—on glass, two glasses, three glasses, four glasses—and then when, having felt in all his pockets for more money, it is demonstrated that he has not so much as a postage stamp left, they will help him into the street to look after himself or to be taken home by some other young man not quite as intoxicated; for rumsellers never help their victims home, lest getting to the door they confront the mother or wife to whom God might lend one of his smaller thunder-bolts, with which could strike the despoiler into ashes. Plenty of gates of hell and all of them wide open, the temptresses crying "Come in! come in!" But of good places a great deficit.

Seven o'clock p.m finds tens of thousands of young people home, or at hotel or boarding house. "What shall I do with myself this evening?" he asks. You answer,

"GO TO PRAYER MEETING."

Well, that is good advice for two nights of the week, but there are seven nights in most weeks. Subtract Sunday night and two other church nights and you have four nights left. "Go and hear a lecture on astronomy," you say. Well, the young man's brain is tired with running up the figures of the account book or from trying to sell goods to people who don't want to buy, and he has no appetite for a lecture on astronomy. He does not want to hear about other worlds, he has more than he can do to get along with this. Now, take up the newspapers and pick out for him a place of healthful recreation. The most of the places advertised are unventilated audience rooms, where the companionship is depraving and much of the spectacular is indecent. Two hours and a half in such a place and the man goes home, body asphyxiated, mind weakened, soul scarred. Consecutive amusement of that sort makes thriving business for undertakers and affords tragedies of illustration for discourse on the text, "One end thereof is death." What our young people want in their amusement is recreation for body and soul, something that will allow them to be asleep on their pillow at eleven o'clock every night, and awake, fully rested at half-past seven in the morning, something that will put our boys and girls at the goal of manhood and womanhood ready for useful and practical life, not invalids at 19 and 20 and 21, not splinters of humanity, not masculine and femine apologies, but ready to command respect, and with their own right arm, under God, shove aside all obstacles. Will this amusement help to do this?

The amusement was invented in 1819 by Plympton, a Frenchman, and he has been called the father of the rink. He kept a tight grip on the patent for his skate until 1883, when his patent ran out, and now there are factories all over the country and seven weekly newspapers devoted to this one sport, and every night in the rinks, north, south, east and west, hundreds of thousands of people on wheels, good or bad. Should we favour this style of amusement? I answer, yes, under restrictions, and no, if it be unguarded. In other words, it is the best thing or the worst as you make it. Some of these skating rinks have already been the means of invigoration to the feeble and invalids, and innocent pleasure to thousands of young, middle aged and old. Some have broken up families, set Sergeons to work at perilous operations, created life-long ailments, and are responsible for eternal misfortunes. I will not be misunderstood. Whoever represents me as giving unrestricted approval or condemnation falsifies my position and will be found to be defamers by those who read the stenographic report of this sermon. For years, as many of you know, I have carried a loaded gun ready to aim at every style of vile amusement that came out of the thicket to put its paw and tooth upon the young, but I must always discriminate.

The gamekeeper Macdonald, of Glengarry, came home and found that his home had been ransacked by a regiment of English troops and his family infamously treated and that the chief offender was an officer who rode on a white horse. The next day, the troops passing, Macdonald emptied the saddle of the man riding on the white horse and found out afterwards that the horse was ridden that day by another officer who had borrowed it. Great was Macdonald's chagrin. The next day the troops passed again, and again Macdonald fired and again killed the wrong man. Now, my soul is full of wrath against amusements that have ravaged so many of the homes of America and I must not aim at the wrong ones. I must know which are the offenders and which ought to be unhorsed and slain.

To me, rightly precautioned roller skating is the most beautiful exercise I ever witnessed. It eclipses in gracefulness and healthy movement all the croquet and coasting and lawn tennis and football and moonlight gliding over frozen pond and all the other hilarities of house and play-ground. It is good for the lungs, good for the limbs, good for the circulation, good for the spirits. I see in it possibilities for the best exercise ever invented. It has all the advantages of the gymnasium with more exhilaration of the spirits. It has all the exuberance of the skating pond on which our fathers and mothers used to dart out, tippetted and furred, with none of the dangers of breaking through the ice. It has all the vivacity of outdoor games without being dependent on condition of the weather. It would be a grand thing if all our young men could for one hour almost every evening take a round at this merriment. The women of America who decline called the constitutional, which keeps English women rosoate and strong, would do well if almost every day or night they would leave darning and mending, and bread-making and parlor-dusting, and table-setting and housekeeping for one hour, and join the whirl of the skating rink. Some of these hollow cheeks would fill up and some of these lack-lustre eyes would get back their lost light, and stooped shoulders would become erect, and incipient consumption and merciless neuralgia and nervous prostrations would take everlasting departure.

But while these are the possibilities of health and recuperation in this exercise on wheels, many have used it to the damaging of body, mind and soul, and hence I speak of the restrictions. First, let us have no more of this vulgarity and immodesty seen every night in our city, of young women, alone and unattended, skating in rinks and forming indiscriminate acquaintances. Let such young persons be chaperoned by father or mother or brother or elder sister. When a man, however well dressed, on the floor, without proper introduction, tips his hat to a lady let the officers of the rink, always on guard, invite him to make rapid strides toward the door and help him down the front steps with any such means of increasing his momentum as may be suggested. Let those well-dressed devils, who sometimes haunt such places, get quick justice, and our skating rinks will be as free of them as a Friday night prayer-meeting.

Let it not be a matter of contest who can skate the longest or count up the most fabulous number of circuits. Stop when you have got out of the recreation all there is in it. Remember the laws of health are the laws of God. Keep the ten commandments written on your lungs and heart. Remember that a group of pneumonias on every cold night stand at the door of every amusement, however honest, and would like to escort you to the sepulchre. Cool off before you face the north wind. Accept no unwarrantable gallantries. Know that the same law that dominates the parlor should dominate the skating rinks. There are parents in all our cities who need to look more carefully after their children.

In other words, flirtation is damnation. When I see at the evening hour on Broadway, New York, or Fulton street, Brooklyn, as gentlemen return from business, a group of young women with a conspicuous manner and a giggle that is intended to attract attention of the masculine passers-by, a horror strikes through my soul, and I say, I wonder if the parents of these young people are aware of this. The most of those who make everlasting shipwreck carry that same kind of sails. The pirates of death attack that style of craft. I wish I had a voice loud enough to be heard from the Penobscot to the Rio Grande and I would repeat flirtation is damnation.

I remark further that

is deplorable. Ball-playing, from which many of us got the strength and experience with which we have fought the battle of life, has with many become a dementia, and the gamblers have put their clutches upon the sport, and at the close of the game many have gone home despoiled of purse and despoiled of morals. But that is not anything against ball-playing. Boating, from which many of us who lived along rivers got development of chest that has afforded us free respiration for twenty or thirty years, and would have given stout lungs to many who ten years ago disappeared through pulmonary complaint, has been misused by college students, who have sacrificed book for oar and brain for muscle, victorious at the boat race and dead failures for the duties of life. But that is nothing against boating. Strip the roller-skate of the craze and substitute common sense. A consoling thought is that a public craze on any style of amusement is transitory, and you can't depend on the continuance of a city's insanity. One-half of those who are now building skating rinks will go into bankruptcy.

Another remark—It is very important that people who have passed forty years of age do not forget that once they were boys and girls. That memory seems from a multitude to have been obliterated. Put yourself back twenty or forty years ago and see what you needed then. Rheumatism is incompetent to make laws for sound ankles. Do not demand that people have the tastes of old age before they get into the thirties. Don't expect golden rod and china asters to bloom on a May morning. The people who start life aged in preferences are the people who after a while bore the life out of prayer meetings and make religion a snuffling cant, and disgust the world with that which ought to be attractive. You can't improve upon the Divine plan, and when God made boys and girls He intended them to be boys and girls until called to other conditions. They will come to the hard tug of life soon enough. Let them now prepare the broad shoulders and the robust frame which after you are under the ground will be taxed to the utmost. Let the skating rink directors and managers join the parents in a grand conspiracy to overthrow the feeble health and physical stagnation of our cities, and the grog-shops and the places of bad amusement will be emptied, and the coming generations will have a vigor rebounding and athletic. In some way the longevity of the human race is to be improved and the average of human life increased from 30 years to 150. As it is now we hardly get an education and start in our profession or occupation before we are emeritus. We die at the opening of the conflicts of life, at Bull Run instead of Gettysburg.

Another remark; all styles of recreation among those under consideration are only intended to fit us for usefulness. Have any of you fallen under the delusion that your chief aim ought to be to enjoy yourself? Hand me a list of those people whom you find all hours of the day and evening in places of entertainment and I will give you a list of people who are being sacrificed for both worlds. Pepper, salt, sugar, cinnamon, are good and important in their places, but that would be an unhealthy repast in which there was nothing else on the table. Amusements and recreation are the spice and condiments of the solid feast of this life, but some of you over-pleasuring people are trying to feed your body, mind and soul on condiments. Only those who have useful work to do and do it well are entitled to recreations. The Bible as is generally supposed, when it says: "Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, but know thou that for all these things God will bring thee unto judgment." It means to say: "Have a good time, have a real good time, but don't go into anything that the judgment throne will frighten. Don't forget your duties; don't forget your immortality."

Can you imagine a worse predicament than I now sketch? Time has ended and we are brought up to judgment to give account of what we have have been doing, and the Judgment Angel says: "You lived for many years in a world where there were millions of people in poverty, in sickness, in sin, in wretchedness of all sorts; and there were hundreds of men and women who put forth every exertion to help them, some of those philanthropists and Christians, toiling themselves into the grave, sacrificing all for others. "Those women out yonder," says the Angel of Judgment, "consecrated their needle to God and sewed garments for the destitute. Those heroes consecrated their swords to patriotism and fought for their country. Those were the friends of the orphan asylums, and took the motherless to the bosom of Divine charity. Those were the angles of Northern and Southern battlefields. Those were eyes to the blind, and ears to the deaf, and bread to the hungry, and heaven to the lost." "They were," cry thousands of the rescued. "They were," reply all the ransomed earth. "They were," shout the congratulating heaven. "They were," says Christ, whom for many years they served.

Then the Angel of Judgment will turn towards those who gave their life to pleasure and say, "what did you do?" "Well, I enjoyed myself," says one. "Well," says another, "I was very fond of the drama, and I spent my leisure time in looking at it." "Well," says another, "I was the champion of all ball players." "Well," says another, "I could speak four hours without stopping, and in brilliancy of gyration won the loudest applause." "Is that all?" says the Judgment Angel. "That was all," says the pleasurista. "That was all," responds the keeper of the record. "That was all," cry the wounded who have been healed and the lost who have been found and the sinful who have been rescued. "That was all," who the caverns of this world as they get hot in the last conflagration. "That was all," reverberate the hills of heaven. "That was all," says the Judge of the quick and the dead as He seals their destinies. May Almighty God forbid that any of us should make the disastrous mistake of substituting merriment for duty! May we all at last be found among those who used the world without abusing it!

LADIES are now reminded that Hall, Innes & Co's Millinery Show Rooms are now open with all the season's novelties.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1883. 48-52t

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

In and Around Our Legislative Halls.

(Correspondence of THE EXAMINER.)

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15th.

The principal business the House transacted on Wednesday last was the consideration of certain amendments to the Scott Act rendered necessary by the Dominion License Act passed two years ago, and the amendment made to that act last year. Mr. Dalton McCarthy declared that these provisions of the License Act, which had in a great measure rendered the Scott Act inoperative, had been inserted at the request of Mr. Foster. The Tory party were anxious to be friends with both sides; they wished to appear as ardent promoters of temperance and as the special friends of the licensed victuallers. For this reason they were most anxious to avoid any division upon the Act itself. They were willing that it should be carried as upon division; so that they would be in a position, when talking with licensed victuallers, to say that they were opposed to the bill, and to express a contrary opinion in the presence of temperance men. Mr. Blake, however, insisted upon the yeas and nays being recorded, and thus every man who remained in the House was obliged to show upon which side he really was—whether he was prepared to remove those difficulties which stood in the way of the proper working of the Scott Act—whether he was in favor of the abolition of the Bonded System. Many of them made choice with reluctance but a few hurried out of the House. Mr. Hector Cameron, of Victoria, strongly opposed the bill, as did also Mr. Ives; they appeared, in fact, as the exponents of the views of the licensed victuallers. Mr. Ives wished to prevent the Scott Act being put into operation in any constituency where an absolute majority of the voters upon the voters' list did not record their views of the act. But it was pointed out that if such a rule were adopted it would be wholly unnecessary that any one should vote against the act, as what would be counted would not be the number of votes against the act but what remained on the voters' list after deducting the number of those who voted in favor of the measure. The bill was carried through committee between 2 and 3 in the morning, and now awaits the third reading. It remains to be seen whether the Government will put any further impediment in the way of its enactment, or whether they will furnish facilities for the wishes of a very large majority of the House becoming laws

THURSDAY APRIL 16th.

In the House of Commons to-day questions were answered showing that the Canadian Pacific had been paid $19,962,000 on account of the loan of last session, and $21,176,259 on account of the subsidy; that all the interest on the loan had been paid, and that it would take about $600,000 to complete the government sections of the work. Sir John Macdonald stated that no arrangement had yet been reached with the Canadian Pacific Company respecting the assistance to be granted to the Company. Mr. Pope acknowledged a change in the location of the line on part of the British Columbia section, which will increase the length of the line three miles. Complaints were made of a number of important returns not yet having been brought down. Sir John Macdonald said the government intended to take charge of the Insolvency Bill and press it till the House expressed its opinion upon the principle of the Bill. Sir John Macdonald proposed the second reading of the Franchise Bill, making a short and unimportant speech. Sir R. Cartwright objected most strongly to pressing the Bill at this late stage of the session. He made a telling speech on this point, and closed by moving a resolution in favour of a postponement. This motion was debated at considerable length. Messrs. Cameron, (Huron) Flemming, Lister, Davies, Weldon, Charlton, and Mills favouring it, and Messrs. Wright, Foster, and Dawson speaking on the other side. The House divided on the amendment, which was lost on a straight party vote by 59 yeas to 104 nays. Mr. Laurier moved the adjournment of the debate on the Bill. Carried. The Bill respecting Explosive Substances was passed through Committee.

FRIDAY, APRIL 17th.

In the House of Commons, to-day, the debate on Sir John Macdonald's motion for the second reading of the Franchise Bill, was resumed by Mr. Laurier, who moved an amendment in favor of retaining the Provincial Franchise for elections for the Dominion House. In support of his amendment he delivered an exceedingly sensible and carefully prepared speech. He argued in effect that composed as we are of a number of provinces differing so widely in our conditions it would be impossible to make one uniform Franchise that would be workable in all. He opposed the clause giving the Franchise to women because it dealt only with unmarried women and placed a premium on celibacy and because he believed the elevation of women was to be secured rather by the improvement of her social condition than in the way proposed in the bill. He was followed by Mr. Chapleau who defended the bill somewhat in detail. On the revising barrister clause, which is the most objectionable feature in the bill, he contended that the power of appointing the judges, which is now vested in the Federal authority, was just as dangerous and liable to abuse, and yet no complaints were heard that we have a partisan judiciary. Mr. Blake followed in an exhaustive speech of four hours in which he entered fully into the whole question. He reviewed the history of the Dominion Franchise Legislation which began with a promise of a measure in the Speech from the Throne in 1867, and in the actual introduction of the bill in 1869. Since that time some six or seven bills had been introduced, but none had ever been made law. If there had been such a pressing necessity for the passage of a Dominion Franchise Law why had it been put off so long? Compared with the existing franchises in many of the provinces the bill was a restrictive measure rather than, as was claimed, an enlargement of the franchise. He pointed out the anomaly in the woman suffrage clause, which admits spinsters and widows only, while with the males it makes voters of farmers' sons and leaves their daughters unenfranchised. The provision for appeal in the revising barrister clause in effect gave no privilege of appeal at all because it stated that appeals should only be allowed with the consent and approval of that officer himself. The debate was continued by Mr. White (Cardwell) Messrs. McMullen and Edgar and the House came to a vote on Mr. Laurier's amendment which was defeated by a vote of 86 to 54. The vote was a straight party one with the exception that Messrs. Gigault and Dupont, two Quebec members, went against the Government, the first desertion of the session from the ministerial ranks. The Opposition, of course, thankful for small favors, hailed this accession to their vote with great applause and they hope it is but an earnest of more to come before this debate is over. Whether or not this will come about remains to be seen, but the Opposition are determined to make a good fight, and the Government may possibly be obliged to modify or withdraw the bill.

(For THE EXAMINER.)

News of battle! from the North west.
News of treachery and woe;
News of those, whose crimson life-blood,
For their country, stained the snow;
Those brave lives are quenched forever,
Hushed, till the last trump shall sound;
Naught, till then, shall more disturb them,
Calm, they sleep beneath the ground.

They are martyrs for their Country,
Martyrs, to ambitions sway;
And their blood, now calls for vengance,
On the ones who caused the fray:
Who, for fame and high position,
Acted, well, the traitor's part;
And have crushed our loved Dominion.
By deceit, and treacherous art.

Brave Canadians! do not falter,
Onward march, and foes subdue:
To your country—e'er be loyal,
To your God and name—be true.
May the standard soon be planted,
From the West, to East Soudan;
And that banner bear the motto,
"Peace on earth, good-will to man."

CAVAN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Council met pursuant to adjournment on 17th April, 1885. Members all present; the Reeve in the chair. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Communications were read from the Clerk of the township of Emily, replying to a letter from the Clerk of Cavan, regarding the number of days of statute labor performed by the residents of Emily on the boundary line of road between Cavan and Emily; also, from Mr. Whyte, General Superintendent of the Ontario and Quebec Railway, stating that the crossing over the 9th concession line had been properly repaired. On motion Mr. Clare D. Winslow was heard by the Council. Mr. Winslow asked the Council to have a new bridge erected across the creek between lots numbers four and five, 11th concession, as the old bridge was in a very dangerous condition owing to the decay of the timbers. On motion of Mr. Donaldson, seconded by Mr. McNeil, the Reeve, Deputy-Reeve and Councillor Sanderson were appointed a committee to examine the bridge complained of by Mr. Winslow and report at the next meeting of the Council. A number of orders were issued on the Treasurer. The Council then adjourned until Friday, the 22nd day of May next.

DOURO.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met at the Town Hall on April 6th, instant, in pursuance of adjournment. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed. The Reeve was instructed to have the agreement entered into by parties interested in the the post defining the intersection of the road between concessions 6 and 7, and between lots 10 and 11 in said concessions, binding them to be satisfied with the award of the arbitrators in the matter, registered, and also to order the payment of the cost of drawing such agreement and such registration to John Burnham. James McCligott was appointed a commissioner with full power to compel parties obstructing the allowance for road between concessions 6 and 7 with fences from lots 7 to lots 15, both inclusive, and also from off the allowance for road between lots 10 and 11, through the west half of concession 6 and the east half of concession 7. By-law No. 433, detaching lot 18, in concession 3, from S. S. No. 6 and attaching the same to S. S. No. 4, for school purposes, received the required number of readings and passed. The Collector's bonds for the current year were ordered to be placed in the custody of the Treasurer for safe keeping. A committee composed of the whole Council was appointed, to meet on Friday, April 17th, at 8 o'clock, a.m., for the purpose of drafting by-laws with regard to tree planting, &c. Orders on Treasurer:—William Leahy, $2, for 2 days work in repairing portion of D. Road; W. H. Down, $3, for one cord of wood supplied to John Casey, as charity; the Clerk, $25, part of salary for the current year; M. McFadden, $12, for half dozen of chairs for use of Council room. The Clark and Reeve were authorised to procure a map of the township, with the several school sections properly defined thereon. Council adjourned till May 25th, then to meet as a Court of Revision on the assessment rolls of the municipality.

BRITAIN'S MILITARY MARINE.

The following is a summary of the strength of the British navy in service, taken from an official statement made in September, 1884:

Ironclads	73
Steamers	339
Sailing vessels and transports	167
	579

The Russian fleet at the same time consisted of the following:

In the Baltic.

Ironclads	31
Armed steamers	37
Steamers	39
Sailing vessels	8
Torpedo boats	35
In the Black Sea.
Ironclads	7
Armed steamers	27
Steamers	22
Torpedo boats	16
In the Caspian, Aral, Siberia.
Armed steamers	20
Steamers	23
Torpedo boats	6
Total	305

Of these five were building. The fleet carried 893 guns; had a tonnage of 272,102, and an equipage of 25,806 sailors, marines, and officers. The Russian ironclads are principally plated with thin armour, and almost useless against improved guns.

Turnbull's has purchased one of the most handsome ranges of Lace Curtains the wholesale trade has shown this season: if you want beauty and price look for your Curtains at Turnbull's

BRITAIN'S MERCHANT MARINE.

Roughly speaking, one-half of the world's tonnage engaged in carrying the world's commerce on the high seas sails under the flag of Great Britain.

The sea-going merchant fleets of all nationalities aggregate about 56,000 vessels and about 22,000,000 tons. The tremendous preponderance of England in the carrying trade of the world and the order in which competing nations follow her long lead are shown in this table of approximate figures:

	Vessels.	Tons.
Great Britain	22,460	11,960,000
United States	6,000	2,700,000
Norway	4,000	1,200,000
Germany	2,000	1,400,000
France	2,000	1,100,000
Italy	2,000	1,000,000
Russia	2,000	600,000

If the comparison is confined to steamships the supremacy of Great Britain is exhibited in a still more striking way:

	Steam Vessels.	Tons.
All Nations	7,704	9,268,000
Great Britain	4,649	5,919,000
France	459	627,000
United States	422	601,000
Germany	420	476,000
Spain	208	305,000
Italy	125	166,000
Holland	127	155,000
Russia	194	140,000

POOR PERSECUTED O'DONOVAN ROSSA.

Persecuted O'Donovan Rossa! The villain still pursues him. While in Louisville a few days since he was confronted by a constable armed with a judgment writ for $66, alleged to be due for whiskey ever since the patriot ran a revolutionary gin mill in New York years ago. A bond was given and the unterrified Jerry was once more turned loose against the British empire. It is a plain inference that the case was worked up by England in order to prevent Rossa from helping Russia in the impending struggle, but old whisky bills cannot protect an effete monarchy from the decrees of fate.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE POOR.

"It all comes o' bein' poor," said an lady, trembling with indignation, to her sick husband. "I jist stepped in a minit as the Rich's to tell them as how you wasn't gettin' any better, and Mrs. Rich said she was sorry, and wanted me to bring you a bottle of wine." "Did you bring it?" asked the sick man eagerly. "No; I heard her say it had been layin' down in the cellar ever senoe 1865, an' when she offered it to me, I jist walked off without sayin' a word."

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of High Living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 37th and 38th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 23, 1885.

Straight Swindling.

Straight swindling is the name for it—no softer form of speech will apply. In the Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa on Friday there were made additional revelations of the manner in which bribery by printers' ink is done. It was shown that the Montreal Gazette, owned by Mr. Tom White, got Government printing to the amount of $19,772. In one case there were given five different orders for one pamphlet in six or eight months. Composition—setting the type—for these was changed four times. And this, too, when there are Government printers who have the work by contract and would have done the same work as that for which the Gazette "did" the country out of nearly $20,000, for about $1,400. Again, Rev. A. J. Bray received $5,000 for a catch-penny advertising pamphlet chiefly composed of puffs of Tory ministers and advertisements of business concerns. The title of the work was the "National Policy," and it is utterly useless to the country. Over $3,500 more was paid for it than it actually cost. This shameless practice of wasting public funds has gone so far that the Government printing contractors intend to bring suit for damages against the Government. And they have good grounds. The Government has taken thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of printing from the printing contractors and distributed it among their party newspapers in the form of bribes, paying them outrageously extravagant rates. Is it possible that newspapers thus bribed can see anything wrong in the vilest deeds of so generous a Government? No; they are willing to defend the blackest deeds, and, by lying flattery, give a quid pro quo for the money that has been stolen from the public chest for their benefit. With such wholesale squandering and extravagance of which the above is only a fractional part, is it any wonder that Sir Leonard Tilley, the Finance Minister, will, within the next three months, have to borrow fifty-eight million dollars. The country is taxed to the utmost, and but for such wicked extravagance taxation would furnish enough funds without borrowing. Heaven help this country!

Another Grab.

With the Riel outbreak in the Northwest, it did not seem to be so much the desire of the government to get the troops rapidly to the scene of the disturbance, as to bull the claims of the Canadian Pacific Railway to another gratuity from the Canadian strong box. The route over the eastern section of the Canadian Pacific Railway—a thing of shreds and patches—was a most unfortunate one. The delay was a very serious drawback. If a considerable body of troops could have been got into the Northwest ten days earlier, as could have been done by sending them through American territory, it is altogether probable that the Indian uprising, with its attendant bloodshed and pillage, would not have taken place; but the delay has given the emissaries of Reil a chance to work up the impressible Indian mind, and to bring about a rising of the Indians which is the worst feature of the Northwest trouble. But the sensible suggestion of getting the troops promptly on the ground was ignored by the government. It must be shown that the Canadian Pacific was a great national convenience at this time, no matter how much the troops suffered in the dreary march; no matter how many brave fellows took their death thereby in the form of consumptions and rheumatism; no matter if the main body of the force was more fatigued and broken up by the march than they would be by a three months campaign under ordinary conditions. The Syndicate needed help, the country was indisposed to give it, and if the purpose could be served of reconciling the country by showing the necessity of the road round Lake Superior, the sufferings of the volunteers, and the grevious delay, would not only count for nothing but be a boon to the Syndicate; and the best possible use is to be made of the circumstances. A day has been selected for a Tory caucus, to discuss the terms of a new "arrangement," which of course means more money—with the Canadian Pacific Railway. This is a great breach of faith. Last session on the occasion of the $30,000,000 "steal," the country had the assurance of Sir Charles Tupper that that gigantic grab would be "positively the last time of asking." On the strength of that assurance, many conscientious Tory members voted for the steal, who would not, under other circumstances, have done so. At the beginning of the present session Sir John stated that no legislation affecting the Canadian Pacific would be introduced this term. Sir John was either romancing or he intends to give the Syndicate some great advantages without consulting parliament. He is equal to breaking his word or acting without the consent of Parliament. It is well known that the company is demanding better terms and it is well known that Sir John has not the backbone to resist their demands. It is certain that a surprise—if any political iniquity by the present Tory majority at Ottawa can be a surprise—awaits the country. Wait till the fag-end of the session when there will be no chance for parliamentary or public discussion, and a bill to make another give-away to the Pacific Railway company will be sprung upon the House.

The Dominion Franchise Bill.

Evidence has been accumulating for a long time of the fact that a general Dominion election is imminent, and the Franchise Bill which received its second reading in Parliament last Thursday is another strong proof. The new Dominion Franchise Bill is Sir John's creation, which fact gives one a good insight into its real character. Its paternity forbids the hope that there is anything broad and statesmanlike or fair and equitable about it. It is, in fact, the complement of the Gerrymander, designed to bring about what that excellent iniquity failed to accomplish. It is a mere electioneering expedient and its iniquitious nature may be judged when it is known that even Sir John is so ashamed of it that he had not the face to give any explanation of it when he moved its second reading. Familiarity with horrors tends to wear off one's sensitiveness; and, to reconcile his followers to the Franchise Bill, Sir John has tried to make them familiar with its features. It was introduced in the session of '83 and dropped after the first reading. It was again introduced in 1884 and, after the House got a little used to it, again withdrawn. It was introduced again this session, and, seeing that an election is probably pending, it must be pushed through this time. From his failure to make any explanations he evidently intends his followers to "go it blind," which they will need to do if they have the least atom of conscience left. The Bill has a double object; the first is to so provide for manipulation of the voters' lists as to "dish the Grits." This is done by means of the "revising barristers," who, being all good Tories, will, of course, work the assessment rolls in the interests of their party. Another truly Tory object is to find offices for party adherents, and to reward them richly. The Franchise Bill as proposed will be an expensive affair; the fees of the revising barristers and their assistants will amount to over $100,000 a year, but as this is to be distributed among the faithful, and will operate as a direct bribe, it will be considered, from a party point of view, as money well invested. It is plain to see that it will be a very great advantage to the Government to have two or three hundred revising barristers in pay, who will not hesitate as to the length they will go to strike off Reformers' names from the voters' lists and substitute those which will "vote right." With such machinery to aid them, with a paid press to defend, and even turn into virtues, its bad deeds, the Government hopes to be sustained by the vote of the "people" it has created. As an election approaches we shall hear more talk of a new Postoffice and more work to be done on the Trent Valley Navigation. The present Government doesn't care whether the bribery is direct or indirect, so long as the object of keeping in office is accomplished. The Franchise Bill is purposely brought up late in the session, when the attention of Parliament is distracted with the North-West rising, and no doubt the "brute majority" will push it through Parliament.

"Arbor Day."

The Minister of Education for Ontario, Hon. G. W. Ross, has appointed Friday, the 8th of May, a general school holiday to be set apart for the special purpose of tree planting by the school children of the province. "Arbor Day," is a Yankee "institution," but it is one in respect of which Canadians may well practise the Roman motto, ne sit ea ab hoste docori. In tree planting and the adornment of hamlet and home, incidental to the observance of that day, the Americans are far ahead of us. Canada is feeling greviously the effect of wholesale destruction of tree life,—our rainfall is decreasing and becoming fitful, the soil is becoming arid, our streams are becoming dry and the water instead of flowing in grateful and fertilizing streams through the land is lost by evaporation. The best way to remedy the evils of deforesting and renew our tree life is educating public sentiment, and the best way to do this is to begin with the young. The older people have heretofore regarded the forest tree as their natural enemy, to be got rid of, burned at the stake, or sawn asunder, before the land can be tilled. This feeling does not die out in one generation. A love of trees for their utility first, and then for their beauty, should be instilled into the young. Keeping Arbor Day or a day for planting trees about school grounds, will tend to effect this. Let each pupil have a tree of his own about the grounds; let him or her be responsible for its care and safe keeping, let a personal proprietary interest be developed. Thus an interest in trees will be aroused; from interest will spring fondness for trees, and thus every pupil will go from school into active life a lover of trees, and and an active agent in the reparation of the damage done by forest destruction. If even one forest tree were planted every year for each head of our population, it would not be long before many a blank hillside, and treeless stretch of arid plain would be clothed upon with umbrageous beauty, and the even course of nature in timely rainfall and freshening streams of perennial flow, would be to a great extent restored.

Grip sums up the result of the conspiracy trial very briefly and pointedly. Wilkinson, Bunting, Meek and Kirkland are represented as dancing with glee at their acquittal, and screaming: "We're innocent! We're innocent! We'd never have believed it if the jury hadn't said so."

Afraid of the Light.

In the House on Monday Hon. Mr. Blake called attention to the fact that there were many important papers omitted from the returns respecting North-West matters. The truth is that Sir John is afraid to let in the full light upon his past administration of North-West affairs. He is not only afraid of the Opposition, but fearful that his own supporters cannot help condemning the incompetence and reckless mismanagement that has characterized the administration of the Departments of the Interior and Indian affairs. The circle is narrowing.

Not Acquitted of Bribery.

The Bribery Plot culprits, Bunting, Wilkinson, Meek and Kirkland, and their friends, the Tory party, are vastly jubilant over their so-called acquittal. But their's is only a technical escape. The jury that acquitted them did not clear them of bribery, but only of the charge of conspiracy to bribe. The full advantage was taken of the quibble. The jury were all agreed that they were bribers. The foreman of the jury in the Conspiracy case sends a letter to the press over his own signature, refuting the statement of the Mail that the verdict means that the jury cleared Bunting, Wilkinson, Meek and Kirkland of the charge of bribery. He says they were all agreed that they were bribers and that they were only acquitted of what is called "conspiracy."

Sir John's Big Backdown.

The Chieftain has surrendered. On Monday, in the House, he assented to the resolution of Mr. Cameron, of Huron, to suspend the portions (nearly the whole) of the Dominion License Act declared void by the Supreme Court. This leaves tavern, shop and saloon licenses entirely in the hands of the Ontario Government. Therefore, the bogus Dominion licenses, taken out by trusting dealers, are "not worth the paper they are written on," and all holders of them will have to take out Ontario licenses or quit the business. Don't the Licensed Victuallers begin to see that what Sir John don't know about constitutional law would make a pretty big book, and that their trusting to his friendship is costing them a vast deal of trouble, annoyance and expense? "Trust him not, he is fooling thee."

Where the Blame Does Not Lie.

There is a plain disposition on the part of the defenders of the Government to place the blame for the state of affairs in the North-West on the wrong shoulders. They know that Sir John has been allowing his understrappers in the Indian Department to have things their own way, in their own interests, and that he is responsible for the evil that has arisen from the incompetent bungling of Lieut.-Governor Dewdney. Sir David Macpherson has been running the Department of the Interior, or, rather, that Department has been running him. When the Reform papers gave these facts to the public and not till then did the Conservative journals try to saddle the blame on Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's shoulders. The London Advertiser, whose editor, Hon. David Mills, was Minister of the Interior during Mr. Mackenzie's regime, speaks thus authoritatively in regard to Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's responsibility:

"The half-breeds of the plains were not settled down upon the lands during Mr. Mackenzie's regime, nor was there a settlement of the white population within 200 miles of any lands where they had been located, with the single exception of the half-breed settlement in the neighborhood of Prince Albert. A special survey was pushed on in that direction as rapidly as possible. Mr. George Duck, formerly of Chatham, was appointed land agent at that point to obtain information upon the claims of the half-breeds, and he opened books there for local office so that the claims might receive entry. Surveys were made there in 1878 during the last year of the Mackenzie Administration, the earliest period at which it was possible to reach this location. The half-breeds in the vicinity of the Qu'Appelle lakes, which was nearly 300 miles from the most westerly settler, and considerably distant from any surveyed territory, were assured that they would not be disturbed in their settlements. Steps were taken to make them all to locate at fixed points instead of wandering over the plains. Major Walsh was appointed to obtain information upon the subject, and urge them to decide where they desired to locate before the settlers obtained the country. The North-West Council obtained information upon the subject, and made a report to the Government in the following year. The Government introduced an Act, taking power to settle with the half-breed claims, and it does not seem from the present condition of things, that any steps were taken to exercise the power which Parliament had conferred from that day to this. The Government of Mr. Mackenzie were not in a position to deal with the question before going out of office. The present Government have been in a position to deal with the question for some time, certainly during the past three years. They have been in office for seven years, and notwithstanding that this has been over and over again pressed upon their attention no action has been taken."

Had Mr. Mackenzie remained in power the work begun by him would have been satisfactorily finished, and such is not the opinion of Reformers only but of some Conservatives of the most orthodox faith.

Editorial Notes.

Sir John's odious and unjust Franchise Bill was brought up at three successive sessions of Parliament, with the idea of familiarising his supporters with its repellant features, on the principle indicated by Pope:

"Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As, to be hated, needs but to be seen;
Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace"

—and vote for it.

Up to date the loss of life through the North-west rebellion amounts to thirty-five, and a long list of about thirty sick and wounded. Is the lust of the retention of office by a Tory administration, the prime cause of the trouble, to be for one moment weighed against the desolation by death of even one Canadian home? If the Government had paid the slightest attention to the proper administration of Northwest matters all this loss of life might have been averted.

In addition to his regular salary as judge, Judge Clarke, of Cobourg, has received since 1880; as C. P. R. Commissioner, $9,067; as Intercolonial R. R. Commissioner, $7,660, and as arbitrator in "Section B" matter $1,200, in all $18,027. Can a judge, if called upon to adjudicate upon a matter in which the political interest of the party which pays him so liberally is involved, be assumed to act impartially? If Judge Clarke can do so he is more than human. But he is human, and a Tory besides. Judge Clarke is a great pet of Sir John's, and Sir John is never particularly friendly to any man unless he can make use of him. It appears that Judge Clarke is so useful to him that he retains his services at the rate of about $4,000 per year. Judge Clarke cannot earn this sum per year and attend to his judicial duties, yet his salary as judge goes on, although a junior judge has to be employed to do his work. Now, he is to be appointed to a position in the Court of Claims, an entirely unnecessary new court, instituted for the purpose of giving position and pap to Government supporters.

The Government cannot claim that its extreme ideas of economy have tended to produce the muddle in North-West affairs that now exists and has long since existed. The country pays enough to have the affairs of the North-West administered in a thoroughly first-class and efficient manner. Since 1878 the expenditure has increased about fifty per cent. There are now employed in the Department of the Interior 64 clerks and messengers; whereas, there were employed only 25 in 1878. Yet with this largely increased staff, with a largely increased expenditure, nothing connected with the North-West has been attended to properly. On the other hand, incompetence, neglect and overt wrong have worked up a rebellion whose suppression, before the first shot is fired, has cost a cool million of dollars.

At the previous election in West Northumberland, Roddy Pringle indulged in bets to elect the Tory candidate. His bets cost his candidate his seat, and this time Roddy turned his attention to "hoss" flesh. All during the recent election Roddy was engaged in buying horses for the government—and incidentally, of course, votes for the government candidate. Recently Roddy was engaged in selecting minerals for the Antwerp Exhibition, but he scented an election, dropped his mineralising and hied him to the scene of more congenial labours. It would be interesting to know what prices Roddy paid. Trust the Tory party to turn even calamity to purposes of bribery. The incompetence of the government, leading to the Riel rising, made them unpopular, but they used this occasion to secure votes—used the people's money to suppress an expression of indignation at the polls. The people, like Byron's eagle, figuratively,

"Viewed its own feather on the fatal dart,
And winged the shaft that quivered in its heart."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Allan Huffman, of Belleville, is in town.

Mr. J. H. Roger has been absent this week in Montreal.

Mr. H. Gale, of Gale Bros, West Durham News Bowmanville, gave us a call on Tuesday.

Mr. Wm. Lasher has returned to Peterborough from the Northwest, where he has been passing the winter.

Right Rev. Father Jamot has been out of town the past several days holding confirmation services in Cobourg and Port Hope.

Mr C. McGill, of Ontario Bank, has been appointed Treasurer of the West Peterboro' Agricultural Society in the stead of James Campbell, resigned.

The Campbellford Herald, gives great praise to the singing of Miss Begley and Mr. M. Dunn, at the Roman Catholic Concert held in that place.

Rev. Mr. Munro's popularity as a lecturer is becoming more than a local reputation. He delivered his fine lecture on "Models for Life from Life," in the College street Baptist Church, Toronto, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. G. S. Peck, formerly paymaster of the Midland R. R., was in town on Tuesday. He is now a resident of Port Hope. He has returned to his old love, and is in the service of the G. T. R., as tracer of lost goods.

Mr. Wm. Loch has returned from his visit to Germany, greatly improved in health, we are glad to learn, by his trip. During his two months absence Mr. Loch visited East Prussia, his birthplace, and the principal cities in Germany.

Rev. Mr. McLennan, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, has been in town visiting friends the past week. His many friends were pleased to see him. He preached in St. Andrew's in the morning and in St. Paul's Church in the evening.

New Tapestry Carpets at Turnbull's bought at a big discount call and see them, you will be pleased with the prices.

Curling Record.

During the past season the Peterborough Curling Club played nineteen foreign matches of which they won eleven.

Brantford Demonstrates.

Brantford will be the scene of a grand Fireman's Demonstration on June 3rd. The Peterborough Fire Brigade have been invited, but have not yet decided as to their action in the matter.

St. Andrew's Church.

We wish to remind the Ladies of the sale of aprons and other useful articles which will be disposed of in St. Andrew's school room on Thursday, 23rd inst., in the afternoon and evening, commencing at 3 o'clock. Admission lots. Refreshments extra. 17-1t

Saccharine Soiree.

On Friday night the Floral Club gave an interesting entertainment in Charlotte Street Methodist Church. Hot maple sugar had a magnetic effect in drawing attendance, and a fine programme of music, readings etc., was presented.

Foreign Missions.

On Thursday evening, Miss Harvey, Secretary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, delivered a most interesting address to a large audience in the School Room of St, Paul's Church. She gave a very encouraging report of the work and progress of the society.

Sermon to Oddfellows.

On Sunday next, April 26th, Peterborough Oddfellows will celebrate the sixty-fifth anniversary of the institution of the order. Rev. Mr. Munro will preach a sermon in Murray Street Baptist Church, which the members of the order will attend in a body.

West Peterborough Licenses.

The West Riding Comissioners have granted licenses to the following:—Peterborough, Oriental Hotel, Grand Central, Phelan Hotel, Stewart House, Croft House, Morgan House, Commercial, American House, Royal Oak and Canadian Pacific; other applications are sub judice.

St. Paul's Church Reopening.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's church desire to call the attention of the public to their proposed sale of useful and fancy articles on Monday afternoon, 4th of May. A social and organ recital will be held in the evening. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock. Further particulars will be given later.

The Cricket Club Reorganized.

At a meeting of the Cricket Club held at the Grand Central on Tuesday evening, the 21st inst., the following officers were elected:—

C. A. Weller,—Pres.
Dr. Burnham.—1st Vice President.
T. Rutherford.—2nd Vice President.
J. E Hammond.—Secy. Treas.
Committee.—Messrs. Rackham, Hatton, Stratton, Cooper and M. Hamilton. The Club joined the Amateur Athletic Association.

Queen's Birthday Sports.

The Peterborough Athletic Association has nothing bucolic in its composition, that is it, doesn't let any grass grow under its feet. Only fairly organized, it intends to celebrate the Queen's Birthday in a becoming manner. The association has secured the Cricket grounds, Ashburnham, and added to their size, and will on Monday, May 25th, present a splendid programme of sports and games, open to the general public and members of the association. Don't make your engagements for that day till you see the programmes, which will be issued in a few days. God save the Queen!

East Riding Licenses.

At the meeting of the Board of East Riding License Commissioners held last Saturday, the following were recommended for licenses for the license year of 1885-6:—

TAVERN LICENSES.—D. Young, Mrs.- Ann Swanson, and Geo. Lipsett, Ashburnham; John Holmes, Burleigh; W. P. Gray, Apsley; James Bertraud, Burleigh; Mrs Eunice Tully, Warsaw; Malcolm McGregor, Norwood; Annie Brennan, Norwood; John Gall, Keene; Michael Kenneally, Keene; Elizabeth Smith, Otonabee, and A. D. Faucher, Otonabee.

SHOP LICENSES.—W. H. Mullins, Norwood; G. G. Pope, Ashburnham; John Garvey, Ashburnham, and J. C. Sullivan, Ashburnham. There were in all twenty-six applications. Two were not entertained, and several were held over for consideration at the meeting to be held in the Cox Block, Peterborough on Saturday next, April 25th.

Precocious Vegetation.

On Saturday morning our reporter paid a visit to "Cordach," the surburban farm of Mr. G. M. Roger, one of the most pleasant and conveniently situated examples of a genuine rus in urbe to be found anywhere. The chief point of interest at this time of year was the green house. Here, with the snow lying outside in frequent patches on the frost-bound fields, was tropical luxuriance of growth. Within the green house, in thrifsy growth, are 800 varieties of flower and vegetable plants, consisting of seedlings for bedding, potting plants propagated from cuttings, early vegetables and a large variety of flowers of all kinds, including a beautiful and rare plant, the Bermuda lily, in full and snowy flower. On Saturday morning the head gardener, Mr. Arthur Slade, who very creditably fills the position, was preparing for market a fine supply of glass grown rhubarb and lettuce. A peep into this green house shows what extensive preparations are made for gardening and supplying the demand for bedding plants and flowers. Though bleak and uninviting at present, in their transition state, the fertile acres of "Cordach" will in a month or two present a scene of filth and bloom and beauty that will make it well worth a visit. Mr. Roger is a rare enthusiast in floriculture and horticulture, and under his inspiration "Cordach" is yearly assuming new and matured beauty.

Call and see Turnbull's magnificent display of Trimmed Millinery, opening days Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

SPAULDING'S BAY.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Some time ago a great deal was said about Spaulding's Bay and the state it was in and what an enormous amount it would take to fill it up, which would thus prevent any dangerous odors from it, &c.

I have one suggestion to make, perhaps it has been made before, I do not know, and that is, that a dam might be constructed at its outlet, under George street, and raise the level of the water and cover up all the present half-submerged land and rubbish. This would prevent any dangers for the present and depositions would take place continually and tend to fill it up, and, on the whole, I think no serious results could come from it.

Yours truly,
B. A. LUDGATE.

Toronto, 15 Henry St., April 5, 1885.

HON. M. V. WAGNER, Mayor of Marshall, Mich., has a large stock farm adjacent to the city, with upward of forty breed mares and a fine lot of well-bred young horses and colts. He also owns the celebrated stallions Black Cloud, Recorder, Strathmore Jr., and Comanche Chief. Wilkes Spirit of the Times says that Mayor Wagner is one of the leading breeders of his State, and a gentleman of experience, and the Turf, Field and Farm adds that Mr. Wagner is doing much for the breeding interest of Michigan. "Besides being Mayor of the City and superintending his stock farm, Mr. Wagner gives personal attention to the business of the Voltaic Belt Co., in which he is a large stockholder. This company under his judicious management and care has built up a very large trade both at home and abroad. It all shows what one man of enterprise can accomplish.

Statesman's Stimulants.

A reporter of the Washington Critic interviewed the bar-tender of the National Hotel in that city, and obtained the following information regarding the favorite beverages of Senators, Representatives and other prominent men at the capital:—

"What seems to be the favorite drink nowadays?"

"That depends upon the section of country that the customers come from, as a rule. Now, a New England man likes rum; the Eastern man whisky, while the Southern and Western men are heavy on mixed drinks. Men differ, however in their tastes. There was old Senator Bogy. I could always tell what he wanted and when he came in I would set it out without asking a question—gin and sugar was his drink. Senator Ferry never came in the bar, but he was a great drinker of sherry in his room. Davis, of West Virginia, generally took straight whisky; he was not much of a drinker, though. Judge Davis never came in the bar, but had sherry and whisky sent to his room. Maxey, of Texas never takes anything stronger than a lemonade. Coke takes sugar and whisky. Bayard takes the same. Pendleton is very fond of a whisky punch. Jones, of Florida never mixes anything with his. He takes whisky and drinks it out of a water glass, having an aversion to small ones. Jonas and Vest, as a rule, take it with a little sugar. Eaton, of Connecticut, was pretty regular. He sometimes took whisky but most generally wine. He seldom came in with any one. He would drink a small bottle of Mumm's extra dry, pay for it and walk out. There was old Senator Dave Armstrong of Missouri. He always took whisky and lemon, forty drops. Lapham, of New York would always start on whisky, but there was no telling what he would wind up on. John B. Clark, of Missouri generally took it straight. So did Van Horne. Proctor Knott never mixed it, and always wanted Old Bourbon. Page, of California, and George of Oregon as a rule, took straight whisky. The great objector, Mr. Holman, used sugar and water. Alexander Stephens never came into the bar-room though he was a regular drinker. He carried al ittle eight ounce vial of the very best whisky in his pocket. General Phil Cook, of Georgia is one of the most jovial Congressmen that comes in here. Het akes a little sugar in his whisky."

"How is it that none of them drink beer?"

"Very few of the old time fellows drink beer, especially those from the South. The young men are the beer drinkers."

"Did you ever see Judge Edmunds in here?"

"Oh, yes, on a few occasions he and Senator Anthony and Ben. Perley Poole would drop in. They always took straight whisky." Senator Beck is a great lover of Scotch whisky, and Senator Williams of a wishky toddy."

"It doesn't appear that any of our statesmen indulge in fancy drinks?"

"No, sir. If you want to see fancy drinks demolished, you just watch a crowd of young bloods from the South and West get up to the counter. There may be half a dozen in the crowd, and each of them will take a different fancy drink."

Probably Didn't.

The other day, when the bears got hold of Western Union, a countryman, who stood for a moment at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets to listen to the excited remarks of two "longs," felt compelled to interrupt them with:

"Gentlemen, I beg pardon, but is the Western Union Telegraph Company in trouble?"

"Stock is being forced down, sir," was the snappy reply of one of the speculators.

"Du tell! Why, the wires of that company not only run right past my farm, but my oldest darter is married to a telegraph operator, and Susan, she's as good as engaged to the smartest pole climber I ever saw swarm up a telegraph pole. I guess I'll drop around and ask the company if it doesn't want $50 to kind o' tide 'em over the crisis. If they do, they kin have it fur sixty days without interest."

THE WICKEDEST CITY IN CANADA.

The western portion of Canada is very "smart" and progressive but it is also very wicked. Witness the Biddulph tragedy and other horrors of that ilk. The City of St. Thomas is however, facile princeps inter pares. Witness the Bill of Fare at the Spring Assizes begun in that city on Monday. The Spring Assizes, will be the most important court ever held in the county. The number of both civil and criminal cases set down for trial is unusually large. In view of the large crowds which are expected to attend the court, Sheriff Brown has decided to issue tickets, those who have them being the only persons to be allowed to enter the room during the progress of the murder trials. The criminal docket comprises the cases of Ransom Forbes, Sarah Jane Stillwell, Jane Forbes, Albert Thomas and Samuel Mitchell murder; Thos. Spellman, arson; J. Spear, Duncan Cameron, J. Scott and F. Lewis, forgery; and D. Connell and W. Smack, perjury.

CHAPTER I.

"After all, Lucy, it is not such a very difficult journey. It is only a hundred miles or so, and there is no change; and if you only sit still and take care not to get your fingers jammed in the doorway, I really cannot see what harm can happen to you."

"Hush, Auntie! Do, please; I am not quite a baby!" And as she said this, the speaker, a pretty, shy-looking girl of 18, glanced anxiously at an old gentleman who was sitting in the far corner of the carriage, to see if he had heard her aunt's counsels and fears, and if he thought them two silly women not fit to travel, and not very well able to take care of themselves. The old gentleman had his Times, his Saturday Review, and Spectator on his knee and looked placidly benignant. It was doubtful if he had heard Aunt Esther's hints—if he had, they did not appear to stir any emotions of contempt.—Lucy turned back to the window and Aunt Esther, who was now gazing earnestly and anxiously in her face.

"Dear child," said she, "I am feeling very uncomfortable, I do so wish I had just left everything and gone with you. I shall not know a happy moment till I hear the train has got safely to Litchfield. And, Lucy, have you got the stamped envelope I gave you?—the one I addressed for you, you know?" recommenced Aunt Esther, and then she sighed her relief as Lucy produced it. "Ah, yes, you have it; but Lucy, darling—here—give a porter this shilling to put the envelope in the post for you. There is sure to be a letter-box in the station, but mind you watch him do it; stand and watch him, dear, and see the letter drop in."

"Yes, yes, Aunt," whispered Lucy. "But how can you be so anxious? Everyone will think——"

"I am anxious, I can't help it; and, Lucy, you promise me faithfully you will write every——"

"The train is going," cried Lucy. "Oh, do take care! Good-bye! Yes, I will write." And in a minute more it started, and all that Aunt Esther could do was to stand and look after the great iron monster as it shrieked and tore away with her treasure.

Lucy looked down, and for some time she thought of no one but "poor, dear Aunt Esther;" then she enjoyed the prospect of the happy days and weeks which lay before her; and then, before settling down to her railway novel, she glanced at her companion, but to her horror and amazement his eyes were fixed on her face and they were full of kindness and interest. Lucy blushed. She felt as if she had been detected in trying to espy some secret of his. He did not turn away—he looked encouraging.

"You have not made many journeys alone, lady?" said he.

"No, not even one until to-day."

"If I can be of any service to you, you must command me," he continued. Lucy looked at his white hair, and thought it would not be quite fair if she in her bright youth were to impose many tasks on his seventy and odd years.

"I am even older than you perhaps think," said he, "but still I am not too old to do anything you may ask me."

"But how do you know what I was thinking?" inquired Lucy, very simply.

"You were thinking 'poor, old man, he is seventy, at least;' but, lady, I am seventy-eight; and the reason that I know what you are thinking is because you are the kind of person whose thoughts I do understand a little—I mean better than I understand the thoughts of most people."

Lucy drew back. She thought this was an odd way to talk, and that it was not very nice to be shut up in a railway-carriage for more than a hundred miles with a person who talked in an odd way.

"No, lady," said he, "do not think amiss of what I say. I will explain. When I was young I saw a great deal of—I mean I was very intimate with—a young lady of your age, and you are much more like her than anyone I have met during my whole long life."

Lucy was interested, much interested, but had the uncomfortable feeling that it was wrong to be so—that this old gentleman was "very strange and rude, and talked in a way that no one who was not an old, old friend, or a relation ought to talk, and that if Aunt Esther did but know;" but here she was interrupted.

"You are wrong again," said he. "I speak in a way you perhaps think strange but it is only because I talk frankly and naturally. I do not mean to shock or annoy you."

"Oh, no," began Lucy.

"Would you like to see the Spectator?" asked the stranger, and Lucy felt herself put in her place as a good little girl who was not quite grown up enough to be entitled to talk for any length of time to gentlemen, especially to very old ones, but who was not on that account to be cut off from all the tender charities of life. So she took her Spectator meekly, and turned its pages one by one, and tried to make herself think she liked the political articles, and was interested in the middles, and did not dislike the reviews; but being at that time not very fond of reading, she had but poor success. After about an hour, and not till then, she again looked up, and again saw the old gentleman's eyes scanning her face with an expression of intense but most melancholy pleasure. "I beg your pardon," said he, "I do, indeed, but I cannot help it; you really are so like her."

"Like whom?" said Lucy, rather impatiently.

"Like the young lady we were speaking of just now," said he, as if that were quite enough.

"But who was she?" inquired Lucy with increased, but on the whole well-concealed impatience.

"I was engaged to her," he replied.

Lucy was silent. She did not like to say, "Then why in the name of all that is sensible did you not marry her and leave me in peace?" but that was what she thought. He was quite silent, and as this silence lasted, she looked interrogatively into his face (he was now opposite). "She died," he said, and Lucy felt miserable.

"I do so beg your pardon," she stammered.

"No, no; it is altogether my fault, or would be if there were any fault. It does not hurt me to talk about her. I like it. It does me good—now, I mean. Twenty years ago I did not much like to speak of her; forty years ago I could not have done it for the world; but I can talk well enough now. Why, consider, it won't be long before I see her."

Lucy wondered if he were mad. She was afraid he was—almost sure that he was.

"No, lady," said he, "I am not mad—don't start, or be vexed. It is because you are so like her—so truly like her, that I know what you are thinking—other people may think what they like, or do what they like, it makes no difference to me. I know and care nothing about it; old as I am, I know your thoughts—you are of her sort."

"I do so wish I were not," was Lucy's first thought, for he oppressed her; then she was ashamed of herself. "It must have been a great grief," said she, and then she despised herself for her commonplace and inadequate sympathy.

"A grief! Yes, of course it was a grief, but it happened fifty years ago."

"Fifty years ago! Lucy sighed. Fifty years hence where would she be? Now she was whirling away to pay a pleasant visit, and her life had known no sorrow. When she looked backwards her thoughts dwelt on happy, tranquil days, unclouded by any shadow—when she looked forward there was a prospect of happiness without end, for she was going to her sister's at Hazlewood, near Litchfield, and when there she would have two balls, and some picnics and archery meetings, and best of all, she would often see Robert Merivale, and she sometimes ventured to think that Robert Merivale cared very much to see her. While enjoying these anticipations, she remembered the old gentleman opposite and his lost love of fifty years ago, and that there was much pain and misery in this world of ours—what if some of it came to her? She felt very sorry for him—and said kindly, "Will you tell me something about her?". Whereupon he told her in perfectly simple words the story of his love and loss.

As he spoke she liked him more and more, and before he had finished she found herself wishing she was his daughter, or anyone who might have the privilege of comforting him. She was very silent, very quiet, but two or three big tears rolled down her face. He made no apparent demand on her sympathy; he told his story quietly, but he knew that she felt for him. "So," said he, "all that was left for me to do, was to go patiently through life, trying to make some other lives happier than mine had been. I spend most of my time in Cumberland—I like being there." Then he described his home there, until Lucy felt as if she had never seen such scenery before; and then, and by this time they were quite good friends, he said, "Now tell me something about yourself."

"I seem to have so little to tell," said Lucy. "I live with the aunt you saw.—We live at Highgate. I have neither father nor mother, nor anyone but aunt Esther and one sister. My father and my mother died in India when we were babies and aunt Esther brought us up. Lettice married three years ago. She is very nice; not exactly as you would expect though, for she says such very odd things, just when you think she is looking on everything just as you do."

"What kind of things, lady? I like to have everything explained."

"I hardly know—worldly things, or worldly-wise things—she has what she calls tact, too; but she is older than I am, and knows all about what the world or society, or whatever it is which makes itself so disagreeable sometimes, expects you to do on all occasions. I like her husband immensely."

"And does he know all about the world?" asked the old gentleman, smiling.

"I daresay he does, but he does not go on about it so, and he is always trying to be kind to everyone. He knows I am dull at home, so he has been planning all kinds of pleasures for me."

"But are you dull at home?" he asked, for this was the very first sign of dissatisfaction with the world as it was that Miss Lucy had shown.

"I dull! Certainly not! Lettice and her husband are always telling me I must be dull, and when I stay with them and find dances and picnics and garden parties going on every day, I begin to think myself I must have had a very dull life at home, but when I go back I have no time to think of such a thing."

"But what do you do?"

"I draw and paint and garden—for we have a great big garden, three times the size of our drawing-room—and I practice and work, and we have books from Mudie's—I can't tell you what I do, but I am very happy."

"And you have no anxieties, no disappointments?"

"I was very anxious a week or two since when we lost our dog, but it came home three days afterward with a bit of rope tied round its neck; that is the only anxiety I ever had; but I have plenty of disappointments, for nearly everything I plant in the garden dies!"

Lucy was becoming more and more confidential, when all at once she caught sight of a large country house about a mile from the railway, with trees behind it, and gardens and shrubberies in front, and on this she fixed her gaze so earnestly that she entirely forgot to finish one of her sentences.

"We are very near Litchfield now," said she, when this place was out of sight, "for that house is only six miles off."

The old gentleman had been watching her eager little face all the while with an amused smile. "Whose property is that?" he asked.

Simple Miss Lucy looked up quite surprised that he had noticed her interest in it and said—"Sir Richard Merivale's."

"And he is one of your 'best' partners, then, is he?"

'Sir Richard Merivale! Why he is old and gouty and the crossest man in the world!"

"Then his son or his nephew is?"

Lucy blushed—this old man was too clever by half. "But," he continued, "if we are so near Litchfield I am afraid I shall soon lose the pleasure of your company. How long did you say you were going to stay here?"

"Exactly three months—in just three months from this very day, I am, if all goes well; to return home to Aunt Esther."

"This is the 15th of June."

"Yes, and I am to go back on the 15th of September. The time is fixed so exactly, because Katie Williams—a friend of mine—is to be married on the 17th, and I am to be one of the bridesmaids."

"The 15th of September"—repeated the old gentleman. "Well, it is quite possible that I may be returning from Cumberland about that very time—if so, I'll remember the day and come then. We should no doubt travel by the same train. What time do you start?"

"At three o'clock in the afternoon, generally."

"Keep to your day, lady. I'll remember it, and if your sister is with you it will be so much the better. I should like to see her too."

"She is almost certain to be with me—she and Katie are great friends."

The old gentleman took out his note-book and wrote "September 15." Then he said "My name is Hugh Kenrick; I have the disadvantage of having two homes, one in London, which I have just left, and the other at Calderwater. That's where I am going—go where I will, though, I am alone."

Lucy looked up—she did not like to say it, but she was thinking, "It is odd that you should be so much alone when you are so very free about making acquaintances."

"No, he said, "I am always alone. If I have spoken to you I do not speak to everyone. I've told you why I was drawn to you. Now, while I have my pencil ready, tell me your name—I have told you mine."

"My name is Lucy Ilderton."

"Daughter of——"

"Daughter of Major-General Lewis Ilderton, who died when I was a baby—oh, I told you that before."

And you live——"

"At No. 6 Beatrice Villas, Highgate, with my aunt, Miss Esther Moore."

All that went down in the note-book.—"Well, said he, if we do not travel home together this day three months, perhaps I may some day see you in London—that is if good Miss Esther Moore will permit it—but who knows what may happen in three months?"

"Who, indeed!" thought Lucy; but her wonders were sent in a brighter direction than his.

They bade each other farewell. The train stopped, a pretty young matron of one-and-twenty clasped Lucy in a sisterly embrace, and when, after a minute or so devoted to the joy of this meeting, Lucy remembered Mr. Kenrick, and said—"Oh, Lettice, I should so like to introduce you to an old gentleman I have traveled with from London."

Mrs. Lettice only said hurriedly—"But your luggage, Lucy—ought we not to think of that?"

"Indeed, yes," cried Lucy, and with a glance at that venerable white head, and a smile of farewell, she hastened to the van.

CHAPTER II.

Lucy's three month's leave of absence was almost over. The 14th of September had come, and on the 15th she was to return to London and Aunt Esther. Her visit had been a very happy one, a very gay one, too, and even the gayety was not quite at end, for this very night there was to be a large ball at Hazelwood, her brother-in's house. Robert Merivale was coming to it. He had been constantly at Hazlewood since Lucy's arrival, so constantly that there was no difficulty in guessing that his visits had a definite object. But no guessing was needed, for his courtship was conducted so openly that it was quite an understood thing that he was very fond of Lucy, and Lucy did not attempt to conceal the pleasure that his society gave her. No one had said anything to her about his frequent visits. She was young and shy, and not like other girls, her sister, Mrs. Mostyn, said; other girls liked being teased about such things, Lucy did not. Still as this is the last day of her visit, and as this night must settle all, for Robert Merivale would certainly propose to her before she went, Mrs. Mostyn thought she might be allowed to say one little word to her own sister, and dashed into the subject at once.

"Well, Miss Lucy, you know best, but I cannot help thinking that your faithful Robert Merivale is very fond of you."

Lucy had humbly hoped the same for a long time. She hung her head; she did not know, she said, she had often wondered.

"You need not wonder much about a thing that is clear as daylight, cried her brisk sister. "I know all about affairs of this kind—of course I do. I tell you once for all, he is as fond of you as a man can be, and that he is certain to propose to you. There can be no doubt about that, and I should say that he intends to do it this very night."

"Oh, do hush, Lettice!" cried Lucy. "It is so horrible to talk in that way, or even to think——"

"Don't you think!" said the irrepressible married lady. "Who can help thinking? If people do not want you to think they should not behave in such a very marked manner. Why only last Tuesday I heard him——"

But Lucy ran away, to do something to her ball dress, she said, but in reality to escape from the outspoken lady downstairs, who put her own timid, half-thought-out thoughts into plain straightforward words.

Her dress, a very vaporous white one, was lying on her bed. She had never had a prettier. It wanted nothing—nothing wanted any attention but her thoughts, which were in a very bewildered state. "He must care for me!" said she to herself. I do believe I am the happiest girl in the world!"

It was quite true that ever since Lucy came to Hazlewood, Robert Merivale had showed her such attention that no one could misunderstand it. He had told her that he cared more for her good opinion than for that of anyone else in the world; that he could only be said to live when in her presence; that at other times he merely waited in dull impatience until his next period of real life came. Did people feel in this way about people, unless they loved them? If all he said—nay, if half he said—were true, would he not always try to keep her with him?—He was his own master—he had neither father nor mother, but when not staying with his uncle lived on his own little property some twenty miles further to the north. She was poor, she knew, but he was not, and he had no hard-hearted father to remind him of her short-comings in the way of fortune, and she was a lady by birth and education. There was nothing to prevent them from being happy, and Aunt Esther should come to live with them and be happy too.

While Lucy was sitting thus in her own room, dreaming away the afternoon, a note was put in her sister's hand. It was from Mr. Robert Merivale, and ran as follows:—

Joseph Husan, Percy, writes: "I was induced to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lameness which troubled me for three or four years, and I found it the best article I ever used. It has been a great blessing to me." Friends may imitate Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in appearance and name, but in everything else they are dead failures.

TO ASSIST NATURE most effectually in her efforts to throw off or resist serious disease, it is essential that an laxative should be given to functions which growing ill health suspends or weakens, namely, the action of the bowels, kidneys, pores, and liver. Often-times, though this is indispensable, by the use of ordinary remedies, it proves an easy task when Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is resorted to.

The Secret Out.

The secret of success of Burdock Blood Bitters is that it acts upon the bowels, the liver, the kidneys, the skin and the blood; removing obstructions and imparting health and vigor.

According to the Drug News, London fashion gives preference to heliotrope over all perfumes.

The enervation and lassitude of spring time are but indications of the sluggish action of the blood, over-loaded with carbonates accumulated by the use of heating food in winter. This condition may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier known.

Mother nature is reserving for herself a heap of work in May. If the old promise of seed time and harvest is to be fulfilled.

Well to Remember.

A stitch in time saves nine. Serious results oft follow a neglect of constipated bowels and bad blood. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate and purify the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and the blood. Take it in time.

Every precaution is being taken by the United States authorities to prevent the possible introduction of cholera from Europe.

The decided alterative action of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion upon the blood, adapts it in a remarkable degree as a blood purifier well worthy of the trial of those suffering from a diseased condition of the circulating fluid. Always ask for ROBINSON'S PHOSPHORIZED EMULSION, and be sure you get it. 17-2t

"If you've found a gentleman slaughtered in the city of Quebec, I'm the man.

"Thar it is!

"And a search of your pockets shows that you have neither ready cash nor drafts on New York. Have you a home to go to?"

The old man pointed to the direction of Heaven.

"Too far away," replied his Honor. "I shall be compelled to charge you with vagrancy."

"I'd like to put in a plea of insanity, your Honor."

"Very well, but I must inform you that insanity is no excuse in this court. How many are you?"

"Well, I have often felt it my duty to break show windows, upset baby-carts, and throw brick-bats at policemen."

"That's simply devilitry, and counts against you. Anything further?"

"Well, I sometimes feel like jumping into the river."

"That's because you have not had a good wash for three or four years. Go on."

"I sometimes feel inspired."

"That's nothing but the effects of beer or whisky. The difference between being gloriously inspired and gloriously drunk is generally too thin to be distinguished. I shall send you up for three months."

"How high up?"

"So high that you won't get down a day sooner than your sentence expires. It will be twenty-five minutes yet before the omnibus leaves, and if you want to astonish the world Bijah will hand you some bar-soap and a curry-comb and show you the wash-basin. Don't be afraid to bear right on hard, and if you need sand-paper don't hesitate to ask for it."—Detroit Free Press.

Flood Figures.

Anxiety and mental distress were depicted on every line of his face as he rushed into an office on New street, and called out:

"I tell you I'm right and I'll bet a thousand on it!"

"What is it?"

"My figures on the damages done by the late freshets from Pittsburg to New Orleans. I spent three whole hours this morning figuring up and I can't be wrong."

"What do you make the sum total?"

"I make it $6,283,245,113.

"I guess that's correct."

"Of course it is, and think of the gall of a broker across the way there contending that I am $7.04 off my base! He says I have counted in two calves and 20 rods of rail fence which were not swept away, but I don't believe it—no, sir, don't believe a word of it!"—Wall Street Daily News.

HUDSON BAY EXPLORATION.

It is said that the steamship Alert, the vessel built by the British Government and loaned to the United States to form part of the Greely relief expedition, will be used for the Hudson Bay expedition this spring. An early departure will be made to Hudson Bay this spring.

LUMINOUS TREES.

Luminous trees are reported to be growing in a valley near Tuscarora, Nevada. At certain seasons the foliage gives out sufficient light to enable any one near at hand to read small print, while the luminous general effect may be perceived some miles distant. The phenomenon is attributed to parasites.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the speedy improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

A MONSTER CANNON.

The foundry of Call, at Grenelle, in France, is to turn out in season for the exhibition at Antwerp, a monster cannon, forty-two feet long, and capable of sending a bomb of 1,760 pounds a distance of about nine miles. The price of the cannon will be $100,000. It will be an effective peacemaker.

DEAD DUCKS.

The steamship Roanoke, while coming down James River a few nights ago with her electric light in full blaze, ran into a flock of canvas back ducks and played sad havoc with them. The birds, dazzled and bewildered by the brilliancy of the electric light flew into the rigging and against the house, and hundreds of them fell dead on the deck, while a large number tumbled into the water.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously afflicted with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial Bottles Free at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

A SON OF CHARLES DICKENS.

The commander of the North-West Mounted Police at Fort Pitt is, we learn, on reliable authority, a son of the late Charles Dickens, and we are assured that had he been in command of the forces engaged in the first hostilities there could have been no bloodshed, much less an enslavement of almost the entire North-West.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION.

According to our cables negotiations with the colonies on the subject of Imperial Federation have been satisfactorily concluded, and a Bill upon the subject is shortly to be introduced into the British House of Commons. Will Sir John Macdonald rise and explain what he knows about the subject, and how and in what way negotiations have been satisfactorily concluded as far as he is concerned.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-12t

TRICKS OF BAKERS.

Some of the Hamilton bakers have invented a new dodge to circumvent the bread by-law. They make small loaves weighing three-quarters of a pound. The person who goes to a grocer to buy bread, finds that the grocer is just out of two and four pound pound loaves, but he has plenty of the little ones, and he sells two of them at the price of a two pound loaf, or four at at the price of a four-pound loaf.

THE WAX PLANT.

The wax plant of Carolina and Pennsylvania is now grown on an industrial scale in Algeria. The fruit, inclosed in a bag of coarse cloth, is plunged into boiling water, on the surface of which the liquid wax floats after a few seconds and is skimmed off and dried. This wax, of the same chemical composition of beeswax, makes an excellent substitute for it for laundry and similar purposes.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause so much suffering result from derangements of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels, and one box cures the pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our house, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The Rev. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Miami, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

Lakefield Alive.

Lakefield, our pretty little northern suburb is alive to the advantage it possesses as a summer resort and the enterprise of its citizens decide that it is to be made still more attractive. To bring about this the following company has been incorporated by the Ontario Government:—R. C. Strickland, Q. W. R. Strickland, lumber merchants; T. Gordon, boat builder; W. H. Cassement, merchant, S. I. Wright, R. A. H. Halifax, Lakefield, under the name of the Lakefield and Stony Lake Tourists Resort Company, with a capital of $4000, for the purpose of acquiring a suitable site, and the erecting, furnishing, and carrying on, in the village of Lakefield, of a resort for tourists. Lakefield has many attractions, and is of easy access by two routes of railway and one, no doubt, be worked into a popular place of resort for tourists.

The Mutual Reserve.

Hon. Elizur Wright, of Boston, the venerable insurance actuary and father of life insurance on this continent, has been in Ottawa for a day or two in the interest of the Mutual Reserve Life Association of New York. Mr. Wright fully endorses the plans of Mutual Reserve, which he has carefully investigated, pronouncing them not only safe but based upon sound scientific principles. The Association is meeting with unparalleled success and is writing over five millions a month. Mr. Wright predicts that unless the level premium companies reduce their rates the Mutual Reserve will ultimately get the whole of the business. The Mutual Reserve shipped by express to the Finance Minister on Saturday last from New York, U. S., bonds to the amount of $50,000 for their deposit. This Association evidently means business.—Ottawa Citizen.

Beautiful Binding.

We have received from the EXAMINER Book-bindery, Peterborough, the numbers of Picturesque Canada, entrusted to it, for binding. We have to express our perfect satisfaction with the manner in which the work has been done. The volumes are bound in calf, with gilt edges, and, while the appearance of their artistic and fine finish, is all the most exacting could demand, the substantial nature of the binding is such as to make it unusually durable. This style of work is, we believe, a characteristic of all work turned out by the EXAMINER bindery, so that we can confidently recommend it to all who have numbers of the above work, or any other books which they wish to have bound in a thoroughly first-class manner.

All orders left at the Messenger office, will be promptly attended to. No charge for freight or express, either way. Parties having numbers of Picturesque Canada, still unbound, should call and see the splendid work, as above mentioned. We might also add that the EXAMINER Bindery's charge is nearly one-third less than that charged by the publishing company. Millbrook Messenger.

RESTORED SAINT PAUL'S.

Its Youth Renewed Like the Eagle's.

A Long-Needed Want Well Filled—The Work of Restoration Completed—Practically a New Church—Description of the Sacred File—The Perfection of Modern Church Architecture and Appointment—A Grand Auditorium—Well-Lighted, Well-Heated—A Fine Sunday School Room—Very Complete Church Accessories—A Splendid New Organ—The Re-opening Services.

The important work of restoring St. Paul's Presbyterian Church is practically completed and it will be reopened for Divine worship on Sunday, May 3rd. That has been successfully carried out a gigantic project which has agitated the minds of the congregation for years. The matter of restoring or rebuilding the church was under discussion a long time before it took practical shape. The old place of worship, though endeared to many of the congregation by proved to be too small for the increased congregation. It was, besides, inconvenient in other respects,—the awkwardness of the sittings being a great objection. There were numerous applications for sittings, but when the applicants saw the available seats they would decline to take them. The chief reason, however, that prompted the restoration and enlargement of the church, was the great lack of which has now been met in an exceedingly satisfactory manner.

So long as four or five years ago it was informally decided to make a move in the matter as Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell, whose plans have been used in the restoration, were applied to for plans, and the present ones were submitted, but they were not then used on account of their carrying out involving more cost than it was deemed prudent to incur. Cheaper plans were then provided, but they were not satisfactory, and after three years consideration of plans, ways and means, etc., the were reverted to, with certain modifications. In the fall of 1883 tenders were called for and the contract was let to Mr. A. Rutherford, the figures being $24,960, exclusive of the seating which was made a separate contract, costing in addition $2,500, and the upholstering of the same $1,500. The carpeting will add about $500 to the cost, and other miscellaneous items will run the cost of the restoration up to

ORIGINAL PLANS

A TOTAL OF ABOUT $31,000.

Though this seems a large amount, yet any one seeing the new church and contemplating the vast improvement would conclude that the building committee have got the worth of the money intrusted to their expenditure by the liberality of the congregation. The architects, Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell, Toronto, have done wonders in utilizing and adapting the old structure. The result is extremely gratifying to both building committee and congregation, and the town itself has great reason to be proud of so imposing a church structure,—so attractive in both external and internal appearance. The public will, therefore be interested in a

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW CHURCH.

The church has been enlarged by the addition of aisles on each side 18 feet wide. The old church forms the nave and is 48 feet wide. Thus the auditorium covers the large area of 84 feet in width by 76 feet in length. The side walls of the old church have been replaced by massive iron columns with ornate capitals painted in light green and gold, and arches forming in bays on each side. Over them and above the aisle roof are the clere story windows of stained glass.

The old ceiling in the nave remains, and the aisle ceilings follow the slope of the roofs over them, the dressed wood, (oiled pine) principals and purlins showing below the plaster.

The side windows which are glazed with ornamented glass, are arranged in couplets to each bay and the alternate bays form gables.

Across the entire front of the church is the

which is about 9 feet wide, the old tower and lobbies forming the central portion of it.

In the front are the three main entrances; the central one in the tower wall and the others near the extremes of the front elevation. These have light, ground glass doors on the inside, hung to swing both ways. In the front vestibule are two stairways which give access to a small gallery which extends across the front end of the nave.

Five double doors give access to the auditorium from the front vestibule; and four at the rear end open into the rear halls so that with these nine means of exit the largest congregation can

DISPERSE IN LESS THAN THREE MINUTES.

Five spacious passages run down down the church from the entrance doors and form four rows of seats.

The pews are made of ash and birch wood and are all cushioned in crimson rep. They are circular in form; radiated from the pulpit platform so that every auditor directly faces the speaker.

The floor of the church is "dished" to a considerable fall toward the pulpit so that a good view is obtained from every point.

THE REGULAR SEATS ACCOMMODATE

1050 on the ground floor and 150 in the gallery, in all 1200.

The pulpit platform has an elaborate screen and desk made of various kinds of hardwood, producing a very fine effect. Immediately in front of it and on a lower level is the communion platform. Behind the pulpit and on a higher level is the and at the back of this, in an arched recess, is the organ. This instrument, which is placed in a case designed by the architects, was built by Messrs. Warren & Son, of Toronto, and cost $3,000.

The ceilings and walls of the church are kalsomined in delicate tints, and the whole interior effect is light, cheerful, and yet subdued.

THE REAR ENTRANCE HALLS

are each 10 feet wide and contain the staircases to the main school room. The school house building, which adjoins to the north of the church, is somewhat in the form of a large half circle; the diameter being 76 feet and the width 43 feet. The circular form is made by nine equal sides, each being pierced by couplet windows on the ground floor, and formed into a gable with single window on upper floor. Between each side are buttresses, which finish as pinnacles above the roof.

The ground floor of the school house is divided up into rooms with their necessary passages, as follows: Adjoining the western entrance is the library room, about 9x11 feet. Facing the main hall and archway is the lecture room, averaging 31x28 feet. Next to it is the vestry, 13x12 feet. Adjoining this is the church parlor, averaging 21x24 feet, while the remaining room to the east is used for an infant class gallery, and is about 32x19 feet. The ceiling of these rooms and the floor of the school room above being independent of each other, with a space between for ventilation purposes, any noise on the upper floor does not interfere with meetings held in the rooms below.

THE SCHOOL ROOM

which is on the upper floor, is arranged with a large central room lit by clere-story windows, and surrounded by nine class rooms, so disposed that all the occupants of them are in full view of the superintendent's desk. The ceiling of the school room is formed by the dressed and cut pine hammer beam principals, with plaster panels between them.

One of the commendable features of the whole building is the

and heating. There are six large ventilation flues in various parts of the building. In these are placed steam pipes and gas jets, so that a constant and strong exhaust action is maintained. To these flues, suitable exhaust ducts are carried from the various iron gratings in the floor at intervals along the walls; also to the platform fronts and other suitable places where draughts will not be felt. The fresh warm air, to supply the place of that which is thus removed is obtained by indirect radiation. Coils of pipe are boxed in in the cellar, and to them the fresh outside air is conveyed in ducts, heated in passing through between the pipes and discharged into the rooms above.

The heating is by steam, both indirect, as just described, and also to a large extent direct from coils and radiators placed at convenient places.

THE MAIN HEATING OF THE AUDITORIUM

is effected by having a steam pipe at the floor under each seat and running the full length of the same. This gives the radiation at a point where it is most needed, and the worshippers need never complain of cold feet and warm heads.

Externally the church has a somewhat cathedral appearance; the clere story walls and windows, the many gables and pinnacles of aisles and school house, the tower and spire in the centre of front, and the many-sided sweep of the rear end, all give variety to the design, and yet all unite in the general dignity of the pile. The whole church has been tuck-pointed in a superior manner, and the building presents the appearance of an entirely new structure.

THE INTERIOR FURNISHING

and appointments of the church are of the completest character. Every seat is comfortably—almost luxuriously—upholstered in crimson rep, the aisles, communion and pulpit platform, and choir are covered with Kidderminster carpet, in crimson and black, requiring over four hundred yards for the purpose. The lighting at night is provided for by four electric lamps, that is, in the main body of the church, for in the school room annex, handsome blue and gold gas aliers and brackets, conforming to the style of church architecture, furnish light. In fine, everything that taste or utility can suggest has been employed in making the appointments of the restored St. Paul's of the best, and altogether a place of worship of which the congregation can be justifiably proud.

THE LIBERALITY OF THE LADIES.

The fine new organ which has this week been placed in position is in keeping with the new church. It compactly fills the arched recess in rear of the pulpit and choir gallery, and apart from its excellence as a musical instrument, is a fine ornamental feature of the interior. The case is of a design to correspond with the general architecture of the church, and is composed of of walnut and chestnut richly ornamented and carved. The visible pipes are tinted a pleasing neutral shade ornamented with crimson flock and gold. The capacity of the organ is shown from the following details:—

The possession of the organ is due to the liberality and energy of the ladies of the congregation whose indefatigable exertions have entirely provided the fund, necessary for the payment of the organ—$2,000. In fact the organ is virtually a present from the ladies to the church. The ladies have also done a great deal of effective and timely work in connection with the furnishing of the church—such as furnishing the school room, vestry, ladies' parlour, etc.

THE BUILDING COMMITTEE, whose part has been well played, is composed of the following gentlemen:—Mr. Adam Hall, chairman, Mr. W. G. Ferguson, secretary-treasurer, Messrs. M. Millar, P. Hamilton, G. M. Roger and Wm. Davidson.

The contractor, Mr. A. Rutherford, has satisfactorily completed his undertaking. The following sub-contractors had a share in the work: Brickwork and tuck-pointing, Mr. J. J. Hartley; plumbing, gas and steam fitting, Mr. James McAndrews; painting, Mr. W. M. Green; seating, Mr. J. D. Baptie; upholstering, Mr. D. Bellegbeim.

As before noted, Messrs. Warren & Sons, Toronto, had the contract for supplying the organ. The architects, Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell, Toronto, have done their part of the work well, so well, indeed, that their success with St. Paul's has led to their plans for the new St. Andrew's Church being adopted.

We understand the congregation are well satisfied with the new church. By a vote of nearly two to one—198 to 100—they have decided in favor of a choir. There have been about 25 applications for the position of organist, so that no difficulty will be experienced in this respect.

THE FORMAL OPENING

will take place on Sunday, May 3rd, on which occasion three services will be held. In the morning and evening the pulpit will be occupied by that eloquent divine, Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, formerly minister of St. Andrew's, Peterborough. Rev. P. McLeod Central Presbyterian Church will take the afternoon service.

Spring Mastery, Turnbull's Stock this Season excels anything he has ever shewn; see his special lines for Boys to match suits.

Roller Skating.

The manager of the Water street Roller Skating Rink, has engaged the services for another week of Mr. Kerr, one of the finest fancy skaters in Canada. Crowds flock to see his wonderful feats every afternoon and evening Fire Brigade Band on Friday night. Preparations for another carnival early next month.

Saved Army.

At a business meeting held on Monday evening last, Geo. R. Sproule, Robt. Weir, and Wm. Rogers were re-elected delegates to the Council of War which will be held in Peterboro' from the 18th to 22nd of May. The Saved Army continues to hold their meetings every evening as usual in the Gospel Hall, (Hill's Music Hall,) and are meeting with splendid success. Conversions are made and inebriates reclaimed nearly every night. The meetings of the Saved Army in the Opera House last Sunday afternoon and evening were the best we have seen for some time, being largely attended. The addresses by Capt. Hunt were noted for such clearness and earnestness as to gain the closest attention. The platform was well filled by soldiers, and altogether showed a determination on their part to do all they can to reclaim the fallen. Sing Song services every Thursday evening. Every one invited.

Chronic nasal catarrh positively cured by Dr. Sage's Remedy.

Boating.

On Thursday evening the annual meeting of the Boating Club will be held at the club house. Important business is to be considered.

Wash and Walk.

Look out for Geo. A. Morrison's mammoth advertisement in next week's EXAMINER. All who want Life and Accident Insurance should wait and see it.

Compensation.

The volunteers on active service in the Northwest may have pretty hard times, yet there is consolation even for them. They will escape the multiplex miseries of the semi-annual house-cleaning carnival.

The Lock Factory.

A portion of the necessary machinery has already arrived; work is going on in the preparation of a part of the Central Iron Work's buildings for its reception. The work of putting up the new buildings will be begun when the weather permits.

Our Alleged Clock.

The town clock acts as though it were intoxicated. On Tuesday when all well behaved clocks indicated noon, our intoxicated time piece showed on one dial 12.15 on another 9:30, with the other two faces to hear from. We have stood such nuisance long enough.

Beware of Sneak Thieves.

Several raids have been made in town recently by sneak thieves, and articles of clothing, etc., stolen from the halls of houses. One thief entered a certain house and stole from the hall a seal skin cap, and from the adjoining parlour a large family Bible. Now that work is scarce, and times hard, thieves will abound, and householders will find it wised to keep their front doors fastened securely.

Auburn.

There was a large attendance at the entertainment of the Auburn Temperance Society held on Thursday evening. The programme consisted of recitations by Misses Mary Carter, Emma Geaskin, Maggie Davidson, and Mrs. Hartley, and Messrs. T. Rutherford and R. J. Sailsbury; readings by Mrs. Hartley and Mr. W. Hartley; solo songs by Miss Jennie Moyse (a six year old little girl whose performance was excellent) Misses C. Rutherford, Miss Carter, Miss H Davidson and Miss Hamacher. There were several good dialogues and a very interesting five act tableaux.

Turnbull's Millinery Opening days are Wednesday and Thursday of this week, call and see the new styles.

FARMERS!

We would call the particular attention of the Farming community to our

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best pulveriser ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will alone do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulveriser and Gang Plow. The teeth incline forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible extra draft on the team. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and springing; thus they seldom clog with grass, weeds, stalks, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, so common with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning; hence, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened upper edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the part repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

The SUN has $135 of Assets for every $100 of Liabilities. It issues Unconditional Policies. These Policies are, to say the least, unsurpassed for liberality by those of any other Company with whose policies we are acquainted. They are immeasurably more liberal than those of all other Canadian and American Companies. Great care is taken in the selection of risks, but when a policy is once issued the money is paid on simple proof of the death of the assured, no matter how, or when, or where. The only condition is the payment of premiums. The SUN has not one CONTESTED or DISPUTED claim on its books. Every man should have a Life Policy in this admittedly superior Company.

WEDNESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

AN EXCHANGE OF SHOTS.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N. W. T., April 22. —A reconnaissance of scouts and a few of Major Boulton's troops under Lord Melgund chased two rebels on the west bank of the to-day, but did not capture them. They came upon a small party of rebels who fired. The scouts replied, but no one was hurt on either side. The rebels took to the woods and the others, fearing an ambush, did not follow owing to the smallness of the force.

THE INDIANS RUN AWAY.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N. W. T., April 21. —A despatch from Battleford says scouts just returned from Fort Pitt report the garrison safe and it will be here to-day. The police, 21 in number, had a fight on Wednesday last with about 300 Indians of Big Bear's and Little Poplar's bands. One policeman, D. L. Cowan, son of Wm. Cowan, Ottawa, was killed and one Lansley of Halifax wounded, but he will recover. Four Indians were killed. The Indians ran away.

AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, April 22.—The Moose mountain scouts, who went west yesterday, will do service on the frontier, with a view of preventing the rebels from escaping, and their sympathizers on the other side from coming in.

FARMING FLATTENED OUT.

It is estimated that the troubles in the North-west mean the loss of two million bushels of grain from the check to agricultural pursuits, but the farmers are happy, for the hiring of their teams and the purchase of their stocks in store for the troops at big prices mean even more profit than they would get on their wheat crop at last years's prices.

THE RESERVE FORCE.

The following troops are at Winnipeg awaiting orders from the front:

Regiment.	Commander.	Strength.
Winnipeg Cavalry,	Capt. Knight,	65
G. G. Body Guard,	Lt-Col. Denison.	70
Quebec Cavalry.	Col. Turnbull	65
7th Fusiliers,	Col. Williams.	300
9th Battalion,	Col. Ouimet, M.P.,	200
Halifax Battalion.	Col. Bremner.	350

The Halifax battalion only arrived at Winnipeg yesterday morning after a terrible fatiguing journey.

THURSDAY'S DESPATCHES.

THE SITUATION AT FORT MCLEOD.

F. W. G. Haultain, barrister, Fort McLeod, formerly of Peterborough, writes as follows to a Hamilton friend:

The police are occupied in making fortifications and getting ready for an expected Indian rising. There are emissaries from the Crees and halfbreeds among the Indians here trying to get them to turn loose, and no doubt they will if the rebels in the north continue to be successful. We are surrounded on all sides by the reservations belonging to the different tribes of the Blackfeet nation, and there are five or six thousand of them within a radius of 100 miles. They are not so formidable as the Crees and halfbreeds in the north, because the latter still live to a great extent on game and are consequently good shots, while the Blackfeet have been on rations ever since the buffalo left. We are pretty safe here because we have the police-fort and 100 policemen, and could soon get in about 500 men, all splendid riders and good shots and thoroughly at home on the prairie. Yesterday the wives of the police officers and other ladies and families were sent east out of danger. From all I can hear we are not in much peril; but these Indians are such treacherous brutes that the greatest precautions are necessary. If they rise they will do an awful amount of damage in the outlying districts and among the ranches and farms, and will kill a great many cattle.

FRIDAY'S DESPATCHES

RELIEF OF BATTLEFORD.

BATTLEFORD, April 24.—The siege of this place is practically relieved by the arrival of Col. Herchmer to-day with seventy-five mounted police. A sortie is now being planned with a view of effecting a juncture with Col. Otter's column, now about twenty miles distance. The Indians are scattering in all directions. Col. Herchmer's advance is regarded as a masterly piece of work. The garrison where in ecstasies at their delivery. When Col. Herchmer appeared in sight women and children wept and the men shouted their welcome with a vim that must have rather paralyzed the few redskins about. At any rate they speedily made themselves scarce.

All the Battleford column, under Col. Otter, entered Battleford at 3.30 p.m. Col Herchmer, with 30 mounted men, scoured the whole valley of the Battle River in search of Indians and Halfbreeds, but all have disappeared, having fled across the Saskatchewan to join Big Bear at the approach of troops.

THE FISH CREEK FIGHT.

MIDDLETON MEETS THE MEETS.

CLARK'S CROSSING, April 24th.—General Middleton's troops met Riel's rebels near Batoche's Crossing this morning, and after a stubborn resistance on their part succeeded in driving them into a ravine. The following description of the battle is by the Globe's special correspondent:—

I was with the left column on the west side of the river. Before we broke camp this morning we heard reports of field guns about 9 a. m. Lord Melgrad then ordered the troops to advance, our company of Tenth Grenadiers being thrown out as skirmishers, Capt. French's scouts in advance, the balance of the troops acting as supports and reserves. The field guns were immediately sent to the front and the garrison artillery ordered to support them. After advancing about four miles we came opposite where the right column seemed to be engaged. We rode down to the bank, where a scout from the General called across to Colonel Montmambert, that the General wanted the infantry to cross the river and come to his support at once. No. 2 Company of the 10th under Capt Mason and Lieuts. Irving and Hay, then crossed on the scow. Lord Melgrad and Captain Young crossed with them, and after about three-quarters of mile march from the river bank we came up with the right column, who who appeared to be under cover in a deep ravine. I then learned the following particulars of the engagment, The General with his staff was riding well to the front, as was his habit, with Major Boulton's horse, who were acting as scouts. When about five miles from McIntosh, where they had camped the night before, and on approaching the small bluffs covered with timber, about twenty or thirty of killing several of the scouts horses and wounding several of the men. Between these two bluffs, which are about five hundred yards apart, is a level and open prairie that extends back about one thousand yards across which there runs a deep ravine with timber in the bottom running back apparently for a mile. On the west side about the centre stand two log houses and a straw stack. After firing a volley from the two bluffs the scouts got under cover, when the General turned around to Capt. Wise, his A. D. C., and told him to bring up the advance guard of the 90th, under Capt. Clarke. When the 90th Were coming up some of them were bending down as they ran. At this moment the General and called to them, "Stand up men if I had been down I'd have had my brains knocked out." Two guns of "A" Battery then came up at a gallop under command of Capt. Peters, the guns being supported by the garrison division under Capt. Peters and Lieut. Rivers. After firing a couple of sharpnels the Halfbreeds retired into the ravine. While being driven across, Sergant Stewart, of Major Boulton's Horse, killed an Indian who had already shot four horses. The remainder of the 90th were then sent up, Major Buchanan commanding the right battalion, and Major Boswell the left half. "C" Company Toronto Infantry School being on the extreme right, had two or three hot scrimmages for possession of a knoll about five hundred yards in the ravine. Being ordered to retire from it it was taken by the rebels, but the infantry drove them out. While this was going on on the right, in "A" Battery Garrison Division, who were supporting their guns, and a company of the 90th under Capt. Forrest, made a dash across the opening and gained the top of the ravine. The remainder of the forces were gradually worked up and kept closing on the ravine. In the meantime the artillery were being moved from point to point, so as to obtain the most advantageous position for shelling the rebels in the ravine. They drove the rebels out of one of the houses and the straw stack was set on fire.

WERE ENGAGED WITH THE ENEMY

THE ENEMY'S SCOUTS OPENED FIRE,

RECEIVED A BULLET THROUGH THE HAT

The rebels were seen to leave them seeking cover in the ravine. This was the position when I arrived. When number two company of the 10th arrived they were sent over on the right flank and thrown out in skirmishing order so as to enfilade the ravine and to relieve some of the troops who had been in action all day. About sixty of the rebels were seen to retreat on horseback, the remainder in the ravine being unable to do so owing to their horses being either captured or shot.

SATURDAY'S DESPATCHES.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 25.—It now appears that the contest was even a more serious one for our troops than at first supposed. The fight lasted from nine o'clock in the morning until two in the afternoon. In this fight Gabriel Dumont, Riel's Lieutenant, has proved himself a most resolute and dangerous foe.

CLARK'S CROSSING, N.W.T., APRIL 25.—Nothing has been received from General Middleton's camp to-day. He is about 20 miles from here and news will have to be brought by courier. Fighting yesterday. The rebels fought determinedly and at one time the opposing forces were within thirty yards of each other. The rebels took up positions in three ravines, from two of which they were dislodged but they could not be dislodged from their stronghold in the centre ravine where they had thrown up rifle pits. On the night coming on, the bugle sounded the recall, and camp was pitched on the river, near the battlefield. It is reported that when the troops were moving to camp, 30 rebels came out of the bush behind a ravine, cheering and jeering the troops. The Artillery were ordered up to drive them off, but the rebels one medicine chest and some boxes, canned meat. The force will proceed today, after burying the dead and sending the wounded to Clarke's Crossing, at which place a field hospital has been established. Our loss is now put at nine killed and forty-five wounded, Corporal Macklin, of the 90th, reported killed yesterday, is all right.

LASTED ALL DAY

SUCCEEDED IN CAPTURING

LATEST DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

WINNIPEG, MAN., April 25th, 11 p.m.—A special from Clarke's Crossing, says, that beyond doubt, the fight of yesterday was

A REVERSE FOR GEN. MIDDLETON, and that the volunteers were really forced to retreat. The rebels seem to have followed the troops to camp, and defiantly await a renewal of hostilities, which they are likely to receive with more vigor than before.

The rebel loss, if any, is said to be very small. The place for the fight was well chosen, giving the rebels great prestige over our men. Approaching the scene is an open prairie, a mile in length, ending in a slightly inclined hill running down into a coulee. Bluffs on each side are well wooded on the north side of the ravine.

The rebels were entrenched in force, whence upon the volunteers, while the latter were unable to see the enemy, who were hidden behind trees and rocks, and from the place of ambush they picked out their men with great accuracy. Evese the guns of "A" Battery failed to dislodge the enemy. The rebels are reported to have gone in the direction of Battoche's Crossing. Our troops will have to pass the entire distance through a wooded tract of country. Gen. Middleton camped last night on the south side of ravine about midway between the battlefield and river. Commissioner Wrigley, from information received, does not view the battle of Fish Creek as a defeat, but more of a drawn fight. Had it been otherwise, the rebels would not have retired to Batoche. The total casualties on the volunteer side in this engagement is put down at 12 killed and 50 wounded.

THEY POURED A DEADLY FIRE

The Governor-General's Body Guard reached Qu'Appelle at noon yesterday and started immediately to support of Middleton. It is thought that the rebels will now by capturing Clarke's Crossing. In this event the result to our troops would be terrible to contemplate. The only chance for Middleton would then be the arrival of the steamer Northcote with supplies but the rebels would doubtless make an effort to capture the vessel.

[The Northcote is the steamer to which the Midland Battalion is acting as guard.]

The latest despatches indicate that our troops captured ten ponies belonging to the rebels, and killed twenty-five half-breeds and Indians.

SUNDAY'S DESPATCHES.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 26th.—It has been ascertained that the fight on Friday was very much more than at first supposed. 25 are known to have been killed, as that number of bodies were counted. Gabriel Dumont, Reil's Lieutenant is reported to be among the killed.

DISASTROUS TO THE REBELS

It is also reported that Reil was in the ravine during the engagement, and returned to Battoche's for reinforcements.

Our loss is now put at 7 killed and 49 wounded, two fatally.

No fighting took place yesterday, the General having decided to give the men much needed rest, as they were much fatigued by hard work.

Scouts were out all day reconnoitering the rebels position. Four of them went to the edge of the ravine and captured 6 horses and 12 head of cattle without molestation. The cattle subsequently got away. Every preparation has been made for a general

ASSAULT UPON RIEL'S POSITION TO-DAY.

Guns have been placed, commanding ravine on each side, flanked by line of infantry. With those, and with the men's desire for a renewal of hostilities, the defeat of the insurgents can only be a matter of a few hours. The next twenty four hours is expected to be the most decisive of the campaign. Owing to the great distance from telegraph we may not get news of battle until Monday. There is a difference of opinion as to the result of Friday's battle. The Winnipeg Times correspondent says the troops were defeated, but this is believed to be purely sensational, our men not having retired from the field. The truth appears to be that a sanguinary engagement was fought, and that neither side can claim victory. During action our TROOPS BEHAVED GALLANTLY.

There was no flinching in the least, the men obeying every order given and facing hot fire like veterans.

General Middleton is very enthusiastic over their conduct, and says the engagement was fought with as much skill and steadiness as he had ever seen.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

CLARK'S CROSSING, 27th April.—Couriers who left General Middleton's camp yesterday afternoon arrived here last night. They report

NO FIGHTING YESTERDAY,

but everything had been made ready for an attack. The guns had been brought to bear on the rebels' stronghold in the ravine, and the troops formed into line of battle previous to attack commencing. Scouts were sent forward to reconnoitre, when it was found that the

REBELS HAD ABANDONED THEIR POSITION

and retreated during the night. Gen. Middleton will push on as quickly as possible. He is now of opinion that the battle on Friday was fought in an advance post held by the rebels. Three or four miles further down the river they have a number of

RIFLE PITS AND LOW STOCKADES,

and to these they retreated, doubtless with the expectation that General Middleton's force would follow them. He fathomed their scheme, however, and took the wisest course in remaining satisfied with the possession of the ground where the encounter commenced. About ten miles from this latter point is Battoche's, where it is expected the rebels will make their final stand. It is now estimated that their total force consists of about 500 HALF-BREEDS AND NEARLY AS MANY INDIANS.

The report is said to have been confirmed that Gabriel Dumont has been killed, is by many discredited as they assert that he was seen hiding off the field at the close of the engagement. The report that 25 rebels have been found dead is also thought to be exaggerated; so far only 4 or 5 of their dead have been seen. Some anxiety is felt for coming down the river with the Gatling guns and supplies. Some of the rebels are known to be in the Moose Woods and it is feared that the steamer may have been attacked at this point. She carried a large escort of the Midland battalion.

The number of deaths of our men so far number nine.

The following is the LIST OF THE DEAD:

90th BATT.—Privates Ferguson, Hutchinson, Wheeler and Ennis.

A. BATTERY.—Gunners Demandley and Cook. Driver Harrison, Private Watson of Boulton's Horse, Darcy, Baker, Capt. Clarke Lieut. Swinford and Capt. Lethbridge, of 90th. Seventy wounded. It is feared Moher and Gunners Ainsworth, Morrison, Woodman, McGrath, Asselstine, of "A" Battery, are badly wounded, first named fatally.

Trooper Bruce, of Boulton's Horse, also received a very serious wound. Supply and other teams arriving late Saturday night,

NEARLY GOT INTO THE REBEL CAMP, thinking the troops had gone on to Battoche's. Having discovered the mistake, they returned and were approaching Middleton's camp, from the direction of the enemy's line, and not hearing the challenge of the sentries were fired upon.

Eight shots were discharged without doing further injury, than alarming the entire camp.

TUESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

MIDDLETON'S MOVEMENTS.

WINNIPEG, April 27.—A despatch just received from Clarke's Crossing announces that Gen. Middleton made an advance today and expects to meet the rebels next at Gabriel's Crossing, five or six miles nearer Batoche. He does not expect any serious opposition until he reaches Batoche. If successful Prince Albert will next be relieved. A deserter from Riel's camp reports that the strength of the enemy in the recent fight was 150 halfbreeds and 250 Indians.

The death of Gabriel Dumont is still in doubt, but the loss of the rebels is now believed to have been serious.

A fatigue party is scouring the ravine secured 18 head more cattle and 4 more ponies, making thirty-two of the former and fourteen of the latter.

After the fight 150 rebels crossed the Saskatchewan two miles below the scene of the fight to the west side.

There are indications everywhere that the exit of the rebels from the ravine was a hasty one—in fact was a flight. More trouble is expected but it is doubtful if any more serious engagements will be fought, as the rebels are said to be scattering. Our success on Friday was greater than thought at first. Gen. Middleton and his staff now view the affair in the light of a pronounced victory.

THE SADDEST CEREMONY OF ALL.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N.W.T., April 27.—Yesterday was a sad experience for our troops, as the remains of several brave boys were borne to their last resting place near the scene of the battle at Fish creek. The roll call was a melancholy spectacle and many a half-suppressed "too bad, poor fellow" could be heard as the report was announced "dead," "seriously wounded," or "wounded." No clergyman was present with the force, so that the funeral services had to be read by officers. It was a solemn and impressive ceremony for all that and brave men who had stood all the hardships of the march unflinchingly, who had stood motionless as the rebel bullets whizzed past them, whose nerves had remained braced even as those poor fellows who were now being laid to rest, fell mortally shot, gave way and tears coursed down their bronzed faces in streams. It was a sight that no man of the whole face will ever forget. Major-Gen. Middleton conducted the ceremony in person and was evidently deeply affected. He has been kindness and gentleness personified ever since the engagement, constantly visiting the wounded and expressing earnest hopes of their recovery. To the men he has been wonderfully considerate and forbearing. Rough monuments were erected around the graves to show where the bodies were interred, and to whom they belonged.

PRAISE FOR THE TROOPS.

OTTAWA, April 27.—In the house to-day Mr. Caron took occasion in replying to a question by Mr. Edgar to pay a high compliment to the troops in the Northwest. Col. Otter, he said, had long been looked upon as one of the best officers in the Canadian service, and the manner in which he had acquitted himself in the march to Battleford proved he was deserving of all the encomiums that could be possibly paid to him. A telegram he had received from Col. Otter stated that the troops had stood the long march admirable and were in the very best of health and spirits.

Gen. Middleton had also telegraped that the behavior of the troops in the first engagement was all that could be wished for. "I am sure," said Mr. Caron, "I am only expressing the sentiment of the whole Canadian people when I say that I deeply deplore the loss of life which has occurred, but we must all feel proud of men who had died as brave soldiers while doing their duty to their country.

WEDNESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

MIDDLETON'S FORWARD MARCH.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, April 28,—A courier from Fish Creek late to-night says Gen. Middleton had everything ready to commence his forward march at daybreak, but would move very cautiously, fearing a surprise, especially as reports have reached him that Riel has a much larger force with him than there was formerly reason to suppose. He is also very strongly fortified and extremely defiant.

It is thought now lucky that Lord Melgund and his campanions did not follow the flying scouts any further last Thursday, or they would certainly have been massacred, the object of the pursued evidently being to trap them.

The fact of so many cattle having been found in the ravine is taken as indications that the rebels have plenty of supplies and are not reduced to the necessities formerly reported.

THE NORTHCOTE AGROUND.

The Steamer Northcote with the Midland Battalion on board, is reported to have run ashore 175 miles up the river, in which case she will not reach Gen. Middleton for several days even after she is got off.

TROOPS WANTED WEST.

WINNIPEG, April 28.—The Hudson Bay company through Chief Commissioner Wrigley, has contributed $2500 to the fund for the relief of the families of the Winnipeg volunteers who have gone to the front.

C. G. Rentz, war correspondent of the London, Eng., Standard, arrived in the city this morning, and will join Gen. Middleton at the earliest possible moment.

Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney has telegraphed the authorities at Ottawa that Gen. Strange advises the sending of all troops possible into the Saskatchewan district west of Battleford, where the Indians are collecting in great force. It is said that Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Gowanlock, taken prisoners by the Indians at Frog Lake, have been handed over to the halfbreeds.

ALARM AT QU'APPELLE.

FORT QU'APPELLE, April 28.—Some excitement was created in camp at 2 o'clock this morning, as it was thought an attack had been made by Indians or halfbreeds. Several shots were fired at our sentries, who at once gave the alarm. Two companies of the Simcoe Foresters and York Rangers were put under arms and remained in readiness if their services were required. Fires were seen burning on the hills in the distance, supposed to have been started as signals by halfbreeds proceeding northward to join Riel at Batoche. Scouts were sent out from the camp to reconnoitre in the neighborhood for traces of the rebels and it was found that several houses of settlers here had been plundered by halfbreeds.

It is feared that the half-breeds and Indians in this district, emboldened by false reports of Riel's success on Friday, will endeavour to make things ugly round here. If they have a mind to they are quite sufficient in point of number to cause serious trouble, if, indeed, they do not succeed in entirely cutting off communications with the force at the front and stopping the supplies. It is terrible to think of the fix Gen. Middleton and his men would be in in that case.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, on Monday, 20th April. All the members present. Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. Richard J. H. Short was allowed ten days statute labor for work performed on road in Allandale and John Conroy was allowed three days statute labor for work performed by him. The treasurer was directed to pay to James Armstrong for keep of Geo. Carlyle, $6; for his own relief, $5; Patrick Murray for cedars, 90 cts; John Matchett, for cedars, $6.30; Rodger Devlin for cedars, $13.30; Patrick Tanguey for cedars $4.80; also for work on road between Con. 10 & 11, opposite Lot 32, $14.

Albert Carpenter was allowed to do his statute labor on road opposite his place for this year. James Hall was allowed to do four days statute labor between Con. 7 & 8 opposite Lot 31. Donald Anderson was allowed to commute his statute labor for two years to repair the crossings opposite his place and to be allowed cedars on base line for that purpose. George Eason was authorized to plant trees on both sides of the embankment east of the bridge at Keene and to have them properly protected. John Fife was allowed to occupy the allowance for road between the west halves of Lots 21 and 22 in 4th Con., until required by the council. The clerk was directed to supply P. Monogue with a pass to Kingston or Toronto that he may attend one of the hospitals.

A by-law for the appointment of certain township officers for the year 1885, and a by-law to authorize Overseer of Highways to seek for and take timber, gravel, stones and other material for making and repairing roads and bridges in the township of Otonabee received their final readings and were passed. Council adjourned until 25th May next.

A WAR INEVITABLE.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA ON THE VERGE.

England Votes a War Credit of Fifty-Five Million Dollars Without a Nay—Gladstones Great Speech.

LONDON, April 27th.—In the House to-day Mr. Gladstone said the Government considers it necessary to have the entire resources of the empire ready for use and application wherever required. Events since the fall of Khartoum have shown that the Mahdi's power has collapsed. England's possession of Khartoum would not put a stop to the slave trade, and therefore it would be useless to shed blood and treasure in the Soudan. In regard to the smallness of the special vote, he reminded the House that it was the largest asked since the Crimean war. He would say in regard to the and contingency of an outbreak of war or the rupture of relations with Russia, that Her Majesty's Government had striven to conduct the diplomatic controversy in such a way that if it unhappily ended in violent rupture, they might be able to challenge

THE VERDICT OF CIVILIZED MANKIND

whether or not they had done all that men could do and had used every just and honorable effort to prevent the plunging of two such countries into bloodshed and despair. (Cheers.) There exists abundant cause for the war preparations which are being carried on. (Cheers.) The starting point was the obligation to the Ameer, which should be fulfilled in no stinted manner. (Loud cheers.) The covenant with Russia of March 16 was one which England hoped and believed would be recognised as one of the most sacred ever made between two great nations, and if any deviation occurred there should be a jealous rivalry between the two nations to sift to the bottom all that remained in suspense. A bloody engagement occurred March 30, showing that one or both failed to fulfil the covenant. England considered it the duty of both countries to ascertain how that calamity occurred. He would not anticipate that the British were right. He felt

PERFECT CONFIDENCE IN THE BRITISH OFFICERS,

but would not assume that they might not have been misled. It is certain the Russians were the attacking party, and the Russians suffered in life, spirit and repute. Knowing that a blow had been struck at the credit and authority of our ally, we are unable to close the book and say we will not look into it any more. We must do our best to have right done in the matter; therefore, there's cause for the war preparations.

Mr. Gladstone's words created a profound sensation. The opinion in the lobbies to-night is that the speech

INDICATES THAT WAR IS INEVITABLE.

The house then went into committee of supply, and Mr. Gladstone explained the object of the vote of credit. The entire credit, $55,000,000, was voted without debate, after one of the most powerful and telling speeches by Mr. Gladstone. The premier was cheered to the echo during and at the close of his speech, and was enthusiastically cheered when leaving the house afterwards.

DETERMINED TO FIGHT.

BRUSSELS, April 28.—A St. Petersburgh despatch says: "The council at the palace to-day, the Czar presiding, rejected the proposal made by Baron de Giers to adopt conciliatory measures toward England. The reply of the Russian government to Earl Granville firmly maintains the tenor of the former despatches.

No news has been received at St. Petersburg of any fresh engagement on the Afghan frontier.

RUSSIA'S ARMY.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 28.—Russia has ordered the mobilization of her southern army. It is estimated 200,000 troops will be available in forty days. The pay of sailors in the navy has been increased to a war rate.

INDIAN ARMY SUPPLIES.

LONDON, April 28.—The commissariat department of the Indian army has completed arrangements for furnishing transportation and provisions in India for two army corps. The first consists of 13,000 British and 16,000 native troops, with 30,000 camp followers, 8,000 horses and 30,000 transport animals. The second consists of 12,000 British and 15,000 native troops, with 28,000 followers, 8,000 horses and 28,000 transport animals. A month's supplies will be sent to Rindli Killa and Abdulla, and three months' supplies to Quetta.

England has notified the powers which signed the Paris convention that her war ships will enter the Black sea in case of war and bombard the Russian ports, since Russia has fortified Batoum, which is in defiance of the treaty.

Just received, a full range of Ladies Jerseys. The improved cut with plaited back. See the line we are selling at $1.60.

FRASERVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Many of Rev. F. Johnson's friends at this appointment assembled at the parsonage on Thursday evening, April 23rd, for the purpose of presenting his esteemed wife, Mrs. Johnson, with an address and purse containing valuables. After all had arrived and enjoyed a good tea, which was provided by the ladies, Mrs. Johnson was requested to occupy a seat in the centre of the room, and the following address was read to her:

DEAR MRS. JOHNSON,—We have assembled on this convivial occasion for the purpose of spending a few hours together in social conversation and fruition; and while we take pleasure in doing this we also experience a feeling of sadness and regret when we remember that soon you will have to be removed from our midst, and to-night, we would desire to manifest, in some slight degree, our gratitude for and appreciation of your services in the "musical department" during your residence with us.

We beg to assure you that your zealous and self-sacrificing labors in this department of church work are most highly appreciated by us; and we sincerely congratulate you on the success which has attended your efforts. We then as a congregation desire to tender you our sincere and hearty thanks, and beg your acceptance of this purse as a memento of our gratitude for and estimation of your work during the past few years. We would also ask you to convey to our esteemed pastor, Rev. F. Johnson, our high appreciation of his character as a Christian gentleman, as well as of his untiring efforts to advance our spiritual interests.

In conclusion our prayer for you and yours is that your course may be "onward and upward," growing in grace in knowledge and likeness of your beloved Teacher and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

The above was read by Mr. S. Mght, and the presentation made by Miss Hutchings.

Mr. Johnson replied feelingly on behalf of his wife and judging by his remarks the people of Fraserville are very near and dear to him. All present joined in heartily in singing "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," after which Bro. Might led in prayer. The joyous crowd dispersed about 1 a.m.

At the recent examination, some 15 were promoted. Five were promoted from the fourth to the fifth, H. Strike, Teacher.

Arbor holiday, May 8th, will be recognised here.

Drill every Friday afternoon in the school yard. Strictest discipline indulged in.

ODDFELLOWS SERMON.

In Commemoration of the Sixty-sixth Anniversary.

On Sunday evening last the Oddfellowship fraternity of the town, celebrated the sixty-sixth anniversary of the establishment of the order, by attending, in a body, divine service at Murray Street Baptist Church, where a sermon was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Munro. At seven o'clock the members, to the number of about 120 or 140, formed in procession and marched to the church.

The text selected by Rev. Mr. Munro was Acts, chap. 2 verse 9:—

"Men and brethren let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day."

There was no man of antiquity, the speaker said, of whose life and character we knew so much as of those of David. His life as shepherd, fugitive, minstrel, guerilla warrior and king was full of interest. His varied career, and especially his peerless Psalms, led to his filling a place in human hearts that no other man could occupy. The preacher painted a series of word pictures of vivid coloring of the scenes and incidents of David's career, touching upon the salient episodes in his eventful life. Still his life showed the fruits of sin. David had been condemned as a contradiction of the appellation, "a man after God's own heart." There were things in his life that we must condemn but many more that must be extolled. The speaker entered upon a defence of several imputations upon David's character, but there was one dark feature that could not be explained or condoned; for this there was no excuse. There was nothing in human history so utterly selfish and persistently wicked as the episode of Uriah and Bathsheba, yet in spite of this David was a noble and generous man. He was conspicuous for lofty self-denial, loyalty, filial piety and gratitude, as shown by his championship of the people's cause, his loyalty to his King who sought his life, his mercy to his pursuers. David's life might be viewed as a conflict with sin and evil, and his record in the Psalms pointed out the way to meet with and triumph over these. The Bible taught us to be good largely by biography. The great men of the Bible were not all spotless men but men of like nature with ours, whose career showed how sinners like us might be saved. David sinned and was finally saved, and so might we be. He repented and we might repent. David's name meant "beloved," and he was worthy of it. He was the most revered of his race, whose favorite appellation for the Messiah was the "Son of David." David in his dying hour reviewed his past life, with its success and failure. In his deepest strait he turns to the covenant of God, which we might all also take advantage of.

Referring to the Order, the speaker pointed out that the fact that 'its membership reaching 500,000 in 65 years showed that it met an existing want, and that fraternity can be turned to good advantage in relieving the sick burying the dead, caring for the widow, educating the orphan and elevating the man. The order embodied many of the principles of Christianity and its success would be in proportion to the fullness with which these were carried out. The preacher closed his impressive address by calling on God to bless the organization, and praying that we all might strive to live such a life as would entitle us to enjoy a more perfect fellowship than even the brotherhood of the Church on earth.

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

THE GREAT PREACHER ON RECREATIONS.

Does Dancing Occupy too Much Attention?

THE HILIARITIES OF LIFE PRECIOUS

The Heated Midnight Dance Dangerous Morally and Physically.

THE BEAUTY OF MATURE WOMANHOOD.

The Sadness of Frivolous Old Age.

The text of the sermon was from Matthew xiv., 6: "When Herod's birthday was kept the daughter of Herodias danced before them and pleased Herod."

It is the anniversary of Herod's birthday. The palace is lighted. The highways leading thereto are ablaze with the pomp of invited guests. Lords, captains, merchant princes and the mightiest men of the realm are on the way to mingle in the festivities. The tables are filled with all the luxuries that the royal purveyors can gather—spiced wines and fruits and rare meats. The guests, white-robed, annointed and perfumed, take their places. Music! The jests evoke roars of laughter. Riddles are propounded, repartees indulged, toasts drunk; the brain befogged, wit gives place to uproar and blasphemy. And yet they are not satisfied. Turn on more light. Give us more music, sound the trumpet, clear the floor for the dance, bring in Salome, the graceful and accomplished princess. The doors are opened and in bounds the dancer. Stand back and give plenty of room for the gyrations. The lords are enchanted, they never saw such poetry of motion, their souls whirl in the reel and bound with the bounding feet, Herod forgets crown and throne—everything but the fascination of Salome. The magnificence of his realm is as nothing compared with that which now whirls before him on tip-toe. His heart is in transport with Solome, as her arms are now tossed in the air are now placed akimbo. He sways with every motion of the enchantress. He thrills with the quick pulsations of her feet and is bewitched with the posturing and attitudes that he never saw before, in a moment ex changed for others just as amazing. He sits in silence before the whirling, wonder, and when the dance stops and the tinkling cymbals pause, and thy long, loud plaudits that shook the palace with their thunders had abated, the entranced monarch swears unto the princely performer: "Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me I will give it to thee, to the half of my kingdom."

BOUNDING, LEAPING, FLASHING

Now, there was in prison a minister by the name of John the Baptist, who had made much trouble by his honest preaching. He had denounced the sins of the king and brought down upon himself the wrath of the females in the royal family. At the instigation of her mother, Salome takes advantage of the extravagant promise and demands the head of John the Baptist upon a dinner-plate. There is a sound of heavy feet and the clatter of swords outside the palace. Swing back door; the executioners are returning from their awful errand. They hand the platter to Salome. What is on that platter? A new tankard of wine to rekindle the mirth of the lords? No; it is redder than wine and costlier. It is the ghastly, bleeding head of John the Baptist! Its locks dabbled in gore. Its eyes set in the death stare. The distress of the last agony in the features. That fascinating form that just now swayed so gracefully in the dance bends over the horrid burden without a shudder, she gloats over the blood, and just as the maid of your household goes, bearing out on a tray the empty glasses of the evening's entertainment, so she carried out on a platter the disevered head of that good man, while all the banqueted shouted, and thought it a grand joke that in such a brief and easy way they had freed themselves from such a plain-spoken, troublesome minister. What could be more innocent than a birthday festival? All the kings from the time of Pharaoh had celebrated such days, and why not Herod? It was right that the palace should be lighted, and that the cymbals should clap, and that the royal guests should go to a banquet; but before the rioting and wassail that closed the scene of that day every pure nature revolts.

I am not going at this time to discuss the old question: Is dancing right or wrong? but, Does dancing occupy too much place in modern society? and in my remarks I hope to carry with me the affections of all thoughtful people. Whatever you may think of the amusement you must admit that from some circles it has crowded out all opportunity for intellectual conversation and made the condition of those who do not dance, either because they do not know how or are not in sufficient health to endure it or because they must conscientiously decline, very uncomfortable. You must admit also that with many it has ceased to be a recreation and become a dissipation. With many it has become such an over-fatigue that you can understand the bewilderment of who, standing in a brilliant house where for many hours the dance had been going on, asked the wealthy proprietor, "Why do you not let your servants do that for you?" Furthermore, it will be admitted by all reasonable people that, whatever they may think of the old-fashioned square dance and many of the processional romps, in which I can see no evil, the round dance is administrative of harm and deserves to be hurled out of respectable circles. I am by natural temperament and religious theory utterly opposed to the position of those who are horrified at every demonstration of mirth and playfulness in social life, and who seems to think that everything, decent and immoral, depends upon the style in which people carry their feet. On the other hand I can see nothing but ruin, moral and physical, in the dissipations of the ball-room, which have despoiled thousands of young men and women of all that gives dignity and character or usefulness to life.

Dancing has been styled "the graceful movement of the body adjusted by art to the measures or time of instruments or of the voice." All nations have danced. The ancients thought that Pollux and Castor at first taught the practise to the Lacedemonians; but, whatever be its origin, all climes have adopted it. In other days there were festal dances and funeral dances and military dances and "mediatorial" dances and bacchanalian dances. Queens and lords have swayed to and fro in their gardens; and the rough men in the backwoods have in this way roused up the echo of the forest. There seems to be something in lively and coherent sounds to evoke the movement of hand and foot, whether cultured or uncultured. Men passing the street unconsciously keep step to the music of the band; and Christians in church unconsciously find themselves keeping time with their feet, while their soul is uplifted by some great harmony. Not only is this true in cultured life, but the red men of Oregon have their scalp dances, and green-corn dances, and war dances. The ancient fathers, aroused by the the indecent dances of those days, gave emphatic evidence against any participation in the dance. St. Chrysostom says:—"The feet were not given for dancing, but to walk modestly; not to leap impudently like camels." One of the dogmas of the ancient Church reads:—"A dance is the devil's possession; and he that entereth into a dance entereth into his possession. The devil is the gate to the middle and to the end of the dance. As many passes as a man makes in dancing, so many passes doth he make to hell." Elsewhere these old dogmas declare:—"The woman that sinneth in the dance is the princess of the devil; and those that answer are his clerks; and the beholders are his friends, and the music are his bellows, and the fiddlers are the ministers of the devil; for, as when hogs are strayed, if the hogaherd call one, all assemble together, so the devil calleth one woman to sing in the dance or to play on some instrument, and presently all the dancers gather together." This wholesale and indiscriminate denunciation grew out of the utter dissolutemess of those ancient plays. So great at one time was the offence to all decency, that the Roman Senate decreed the expulsion of all dancers and dancing-masters from Rome.

Yet we are not to discuss the customs of that day, but the customs of the present. We cannot let the fathers decide the question for us. Our reason, enlightened by the Bible shall be the standard. I am not ready to excommunicate all those who lift their feet beyond a certain height. I would not visit our youth with a rigor of criticism that would put out all their ardor of soul. I do not believe that all the inhabitant of Wales, who used to step to the sound of the rustic harp went down to ruin. I would give to all of our youth the right to romp and play. God meant it or he would not have surcharged our natures with such exuberance. If a mother joins hands with her children, and while the eldest strikes the keys, fills all the house with the sound of agile feet, I see no harm. If a few friends, gathered in happy circle, coeclude to cross and recross the room to the sound of the piano well played, I see no harm. If a company of people, all of whom are known to the host or hostess as reputable, move round the room to the sound of musical instrument I can see no harm. I for a long time tried to see in it a harm, but I never could and I probably never will. I would to God men kept young for a greater length of time. Never since my school-boy days have I loved so well as now the hilarities of life. What if we have felt heavy burdens and suffered a multitude of hard knocks, is it any reason why we should stand in the path of those who, unstung by life's misfortunes, are exhilarated and full of glee?

God bless the young! They will have to live many a day if they want to hear me say one word to dampen their ardor or clip their wings, or to throw a cloud upon their life by telling them that it is hard and dark and doleful. It is no such thing. You will meet with many a trial; but, speaking from my own experience, let me tell you that you will be treated a great deal better than you deserve. Let us not grudge to the young their joy. As we go further on in life, let us go with the remembrance that we have had our gleeful days. When old age frosts our locks and stiffens our limbs, let us not block up the way, but say: "We had our good times; now let others have theirs." As our children come on let us cheerfully give them our places. How glad will I be to let them have everything—my house, my books, my place in society, my heritage. By the time we get old we will have had our way long enough. Then let our children come on, and we'll have it their way. For thirty, forty, or fifty years we have been drinking from the cup of life; and we ought not to complain if called to pass the cup along and let others take a drink.

But while we have a right to the enjoyments of life, we never will countenance

SINFUL INDULGENCES.

I here set forth a group of what might be called the dissipations of the ball-room. In some communities these dissipations continue all the year, while they are the chief work in summer at the watering-places, and therefore the subject has wide application. They swing an awful scythe of death. Are we to stand idly by and let the work go on, lest in the rebuke we tread upon the long trail of some popular vanity? The whirlpool of the ball-room drags down the life, the beauty and the moral worth of cities. In this whirlwind of imported silks goes out the life of many good families. Bodies and souls innumerable are annually consumed in this conflagration of ribbons. This style of dissipation is the shettor of quilts, the instigator of jealousy, the mercilless altar of health, the father of the rent, the avenue of loss and the curse of the town. The trend of this wild, intoxicating, heated midnight dance jars all the moral heartstrings of the city. The physical ruin is evident. What will become of those who work all day and dance all night? A few years will tarn them out nervous, exhausted imbeciles. Those who have given up their midnights to special wines and hot suppers and ride home through winter's cold, unwrapped from the elements, will at last be recorded suicides.

There is but a short step from the ball-room to the graveyard. There are consumptions and fierce neuralgias close on the track. Amid that glittering mass of ball room splendors, diseases stand right and left and balance and chain. A sepulchral breath floats up amid the perfumes and the froth of death's lip bubbles up in the champagne. Many of the brightest homes are being sacrificed. There are families that have actually quit keeping house and gone to boarding, that they may give themselves more exclusively to the higher duties of the ball-room; mothers and daughters, fathers and sons, finding their highest enjoyment in the dance, bid farewell to books, to quiet culture, to all the amenities of home. The father will, after a while, go down into lower dissipations. The son will be tossed about in society, a nonentity. The daughter will elope with a French dancing master; the mother, still trying to stay in the glitter, and by every art attempting to keep the color in her cheek and the wrinkles off her brow, attempting without any success all the arts of the belle,—an old flirt, a poor, miserable butterfly without any wings.

If anything on the earth is beautiful to my eye it is an aged woman; her hair floating back over the wrinkled brow, not frosted, but white with the blossoms of the tree of life; her voice tender with past memories and her face a benediction. The children pull at grandmother's dress as she passes through the rooms and almost pull her down in her weakness, yet she has nothing but a cake or a candy or a kind word for the little darlings. When she goes away from us there is a shadow on the table, a shadow on the hearth and a shadow in the dwelling. But if anything on earth is distressful to look at, it is an old woman ashamed of being old. What with she is too much for my gravity. I laugh, even in church, when I see her coming. One of the worst looking birds I know of is a peacock after it has lost its feathers. I would not give one lock of my mother's gray hair for fifty thousand such caricatures of old age. The first time you find these faithful disciples of the ball-room diligently engaged and happy in the duties of the home circle, send me word, for I would go a great way to see such a phenomenon. These creatures have no home. Their children unwashed. Their furniture undusted. Their china closet disordered, the house a scene of confusion, misrule, cheerlessness and dirt. One would think you might discover, even amid the witcheries of the ball-room, the sickening odors of the unswept, unventilated, and unclean domestic apartments.

These dissipations extinguish all love of usefulness. How could you expect one to be interested in the alleviations of the world's misery, while there is a question to be decided about the size of a glove or the shade of a garment? How many of these men and women of the ball-room visit the poor, or help dress the wounds of a returned soldier in the hospital? Where did the world ever see a perpetual dancer distributing tracts? Such persons are turned in upon themselves, and it is very poor pasture.

This gilded sphere is utterly bedwarfing to intellect and soul. This constant study of little things; this harassing anxiety about dress; this talk of fashionable infinitesimals; this group that simper and look askance at the mirrors and wonder with infinity of interest "how that one geranium leaf does look;" this shrivelling up of man's moral dignity, until it is no more observable with naked eye; this taking of a woman's heart, that God meant should be filled with all amenities, and compressing it until all the fragrance and are squeezed out of it; this inquisition of a small shoe; this wrapping up of mind and heart in a ruffle; this tumbling down of a soul that God meant for great *uplift*ings! I prophesy the spiritual ruin of all participators in this rivalry. Have the white, polished, glittering boards ever been the road to Heaven? Who at the flash of those chandeliers hath kindled a torch for eternity? From the table set at the close of that excited and beweated scene, who went home to say his prayers?

To many, alas, this life is a masquerade ball. As at such entertainments gentlemen and ladies appear as kings or queens, mountain bandits or clowns, and at the close of the dance throw off their disguises, so many all through life move in mask. Across the floor they trip merrily. The lights sparkle along the wall or drop from the ceiling—a very cohort of fire! The feet bound. Gemmed hands, stretched out, clasp gemmed hands. Dancing feet respond to dancing feet. Gleaming brow bends low to gleaming brow. On with the dance! Flash and rustle and laughter and immeasurable merry-making! But the languor of death comes over the limbs and blurs the sight. Lights lower! Floor hollow with sepulchral echo. Music saddens into a wail. Lights lower! The maskers can hardly be seen. Flowers exchange their fragrance for a sickening odor, such as comes from garlands that have lain in vaults of cemeteries. Lights lower! Mists fill the room. Glasses rattle as though shaken by sullen thunders. Sighs seem caught among the curtains. Scarf falls from the shoulder of beauty—a shroud! Lights lower! Over the slippery boards in dance of death glide jealousies, disappointments, lust, despair. Torn leaves and withered garlands only half hide the ulcered feet. The stench of smoking lamp-wicks almost quenched. Choking damps. Chilliness. Feet still. Hands folded. Eyes shut. Voices hushed. Lights out!

Catarrh - A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and othor advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1883. 48-52t

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best purveriser ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will alone do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulveriser and Gang Plow. The teeth incline forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible extra draft on the team. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and springing; thus they seldom clog with grass, weeds, stalks, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, so common with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning; hence, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened upper edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the part repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

Surplus of Policy Holders	$200,000.00	Assurance in Force	$11,000,000.00

The SUN has $129 of Assets for every $100 of Liabilities. It issues Unconditional Policies. These Policies are, to say the least, unsurpassed for liberality by those of any other Company with whose policies we are acquainted. They are immeasurably more liberal than those of all other Canadian and American Companies. Great care is taken in the selection of risks, but when a policy is once issued the money is paid on simple proof of the death of the assured, no matter how, or when, or where. The only condition is the payment of premiums. The SUN has not one CONTESTED or DISPUTED claim on its books. Every man should have a Life Policy in this admirably superior Company.

Both stretched out to me—
Strong and sturdy, smooth and white,
Fair as arms can be.

"Ground arms!" On the floor,
Picking up his toys,
Breaking all within his reach,
Busiest of boys.

"Right wheel!" off his cart,
"Left wheel;" too, is gone;

Horsey's tail is torn.

"Quick step!" "Forward march!"
Crying, too he comes:
Had a battle with the cat—
"Cratched off both my thums!"

"Shoulder arms!" here at last,
Round my neck they close,
Busy little soldier boy
Off to quarters goes.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

In and Around Our Legislative Halls.

(Correspondence of THE EXAMINER.)

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22.

In the House of Commons to-day Bills were introduced by Mr. McLelan and read the first time, one to authorize the Government to suspend certain provisions of the Navigation Act, and the other to create a fourth class of steamboat engineers. Sir John brought up the subject of the suspension of the License Bill, and asked Mr. Cameron (Huron) to move the concurrence of the House in his resolution in favour of suspension, adopted by the House without dissent on Monday. Mr. Cameron moved the concurrence, which was carried, and Sir John Macdonald presented a Bill to carry the resolution into effect. The remainder of the day was occupied with the debate on the third reading of the Civil Service Amendment Bill. Mr. Mitchell moved a six months' hoist, which was lost, four Conservatives voting for it. Mr. Casey moved in favour of amending the Bill so as to provide that appointments should be made on competitive examinations, and promotions by merit. This was lost on a straight party vote. Mr. Blake moved an amendment intended to do away with the abuse arising out of the system of giving $50 a year increase arbitrarily to a large majority of the Civil Servants. It was lost on a party division. Mr. Davies presented an amendment to make it impossible that those holding inferior positions should be paid the salary of a higher office which they might temporarily hold. Lost on a party vote. Mr. Lister moved for the appointment of a Commission to manage the Civil Service instead of leaving it in the hands of the Secretary of State, as recommended by the Commission of Inquiry of 1880. Lost on a division. Mr. Mulock moved an amendment against the appointment of a permanent Examining Board. Lost on a division. The Bill was read a third time and passed. A vote of $700,000 to pay the expenses of putting down the rebellion was carried without dissent.

THURSDAY, APRIL 23.

Mr. Blake asked if it was true, "that General Middleton's instructions were to quell the rebellion and to hang the murderers and responsible head men."

Mr. Caron replied that Gen. Middleton's only orders were to vindicate the law and to put down armed resistance to it.

Mr. Costigan moved a resolution to amend the imposition act which was passed after a long discussion.

Mr. Pope moved the third reading of the diseases of animals bill. Several amendments were voted down.

In the Senate to-day the debate on the Scott Act Amendment Bill was resumed by Mr. Dickey, who spoke at length against the principle of the Act generally, and concluded by moving the six months hoist. Mr. Scott replied, and the Hon. Frank Smith moved the adjournment of the debate.

FRIDAY, APRIL 24.

Sir John Macdonald moved the house into committee on the Franchise Bill.

After recess the following bills were read a third time; act to incorporate the Dominion drainage company; act amending the act of incorporation of the Richelieu and Ontario navigation company; respecting the share and loan capital of the Hamilton provident and loan society; relating to the Central bank of New Brunswick; amending the act incorporating the bank of Winnipeg.

The debate on the Franchise Bill was then resumed again and is still going on as this report closes.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Council met at the call of the reeve on the 6th of April, 1885. Members all present, the reeve in the chair.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from James J. Brealey asking to have Lots 9 and 10 and the north half of Lots 11 and 12 in the 13th concession taken from School Section No 2 and annexed to School Section No. 1 was received and laid over for further consideration.

The following accounts were received and on motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Brownscombe, were ordered to be paid:

Toker & Co, printing, etc., $19.84; John Paton, repairing windows of town hall, $1.40; Henry Denne, flour, charity to W. Close, $2.00; George Lockie, refund of statute labor tax, $5.00.

By-law No. 321, providing for licensing circuses, menageries, etc., received its several readings and was passed, signed and sealed.

On motion of Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Dunlop, the Council adjourned until Monday the first day of June next, then to meet as a court of revision on the assessment roll of the municipality.

To Women Who Want to Write.

It requires a certain type of ability to be a successful newspaper writer, says the Boston Herald, and the woman who wants to turn from sewing because it doesn't pay to writing because it does pay shows herself utterly unappreciative of the work. Newspaper correspondence is not a trade, a mechanism, an industrial pursuit, to be chosen on the ground of its being a remunerative vocation. Like all forms of literary work, it chooses its votaries to a degree rather than waits to be chosen by them. If a woman is born with a talent to write she will write—there is no possible doubt about that.

Willkie Collins' Best Work.

"Mr. Collins," I, began, "which of your books do you consider the best?"

"Now that is a question that I cannot answer in a moment and one which requires some consideration, for I have never thought of it." He threw his head back in his chair and closed his eyes with judicial solemnity and gravely pondered. At last he said: "If I were to judge by the popularity of the books with the public, I should say that the 'Woman in White' and the 'Moonstone' are the best. My own judgment is in favor of 'Armadale,' however. I think it is the best balanced story I have written and most complete. The 'Woman in White,' however, has the largest share of continued popularity and its sales have been larger for the last two years than for some time. It was a book, by the way, that has succeeded despite the critics."—Correspondence of the Philadelphia Times.

Love in the Depot.

A woman arrived here the other forenoon from the East with seven children in tow, and at almost the same hour a man reached the same depot from the North with five offspring of various ages and sizes. She was a widow and he a widower, and the children had not been whipped more than once around before there was a sort of mutual sympathy that begot admiration and then friendship. One of the widow's boys offered one of the widower's girls a bite of his fried cake, which was accepted in the spirit tendered, and a 10-year old girl belonging to the man made up to the 2-year old belonging to the woman and soon secured the privilege of wiping its nose and combing its hair. Presently the widower made bold to inquire:

"Madam, am I wrong in believing that you are a widow?"

"I have been a widow fourteen months to-day," she answered.

"Great Scots! but its just fourteen months to-day since my Hanner died! Which way be you going?"

"To Illanoy."

"That's just where I am a going too. Did you promise your husband never to marry again?"

"No."

"And I didn't promise my wife, either. Fact is, I believe I shall unite as soon as I find some good woman."

"And my children need a father's care," she sighed as she pulled John Henry off the window sill and bumped him into a seat.

The man got up and walked around the waiting-room and took a closer look at the children. Then he returned and said:

"I suppose you've got a few hundred dollars, belong to some church, can wash and bake and mend, and are of a mild and forgiving disposition?"

"Yes, that's me."

"Well, I'm kinder religious, even-tempered and am worth about $2,000. I'm sort o' stuck on you. There's something about your eyes that reminds me of Hanner."

"And you look like Alonzo around the mouth," she sighed.

Then he bent over and whispered something about Chicago and getting married, and she nodded her head. He gathered his children under his wing, took them into a corner, and solemnly and impressively observed:

"Children, I'm going to git married to that woman over there and give you a new mother. If any of you is going to kick and boohoo about it, begin now, so that I can tune ye down before the train goes. Henry, you are the oldest. Are you going to declare you'll run away or commit suicide? Let me know right now, for this is a good cool place to prance ye around with a shingle."

Henry said he guessed it would be all right, and the rest of the crowd seemed to agree, and ten minutes later the widower and widow sat holding hands and trying to eat peanuts, and the twelve children were biting and pulling hair and kicking to see who should have a seat on the steam-heater.

"This is kinder the work of Heaven!" chuckled the widower as he hitched a little nearer.

"You bet, love!" she replied, as she chucked another peanut with her teeth. —Detroit Free Press.

A Mistaken Idea.

As soon as a boy leaves school and looks about to see what he shall do next, he is very likely to be told by some unwise person, "The world owes you a living." This probably strikes him as being a very wise remark, and the boy says to himself, "If it is true that the world owes me a living, then I'm all right." He finds a place, and goes to work manfully; but after a time he concludes there is no fun in it, and he stops to consider: "If the world owes me a living, why should I trouble myself? Let the world pay its debt to me." Suddenly he loses his place and has nothing to do. He is surprised, and wonders why the world does not give him his due. "A nice bed, warm clothes, and regular dinners are good things, and I ought to have them. The world owes them to me, and if I do not get them I've been cheated out of my rights."

At one time this country was a wilderness, where no man could live, save by fighting the wild beasts. Some one chased away the bears and wolves, cut down the forests, laid out roads, built towns, and dug canals. Somebody spent vast sums of money in constructing railroads, steam-boats, docks, light-houses, schools, libraries, and all the fine things you enjoy so freely. More than this somebody pays the policeman, the firemen, the soldier, sailor, the light-house keeper and school-master.

From the day you were born your father and mother have fed, clothed, and sheltered you. It has cost you nothing. None of these great public works, canals, roads, towns, navies, and armies cost you anything. How can you say the world owes you a living? Is it not you who is in debt? What has a boy done to deserve all this? Not a thing. It is you who must pay—not the world.

Ah! boys, he was a foolish creature who first said "The world owes me a living." He told a very silly fable. The world owes no man a living until he has done some worthy deed, some good work to make the world better and a fairer place to live in. Those old fellows who dug canals and laid out towns, who built cities and invented all these splendid things—these telegraphs, these ships, these magnificent engines—had the right idea. They worked manfully, and the world at last did owe them a living, and paid it many times over. If you mean to get out of the great debt you owe the world, do something, go to work and show you are a man. Then when you have shown the world you can work, it will gladly pay you a living, and the finer and more noble your work the greater will be your reward.—Charles Bernard in St. Nicholas for May

Queer African Custom.

As for the Queen of Kaffa, I was never able to see her, any more than the king. Kaffa is a land of mysteries; no one living there can see the King. When the ministers or grandees of the kingdom desire to consult their Monarch, they enter the royal hall, walking backward and clad in skins of wild beasts, until they draw near enough to a great curtain, behind which the king is concealed.

If the King wishes to go out he is covered with a great sack and placed upon the oldest horse that can be found. Then the four greatest dignitaries of the Kingdom hold the reins, and a troup of eunuchs, who serve as an escort, drive away all curious people with their whips. There are not many curious people to be thus driven away, however; for any person who could be convicted of having seen the King, even in his sack, advertently or inadvertently, would be immediately put to death.—Paris Journal.

A BAD SPELL.

"Horatius," said the schoolmaster to a nine-year-old boy with two imposing freckles on his nose and two equally imposing freckles on the knees of his pants, "Horatius, please form a sentence with the word toward in it, and write the sentence on the board."

Horatius went to the blackboard and, after much scratching of head and friction of brain, printed with the crayon in letters that looked like a lot of half-feathered Shanghai chickens running after a piece of dough, the following sentence:

"I toward my trousers."

A YOUNG LAWYER.

Bobby begged his mamma to buy him a drum. "I am afraid, Bobby," she replied, "that if I were to buy a drum grandpa might not like it very well."

"That wouldn't make any difference, mamma," Bobby argued, "'cos, you see, the drum ain't for grandpa; it's for me."

This conversation occurred a good many years ago, and Bobby, who is now a man, is practising law successfully.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted. "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

"GOING SNACKS."

During the prevalence of the great plague of London, 1665, there was a notorious body-searcher, or plunderer of dead men's clothes, etc., named Snacks. The progress of the disease so rapidly increased his business that he found more upon his hands than he could conveniently perform, and therefore offered half his profits to any one that would assist him in his hardened occupation. They who accepted his offer were said to go with Snacks. Hence the origin of the expression.

The Wheat.

So far nothing but the most reassuring accounts, says the Galt Reporter, have been given us of the appearance and condition of the fall wheat. It has apparently passed through the sever winter unscathed and although the weather so far has not been favorable, the season is so advanced that there surely cannot be much more frost of any account. Although the general impression is thus favorable, however, it is only after a warm rain or two that the actual condition of the plant can be ascertained.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 30, 1885.

On the Right Shoulders.

Sir John once asserted that the appointment of Lieut.-Governor Dewdney was the best he ever made. It would seem that Sir John is not altogether mistaken for once, and that, not Dewdney, but Sir John, is solely responsible for the North-West trouble. It is now asserted that as late as August last Lieut.-Governor Dewdney reported to the Government that, unless the halfbreed pretensions were promptly dealt with, there was sure to be disturbance. Yet no notice was taken of this official warning of the certainty of a rebellion. Thus, Dewdney clears his skirts in this respect, at least, and the Government must shoulder the whole blame. Their idea of the "prompt action" recommended by Lieut.-Governor Dewdney was to neglect the matter; to let things take their course; to let the fires of rebellion be fanned without molestation, and not to take action till the whole Saskatchewan was in open insurrection and a million dollars of expense had been incurred, and then send up partizan commissioners to investigate the grievances of the halfbreeds, after armed rebellion had declared that the time for parley was past. The Government's burden of blood guiltiness is a heavy one.

The Northwest Passage.

The volunteers, on the plea of patriotism, were sent to the North-West by the fragmentary C.P.R., with its long gaps of unfinished road, entailing untold hardships on the unhappy volunteers. The sufferings imposed by the adoption of this route, were experienced—they cannot be described. If the troops had been sent through United States territory they would have had a comfortable journey and would have arrived a long time sooner in the North-West, and the Indian rising, which is such a grave complication of the insurrection, would have been prevented. The horses purchased for North-West service were sent through the States and arrived promptly and safely. In the eyes of the Government, how much better is a horse than a man! The United States Government would have willingly given our troops leave to pass through their territory, for they expect and receive similar favours from Canada. Only last Tuesday the U. S. government, finding it expedient to transport some troops from the west to the east, sent them through Canada, via the western peninsula. The action of the Government in sending troops by the cold, uncomfortable, tedious, strength-destroying route by the north shore of Lake Superior, give another evidence of their incompetency and of their readiness to sacrifice the comfort and health of our noble defenders, for political purposes—to simply boom the Pacific Railway and afford it another excuse for grabbing more millions from the Dominion treasury.

Spring Cleaning.

The annual spring cleaning is a necessity of civilization. The winter's accumulation of dirt, that results under the most careful conditions, must be removed. All housewives at this time of the year turn the domicile upside down and apparently make a thorough renovation of the inhabited portions of the house. But too often the parts requiring most to be cleansed are neglected. No part of any house needs so much attention at this time of the year as the cellar. And, yet, this is the part which, in the housewife's phrase, is let off with "a lick and a promise." The cellar, however, should receive the most thorough cleansing of any portion of the premises. No house with this part neglected can be said to be in a good sanitary condition. The presence of decaying vegetables in a most harmful condition. Very often the presence in the cellar of half a peck of decaying vegetables, left over neglected from the winter's store, makes all the difference between health and disease. Only a few days ago, in an American town, an example of what the bad sanitary condition of a house will entail, was painfully shown. Within a week or two, in a certain house, four children died of diptheria, while the life of the fifth was only saved by being removed to another house. The sanitary arrangements of the home of those unfortunate little martyrs to dirt was found to be extremely bad.

At this season, too, back premises need particular attention. Many persons clean their house and front yards well, but since very few see their back premises, these are not considered worthy of special attention. But they should receive the most. There, naturally, most filth accumulates and thence spring the foul airs and gases that are the deadly foes to health. This season the necessity for practising the most rigid cleanliness is to be particularly insisted on. Last year we escaped the cholera, a fact which, considering the periodic nature of this scourge in its visits, lessens, if anything, the chances of escape this year. A clean town or city can to a great extent defy this disease, for national dirt is the most cherished ally of this national scourge. Several American cities recognize this fact and are making great preparations for its possible visit. We, too, should be prepared, and then if the cholera do not come, we shall richly reap, in a general increase of healthful condition, the fruits of attention to the laws of health, as implied in the strictest attention to both domestic and municipal cleanliness.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 1.]

"Blessings be with them, and eternal praise,
Who gave us nobler loves, and nobler cares—
The Poets, who on earth have made us heirs
Of truth and pure delight by heavenly lays!"
—WORDSWORTH.

The influence of poets in the formation of national character and in the development of patriotism and martial ardour is admitted on all sides. In past ages, especially prior to the invention of printing, poets wielded a tremendous power in all civilized lands. Even in the most barbarous times the minstrel bard, who "wandered on from hall to hall," was, as Wordsworth tells us, "cheered with gifts munificent, and love and ladies' praise." All sought to honor him, from the king to the lowest and most degraded serf. In war, he was sacredly guarded; no robber dare molest his person; he was gladly at all times offered willing hospitality, and he had an open sesame to the highest courts in the melody of his sacred harp and the charm of song and verse.

But the poet is not simply the inspirer of the spirit of patriotism, or the man of all others who keeps alive the heroic deeds of ancient days, in written "thoughts that breathe and words that burn,"—he is also the true historian of his time. None present us with such faithful and striking pictures of the long-forgotten past. In their writings, there is preserved for us a living panorama of the scenes in which they moved. The ballads of olden times supply us with the very thoughts and feelings, the manners and customs, nay, the inner life itself, of the days that are no more. Poets set men's lives and acts to song, and so they are the only true historians—writers, who not only reflect the age, but bring it vividly, as in living tableaux, before our very eyes. Sir Walter Scott declared the old battle of Chevy Chase, at every recital, stirred his blood like the blast of a war-trumpet. And it may in truth be said, in some of Shakespeare's dramas we have the best history of the mother land across the seas.

So far as Canada is concerned we fear there is a great lack of appreciation of poetry. The claims of native literature, at any rate, are very little felt. It has been truly said that "even if a Milton or a Shakespeare was to arise among us, it is far from certain that his merit would be recognized. The mass of readers find it easier and safer to re-echo the approbation of others—to praise those whom all praise—than to form an intelligent and independent judgment of their own."

This witness is true. On all sides, efforts have been made, but with very unsatisfactory results, to gain the attention of the reading Canadian public by many gifted men. Some, indeed, have tried again and again, but seeing such meagre fruits, they have been forced to turn their attention to other and less congenial labours. Our people generally know but little of those who have grown up with the country and who have "lisped in numbers for the numbers came." We venture to say that in the public libraries of this Dominion, in Mechanics' Institutes and on the counters of our largest and most enterprising booksellers, there are few shelves devoted to purely Canadian literature, and many officials who do not know the writers or poets of Canada even by name.

This ought not to be so. We know there is a class of writers who declaim against the very idea of a literature belonging to this wide Dominion. Only lately a writer in one of our Canadian journals, specially devoted (save the mark) to "society and literature," said boldly, "there is no Canadian literature." "A number of books," this critic went on to say, "have been written by English speaking colonists here, but the majority of them have the tone of the kitchen of the empire; the histories are the record of happenings, which are regarded only with respect to their relation to the motherland; the fiction and belles lettres, generally have the limits of the municipality and the flavour of the log hut. We are yet only the pioneers of the future Canada; our wealthy classes are not yet born; and a people who have their sleeves rolled up could be no more expected to read than to produce polite literature."

It is just owing to such pessimists and ill-natured critics, who imagine that nothing that is good can come out of Canada, that we are to-day in the unfortunate position we now hold of having few writers known beyond the limits of the Dominion. And when we consider this unhealthy atmosphere, it is, in fact, matter for surprise that the poetry and literature of Canada should be even what it is to-day. The land is, of course, comparatively new; it has been largely peopled by those who are content with the literature of England, while almost our entire population is engaged in the practical pursuit of securing the necessaries and comforts of life. Access to good books, except in large cities, is very difficult, and very few possess either the leisure or the desire to engage in study.

It is, however, most important for the future welfare of Canada that the literature of the country should be developed. It will prove an immense factor in creating a truly national spirit. The writer before quoted admits this, when he says, "We would soon have a Canadian literature if Canada were a nation in harmony of her provinces as well as in name." A patriotic literature would prove unquestionably a strong cement in the unification of our people.

It is to draw attention to what has already been done in the creation of a national literature, especially by Canadian poets, and to give brief quotations from their works that this series of articles has been begun in the columns of THE EXAMINER. They will be continued from time to time as other pressing engagements and duties may permit, and we trust their perusal may tend to engender a deeper love for the productions of our countrymen and an ardent desire to help as far as we possibly can to build up and foster a truly national and healthy literature in this great Dominion.

The fourth volume of the Dominion census, taken in 1881, has leisurely meandered along. As an exchange remarks, hosts of old persons enumerated in it have since died and it is as useless as a Mormon Bible, for a book of reference. For instance, to show how valuable is the information it imparts to the citizen of Peterborough, who desires to compare the growth of the town with other places, the population of Peterborough for 1881 is given as 6,890, while the figures for 1871 and 1861 are entirely wanting. Tens of thousands of dollars has thus been wasted to reward political pets for preparing utterly worthless returns.

One beautiful feature about the Dominion Franchise Bill, is that the "revising barristers," whose chief duty will be to strike off Reform and add Tory names to the voter's list, are to have their remuneration fixed, not by Act of Parliament but by Order-in-Council, so that Sir John will be able to pay his pets what he pleases. No doubt their pay will, to a great extent, be conditional on the amount of service rendered, for instance a certain percentage on the number of "Grit" votes struck off or of Tory votes added to the lists.

The death is announced of Sir Robert Torrens, a eminent Australian, who was the author of the simple system of land transfer which the Ontario Government recently decided to introduce into this Province, beginning with York county and Toronto city. Premier Service, referring to the loss which Australia had sustained by the death of the hon. gentleman, said that his name would go down in the annals of history as a benefactor, not only of South Australia, but to the whole of the Australian colonies, which have now adopted his system.

When the total outlay on the Pacific Road shall have been added to the outlay on the Intercolonial, the people will, says the Week, probably have paid out of their earnings something like $140,000,000 for political and military railways; and the fruits of this expenditure to them so far have been half a dozen Knighthoods, and a Grand Cross of the Bath.

It is believed that the real cause of Sir John Macdonald's sudden surrender on the license question was the receipt of a notice from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the question having already been decided in the Hodge case, another appeal on similar points could no be entertained.

We regret to learn that Sir Leonard Tilley is very ill. His physicians have ordered him to give up all attention to business, and it is not probable that he will appear in the House again this session. If his health permits it is expected that he will go to England to consult eminent physicians.

Mr. Gladstone has been in the English House of Commons for fifty-three years, and was first elected when twenty-three years old. His leadership virtually dates from 1844, when he became Colonial Secretary in the Ministry of Sir Robert Peel.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA.

BLOOD THICKER THAN WATER.

A war between England and Russia for ascendency in India would be, says Harper's Weekly, a tremendous conflict. All the resources of modern military and naval science would be brought into play, and by a system of privateering, England, upon the ocean and in her vast colonial extension, could be struck by Russia at a thousand points. On sea and land, and on every continent, the conflict would be carried on, and the days of Chatham when the news of English battles came every morning, would be renewed. The policy of Russia for the last generation has tended to supremacy in Asia, and in a great and general view, as contrasted with the immovability of the Asian continent, and without regarding England in Asia, it is a civilizing policy. But it is inevitable, of course, that the Russian advance would at last reach the frontier of British Asian power, and that the two empires should compete for mastery. So in the middle of the last century England and France came face to face upon this continent, and the English race was victorious. The Revolution that followed, the independence of the colonies, and the rise of the new nation did not dislodge that race, nor its language, laws, faith, tradition, and civilization. In the deepest and truest sense the same blood, the same political genius, the same spirit in laws and government, which have made England have made the United States. There are, indeed, mixtures of differing races, of other blood, of a conflicting spirit, but the dominant and characteristic impulse of English and American development is the same.

In a great controversy for dominion, therefore, between England and Russia, American sympathy will naturally lean toward England. It is not that as a state England has been always friendly to us, for she has not always been so. Not only did the Revolution and the later war tend bitterly to alienate feeling, but the attitude of the English government toward us in our civil war was cold and unfriendly. It must not be forgotten, however, that while the ministry and Parliament, and the London clubs and drawing-rooms, and the Times, were hostile, the English people were kindly, and great Englishmen were our friends. The Russian Government, indeed, assured us of its sympathy. But to the Russian people we were practically unknown. It is not that England as a state has been uniformly friendly that in such a controversy as that which impends we should regret her defeat, but because, historically and upon the whole, England has been the great champion of liberty in modern Christendom, and that her objects and course, the extension of popular rights, the progress of the great body of the people, have been and are our objects also. Would any magacious American see with pleasure Russian privateers sweep England from the ocean, or Russian military hordes expelling England from India, and the Czar replacing the Queen? Undoubtedly England and Russia are both invaders of India. But the present question is not that. The question of to-day is whether the world, whether liberty and civilization, would gain by dislodging England from India and planting Russia there. Would we substitute Russian influence for English influence in the world?

THE ORGAN IN PUBLIC WORSHIP.

Suggestions as to its Proper Place.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—Organists should never lose sight of the fact that their instrument is not simply to be played upon, but to accompany; not to exhibit its or their powers, but to aid the voices and elevate the devotions of others.

The tones of the organ should never drown the human voice, but be only sufficiently audible to support it.

The organist should never attempt to lead with the organ; the leader is responsible for the time.

The organist should manipulate the stops of the organ, in order to give expression (with the human voice,) and so bring out the "lights and shades" necessary to describe the emotional feelings, portrayed in the poetry sung.

The organist should study and give expression to the words as well as the singer, remembering that music is secondary to the words, and only the vehicle or medium through which passes the language or intense emotional feelings of the heart, the whole soul vibrating as it were in praising God. Surely soul praise is more acceptable to God than merely voice praise.

We are expected to edify one another in our songs of praise, but how shall we do so if our voices are drowned with the loud tones of an organ. "Except we feel what we sing; except we give distinction in the sounds how shall it be known what is piped or harped." Some organists and many others who pose as musical critics seem to think, judging by their criticisms, that the singer is, or should be like an automaton, wound up and bound to go at a certain rate of time throughout the time, no matter whether the words are mournful or joyful, forgetting that the singer has a soul, subject to emotional and sympathetic feelings, which in giving expression to, will necessarily retard, or quicken the time.

Truly we live in an æsthetic age. The disciples of Oscar Wilde and their doctrines are permeating the very house of God. Whither are we drifting? The simple forms and heartfelt worship which obtained with our fathers have become a thing of the past.

Critical ears and fastidious tastes, I fear are in a great measure superseding the humble hearts of the devout worshippers of the days of yore. When singing God's praise the rude voices of our brethren in Christ seem to disturb them. I may here describe, so far as I can judge from what many of our congregational critics say: As nearly as possible their beau ideal of praise worship in God's sanctuary is this: We must get a grand organ, and a skilled musician to play it; also very select voices from the upper class if possible, (remember our so-called "social positions" in the world are fully recognised in the church,) that will form a cultivated choir, which will tower above criticism. And should the common people dare to criticise the talent we display at them, not to them, we can afford to laugh at their ignorance. The congregation will have the great privilege of sitting listening to the wonderful trills of our leading soprano; and our self-conscious tenor, with his fine voice and mechanical delivery, will no doubt tickle their ears. What signifies it though he should fail to awaken among them the sympathy of song, or the pulse of responsive emotion. Is that worship? Christian readers judge ye. This might be enlarged but would trespass too much on your valuable space. Will conclude in the words of Robert West: "Nothing is dearer than fault finding. No talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business. But those who are moved by a genuine desire to do good have little time for murmuring or complaint."

Yours truly,
PRAISE.

DYNAMITE!

EXPLOSION IN BRITISH ADMIRALTY BUILDINGS.

LONDON, April 23.—Great excitement was caused to-day by an explosion in the Secretary's Department of the Admiralty Office. Assistant Secretary Swainson's room was completely wrecked, and the adjacent corridors much damaged, while all the windows fronting on the Horse Guards parade were blown out. The building took fire, but the flames were soon extinguished. Swainson received a severe scalp wound. Several other officers were injured, but none as seriously as Swainson. The police were promptly summoned and all the gates closed, and person allowed to enter or depart until a thorough examination was made, and a large force of detectives also posted around the buildings,—but no arrests have been made. The authorities are very reticent about the affair, but the general opinion is that it is the work of dynamiters. It is certain gun cotton or dynamite was used.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The Celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth, and every man in the land.

SUNDAY SCHOOL INTERESTS.

The Provincial Association—Semi-Annual Meeting of the Executive Committee—Mass Meeting—Stirring Addresses.

The semi-annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the Provincial Sunday School Association was held in the George Street Methodist Church, on Friday afternoon last, April 24th. There were present Rev. J. McEwan, Secretary, Rev. A. H. Munro, Rev. E. Barrass, M. A., Messrs. H. Hough, Cobourg World, D. C. McHenry, LL. B., L. C. Peake, and Sheriff Hall. Mr. H. J. Clarke, chairman of the central committee, occupied the chair.

After devotional exercises, reports were received from the Executive committee, the Treasurer and the Secretary, containing a summary of the good work done during the year. Mr. L. C. Peake was appointed secretary, and Rev. E. Barrass, press reporter.

THE SECRETARY'S SHARE.

The secretary has during the season under review preached twenty-five sermons, delivered fifteen addresses to Sunday Schools, thirty-nine at conventions, held eight mass meetings of children, delivered eight lectures on Sunday School work, and held 103 Teachers' Institute Exercises. In all, fifteen counties have been visited, and conventions held in four counties, at which the secretary could not be present.

The present debt of the Association is $600 to remove which, it was resolved that the secretary and one member of the executive visit various places with the object of securing contributions sufficient to meet the amount and if possible to assist meeting the ordinary expenses of the Association.

The meeting decided to adopt the International course of study for Sunday School teachers.

The next annual meeting of the Association will be held in the city of Stratford in the third week of October.

In the evening, a largely attended was held in the auditorium of the church. The large assemblage evidently took a deep interest in the meeting. Mr. Clarke, secretary, occupied the chair, and the proceedings were begun by service of praise, consisting of prayer by Rev. Mr. Barrass, Scripture reading by Rev. Mr. Tovell, and sacred songs by Prof. E. O. Excell, of Chicago, assisted by an improvised choir of local male vocalists.

MASS MEETING

After the chairman had explained the object of the present meeting, and the object of the Association, the latter being to assist the Sunday School work, Rev. Dr. Stone, of Hamilton, addressed the meeting. He said the large number present showed what a deep interest was taken in Sunday School work. He pointed out that the Bible lost no ground through opposition to it—all attacks had recoiled on its assailants. It was the palladium of our liberty, and it was important that its truth should be widely disseminated. The Sunday School enterprise meant the teaching of the sacred Scriptures to the young and instilling into their minds their great truths, and thus fitting them for the duties of active life by promoting the development of the loftiest and grandest ideal of perfect manhood and womanhood. The first want for the work was the model teacher, who must be in love with the word of God, and also have a love for the work and for the children under his or her care. A thorough preparation for the work was essential, for even infant minds were keen to criticise and quick to detect slovenly preparation or perfunctory performance of duties. Every point of the lesson should be mastered so that the deduction of wrong conclusions by the pupil should be guarded against. The speaker insisted that religious education should be the basis of the acquisition of all secular knowledge. The teacher's example to his pupils should be in accordance with his profession, and teaching. What a man loved, he lived, and if the teacher were in love with the truths he sought to impress, his life would be a reflection of them. The speaker closed an eloquent and thoughtful address by emphasizing the importance of popularizing a knowledge of the Scriptures to act as a defence against the assaults of infidelity.

After a song by Prof. Excell, Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., Toronto, addressed the meeting. He asserted that nothing had done so much as the Sunday school work to remove denominational barriers. The grand object was to secure the children for Christ before the devil got possession of them. The Sunday school work was not separate from the church, but was the church in motion. Referring to Dr. Stone's remarks, the speaker said he believed there was no such thing as an infidel, honest in his belief, and gave several apt illustrations to prove his statement. The Bible had no more to fear from the infidel than the stone wall from a man striking his head against it. The speaker gave an interesting account of how the International Sunday School Lessons were selected. The object was to have the lessons to cover the whole Bible in seven years—four years for the Old and three for the New Testament. It was aimed, if possible, to always get the "memory verse" and the "golden text" from the lesson of the day. The object of the Association was to make persons more fit for their work, to have the best means of instruction used and to have the teachers thoroughly equipped for their work. A poorly equipped teacher was like a soldier armed with an old flint-lock musket against an enemy armed with a Winchester repeater. As to the work done, he said that Rev. John McEwan, Secretary of the Association, had held many Teachers' Institutes, which were merely normal classes to teach the teacher how to teach. The importance of a weekly meeting of teachers and a free interchange of ideas was pointed out and interesting details of the manner of presenting object lessons was given. The speaker asserted that the Association had done more than any other agency to cause the introduction of the Bible into the Public Schools. Speaking in reference to the need of money for the work, Mr. Blake showed that if children were properly trained in the Sunday schools we should have more money than we wanted. The speaker closed an eloquent and brilliant address by asserting that the great point with Sunday school workers was to receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

Prof. Excell then sang in grand style the solo, the "Model Church."

Mr. McLean made an appeal for a generous collection, and $60 was added to the Association funds.

Mr. J. Stratton, on behalf of a Sunday school superintendent, requested Rev. Mr. McEwan to give an example of the way in which a Teachers' Institute was conducted, and received the reply that, owing to the lateness of the hour, that was impracticable, but that Mr. McEwan would be glad to meet the Sunday school teachers in Peterborough any time they might appoint and fully explain the manner of proceeding.

The chairman conveyed to the meeting the thanks of the Association for the use of the church and for the liberal hospitality that had been extended to them.

Prof. Excell, who has a rich, full voice, excellently trained, the rare gift of distinct enunciation, and an earnest sympathy with the feeling of the songs he sings, then gave another solo.

Rev. Mr. Tovell pronounced the benediction.

THE CORPORATION CITADEL.

New Premises for our Civic Officers and Town Fathers—The Metamorphosis of the "Bank of Toronto Buildings."

The Finance Committee of the Town Council have in consideration ways and means for carrying out the plans submitted to them for the conversion of the recently acquired premises, the Bank of Toronto Buildings, into offices, Council Chamber and police court, and their accessory offices, and police station. The plans were prepared by Mr. J. E. Belcher, and are an excellent adaptition of the buildings and space at command for the purposes required.

The ground plan contains the town clerk's office, which has a separate entrance from Simcoe street, and has near the door a counter and other conveniences, such as vault lavatory, etc. On this same floor is the Mayor's office. A passage leads from the town clerk's to the collector's office, which has also a separate entrance from Simcoe street.

In the rear of the above offices, with entrance from Water street, is the police station, containing a general cell, a woman's cell and a strong cell. From this a stair leads to the Police Court room, which occupies the corresponding space over the rear part of the next floor, and is 29 feet x 27 feet, 9 inches. It contains the bench, prisoner's dock and witness stand. From this room a door leads to the Council Chamber, occupying the front part of the building, on the first floor. A separate entrance and stairway leads to the Council Chamber from Simcoe street. From this chamber, at the left of the Mayor's chair, a door opens into the committee rooms, and on the other side into the passage leading from the stairs. Though there does not seem to be much surplus room in these premises, there is, perhaps, sufficient to meet the requirements of the town for many years, and the plans, in their compactness and in the relative accessibility of the various offices they admit of, largely compensate for any scarcity of space which might otherwise be felt. The estimated cost is about $3,800. The plans were talked over in the Council on Monday night and some disposition was shown to utilise only the second floor for town offices and devote the ground floor for rental. This might answer if the town were to remain stationary, but at its present rate of growth—its headlong rush towards the status of a city—it would perhaps be better—that is, supposing our finances admit of it—to use the present plans. What served for corporation offices twenty years ago would not do to-day—and twenty, or even ten, years hence the present accommodations will doubtless be entirely inadequate.

A CHAPTER ON PLOUGHS.

The sudden advent of spring is suggestive of freshly ploughed fields, with the smell of the newly-tarsed earth rising like incense. Especially does the farmer feel the impulse of the season. To travesty Tennyson, "In the spring the farmer's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of ploughs," as shown by the groups of farmers our reporter saw on Hunter street on Friday, examining the ploughs in front of Graham & Ritchie's warerooms. With the modesty that marks his class, our reporter joined the group and went with Mr. Graham and a farmer, and took notes while the former explained to the latter the merits of the different kinds of plough displayed. The first considered was the BRANTFORD SULKY PLOUGH, a splendid instrument for well-cleared farms. Sitting comfortably on a seat, the ploughman has it under perfect control. It has a foot and hand leverage, working together so easily that a mere lad can raise the plough clear from the ground, in turning or in case of striking a stone. It has a steel beam and rolling steel coulter, and has a jointer for laying down manure, a 14-inch bottom, and can be used with 2 or 3 horses. For a well-cleared farm it is an admirable plough. The draft is no greater than that of a "walking" plough.

THE "CHAMPION" PLOUGH has a shifting beam, that can be turned to the left or right to make wide or narrow cut. This does away with all side draft. The jointer is attached to the standard, independent of the beam, which can be shifted without displacing the jointer. The "Champion" has a truss iron beam and castor wheel, a great thing in turning. It is altogether an admirable plough.

THE "GEM" GARDEN PLOUGH is indeed a gem, used with one horse, its shifting beam allows the horse to walk either in the furrow or on the land. Its steel coulter can be raised or lowered or moved backward or forward.

HILL'S PATENT PLOUGH is deservedly a great favourite. It has steel beam and chilled iron mould board, is provided with a wheel, and does exceedingly good work.

THE "CLIPPER" SOD PLOUGH is a beauty. It is light and strong, having a steel beam, as have all of Graham & Ritchie's ploughs, except the "Gem" and the "Champion" truss beam.

THE "ECONOMIST" PLOUGH, besides being strong and light, has the excellent feature of reversible self-sharpening point and and wing. When either of these is worn, a few minutes with a wrench reverses them and the plough has to all intents a point and wing as good as new. Every farmer can see the saving of time and money thus made. The "Economist" richly deserves its name.

GANG PLOUGHS.—The two-furrow gang plough, has larger mould-boards and longer points than any other gang made. These, with wrought iron frame, make it a first-class gang plough. The three-furrow gang sold by Graham & Ritchie is on wheels and is guided by a pole. It will not slide in ploughing hillsides.

THE POTATO DIGGER has the great merit of being convertible into a double mould-board plough, by removing the prongs and attaching mould-boards. For hilling potatoes, etc., this is something every farmer needs.

THE DIAMOND POINT SCUFFLER is the beauty of them all. It is half a dozen good implements in one. The "diamond" point is a grand feature. It can be reversed when worn and made as good as new. The points can be set forward or back, raised or lowered, and the scuffler narrowed to nine inches or widened to three feet. Its reversible "hillers" can be arranged to throw the soil against or away from the rows. The "Diamond" Point Scuffler can be arranged with three teeth for the first time through turnips; with flat blades for level cultivating; with seven teeth for the first time through corn, or arranged with long hillers for potatoes. For lightness of draft and variety of uses it is the best general purpose single horse cultivator made.

Graham & Ritchie can fearlessly assure farmers purchasing their ploughs, of which they have an immense stock, that they have a big supply of repairs always on hand, so that there need be no fear of delay from breakages, which very seldom happen, so strongly are they built. Indeed, they have so full a stock of "parts" that they can in a few minutes put together an entire plough.

It will richly repay any farmer, whether he wants to buy or not, to visit Graham & Ritchie's warerooms, Hunter street, opposite the English Church, and admire their immense stock of ploughs, etc.

Olive Culture in America.

In the August Century, Mrs. Biancardi's article, "Under the Olives," contains, besides an interesting account of the method of cultivating it in Europe, the following regarding olive culture as an American industry: "The olive has lately acquired for Americans a new and practical interest from the discovery that it can be easily and profitably grown in California. Residents of California have been accustomed to consider a small bottle of 'Mission Oil' for their salad as a treasure; for it far surpasses in purity and sweetness any imported oil. But it is only within a few years that private owners of land in Southern California have seriously considered the question whether olive culture could be made a paying enterprise. So many possibilities cling to the broad lands and rich soil of the Golden State, that it is not wonderful if some of them have been overlooked. And, though experiments in olive growing have been made on a small scale with good success during the last twenty years, popular interest is only now beginning to be awakened. In the first place, there was the drawback, peculiarly great to the American temperament, of the slowness of growth, and irregular productiveness of the olive in Europe. The old Tuscan saying is, 'plant a vineyard for yourself, an orange grove for your children, and an olive orchard for your grandchildren.' As a people, we are not fond of looking far into the future; and besides, judging from ourselves, we are not at all sure that our grand-children will wish to live where we do. But the olive is good enough to adapt itself to the rapidity of American demands. It matures much earlier than in Europe, and bears oftener and more plentifully. The system of propagation from cuttings, as far as can be judged at present, gives, in our rich soil, robust trees; and there is no need to employ the slow process of raising them from the seed. Five years is surely not long to wait for a fruit crop; and after that time, according to the best California authorities, the trees will yield a full, and in many cases an annual harvest. At a late meeting of the State Horticultural Society, in San Francisco, it was stated that olive farms yielded $2,200 to the acre. These trees bore every year, and were situated on 'adobe' hill-sides, the bottom lands being found, as in Italy, less favorable to the fruit. The variety was the 'Mission olive,' which has not been identified with any of the varieties now cultivated in Europe. The olive was introduced into South America in 1560, by Antanio Ribera: but the California tree sprang from seeds sent from San Blas in Mexico by Don Joseph de Galves with his expedition to rediscover the port of Monterey."

The Strongest Man in the World.

This claim is made for Stern Carpenter, who lives in the village of Granville Corners, Washington County, N.Y. He is now a man over eighty, and a member of the Society of Friends. He is still able to out-distance all competitors in feats of physical strength. He once lifted a box filled with iron weighing 1,900 pounds. This was done by hoisting the box with his hands, and was a feat equal to raising 3,800 pounds in harness. At another time he lifted a cannon which weighed 1,400 pounds, and shouldered it. He has frequently raised a barrel of white lead with ease. To guess the weight of a huge hog he would lift it by the bristles with the fingers of his one hand, and many a porker has he raised in this way weighing 500 pounds. Being a man of peace he rarely got into trouble with other men, but one day he was mischievously tripped up by one of his workmen. He caught the man by the shoulder and by the seat of his pantaloons and hurled him into the air over a seven-foot fence. The man came down in a marsh a rod or more from the fence. It is believed there is no equal of Mr. Carpenter now living. He is not a large man, though very massive in his build. He would not be picked out in a crowd as of more than average strength. Great power of muscle runs in families, and so does weight. There is a family named Hickey, in Mason County, Ill., who average 277 pounds. The father weighs 430 pounds, the mother 286, and the eldest daughter 307. Were marriages not contracted by people themselves, but entered into by the advice of scientific physicians, it would be possible to perpetuate families that would be noted for weight, muscular development, size and personal beauty, according as the physician might select. But love is blind, and pays no heed to heredity.—From Demorest's Monthly for April.

An Expensive Autograph.

I asked one of Lincoln's officials, now a leading patent lawyer of New York, if he remembered Tom Corwin. He replied, "Very well indeed. I knew him intimately and I have in my pocket now an autograph of his which cost me $500."

"How did you happen to get that?" I asked.

"It was through Corwin's generosity He was the most free-handed fellow of his time. If a friend asked him for money he would gratify him if he had it, and if he had it not, he would indorse a note for him to get it. This habit of indorsing kept him poor and he died with more debts than assets. The October before he died I loaned him this money. He had come to Washington, and had entered my office, telling me he wanted my check for $500. I told him I had no bank account in the city, and my check was not good for a nickel. He then said he needed the money badly, and that he must have it in three days. If he could do this he could save himself a couple of thousand. He had indorsed notes held in Cincinnati to the amount of $4,000. They had not been paid and the creditors had told him if he would send on $2,000 by such a day they would cancel the notes. He still lacked $500 and the time was within three days of completion. If he could not raise it he would be liable for the extra $2,000. As he finished his story I said, "Senator Corwin, it is true I have no bank account, but if you will promise me not to present my check before noon to-morrow I will give it for the amount." Mr. Corwin promised, and I wrote out a "Pay the bearer $500" and gave it to him. After he left I borrowed the money and placed it to my credit in the bank. It was duly drawn and a few days later Tom Corwin went back to Ohio. This was in October, 1865. In December he died, and that was the last I saw of my money."—Cleveland Leader.

A negro at Louisville could not be placed under the influence of ether and anæsthetics when physicians desired to perform a surgical operation upon him, and so one of the doctors mesmerised him and kept him under mesmeric influence for two hours, or until the operation was over. When the patient was aroused he stated that he had all the time been conscious of what was going on, but had felt no pain.

Coral Fishing.

The largest vessels employed in the coral fishery on the Italian coast are of about fourteen tons, and employ a dozen hands. They have to work night and day, the men relieving each other every six hours. They fish from March to October, and their food consists chiefly of macaroni and biscuit. Each boat makes from 300 to 900 pounds, according to its size. The coral is usually found attached to rocks, never in mud, nor in muddy waters. The coral rock is formed of different species of madrepores. Sometimes it is also found attached to shells and other marine objects. It spreads out its branches in all directions, attaining a height of about a foot and thickness of about an inch.

The mode of fishing coral is very primitive and might be improved with advantage. A frame, consisting of two bars of wood or iron, about fifteen feet in length, placed across each other, is weighted in the middle with a large stone. This frame is hung with tangles of hemp and nets, one of which is attached to each of the four extremities of the cross-bar frame. This is then let down by means of a thick rope onto the coral bed and is dragged backwards and forwards till the coral branches are tangled in it. The rope is then attached to a windlass, and the frame is thus brought heavily to the surface. Precious coral varies in color from a deep red to a pale pink. It is also sometimes marbled black and white; and there is even black and white coral. Red coral was once the most esteemed; now a delicate pink is the most valued. The finest pink coral is worth from $400 to $600 per ounce, whilst ordinary red coral may be had for $10 per ounce.—Boston Transcript.

Salt lagoons are met with in several places in Apacha county, Arizona, the principal one being near the line of New Mexico. About one million pounds are taken yearly from this lake, and with proper facilities it could be made to produce an almost unlimited supply. The salt is precipitated to the bottom of the lake, wagons are driven into shallow water, and the crystals, shoveled in. Thus the supply for cattle-raisers in Apache and portions of Yavapai is obtained, in addition to the large quantities required for the working of silver ores.

Turnbull's Show Rooms were never so well filled with pretty Hats and Bonnets as at present. For Millinery go to Turnbull's.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

OR,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET KENT.

Author of "The London Casket," "Thornicroft's Model," &c. &c.

"DEAR MRS. MOSTYN:—I cannot bring myself to leave this neighborhood without a word or two of farewell, apology, and explanation to you. I fully intended when last I saw you to avail myself of your kind invitation for this evening. I looked forward to the ball with the greatest pleasure. You know, dear Mrs. Mostyn, how much your sister has been to me. I have never seen anyone I admire so much. I feel that I never shall. I dare not come to-night, for if I did I could not answer for myself. I should be certain to say things which in my position, I ought not. The truth is, that though I seem to be independent, I am not.—My own property, though sufficient for anyone of limited ambition, is not large enough to enable me to take the position I ought, and I cannot afford to offend my uncle. He wishes me to marry some lady whose fortune will strengthen my influence in the county. He has repeatedly spoken of this to me, especially of late. I have listened, feeling all the time if I searched the universe I could find no one so suitable or dear to me as your sister; but my uncle is a man of such decided views and such unbending temper, that I have never so much as ventured to hint at my affection for her. He would probably drive me away from his house if I did. I dare not come, therefore, for I know I should say things I ought not, and pledge myself to more than I should be able to fulfil. Perforce, and most unwillingly, I stay away. I am going to Baden for a week or two; when I return, your sister will be gone. I shall never see any one I admire so much as I admire her—never really care for any other woman. Tell her the miserable plight in which I find myself, and how wretched I am.

"Yours, faithfully,
"ROBERT MERIVALE."

"Philip! Philip!" cried Mrs. Mostyn. "Where are you! Oh, do come here, dear."

Her husband came. She thrust the letter into his hand, but would hardly give him a chance of reading it, for she exclaimed, "We have this ball to-night, and all the people will be here in no time, and there are no end of things we ought to think about; but never mind, let everything take its chance, and just you ride over to Foxtown and horsewhip this creature! I never read such an abominable letter in my life!"

Milder counsels prevailed. Silence and life-long contempt were considered sufficient punishment for Robert Merivale. It was a bad case. For three months he had done everything in his power to convince Lucy that he loved her, and now he wrote this letter.

"You must not tell her about it to-day," said Mr. Mostyn, hastily. "Be very careful not to let her even imagine that you have heard from him. You may be quite sure of one thing. Sooner or later all this will be talked about, and people will regard Lucy's behavior to-night as the measure of her affection for him. If she is despondent and dull, as she will be, if she thinks there is anything amiss, everyone will credit her with being in love with him!"

"And if that were true, it is his fault!"

"Never mind, Lettice. It shall not be said! He shall not have the satisfaction of knowing it. Let me manage the business. She is going away to-morrow. It will be easy to hide everything from the gossips here. She must not hear this till to-morrow. She is a tender, delicate little thing; she would not be able to go through with it."

"Go through with what? Not to be told what!" said Lucy appearing suddenly. "Are you two talking about me?"

Mr. and Mrs. Mostyn both looked disconcerted, especially the gentleman, who the moment before was going to manage everything.

"You had better tell me if it is anything bad. I am not so weak as you think; and besides, I shall only make myself unhappy by imagining something a thousand times worse than it really is."

"Perhaps Lucy is right," said Mr. Mostyn. "Tell her, Lettice—kindly and carefully though," he whispered, and went away.

Lettice was much too excited to study style or expression. "It is this," she cried—"Robert Merivale whom we all liked so much, is a mean half-hearted fortune-hunter! He wants his uncle's money, and dares not so much as call his soul his own lest the cross old man should say that it is not!"

"I do not know what you mean, Lettice," gasped poor Lucy, who had no clue to her sister's change of tone.

"Read this letter—there—it has just come." She gave Lucy the letter, and watched her face, poor child, as she read it. "There!" said Mrs. Mostyn, "now you see what he is; I wish we had time to talk; and were going to be alone, but there is no time to lose. The only thing to do is to show that you are perfectly indifferent to anything that he chooses to say or do; in fact, do not care a pin for him."

"But, Lettice," said Lucy, faintly, "if I am not quite indifferent? I do feel this, I cannot help it. You see he has been doing everything he could to make me believe that he liked me all this time."

"I know, dear; he is a sneak, and I hate him! Of course, he has tried to make you like him; but do not let him or anyone else think you do. You must look your best to-night, and dance your best as well."

"You are sure I must come down? Sure I must pretend all this?"

"Quite sure! certain! You must obey me. I am your elder sister, and know best."

"Very well, Lettice I will do what you say—but tell me why I must?"

"Because of the people who are coming. Some of them may know about it already—all of them will do so soon—and they will notice how you look, and make their remarks."

Lucy winced visibly; it was very painful to her to be discussed in this way.—"And I shall be more respected, shall I," she said with a strong touch of scorn in her voice, "if I can bear cruel treatment like this, and appear as if it did not affect me?"

"It hurts a girl dreadfully to be supposed to have had a disappointment. No one must be able to see any difference in you. I only wish there was none. I wish you could make up your mind not to feel it."

"You want me to be as bad as he is—I should not be very nice if I did not feel it."

"I suppose, dear, it is impossible for you not to feel something; only whatever you do, promise me to come down to-night as usual, and show nothing. It is of the highest consequence."

"I promise," said Lucy. Slowly she made her way back to her own room, where her pretty dress was lying, and on her way she encountered everywhere signs of preparations for the ball—the ball at which she was to have been so happy.

Lucy went through the ordeal bravely. She looked very well, a trifle pale and haughty perhaps, and there was much difference of opinion about her next day, for some of her partners said she had hardly a word to say for herself, while others declared she was full of conversation and spirit; but no one divined that she was bearing the first shock of the cruellest blow which had been dealt her during the course of her life. Her sister Lettice "could not make her out at all.—Lucy was so odd. She openly said she was wretchedly unhappy, but she would permit no expression of sympathy, and listen to no conversation on the subject."

"I can't speak of it," she said, when Mrs. Mostyn came to her room after the ball, and so she said next morning when the same lady went to help her to pack.

At three o'clock Lucy was to return to London, and alone, for one of Lettice's children was ill. "And you really persist in leaving us?" she said. "Stay a little longer, Lucy, you will be far happier here with me."

Lucy shook her head.

"And I am sure it is not a good thing for you to go to a wedding; it will only make you fret about this odious affair."

"No it won't—one thing will not hurt me more than another. I don't want Katie Williams to remain unmarried because I do."

"You will not stay unmarried—you are quite sure to marry."

"I marry! No, never! If I am sure of anything it is of that."

"I hate Robert Merivale!" cried Lettice; "I hate and despise him—I always shall—a miserable contemptible——"

"Oh please, Lettice, don't—you do give me such pain."

"It is my belief you love him still!"

"Of course I do," said Lucy simply; "one can't give up a thing like that in a moment."

"You love him still! Then, Lucy, if ever—I don't think it at all likely—but if ever, at any future time, he were to ask you to marry him—you would say yes."

"I say yes!" cried Lucy, "after that letter! Is it possible you can think so?—I give him up quietly, but I give him up forever."

"And yet you say you are miserable!"

"Yes, I am miserable—I shall not say much about it though."

"Well, I hope it won't last long," replied Lettice.

"I was very fond of him; I have been terribly deceived; I shall get used to it some day, no doubt." She spoke very bitterly, but her eyes were full of tears. Lettice was going to speak, but her sister said, "Let us name him no more."

The time for departure came—away drove Lucy and her boxes.

"Of course we have half an hour to spare," said Mrs. Mostyn. "That is Philip's idea of punctuality."

"Ten minutes, ma'am," said the station master in answer to her inquiry.

"That's a blessing," said Mrs. Mostyn. "Now, Lucy, if a lot of odious Litchfield people come on the platform, mind you laugh and talk to me. You behaved splendidly last night; carry it through to the end. You were brave! I did so admire you and wish that he had been there to see you."

"Hush," said Lucy, earnestly.

"By the bye," continued Mrs. Mostyn, "what about that odd old gentleman of yours! He will be in the train, perhaps I hope he will. He would amuse you."

"Poor man," said Lucy, sympathetically.

"Talking about being unhappy, Mrs. Mostyn exclaimed, "Now, I do consider he has had a bad life of it. Losing the girl he was engaged to in that way—and she so young!"

"I begin to think his life a very happy one," said Lucy bitterly. "He has been able to love her, and believe in her for fifty years."

"There is the chemist's wife! Put on a smile, Lucy; be quick."

"Oh dear, Lettice, you worry me! Why should I smile because a chemist's wife is there?'

"People of that kind gossip far more than we do, and know far more about us than we imagine. Stop, here is the train. Give a look, as it passes, for your old gentleman—but I suppose he would be at the window."

No one was looking out. The train was not crowded, and as it passed Lucy ascertained that her fellow-traveler of three months before was not there now. She had no time to be disappointed; her sister hurried her into an empty carriage gave five shillings to the guard to keep it so, and was just going away when she suddenly remembered something and ran back to the window by which Lucy was sitting.

"Lucy! Lucy!" cried she, "I all but forgot to give you this letter. It came last night, and must have been mislaid in the scrimmage. It is from Aunt Esther.—What a thick one it is! but there is no time for me to hear anything she says.—Kiss the blessed old lady for me. Good-bye!" and hardly had she said the words when the train started.

Poor Aunt Esther's letter dropped from Lucy's impassive hand. She was going to be so wise and so sensible, and to do her best to root out Robert Merivale from her heart when once she was back in London, but for this one day, when once more going over the very ground which she had traversed exactly three months before, when she believed herself the happiest girl in the world, she must think a little—and in a few minutes more, too, she would pass Sir Richard Merivale's house. She knew that Robert Merivale was not there, and yet could not dismiss the idea that somewhere in garden or meadow she might catch one last glimpse of him. She passed Foxtown. Its smooth, squared stones shone grey in the autumn sunshine, gay flower-beds spotted the closely-shaven green lawn, orderly shrubs ranged themselves protectingly around, and by whizzed the iron engine which was bearing her along the straight lines of its road, while lines as hard, and forces as strong parted her from him she loved.

He was unworthy of her love! She interrupted herself by this thought; but still he had been so charming and lovable for three months that it was difficult to believe that the note written in a few minutes was the one by which his character was to be judged, rather than his behavior during all that time. "This is folly," cried poor Lucy. I must not allow myself much time for thinking if this is what it comes to. When I go home I shall set to work hard. I will study and improve myself in the mornings, and in the afternoons I will try to be of some use to my fellow-creatures. Oh! I shall soon get this nonsense out of my head!" And then she had "a cry," and then she opened Aunt Esther's letter.

CHAPTER III.

Aunt Esther's letter was, after all, only an envelope in her hand writing enclosing a letter from some one else, with a few words from herself scribbled on its cover.

"I won't write to you now, dear Lucy, as you are coming home so soon, and I have nothing to say to you but that I love you. I forward this letter to you at once, as it is marked 'Immediate!' What an important little person you are to receive letters marked in this way! I have been puzzling myself all the morning to know from whom it can be." Lucy puzzled herself too, and that for some time, without remembering that her doubts could be set at rest by opening it; it was too business-like in its appearance to be very attractive. When she did open it, it changed the aspect of her life henceforth and forever. Of the various ways in which it affected Lucy's future, perhaps that in which the reader is likely to be the most interested is how it bore on her relations with the man who was costing her so much suffering, and that is best told by a letter of Mrs. Mostyn's, dated September 24th, in answer to his, received on September 14th:—

"DEAR SIR:—I duly received your letter, and as duly showed it to my sister, on the evening of the ball at which we had hoped to see you.—It would be foolish and unworthy if I were to say that your profession of affection for my sister took me by surprise. I had seen for some time that you were very fond of her. I had no means of ascertaining the depth of your affection, for I did not know then the importance you attached to taking a high position in the county. I then thought your idea of happiness might limit itself to winning the girl you loved (if she were to be won) and living with her on an income which I always understood to be sufficient for ordinary requirements. You, however, have informed me of the extent of your feeling for her, of your wishes for the future, and fear of offending your uncle, Sir Richard. My sister quite sees and understands your position, and readily acquiesces in your wish to meet her no more. She, and I more strongly still on her part, beg you to hold to this, as any renewal of acquaintance would be painful to her after you have so clearly stated your feelings.

"You will doubtless be glad to know that this decision of yours in no way affects my sister's happiness; and you will also, I dare say, be pleased to hear of a great piece of good fortune which has befallen her. You, who so keenly appreciate this world's wealth, will be able to understand what a great thing it is for her to suddenly become the owner of a large fortune. A person with whom she had but a slight acquaintance died about ten days ago and left her all he had. It is needless to say how large his means were, nor do I as yet quite know; but she has a beautiful house in Chester Square, a large estate and house in Cumberland, and money besides. She will have, they say, at least £8,000 a year. She heard of it the very day after the ball, so even if your letter had been one to cause her pain, which I am happy to inform you was not the case, this news would have speedily cured her. She is now actually richer than the uncle of whom you stand in such awe. I write thus fully, because I am not likely to see you. I must beg you to adhere most strictly to your intention of avoiding this house. I expect my sister to visit me much more frequently, now that money is no object to her and she must be able to do so with comfort. Yours, faithfully,

"LETTICE MOSTYN."

"Now I have done it!" cried that lady to her husband, when she had signed her name. "I have written a letter that will plant a dagger at every turn! I am so glad."

"You have written a letter which will show Merivale most clearly that your poor little sister was very much attached to him!"

"And won't that be the biggest dagger of them all? But of course I don't want him to think so, and I don't think that he will."

"I am sure he will."

"I can't help it, then. After all, he won't show my letter! It puts him in such a ridiculous position! Philip I am proud of it."

"Does it strike you as lady-like, dear?"

"I don't want to be lady-like—I want to be disagreeable! He will be ready to kill himself with vexation when he reads it.—You see he may spend his whole life in paying court to his uncle, and the old man may leave him nothing after all, whereas if he had been true to his love for Lucy, he would have had all this money now.—It is splendid!"

"He will try to get her to forgive him."

"There won't be much difficulty in persuading her to do that!"

"Lettice!"

"Forgiving him is not marrying him! I am convinced that nothing will ever induce her to do that!"

All Mrs. Mostyn said was true; Lucy Ilderton was now a rich lady, and her wealth came from the odd old gentleman with whom she had traveled three months before. When she opened the lawyer's letter which had been forwarded to her by Aunt Esther, she learned this astounding fact and had hardly recovered her surprise when she reached home. The lawyer's letter was a catalogue of riches and wealth. Lucy had a handsome furnished house in Chester Square, containing a gallery of ancient masters, folios of drawings and engravings, cabinets of Venetian glass and china, and stores of fine old plate. She had horses and carriages, a large estate in Cumberland, and a yacht lying at Cowes. Mr. Kenrick had left her all he had, and had written her a letter which touched her inexpressibly. It was dated just two weeks before he died, and was as follows:—

Clothing of Men and Women.

The funny people of the newspapers are making merry over some returns of the census, which show that there are in the United States 6,000 establishments for the manufacture of men's clothing, the annual product being valued at $200,000,000, and that there are only 600 manufacturers of women's clothing, the products of whose works are valued at only $30,000,000, annually. This is but another example of the delusive manner in which the census statistics are being put before the public. It is not surprising that newspaper writers are making fun of them. The explanations that should go with the census figures are these: First, that a large proportion of the women of the United States make their own garments, and, therefore, have no need for "establishments" to make them; second, another large proportion have their garments made by needle women and dressmakers in a small way, and these do not count as "establishments."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Crown of England.

I wonder if Albert Edward ever has an opportunity to show his pretty sweethearts the costly bauble which he will probably some day wear. The crown of England is a beautiful jewel sparkling with stones worth half a million dollars. There are twenty diamonds round the circle, worth $7,500 each, making $150,000; two large center diamonds, $10,000 each, making $20,000; fifty-four smaller diamonds, placed at an angle of the former, each $500; four crosses, each composed of twenty-five diamonds, $60,000; four large diamonds on the top of the crosses $30,000; twelve diamonds contained in the fleur de lis, $50,000; eighteen smaller diamonds contained in the same, $10,000; pearls, diamonds, etc., upon the arches and crosses, $50,000; also 144 small diamonds, $25,000; twenty-six diamonds in the upper cross, $5,500; two circles of pearls about the rim $15,000.

Some folks differ from trees; the latter leave in the summer; the former would do the same, but their trunks are held for board bills.

For Nettle Rash, Itching Piles, Ringworm Eruptions, and all skin diseases, use Prof. Low's Sulphur Soap. 18-4t

A minister of the Gospel at York, Maine, advertises: "Marriages a specialty, acceptable at all hours; strangers particularly invited."

Quantity in medicine is no indication of value. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is concentrated and powerful; requires a smaller dose, and is more effective, dose for dose, than any other Sarsaparilla. It is the best of all blood medicines.

The nutmeg State is now reported to have recently flooded the Australian colonies with cigars made wholly of paper, carefully colored and veined and flavored with nicotine.

* * * Premature decline of manly powers, nervous debility and kindred diseases, radically cured. Consultation free. Book three (3c.) stamps. Address, confidentially, World's Medical Dispensary Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

A small brass calendar that President Garfield used to turn every morning, and that now bears the date "Saturday, July 3, 1881," never having been changed since that fatal morning, is a prized memento in the home of R. B. Hayes.

MR. G. W. Macully, Pavilion Mountain, B. C., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best medicine I ever used for Rheumatism. Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c."

It used to be death to counterfeit the coin of the realm, yet for ages past the moon has been putting out new quarters every month.

Mr. George Tolen, Druggist, Gravenhurst, Ont., writes: "My customers who have used Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure say that it has done them more good than anything they ever used." It has indeed a wonderful influence in purifying the blood and curing diseases of the Digestive Organ, the Liver, Kidneys, and all disorders of the system.

The young couple who before marriage thought they could live on love are now living on corn bread and hominy.

A COMPLETE REVOLUTION in the state of a stomach harassed by Dyspepsia is caused by using Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, or great blood purifier, a medicine specially adapted to renew healthful activity in that organ, and in those which most closely co-operate with it, the bowels and the liver. Easy digestion, an increase of appetite and a free secretion of bile, mark the radical change which it produces.

When a young woman marries a man for his money, would it be proper to say that the man has married his "hired girl."

The decided alterative action of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion upon the blood, adapts it in a remarkable degree as a blood purifier well worthy of the trial of those suffering from a diseased condition of the circulating fluid. Always ask for ROBINSON'S PHOSPHORIZED EMULSION, and be sure you get it. 17-2t

"Reading maketh a full man," says Bacon. Curious that the libraries aren't patronised more.

Easily Caught.

It is very easy to catch cold, but not so easy to cure it unless you use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best remedy for all throat, bronchial and lung troubles, coughs, colds, and consumptive tendencies. 18-2t.

The moment a man begins to rise among his fellows he becomes a mark for their missiles.

Drive It Away.

Drive away all poisonous humor from the blood before it develops in scrofula or some chronic form of disease. Burdock Blood Bitters will do it. 18-2t.

Men respect the religion of those who are ready to lend a helping hand in times of trouble

A Wide Spread Evil.

The great source of consumption and 58 ugly sores is scrofula in the blood. Burdock Blood Bitters purify the entire system and cure scrofula, as well as the more common blood humors. 18-2t.

An old widower says:—When you pop the question, do it with a kind of laugh, as if you were joking. If she accepts you, very well; if she does not, you can say you were only in fun.

A Golden Opinion.

Mrs. Wm. Allan, of Acton, declares that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best household remedy in the world for colds, croup, sore throat, burns, scalds and other painful complaints. Her opinion is well founded.

"What will be the drink of the future?" asks Mr. Moody. There will doubtless be many drinks, among which whiskey will loom up prominently.

A Throat Cure.

A cure for Croup. There is no better remedy for Croup than Hagyard's Yellow Oil taken internally and applied according to special directions. This is the great household panacea for rheumatism, stiff joints, pain, inflammation, &c. 18-2t.

The lad was blowing bubbles when he accidentally swallowed some of the compounds, and that made bub ill.

Nervousness

May be entirely cured in a short time by using case of NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS, without any fear of injury. Try one and be convinced. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tally, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 18-4

It is no indication that a cat knows the value of money, simply because it always carries its purrs with it.

A Sad Neglect.

Neglecting a constipated condition of the bowels is sure to bring ill health and great suffering. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate the bowels in a natural manner, purifying the blood and promote a healthy action of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels. 18-2t.

A genius has invented steel knives which will cut cold iron. Now boarding house beefsteak must yield.

Nothing so suddenly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold. Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course generally prove the forerunner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their affliction from a neglected cold, and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.

BOTTLED FISH.

A bottle, to which a large bunch of bivalves had grown, was fished up recently by a Baltimore oysterman. Inside the bottle was a fish too large to get out of its mouth. It is supposed that the fish went into the bottle, and either liked its quarters so well that it carried too long, or before it could find its way out had grown so large as to nearly fill the bottle. The bottled fish will be sent to the Smithsonian Institution.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-12t

A RUM WAY OF TAKING THEM.

At a recent dinner party the coachman had come in to help wait at table. Among the guests was a very deaf old lady. Coachman, in handing vegetables, comes to the deaf party. "Peas, mum?" (louder). Still no answer from the D. P., but, placing her ear-trumpet to her ear, sits it interrogatively to the man, who, glancing down and seeing the tube, ejaculates: "Well, it's a rum way of taking them, but I suppose she likes it. Here goes!" and down went the peas into the ear-trumpet.

A Terrible Fire

arouses the apprehensions of a whole city. And yet the wild havoc of disease startles no one. Sad to relate, women suffer from year to year with chronic diseases and weaknesses peculiar to their sex, knowing that they are growing worse with every day, and still take no measures for their own relief. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the result of life-long and learned study of female complaints. It is guaranteed to cure.

"KID-GLOVE ORANGES."

"Kid-glove" oranges are grown in Florida, commonly called, because when peeled they are so dry that one can eat them while wearing kid gloves, without damaging the glove in the least. They are small, aromatic in flavor, and of the mandarin, Sangarine, and Satsuma varieties.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES.
Its Value for Women and Children.

DR. R. HAAS, Jersey City, N.J., says: "I have given your Emulsion to my little boy, of three years. He was in poor health, but he has now taken two bottles, and is improving both in strength and health. I have also recommended it to several of my female patients and they have derived much benefit from it."

THOROUGHLY PREPARED.

"Young man," said a revivalist, solemnly, "do you feel that you are prepared to to answer the summons at any moment? Do you realize that when you go to bed at night you may be called before the morning dawns?"

"Oh, yes, sir. I'm night clerk in a drug store, an' all you've got to do is keep on ringing the telephone bell until you hear me holler."

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the deceased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

A CANADIAN PRIMA DONNA.

A cablegram dated Milan, April 15th, says: Ada Arthurs made her debut as Marguerite in "Faust" last night. She had tremendous success. Miss Arthurs, who is a native of Toronto, and niece of Col. Arthurs, has been in musical training in Italy for some time, where her magnificent voice has been developed with the result above stated. Her numerous friends in Toronto are pardonably elated at the young lady's success.

An Enterprising, Reliable House.

Taylor & McDonald can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the Agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the Agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. HE REMEMBERED THE POOR.

"Well, deacon, have you remembered the poor during this cold weather?"

"Yes, parson, I think of them very often. Only yesterday a poor, shivering little fellow came to my door, without clothes enough to cover his nakedness. It was a very pathetic sight."

"What did you do for the poor little creature, deacon?"

"I let him shovel off my sidewalk, and it made him so nice and warm he actually perspired."

Decay of the Bones.

with some thirty other symptoms, mark the progress of that terrible disease known as catarrh. It advances from stage to stage of fearful annoyance, and if neglected, is certain to end in general debility, and possibly in consumption or insanity. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure it at any stage. This medicine has been long before the public, and thousands have been restored to health by its never-failing virtues.

A CHIRURGICAL COCK.

At West Ausonia, Conn., resides a lad of 10 who was afflicted with a seed wart on the top of his foot. On two occasions the wart had been cut to the surface of the foot, but would soon grow again, each time to larger proportions. A few weeks since, as the boy was sitting at the table eating his dinner, his shoe off, as usual, a large pet cock came in for the crumbs, and in his haste to get away with as many as possible in a short time, suddenly seized the wart. Before the lad could shake him off he, with his forcep-shaped beak, pulled the wart out by the roots. The wound healed in a few days, and there is no appearance of further growth.

HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Election of Officers.

On Saturday afternoon the directors of the Little Lake Cemetery Company met and re-elected the following officers:—President, Mr. J. J. Lundy; Secretary, Mr. James Edwards; Superintendent, Mr. John Kelly.

Sentenced.

On Friday, John Wright, driver of the mail express between the station and the postoffice, at the Police Court, pleaded guilty to abstracting from the mails letters containing in all $166, of which only $90 was recovered. He was sentenced by the Police Magistrate to five years in the penitentiary, the lowest possible sentence for the offence.

A Favoured Stationer.

It will be noticed that a street letter box has been placed in front of Sailsbury & Bro.'s bookstore, George street. This firm must be high up in favour with the Government, or, perhaps, this letter box is the Government's concession to the public demand in Peterborough for better postoffice accommodations, intended to take the place of the promised new postoffice.

Liquor Licenses.

At a meeting held on Friday the West Riding Commissioners recommended the following for licenses:—T. Giroux, Little Windsor; Mrs. Norris, Queen's Hotel; Mrs. Barbino, Royal Hotal; and A. D. Faucher, Faucher's Hotel. This makes the total licenses in the district 36, of which eight are shops. In town the number of licenses is 28, of which 8 are shops and 20 taverns. At the meeting of the East Riding Commissioners on Saturday John Frost, Keene, was granted a three months' extension of license, one application refused, and the Westwood and other applications laid over.

"The Dance."

Rev. Mr. Manuing took for the text of his sermon on Sunday night last the above subject. During the address he denounced the dance as immoral in its tendencies, and pointed out that all the churches had spoken against it as a very great evil. The Plenary Council of the Roman Catholic Church had issued a pastoral against it. The Tract Society, the Presbyterian Church of the United States, the Presbytery of Missouri (and he had no doubt but that the Baptist Church, which was noted for its piety), had all denounced the dance. From what he had learned from church workers he believed that all connected with church work who were also devotees of the dance, lost their spirituality and interest in church work.

Wright and Wrong.

On Friday the lad Wright, for purloining $166 from the mail bag, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The justness of the sentence is not disputed, but it is in vivid contrast to the escape of a mail clerk on the Grand Junction Division, who committed similar offences, though the amounts taken from letters were vastly greater. Wright had no friends at court, but the other offender with a member of Parliament as his friend and a wealthy father to pay back the amount abstracted, was allowed by our indulgent government to go scot free, and he is now enjoying his liberty, while a friendless boy is doomed to five years penal servitude. One case is justice, the other looks like a compounding of felony by the administrators of the law.

Auction Sale of Buggies.

Mr. C. Stapleton will sell by public auction for Messrs. Porter, Bros., Peterborough, on the market square, Peterboro' on Saturday the 2nd of May, 1885, a number of second hand buggies, phætons, carriages, waggons etc. These vechiles are all in a good state of repair, and will be sold positively without reserve. Sale at 10:30 a. m. 16-2t.

Cattle Shipments.

On Saturday Mr. Geo. Webber shipped a carload of fat cattle for the Montreal market. The cattle market in that city is extremely flat. Mr. Webber states (and he watches the market closely) that, as compared with last year, an animal that would then bring $60 can with difficulty be sold for $40 now. At this rate the farmers who have been engaged in feeding cattle the past winter will not be so well rewarded for their outlay and labour as the previous season.

Pure Water.

Messrs. McAndrew & Noble have secured the agency for Peterborough of the Globe Silica Quartz Filter, a very simple and neat attachment to water taps, constituting a perfect filter. The Globe filter is a very durable one; by being simply reversed it can be cleaned as good as new. The filtering material, ground quarts, never wears out or becomes foul. Every user of water should have one. Call and see samples at McAndrews & Noble's, Simcoe street. It is well worth a trial.

The Organ Boom.

The workmen of Messrs. Warren & Son, have completed the setting up of the new organ in St. Paul's. They have also tuned the organ in St. John's Church and attached a "Jacques," water anigne to the bellows. They are now engaged in tuning the organ in the Charlotte street, Methodist Church. The ladies of George street Methodist church are moving to secure funds to purchase a new organ. The organ fund, actual and guaranteed, now amounts to some $1,400, and it is probable that the ladies will not rest till they have secured the requisite amount for the purchase of an organ becoming S the church.

The Town Timepiece.

A discussion that took place in the council on Monday evening, showed that the cause of the recent erratic antics of the town clock was due to the lately erected wires across the face catching the hands and interfering with their correctly coming to time. Besides, the alleged vibration (during a heavy blow) of the tower in which the clock is placed, has a tendency to make matters no better. Under such circumstances it is unreasonable to ask the clock to keep a correct record of the flight of time. The consequence is that if one asks a dozen different persons he meets on the street, the time of day, he will receive a dozen different answers. Whatever ails the town clock, the disease is chron-ic.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

The Better Ambition.

The "Shakespere class" of Mr. B. Earle, whose winter sessions of six months have now come to a close, shows that taste for high class literature is well developed in Peterborough. A large number of ladies, married and unmarried, have unremittently attended these classes. From their social position, the claims of society upon their time were numerous, but their love for intellectual culture dominated less important, but to the average fashionable lady, more attractive considerations. Under Mr. Earle this class has made great progress, and his fitness for dealing with literary subjects is shown by the interest he has been able to maintain during six months. "Drink deep or taste not the Pierian spring," is evidently the motto of the class for the lessons are soon to be resumed.

The Illustrated War News.

The Grip Printing and Publishing Company, of Toronto, issued last week No. 4 of their fine illustrated newspaper, descriptive of events connected with the rebellion in the North-West. Each successive issue of this paper eclipses its predecessors, and we are pleased to observe that the publishers are meeting with the success which their efforts deserve. No. 4 contains the following illustrations:—Lord Melgund's scouts surrounding three of White Cap's Warriors; the Winnipeg Light Infantry (91st Battalion) preparing for service. White Cap, the Sioux Chief; Trial Practice with the Gatling at Swift Current; Col. Otter's Brigade approaching the South Saskatchewan; the Nova Scotia Provisional Battalion at Montreal; Steamers at Medicine Hat loading Ammunition and Stores; Reading Battalion Orders in the Drill Shed, Hamilton; The Midland (Col. Williams') Battalion marching to the C. P. R. Depot, Winnipeg; Portraits of Officers at the Front, including Col. Ouimet, M. P. No. 5, which will be issued on the 2nd May, will be an intensely interesting number, as it will contain, in addition to other fine illustrations, sketches representing the Relief of Battleford, and the Battle at Fish Creek. The price of the paper is 15 cents per copy, and it can be procured either from the publishers or from local newsdealers.

Expanding Forestry.

On Tuesday, Mr. H. W. Watson, D.D.H. C.R., and several officials of Peterborough Courts, went to Lindsay and organized a new court, Court Lindsay, No. 125, with seventeen members. The officers were also installed, Mayor Wallace being Chief Ranger of the new court.

Change of Business.

Mr. John Webber has disposed of his grocery business, corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, to Mr. James Coughlin, who will hereafter conduct the business. If the new proprietor captains the grocery trade as successfully as he does the first dozen of the Lacrosse Club, he will make business hum.

Bicycle Club.

There will be a meeting of the Bicycle Club at Kingan & Co's Hardware store tonight (Thursday). A full attendance of members is requested, and all intending wheelsmen are invited. Members would do well, in view of the possible recurrence of Monday's snow storm, to bring their snowshoes with them.

Roller Skating Rink.

This fine, cool weather ought to be improved for roller skating. Prices for day skating have been reduced—ladies are admitted free during the day, and skates will be supplied for 10 cents. To gentlemen during the day the charge for admission and skates is 15 cents. Great preparations are being made for the grand carnival to take place in about two weeks. Get ready for it.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y. M. C. A., Rooms, on Monday afternoon last, Mrs. W. Fitzgerald, the present of the association, presiding. There were 25 ladies present. Four new members were added to the roll, making 77 members in all. The subject of regular cottage prayer meeting was discussed and the mode of giving the idea practical expression was left for consideration until the meeting. The committees' reports, show that good work had been done since the last meeting. 1000 leaflets in support of the Scott Act, had been distributed, and 2000 more were ordered to be obtained for distribution. A report was read from Miss Bowes, announcing that four new associations had been formed by her since she left Peterborough. The Literature committee were empowered to procure and prepare, selected and original matter, in advocacy of the Scott Act for publication in the newspapers.

Church Notes.

There was reference to last Friday's battle, both in sermons and special prayers, in all the churches last Sunday. At George street Methodist church "God bless our Native Land,"—to the air of the National Anthem,"—and "God Save the Queen" were sung.

In the George street Methodist church on Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Tovell preached on the subject, "Boyhood to Manhood,—the life and character of Timothy."

The Oddfellows were delighted with the sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Munro on Sunday evening. It was indeed an eloquent and fervid pulpit deliverance. The subject, suggested by the brethren, was "David." The allusion to the "Patriarch, David" had a significance which was perhaps only appreciated by the brethren.

Rev. Mr. Manning preached to an overflowing congregation in the Charlotte street church on the subject of "The Dance." The line between the devotional dancing of Biblical times and the sinful saltation of the present day, was sharply drawn.

At the adjourned meeting of St. John's vestry on Monday evening, the Church Wardens were instructed to secure the services of an organist and choirmaster, competent to take the place of Mr. Ewing, whose resignation was accepted.

Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association.

PROGRESS UNPARALLELED.

Figures and facts relating to the Annual Report of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, which speak for themselves, and which refute the numerous falsehoods circulated by its less successful competitors: Total business in force, December 31st, 1884, $85,452,000.00; total new business issued in 1884, $38,793,750.00; increase of insurance in force during year 1884, $22,432,500.00; increase of income during year 1884, $309,912.31; increase in invested assets during year 1884, $180,828.61; increase in reserve fund during year, 1884, $155,677.45; increase in mortuary receipts during year 1884, $258,456.90; losses paid during year 1884, $479,900.00; amount saved to members by reduction of payments, as compared with level premium rates for 1884, $1,500,000.00; new business issued during first three months of 1885, over $15,000,000.00. The new business obtained by the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association in 1884, exceeds the amount obtained by three-fourths of all the New York Level Premium Companies combined, and its expenses for each $1,000 of insurance in force only one-third as much. Only 17 Mortuary Assessments have been made by the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association for the entire period of four years, to wit: for the years 1881, 1882; 1883 and 1884. The average annual mortuary cost, in addition to the annual dues of $2 on each $1,000 of insurance, as compared with the annual rates charged on the ordinary life plan by the Level Premium Life Companies, is as follows. Comparison of the Average Annual Assessments for four years, 1881, 1882, 1883 and 1884, on each $1,000, and Old-line Rates per year on each $1,000:—

Age.	Average Annual Assessments.	Old-line Rates per year.
25	$4.25	$19.80
35	5.27	26.38
40	6.12	31.30

It is probable that about a dozen canoeists will join with the Lindsay Canoe Club in the meet on Sturgeon Lake on May 25th. The matter of joining the Deerosto canoe party for a cruise on the beautiful Bay of Quinte and adjacent waters, was also considered.

Re-opening Services.

The re-opening services in connection with St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, will take place next Sunday, May 3rd. Rev. D. J. McDonnell, B.D., will preach at 11 a.m., and at 7 a.m., Rev. P. McF. McLeod, of the Central Presbyterian Church, Toronto, will preach at 3 o'clock p.m. On Monday afternoon, the Ladies' Aid Society will hold a sale of fancy and useful articles, in the Lecture Room of the church. Tea will be served in the School Room from 6 to 8 p.m. An organ recital will be given in the church in the evening at 8 p.m. A choir of over 20 voices will take part. Admission to tea and organ recital 50 cents. Children half price. Collections on Sunday in aid of the building fund. Tickets at Ormond & Walsh's, Taylor & McDonald's, and at the door.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. C. Hill has returned home from a visit to a brother in Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. J. F. Jeffers, of London, was in town over Sunday.

On Monday, Mr. James Menzies, typographical artist, left for Ottawa, where he has received the position of night foreman of the newsroom on the Free Press.

Mr. H. Hough, of the Cobourg World, and Mr. D. C. McHenry, Principal of the Cobourg Collegiate Institute, were in town attending the Sunday School Association, and favored us with a call.

On Tuesday evening Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, delivered a lecture in Campbellford, on the subject of "Popular Mistakes About the Church," under the auspices of Christ Church, C.E.T.S.

A Muskegon, Michigan, journal has the following reference to Miss Addie Richardson, daughter of Mr. Charles Richardson, formerly of Peterborough and an ex-councillor of No. 4 Ward:—"Miss Addie Richardson, assisted by her pupils, last evening gave a musicale at the residence of Mr. H. Park, which was attended by over one hundred and fifty persons and proved to be very enjoyable. The selections were well rendered and speak well for the training which the performers have received."

Dr. Paul Paquin, V.S., formerly of the firm of Crevier & Paquin, V. SS., Peterborough, is now in Kansas City, Missouri. He is veterinary editor of the Live Stock Indicator, of that place. A Kansas City paper says of him: "While lacking pretty much all the characteristics of the typical 'hoss doctor,' he is a quiet unassuming gentleman, who makes friends of those he meets, and who means to grow in his profession by conscientious work and study." Under a recent law, Dr. Paquin has received the honor of appointment as State Veterinarian of Missouri, and is at present engaged in dealing with an outbreak of pleuro-pneumonia among the cattle herds of Callaway county.

THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO'Y.

THE annual statement of this Company fully justifies the shareholders in accepting it, as they have done, as "eminently satisfactory." The report of the Directors, presented a few days ago, showed that $100,000 had been added to the cash assets; that 1,164 life policies and 1,111 accident policies had been issued; that the total number of life policies now in force is 4,229 for life, and 1,840 for accident; that the assets, including unpaid capital, are now $1,274,397; and the cash income for the year $278,379. The new business alone for the past year approached $4,000,000. At the same time the investments have evidently been made with exceptional care and caution. The insurance puzzle now perplexing the lawmakers at Ottawa was, not unnaturally, brought on the tapis during the late discussion succeeding the presentation of the Report. Mr. Macaulay, the Managing Director, took the opportunity of expressing his opinion that free-trade in life insurance was by no means helpful to our home institutions, and that wise legislation might do a great deal more for their benefit than it has yet succeeded in accomplishing. On this point he said:—"The history of American Life Assurance shows that competition from British companies was actually driven out of the country by legislative enactments. Why encourage Americans here? Their Co-operatives were endeavoring to secure a footing here, and, strange to tell, our Finance Minister and Superintendent of Insurance seemed to favor their being licensed, although the result will only be to repeat the frauds and failures that had attended their operation at home." The extraordinary success which has accompanied Mr. Macaulay's labors in bringing the Sun Life Assurance Company to its present enviable position entitles his opinions on the legislative policy affecting insurance to very high consideration. From the present appearances, however, it does not look as if they would finally commend themselves to the parliamentary majority at Ottawa. Mr. Macaulay has none the less scored great triumphs in Montreal in his development of the interests of the institution under his management, if he has not been on the strongest side at the capital, and this latest Report is a solid memorial of the practical successes he has achieved.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov. 17, 1883. 48-52t

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council met on Monday evening, April 27th, the Mayor in the chair. Present,—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland, Yelland, Douglass, Rutherford, Menzies, Kendry and Hartley.

After routine, several communications and petitions for street improvements, etc., and two or three accounts were referred to appropriate committees.

In reference to the bill of $30 for wiring the face of the town clock, Mr. Rutherford asked why the clock went so unsatisfactorily?

Mr. Davidson said the hands caught on the wire, and Mr. McClelland stated the vibration of the tower had an injurious effect, and that the framework of the wires was so close that the hands caught.

Mr. McNaughton said Mr. McClelland, caretaker was not to blame. The clock had been leading workmen astray all winter. The best thing that could be done would be to smash it.

FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson, chairman, presented the report of the committee, recommending the payment of the accounts of W. Paterson & Son, charity wood, $161.64; John Wilson, shovelling snow, $1.00; and that the Council instruct the Clerk to write to W. H. Banfield, Toronto, and ascertain the lowest price for dog tags and secure sample; also, that the plans for the new town offices be submitted to the Council for their adoption.—The report was adopted.

THE ALLEGED CHARITY SCANDAL.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the Special Committee, reported as follows:

To the Mayor and Corporation of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Special Committee to whom was referred the charges against the chairman of the Charity Committee, beg leave to report:—Your committee had the matter complained of by Mrs. Brown and Miss Brown before them again, and upon further inquiry have no reason to change their former report upon the matter. Your committee believe that the Browns made statements which led to the course taken by Messrs. Croft and Robertson, but have again flatly contradicted their previous statements, therefore, your committee affirm their former report so far as the same relates to the charges against the Chairman of the Charity Committee.

A. RUTHERFORD, Chairman.

Peterborough, April 27th, 1885.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Mr. Rutherford called attention to the fact that the contract for the hydrants for fire protection outside of George street had expired and that this district was without fire protection.

CARTERS' STAND.

On motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Cahill, the petition of the licensed carters was granted, allowing them to use the north side of Hunter street, as far west as a lamp post on that side, as a stand, and that the Mayor and Clerk sign and seal this resolution to give it the effect of a by-law.

NUMBERING HOUSES.

Mr. Kendry moved that some steps should be taken to number the houses on the different streets of the town, and that the matter be referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

COURT HOUSE PARK.

Moved by Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. McClelland, that the sum of $200 be granted to the Horticultural Society, to be devoted to beautifying Court House Park.

Mr. Cahill did not oppose the beautifying of the Court House Park, but we had the Central Park and we could not afford to bonus both parks. The School Board needed grounds for a new building for a High School, and we had better dispose of the Central Park and devote the proceeds to a larger piece of land for a park.

Mr. Rutherford said the town had no power to sell the Central Park. He moved in amendment, however, that the amount be reduced to $1.50, but he got no seconder at that time.

Mr. McClelland took a similar view of the matter as Mr. Cahill. He advocated the sale of the Central Park. The beautifying of the Court House Park was an easy matter. It had natural advantages equivalent to the expenditure of a thousand dollars to make the Central Park equal to it, to begin with.

Mr. Hartley strongly advocated the grant. The Council should not be small in the matter. The citizens demanded a park and their demands should be met.

Mr. Yelland thought that, to begin with, the sum proposed was too small. The first year's expenditure would need to be heavy.

Mr. Menzies said in view of the possible cost we might be put to in connection with the North-West war, the town should move cautiously. Still, he was in favor of having Court House Park improved.

Mr. Dumble was heard, and recited the long-continued efforts he had been making towards park improvements. He advocated the raising of the soil of the Central Park by street scrapings and the soil of cellars. A strip wide enough to plant at least a row of trees, to begin with, should be so raised. He was in favor of making the town a cheap and beautiful place to live in. The town should be made so pleasant that our children would love to remember it, a place that country people should be glad to come to live in; the people needed a breathing place, and he made a strong and eloquent appeal to the Council to make the town worthy in point of beauty of its commercial importance. He urged the Council not to be niggardly in the matter of beautifying the town, the people wouldn't thank them for it. As a public body the Council should lead in the matter.

Mr. Douglass advocated the improvement of the Central Park that belonged to the town.

Mr. Yelland pointed out that the preparation of the Park would give employment to labouring men and thus benefit that class directly.

Mr. Kendry not only advocated the grant to the Court House Park but also a grant to the Central Park.

Mr. Stevenson was heard and said he was the first man to plant public trees in the town of Peterborough. He was one of the largest ratepayers in Peterborough, and the expenditure on the Court Park would mean an addition to his taxes. He deprecated the action of the Council in trying to balk the matter. The Court House Park was held in trust by the County Council, for Park purposes, and that trust had been transferred to the Horticultural Society. He had used repeated exertions in reference to having Court House Park beautified, but if the Council refused to take action, the park would lie in the neglected condition it had done for years past, as far as his further action was concerned.

Mr. Davidson moved, in amendment to the amendment, that $100 be given to each the Central and Court House Park.

Mr. Kelly said this amount was absurd; if the Society could not get $200 they would take no action. The Mayor and Mr. Stevenson, had given a fountain for the park, the electric light had been offered, and the water works would supply water, and he thought it small on the part of the council to give so small a sum.

Mr. Cahill did not oppose beautifying these parks but he thought the first attempt should be to make the town healthy. He did not think it fair to beautify one part of the town, leaving the south part of the town afflicted with a plague spot in the shape of Spaulding's Bay. He was in favor of giving a grant to one park, but he could not consent to a grant to two parks lying so close together.

The amendment was lost and the original motion was carried.

SEPARATION BY-LAW.

A by-law was introduced and duly passed providing that the sale of groceries and liquors be carried on in separate shops, after the 1st of May, 1886. On the motion for the third reading Mr. Rutherford moved that the by-law be referred back to the committee with instructions to substitute 1885 for 1886. The amendment was lost on the following division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Yelland, Rutherford, Kendry, Hartley, and the Mayor.

NAYS.—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, Douglas, and Menzies.

The third reading was carried on the same division reversed.

A communication from Mr. Stevenson requesting that the matter of the contemplated improvements on his premises on Simcoe street, be referred to the Building Committee, was agreed to.

NEW TOWN PREMISES.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that the plans of the town offices, for council chamber, lockup, etc., now before the council, be submitted for tender, and that the result be submitted to the council.

Mr. Davidson moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the plans be referred to the committe of the whole council before asking for tenders. By having the plans drawn on a less elaborate scale, he said the first floor could be utilized and a rental of $500 might be secured.

Mr. Rutherford defended the plans, and urged it was false economy to cramp the space for town offices.

Mr. Menzies did not object to the plans, but he wanted to know how the money was to be raised, whether it would be put on the roll this year or debentures be issued.

The amendment was lost and the original motion carried on the following division:—

YEAS.—Messrs. Kelly, Green, McClelland.

NAYS.—Messrs. Cahill, Davidson and McNaughton.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Mayor said the joint committee in connection with the Nicholls Hospital matter should take action. He also stated that a Toronto gentleman had told him that it was proposed to run an excursion to Peterborough on the 25th, if that day were to be celebrated. He also suggested that the town should procure shade trees and sell them to ratepayers at cost.

The council adjourned.

Turnbull has just returned from the wholesale market, from which he has carefully selected all the new and desirable shades to replenish his Dress Goods Department. For new and cheap Dress Goods go to Turnbull's. We always give satisfaction in our Dress Making Department.

Re-Opening Services

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Consecrated Anew to Divine Worship.

Successful Services—Immense Congregations—Eloquent Sermons—Impressive Singing—Liberal Contributions—A Beautiful Church—The Ladies' Sale—The Organ Recital and the Addresses.

On Sunday last the renewed St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was formally re-opened for Divine worship, and three services were held during the day, at which there were exceedingly large congregations. The normal seating capacity of the church is 1,200, but the supplementary seating that had to be provided, increased the number attending each service to at least 1,700. A large and efficient choir, brought together for the occasion, furnished music; and the organ was presided over by Prof. Parker, of St. Catharines.

THE MORNING SERVICE

was conducted by Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, B. D., of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto. The text selected was in St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, from the fourteenth verse inclusive. The speaker began by pointing out the reason the congregation had for gratitude for the success that had attended their efforts in the restoration of the church, and it was fitting that they should consider the Apostle's prayer for spiritual strength, as set forth in the text. The distinguishing characteristic of man was his capacity for loving and obeying God. The radical distinction between man and lower animals was that while the latter had intelligence, they had no capacity in this respect; and thus Paul prays that God's spirit may enter into man's. We needed to remember that the essence of success in spiritual life was not in ceremonial observances, which were only aids to the development of spiritual life, and cannot take the place of it. Worldly morality changed as the world changed, for its standard was not permanent, but conformed to change of worldly conditions; but the morality that Christians should practise was founded on the love of God, and was therefore unchangable. It was not, then, by outward props of observances, but strength alone was given by the infusion of God's Spirit into the heart. The indwelling of that Spirit in the heart by faith was the "real presence." Christ filled the heart of every true believer, as the air filled the lungs, or the sap the tree. The riches of God's glory was this, that God is love, and the fullness of God's love is the answer to the prayer of the Apostle. Only, however, as we continued to abide in Christ could we be strong. When this prayer was answered and Christ filled the heart, we would be strong to apprehend the love of God in Christ. We must be rooted and grounded in love and have a personal experience of its fullness to meet our needs. We must feel that not selfishness, but love ruled the world; then was the man transformed. The whole revelation of the Bible was given to show that God was love, and the speaker eloquently depicted the joy that came to the human heart when this fact was realized. God's love touched the most degraded of the world's outcasts, and extended to all the world, and as this fact is realized man can exclaim: "O, the length and breadth, the height and depth of God's love." The speaker closed his eloquent and practical sermon by exhorting his hearers to crave this spiritual strength which was more to be coveted than physical or intellectual strength, because it gave all the strength that was needed, the might of God's love. Spiritual strength was the best gift that God could bestow. Trust was not to be put in externals and church machinery, for the church could not fulfil its real mission without the love of God in the hearts of its members.

THE AFTERNOON SERVICES

was again attended by a great multitude, every available foot of space being crowded. Rev. P. McF. McLeod was the preacher, and he selected his text from the first chapter of Ephesians, 22nd, and 23rd verses:

"And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fullness of Him that filleth all in all."

The apostle was writing to an organized church, and to them he used this language. There was abroad a mistaken idea in reference to the church, which was to exalt the body instead of the head. In these days men had ceased to recognize the church of God, and had banded themselves together in secret societies to do what the church should do, and to fill the desire for brotherhood. If the church were what it should be there would be no need nor room for these socities. It would, if properly fulfilling its mission, supply the true brotherhood. Allusion was made to a lack in the church, in this respect. The claims of the brotherhoods alluded to, were readily recognized, and aid given in response to appeals made, while church members did not give the same heed to the claims of appealing fellow members. All these associations did good work in caring for the sick, etc., but they should not take the place of the true brotherhood of the church such as Christ meant it to be. These societies respected their officials and showed a ready obedience, but in the churches too many exerted their personal self-will, thus creating a sort of lawlessness. Many professing Christians failed to take an interest in the church's work. There were idlers in the church of God who were active in every other sphere of life, and ignored responsibility in respect of the claims of the church. The church was the body of Christ and the members should realize that they were Christ's body, and that where the body was the head should be; the church was the embodiment of the Divine wisdom, because of the remedy it provided for all human ills—it went to the very root, and no human organization could take the place of it. The church depended for its success in its mission on the simple story of the Gospel and the presence of the Holy Spirit. The church was the embodiment of Divine power, shown through the weakest and most humble instruments. It is the embodiment of Divine love. The conditions of its brotherhood have no reference to creed, color, nation, rank, station or race, and only in it was to be found the true ideal of brotherhood. The church of Christ was the "fulness of Him that filleth all in all." The Lord's ideal of the church required every member to consecrate every talent to its service. The congregation was urged on the day of the dedication of their church to dedicate themselves afresh to the service of God.

Rev. Mr. McLeod, previous to the singing of the last hymn, referring to the volunteers, who occupied front seats at this service, said he was glad to see them present. The volunteers had found that soldiering was no mere play. He paid a warm tribute to the effiency, bravery and spirit of the volunteers row in active service. He commended the action those who had attended the church to seek blessing and strength from the Lord. Under the circumstances they would sing the soldiers' hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," which was rendered with grand effect, the congregation joining heartily with the choir.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

The capacious church was again filled to its utmost capacity. Rev. Mr. Macdonnell took for his text the 7th verse of the 15th chapter of the Gospel of St. John and the 22nd verse of the 21st chapter of St. Matthew. The subject was prayer and the consideration of the conditions of prayer necessary to secure an answer. The first condition laid down was that he who prayed must abide in Christ. He must have Christ's word abiding in him. That was prayer in the light of what Christ's truth has taught. Everything must be subordinate to the will of God, which must be made the supreme rule of life. He who prayed must have charity and forgiveness for all and a perfect faith, with a belief of a future life through Christ. Praying in the name of Christ was asking for what He had authorized us to ask. We must pray according to the will of God, of which His Son's was an echo. The words of Christ must be loved and lived by. Truth apprehended must be the basis of duty and prayer. If we had Christ in our hearts He would inspire us to pray aright. Belief was another condition that God, as the hearer of prayer, imposed. Without this prayer was a beating of the air. Believing meant believing in the nature and reality of the things asked for. Some did not pray in this spirit; some prayed for Divine grace who thought they could very well do without it; some prayed to be spiritually minded when they feared the prayer would be answered. Belief meant the conviction that we should get what we prayed for according to God's conditions, which were not found in any single verse of the Bible, but consisted of all His utterances on the subject, put together. Work and prayer must go together. Man must begin to answer his own prayers—put his wishes into effect by his efforts. Lofty ideals should be cherished, and we should set to work trusting in God to realize them. There would be great victory over sin when the church did its duty in the way of prayer.

The services of Sunday throughout were eminently satisfactory. The congregations were large, the sermons were practical and spiritual, the singing was good, and both pastor and congregation have reason to be pleased with the success of the re-opening services of this beautiful church. For commodiousness, excellence of ventilation and ease of ingress and egress, it cannot be surpassed in any town in Canada. The acoustics are perfect, the ministers who spoke on Sunday agreeing that it was a very "easy church to speak in."

MONDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

In the afternoon of Monday the Ladies' Aid Society conducted a sale of useful and fancy articles in the lecture room of the church, and they met with good success, something over three hundred dollars having been realized. It is due to the energy and industry of the ladies that such a gratifying result was the out-come of the sale. In the evening, from six o'clock to eight, tea was served in the Sunday School room, and a large number of persons enjoyed the pleasure of receiving the liberal and graceful hospitality extended. The tables were laid with great taste, having been ornamented with profuse displays of cut and living flowers. The refreshments in abundance, variety and excellence were practical praise of the culinary capabilities of St. Paul's congregation.

ORGAN RECITAL AND CONCERT.

At eight o'clock a large audience assembled in the church to listen to an organ recital, and to hear brief addresses by visiting ministers. Rev. Mr. Torrance acted as chairman; and, after prayer by Rev. Mr. Carmichael, of Norwood, Sheriff Hall read a statement of the circumstances that led to the magnificent organ occupying its present position, and on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society formally presented the organ to the congregation, and on behalf of the session he accepted the gift and expressed its thanks to the ladies for the great diligence, industry and church spirit manifested by them, who had not only in reference to the organ, but in other ways, contributed largely to the success of the rebuilding of the church.

An excellent programme of organ and vocal music was entered upon, and Professor Parker, who presided at the organ, skillfully made his selections with the apparent view of exhibiting the great range of capacity of this really superb instrument. His rendering of "Jerusalem the Golden," with variations, was particularly fine, and he played the accompaniments with judgment and discretion. A choir of about twenty voices sang several anthems in very creditable style, and solos were supplied by Mr. A. L. Davis, "Abide with Me;" Mrs. Brodigan, of Lakefield, "I Kuow that my Redeemer Liveth;" and Mrs. Chambers sang twice, the first time, "Come Unto Me," and the last, "Beneath the Ramparts." Her singing of this last selection was exquisite, her rendering eliciting in a delightful manner the power, pathos and sweetness of this beautiful classical selection. The highest compliment that could be paid her was that the audience were so carried away by her singing that at its conclusion Rev. Mr. Torrance's request that there be no applause was excusably forgotten, and the people broke into hearty expressions of approval. The Ladies' Aid Society feel themselves greatly indebted to the kindly and prompt acquiesence of Mrs. Chambers in their request to her to contribute to the concert programme. Her kindness will be held in grateful remembrance.

During the evening Rev. Mr. McLeod, Toronto, and Rev. Mr. McKay, Parkdale, delivered brief and practical addresses. The length of the musical programme prevented Rev. Messrs. Bennett, Munro, Tovell and Manning, who were present, from being heard.

At the conclusion of the concert Rev. Mr. Torrance, referring to the restoration of the church, said it had been done simply to accommodate the Presbyterians of Peterborough, and with no desire to encroach in any way on any other denomination. He expressed his thanks to those who had so efficiently assisted in the singing, to the ladies for the noble work they had done, to the Building Committee, whose labors and self sacrifices had resulted in the occupancy of the present enlarged church. He added that the addresses of the evening had struck the right key note. What was now required by the congregation was greater consecration to God's work; by the pastor as well as people. He asked God's blessing on the congregation, and hoped they would not be content with material prosperity, but would labor for spiritual growth.

Rev. Mr. Munro pronounced the benediction.

THE FINANCIAL RESULTS.

The financial results were fully up to expectation. The Sunday collections, and results of the Ladies' Sale and of the Concert amount to about $900.

The congregation of St. Paul's have reason to be proud of one of the most beautiful capacious, and comfortable churches in the Province.

COMPLIMENTARY.

A Supper, Address and Presentation.

On Wednesday evening last Mr. Wm. Somerville, who has occupied the position of overseer in the weaving department of the Auburn Woollen Mills for a number of years, was banqueted at the Darcy House by his fellow-workmen previous to taking his departure to Glen Tay, where he has secured a lucrative position as superintendent of the woollen mills in that place. About twenty-five sat down to a well-laden table, the chair being occupied by Mr. R. Mann and the vice-chair by Mr. Andrew Hewie. After justice had been fully done the inner man, and the usual loyal and patriotic toasts duly honored, the chairman proposed the toast of the evening—"Our Guest." In doing so, he said they were all aware of the object of the repast of which they had just partaken. It was but a small token of regard for their friend and fellow-workman, Mr. Somerville, who was about taking his departure from amongst them for a more lucrative and responsible position. He was sure they all united in wishing him and his family a long life of health and happiness. In taking leave of Mr. Somerville they lost a kind and obliging overseer, one whose untiring zeal had won for him the respect and praise of not only his employers, but also of his fellow-workmen. The sentiments of the employes of the Auburn Woollen Company were by no means fully reflected in the words at his command, but Mr. Somerville might rest assured that he took with him to his new field of labor the good wishes of all.

Mr. Somerville, in replying, said he regretted parting with his friends in Peterborough, particularly his fellow-workmen in the Auburn Woollen Mills. In this world of ours there seemed to be a mad race after wealth and advancement, and when an opportunity for such was offered him, he would not be human did he not take advantage of it. He wished the Auburn Woollen Company a continuation of that prosperity which had existed for a number of years, and in leaving this place he did so with the hope that he might be enabled to spend his last days in Peterborough—a town which he dearly loved, and among whose people he had always been so happy.

Toasts, speeches and songs were indulged in by the company, and a most enjoyable evening spent.

ANOTHER TOKEN.

On Thursday evening Mr. Somerville was waited on by the employes of the department over which he had charge, and presented with a very handsome token of the esteem in which he was held by those under his charge, in the shape of valuable writing and dressing cases, accompanied by the following address:

Mr. Wm. Somerville:

DEAR AND RESPECTED SIR,—We, the undersigned, on behalf of the employes of the weaving department of the Auburn Woollen Mills, beg to offer you our sincere thanks for the kindness, urbanity and justice with which you have always treated us in your capacity as boss weaver, and to express our sincere congratulations upon your removal to another and, we hope, more lucrative position.

We beg your acceptance of the accompanying writing and dressing cases, as a small token of our esteem and gratitude for your manifold kindnesses to us. With every sentiment of respect to yourself, Mrs. Somerville and Baby Boy, we wish you long life and happiness, and beg to subscribe ourselves,

WM. KENDRY, Miss MCCORMACK,
WM. FLEMING, Miss K. DAVIDSON.

Peterborough, April 30, 1885.

Mr. Somerville replied in a few well-chosen words, expressing his regret at parting with his old friends and shopmates, to whom he had so long been warmly attached, and returning them sincere thanks for their handsome testimonial, and more particularly for the good wishes expressed for himself and family.

We join in wishing Mr. Somerville success in his new home for which he left by C.P.R. on Monday evening.

A MURDEROUS FATHER-IN-LAW.

A VICTORIA COUNTY TRAGEDY.

LINDSAY, Ont., May 4.—A report arrived in Lindsay on Monday morning to the effect that James Fanning, who resided at Janet ville, eight miles from Lindsay, had been murdered. Dr. Poole, coroner, and Chief of Police Bell, drove out to the locality during the morning and found the report was correct. On the roadside, in a pool of blood, lay the body of James Fanning, who had staggered from the house where he was shot and fallen on the roadside, where he died from loss of blood. It happened that James Fanning had married, as his second wife, a daughter of A. M. Pogue, of Ops. Fanning ill-treated his wife and she returned to her father. Fanning tried to induce her to return and Pogue warned him off the premises and threatened to shoot him if he returned. About dark on Saturday Fanning went to Pogue's house and demanded to see his wife, and was ordered off by Pogue. Hot words ensued and Pogue threatened Fanning with his gun. A scuffle followed, during which, according to Pogue's story, the gun was discharged, the charge tearing the flesh and sinews from the side of Fanning's right leg to the thigh. The unfortunate man made his way out to the road, were he died. A neighbor heard the shot and cries of "murder," but fearing that he would be mixed up in the affair he did not go to Fanning's assistance. Pogue admitted his act in shooting and was brought before the magistrate at Lindsay and remanded to jail.

Libbie's Farewell.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Would you kindly give me space in your valuable journal for the following copy of a note I this morning sent to the Hastings Star.

L. A. M.

KEENE, May 4th, 1885.

To the Editor of THE HASTINGS STAR:

SIR,—As I am leaving Canada for a lengthened period of time, I think it only fair to inform you that you will not be troubled with further communications from me, nor have any further opportunity to dishonorably show my letters to outside Paul Prys, local or otherwise. I have been excessively amused at your agonizing efforts to discover my identity and whereabouts. Surely I was more honorable than you, as I betrayed no one, hurt or scandalised no one, and your "expert in handwriting" must have been a genius of the first water, as I know that the writing of my first communication was in one hand, my second in another, and, also, that H. B. Wilson is, to my certain knowledge, a person of the masculine gender.

Permit me to thank you sincerely for the amusement I have had in viewing the scintillations of your "Bright particular Star." Twinkle! Twinkle!

Yours gratefully,
"LIBBIE A. MARSHALL."

The Queen's Own Meets the Rebel Redskins.

SEVEN VOLUNTEERS KILLED.

TWELVE WOUNDED.

50 Indians Fall!

List of Killed and Wounded.

THE SQUAWS SHOW FIGHT.

Special Telegram to the EXAMINER.

WINNIPEG, May 6.—A despatch from Saskatchewan Landing, via Swift Current, per courier who arrived last evening from Battleford, brings news of a BATTLE FOUGHT WITH THE INDIANS.

at Poundmaker's reserve on Sunday, May 3rd. A flying column of 300 men, under Col. Otter, attacked the Indians, 600 strong, at five o'clock in the morning. The fight lasted till noon. Poundmaker's reserve lies on the Battle River between it and Rye Hill Creek, near Manitoba Lake.

This chief had been joined by other bands under Red Pheasant, Mosoomin, Strike-him-on-the-back, and others, and was no doubt acting in conjunction with Big Bear, Little Child, and other chiefs operating farther west. Our loss was

SEVEN MEN KILLED AND TWELVE WOUNDED.

The enemy lost 50 killed and wounded. Col. Otter covered, including the engagement, 70 miles, fought the battle and returned to Battleford. Inside of thirty hours.

THE MEN BEHAVED MAGNIFICENTLY.

The list of killed and wounded is as follows:—

KILLED.

Mounted Police.—Corporal Laurie, Corporal Sleight and Bugler Burke.

Ottawa Foot Guards, Todd's Sharpshooters—Privates Osgood and Maynord Rogers.

C Company, Infantry, — School-Bugler Foulkes, and Private Dobbe. Total, 7.

WOUNDED.

Mounted Police,—Sergt. McLeod.

B Battery,—Lieut. Peltier, Sergt. Gaffney, Corporal Morton, and Gunner Reynolds.

C Company, Infantry School—Sergt. Maj. Spackman

Ottawa Foot Guards, Todd's Sharpshooters—Colour Sergt. Winter, Private McQuilliken.

Queen's Own—Color-Sergt. G. E. Cooper.

B Company—Privates Nary and Watts, Gilbert, a Battleford volunteer was also wounded.—Total 12.

The reserve where the battle was fought is about 34 miles from Battleford. It is 30 miles in area and is full of scrub with bluffs, ravines and small hills.

The Indians

FOUGHT WITH COOLNESS AND BRAVERY,

but they were poorly armed.

Many squaws took part in the fight, and behaved as courageously as the braves.

Although exhausted after their long march, Col. Otter's column

FOUGHT STEADY FOR SEVEN HOURS,

by which time the Indians seemed to have had enough and retired for a short distance.

Otter took advantage of this to draw his men back for rest and refreshment.

It is believed that the first blow has been struck of what will prove a long and bloody Indian war.

THURSDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Reports from Qu'Appelle are conflicting. Chief Commissioner Wrigley of the Hudson Bay company, has received the following message from Factor MacDonald: "There is no cause for excitement among the settlers here. The Indians and halfbreeds are all quite. So far the difficulty is in keeping the settlers from getting excited."

THE WOUNDED.

Gen. Middleton is hampered by the care of the wounded who were to be taken to Clarke's Crossing by boat. Gen. Middleton has despatched scouts in advance of the troops for many miles towards Batoche. They were unable to find the enemy. The troops are all well at the front, and rested from the fatigue incident to the recent fight.

THE NORTHCOTE MISHAP.

Word has been received confirming the report that the Northcote ran ashore on a sandbar and is stuck at a point ten miles below the Elbow in the South Saskatchewan. The troops and supplies have now to come by land, but there will be some delay as there are no waggons. Gen. Middleton cannot move another mile without supplies.

TORONTO, April 30.—The Ladies Committee sent two cars of canned fruit, with meat, vegetables, underclothing, and other good things, to the Northwest this morning, for the Queen's Own and Grenadiers, of Toronto. The Canadian and American railways are carrying the these supplies to the Northwest free of charge.

Over a hundred recruits for the Mounted Police left Toronto this morning for the Northwest.

LATER.—The special train which left the Union Station this morning over the Grand Trunk with 107 recruits for the Northwest Mounted Police, and two car loads of supplies for our volunteers at the front was in charge of Mr. A. H. Taylor, of Ottawa, and the recruits were in charge of Capt. Moodie of Regina. Ninety more troopers will join the train from London and Stratford.

Holy communion was celebrated at St. James Cathedral this morning by Archdeacon Boddy to seek God's blessing on our cause in the Northwest. Rev. E. C. Whitcombe was present and left by the 12.20 train for the front.

MGR. TACHE'S VIEWS.

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Archbishop Tache expresses the opinion that the rebels were mainly Indians in Friday's fight with the troops. He believes Riel is a lunatic and thinks he will fight. He does not think there can be more than 250 half-breeds at Batoche's. He is indignant at the rumors of disloyalty made against French Catholics.

A quantity of lumber was shipped to-day to Swift Current to be used in the manufacture of flat bottomed boats to carry supplies.

A white scout just arrived in camp from Prince Albert reports that he heard the rebel loss in Friday's fight was heavy and that the Indians deserted the half-breeds largely in the fight. It is reported also that T. Dumount, Gabriel's brother, was killed. This latter is generally believed, as the description corresponds exactly with that of the man shot by Captain Forrest.

FRIDAY'S DESPATHES.

CLARK'S CROSSING, May 1.—Fearing that delay in waiting for supplies might enable the rebels to reinforce themselves and otherwise strengthen their position, Gen. Middleton has decided to advance at once, and a crisis may be looked for within a few days.

WHAT DECIDED HIM.

News that Riel was entrenching himself at Batoche and preparing for stubborn battle, induced Gen. Middleton to the decision. Several scouts whom he sent out report that the rebels are actively collecting provisions wherever any can be found, and that large numbers was seen near Batoche yesterday evening.

THE ORDER CAME TOO LATE.

It is stated that the General ordered "A" Battery of regulars to charge, but that before they could be brought up the rebels had changed their position.

The report of a scarcity of ammunition among the rebels must be discredited, as they are know to have secured large quantities at Duck Lake and Batoche, when they raided the place, besides the entire settlement was raided and all arms and ammunition taken from white settlers.

THE FISH CREEK FIGHT.

The Winnipeg Sun gives the following account of the commencement of the Fish Creek fight:—Major Boulton, commanding the scouts, gives a vivid description of the commencement of the fight at Fish Creek, He was riding well ahead of the column with sixteen scouts, eight on each side of the trail. The advance was nearing a bush when a horseman, who had been skirmishing away out ahead, dashed up to the Major and reported seeing thirteen camp fires on a fresh trail leading to Batoche. Boulton signalled Gen. Middleton, who was at his side in a moment. Capt. Johnston and four men followed, and, with Major Boulton, rode on to where the sixteen scouts were massed. Just as they came up the scouts spied fifty mounted rebels coming down the trail. The breeds jumped from their horses and TOOK TO THE WOODS.

A minute later and a volley blazed out from the shelter at the loyal scouts. Boulton's men had been slow in dismounting, but when the rebels opened fire they sprang from their horses and, laying flat on the ground, commenced to pour Winchester bullets into the Halfbreeds' retreat. It was here that the scouts' ranks were thinned out. In the first volley Trooper D'Arcy Baker, who has since died, was struck in the chest. He fell from his horse. He shouted bravely to Major Boulton, "What shall I do?" "Join yourself to the rear," answered the officer, and the mortally wounded man dragged himself towards the rear, where he was found by the 90th bandsmen. Major Boulton was

ALWAYS AT THE FRONT,

and his escape is marvellous. Six of his scouts were wounded in the advance skirmish with the enemy. All the officers of the 90th were well forward in the battle and fought shoulder to shoulder with the men. Quarter-master McTavish rode through the very thick of the fight, but came off untouched. Major McKeand had several close calls, and Majors Boswell and Buchan behaved themselves like the cool brave soldiers they are. Capt. Forest had several miraculous escapes. Men were shot on either side of where he was lying. "Allie" Ferguson was next to Forest in the first brush with the enemy. The volunteers were prostrate on the hillside opposite the rebel rifle pits. Ferguson and Foster were as they rose from their pits to take aim. Suddenly, young Ferguson twisted partly round on his elbow, and grasped, "My God, Captain, I am shot," and sank back dead. Forest took hurried aim, and put a bullet in the Halfbreed who killed Ferguson as he was getting the range for another shot. Buchanan, the drummer boy of the 90th, acted like a man. While the other bandsmen were searching for wounded, the youngster was scurrying all over the field with ammunition for the men. He was considerable pained that he could not get hold of a rifle. Alex. McLean, of Portage La Prairie, driver of the ammunition waggon, ventured everywhere with cartridges for the men. Private Hutcheson was killed close to where Ferguson died. A round bullet entered the corner of his eye.

TRYING TO PICK OFF THE SHARPSHOOTERS

DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS

He was forty years old. Private Ennis was shot through the neck, and a bullet pierced private Wheeler's forehead as he was charging gallantly up the ravine. When his body was found Sunday afternoon prowling Indians had stripped it of the coat and vest. Up to Thursday night the death roll in the 90th includes Lieut. Chas. Swinford, Private A. W. Ferguson, J. Hutchinson, Geo. Wheeler, and William Ennis. The regimental dog of the 90th was shot in the right shoulder.

SATURDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 2.—One hundred and fifty recruits for the mounted police in charge of Sergt. Moodie arrived this evening at 10 o'clock, having left Toronto at noon on Thursday. They leave in the morning for Regina, where they will be horsed and equipped.

THE NORTHCOTE SAFE.

A despatch has just been received from the west announcing that a rise of the water in the Saskatchewan has enabled the steamer Northcote to move off the sand bar and she is expected to reach Clark's Crossing by noon to-morrow with the Midland battalion, Gatling gun and hospital supplies to join General Middleton.

The Governor-General's Body Guard, Toronto, are also expected to reach Clarke's Crossing to-morrow night.

Riel has issued a proclamation to the half-breeds who refused to come into camp to do so at once, or he will murder them.

A large supply of rifles and ammunition arrived last night at Fort Qu'Appelle and went north this morning under an escort of the 12th and 35th battalions, under command of Major Burnett, as far as Houghton, where they will be met by Lieut.-Col. Turnbull.

The wires are down again between Fort Qu'Appelle and the Touchwood hills.

MURDERING OF PRIESTS.

Yesterday afternoon Archbishop Tache received a brief telegram from Father Claude of Calgary, stating that Father Tourmand has been accidentally killed by halfbreeds and also that news of the massacre of priests at Frog Lake has been confirmed.

BIG BEAR'S BRUTALITY.

BATTLEFORD, May 2.—Big Bear has now a large camp near Sounding lake. A man who passed it says that they have hundreds of corralled cattle near by, and are busy with war dances and general rejoicings.

Father Lacombe's description of the Frog lake tragedy is that Quinn and Delaney were invited to a parley, but shot before a word was spoken. The priest went to say prayers over the two men, as they were not dead, when he was shot, and his assistant who went to his rescue was also killed. The others fled to the priest's house, but were put to death and Mrs. Delaney made a prisoner. The bodies were carried into the house, where coal oil was poured upon them, and everything was burnt. [And yet it is to such gentle savages as Big Bear, that Sir John's Franchise Bill gives votes.

RELIEF OF EDMONTON.

EDMONTON, May 3.—Gen. Strange with the advance guard has arrived. The people gave him a most enthusiastic welcome. The infantry (65th and 9th) will garrison Fort Saskatchewan and Edmonton, while a large number of mounted men will make forced marches to Eastwood, along both banks of the Saskatchewan. Gen. Strange expects to have this force moving by Monday next.

TUESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 5.—Lieut. Hume Blake has arrived in charge of the special car containing Toronto's contributions to the Queen's Own. Mr. Blake and the car have gone to Swift Current. The supplies will be pushed forward to Battleford with all possible speed, special transportation having been provided. A detachment of the Halifax battalion will accompany them.

PILLAGED BY THE INDIANS

News from Edmonton district state that Beaver Lake settlement has been cleaned out and that St. Annes, a Hudson Bay post, has been pillaged by Stonies, the best fighting Indians in the North-West. The Saddle Lake government stores have been seized, also at Peace hill, and trains of carts were stopped and looted on the main trail between Edmonton and Calgary.

TAKEN PRISONERS.

Rev. Mr. Quinney, Church of England Missionary at Onion Lake, and wife were taken prisoners and stripped by Onion Lake Indians, but were sent into Fort Pitt unharmed.

WIRES DOWN—NOT MOVING YET.

The wires are still down between Humboldt and Clarke's Crossing. The latest by courier is that Gen. Middleton is still waiting for the Gatling carried by the Northcote. Men have been despatched to bring it overland. It will take a week to get to the front by that route.

WEDNESDAY'S DESPATCHES.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N.W.T., via HUMBOLDT, May 5.—The weather is fine. Gen. Middleton is still in camp at Fish Creek when last heard from.

The Saskatchewan has risen two feet, and is still rising. This solves the supply difficulty. All Galt's boats and barges are on the way from Medicine Hat to Swift Current.

THE NORTHCOTE AND MIDLAND BOYS.

The Northcote, so long looked for, arrived at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. She landed a company of the 40th and one of the 45th, all under Capt. Bonnycastle, and went on to Fish Creek. She has on board other two companies of the Midland battalion under Col. Williams, M.P., with the Gatling. The Northcote grounded several times and broke her capstan while trying to get off.

PEACEFUL PROSPECTS.

The Afghan Affair Adjusted—Russia Backs Down.

LONDON, May 5.—Lord Granville made a statement in the House of Lords last evening that Russia fully agrees to submit the Penjdeh affair to arbitration and to withdraw the troops if the decision is against her. This is regarded on all sides as a complete assurance of peace. The Liberals are jubilant. The Conservatives are suspicious of the point that the frontier question is to be settled in London. This it will be remembered, Lord Granville declined previously, hence this is regarded as a concession. The decision is considered a slight to Sir Peter Lumsden. Persia's refusal to liberate Ayoub Khan, in spite of the efforts of the Russian agents at Teheran, and the rumored tension of Russia's China relations, confirm the peace hope here. The Czar is reported as saying some days ago that he would have no war and no concessions. The relief and satisfaction here are general and great.

West Riding Spring Show.

The Stock Improvers' Day Out.

The annual exhibition of Horses and Bulls of the West Riding Agricultural Society took place on Saturday last. The new fair grounds were not in a fit state, owing to the wet, for holding the exhibition on; the driving track was so soft that the heavy animals shown would have ruined it in a short time. Therefore the exhibition was held in an adjoining field, consisting of higher and dryer ground. There was a good attendance of the public and a fine exhibition of horses, the various classes being well filled and the individuals composing them being excellent specimens. But the display of Bulls was by no means up to the mark, and the different classes were with one or two exceptions indifferently filled.

The judging of the cattle was soon accomplished, Mr. James Leask, of Taunton, Ont., acting as judge. But Mr. W. Kenny, V.S., of Lindsay, the judge of horses, had a more arduous task. The competition in some of the classes was very keen, and a good deal of deliberation was required before a decision was arrived at. The following is the list of prizes awarded;—

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

THE TRUE STANDARD OF JUDGMENT

"Every tree is known by his own fruit."—LUKE vi., 44.

Fall pippins do not grow on a crab-apple tree. Choke pears are not found in an orchard of Bartletts. Christ laid down this principle and it is always applicable and everywhere applicable. If you want to know whether an institution is good or bad you have only to examine the kind of character it produces. I remember in my father's orchard there was a large apple tree that yielded luxuriant fruit; but it had a hollow trunk, so that we boys could hide in it. Which was the best position from which to examine the fruit of that tree; in the trunk where we sometimes used to hide, or standing on the outside looking up at the fruit? "Well," you say, "standing on the outside looking at it," and so I really believe that those inside of any institution are less competent to judge of its tendencies than those who are standing outside and watching the products perpetually shaken down.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE CLUB HOUSE.

I am asked what is the influence of the club houses of this country. To the answering of that question I give this discourse. Men are gregarious. Cattle in herds, fish in shoals, birds in flocks, men in social circles You may, by the discharge of a gun, scatter a flock of quails, or by the plunge of the anchor send apart the denizens of the sea; but they will gather themselves together again. If you, by some new power, could break the associations in which men now stand, they would again adhere. God meant it so. He has gathered all the flowers and shrubs into associations. You may plant one "forget-me-not," or "heart's-ease," alone, away off upon the hillside, but it will soon hunt up some other forget-me-not or heart's-ease. Plants love company. You will find them talking to each other in the dew. A galaxy of stars is only a mutual life insurance company. You sometimes see a man with no out-branching of sympathy. His nature is cold and hard like a ship's mast, ice-glazed, which the most agile sailor could never climb. Others have a thousand roots and a thousand branches. Innumerable tendrils climb their hearts and blossom all the way up; and the fowls of heaven sing in the branches. In consequence of this tendency we find men coming together in tribes, in communities, in churches, in societies. Some gather together to cultivate the arts; some to plan for the welfare of the State; some to discuss religious themes; some to kindle their mirth; some to advance their craft. So every active community is divided into associations of artists, of merchants, of bookbinders, of carpenters, of masons, of plasterers, of shipwrights, of plumbers? Do you cry out against it? Then you cry out against tendency divinely implanted. Your tirades will accomplish no more than if you should preach to a busy ant-hill or beehive a long sermon against secret societies.

All intelligent ages have had their gatherings characterized by the blunt old Anglo-Saxon designation of "club." If you have read history, you know that there was a King's Head Club, a Ben Jonson Club, a Brothers' Club, to which Swift and Bolingbroke belonged; a Literary Club, which Burke and Goldsmith and Johnson and Boswell made immortal, a Jacobin Club, a Benjamin Franklin Junto Club. Some of these to indicate justice, some to favor the arts, some to promote good manners, some to despoil the habits, some to destroy the soul. So now we have club houses and they are as different from each other as day and night. Look at two specimens:

WHAT AN IMPERIAL HALLWAY!

See! here are parlors on this side with the upholstery of the Kremlin and the Tuilleries; and here are dining-halls that challenge you to mention any luxury that they cannot afford; and here are galleries with sculpture, and paintings, and lithographs, and drawings from the best of artists, Cropsey, and Bierstadt, and Church, and Hart, and Gifford—pictures for every mood, whether you are impassioned or placid; shipwreck or sunlight over the sea; Sheridan's ride or the noonday party of the farmers under the tree; foaming deer pursued by the hounds in the Adirondacks, or the sheep on the lawn. On this side there are reading-rooms, where you find all newspapers and magazines. On that side there is a library, where you find all books, from hermeneutics to the fairy tale. Coming in and out there are gentlemen, some of whom stay ten minutes, others stay many hours. Some of these are from luxuriant homes, and they have excused themselves for a while from the domestic circle that they may enjoy the larger sociability of the club-house. These are from dismembered households, and they have a plain lodging somewhere, but they come to this club room to have their chief enjoyment. One blackball amid ten voted will defeat a man's becoming a member. For rowdyism, for drunkenness, for gambling, for any kind of misdemeanor, a member is dropped out. Brilliant club-house from top to bottom. The chandeliers, the plate, the furniture, the companionship, the literature, the social prestige, a complete enchantment.

Another club-house.—Opening the door we find fumes of strong drink and tobacco, something almost intolerable. These young men at this table, it is easy to understand what they are at, from the flushed cheek, the intent look, the almost angry way of tossing the dice or moving the "chips." They are gambling. At another table are men who are telling vile stories. They are three-fourths intoxicated, and between twelve and one o'clock they will go staggering, hooting, swearing, shouting on their way home. That is an only son. On him all culture has been bestowed. He is paying his parents in this way for their kindness. That is a young married man who only a few months ago at the altar made promises of kindness and fidelity, every one of which he has broken. Walk through and see for yourself. Here are all the implements of dissipation and quick death. As the hours of the night go away the conversation becomes imbecile and more debasing. Now it is time to shut up. Those who are able to stand will get out on the pavement and balance themselves against the lamp-post or against the railings of the fence. The young man who is not able to stand will have a bed improvised for him in the club-house, or two not quite so overcome with liquor will conduct him to his father's house, and they will ring the door-bell, and the door will be opened, and the two imbecile escorts will introduce into the hallway the ghastliest and most hellish spectacle that ever enters a front door—a drunken son. If the dissipating club-houses of this country would make a contract with the Inferno to provide it ten thousand men a year and for twenty years, on the condition that no more should be asked of them, the club-houses could afford to make that contract, for they would save homesteads, save fortunes, save bodies, minds and souls. The ten thousand men who would be sacrificed by that contract would be but a small part of the multitude sacrificed without the contract.

THREE PRINCIPLES.

But I make a vast difference between clubs. I have belonged to four clubs—a theological club, a ball club and two literary clubs. I got from them physical rejuvenation and moral health. What shall be the principle? If God will help me I will lay down three principles by which you may judge whether the club where you are a member or the club to which you have been invited is a legitimate or an illegitimate club-house.

First of all, I want you to test the club by its influences on home, if you have a home. I have been told by a prominent gentleman in club life that three-fourths of the members of the great clubs of these cities are married men. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great enterprises of art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front door step, and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic or nothing lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art, or literature, or religion, or charity, is breaking her own sceptre of conjugal power. I know in this church an instance where a wife thought that her husband was giving too many nights to Christian service, to charitable service, to prayer meetings and to religious convocation. She systematically decoyed him away until now he attends neither this nor any other church, and is on a rapid way to destruction, his morals gone, his money gone, and, I fear, his soul gone. Let any Christian wife rejoice when her husband consecrates evenings to the service of God, or to charity, or to art, or to anything elevated; but let not men sacrifice home life to club life. I have the rolls of the members of a great many of the prominent clubs of these cities, and I can point out to you a great many names of men who are guilty of sacrilege. They are as genial as angels at the club-house and as ugly as sin at home. They are generous on all subjects of wine suppers, yachts and fast horses, but they are stingy about the wife's dress and the children's shoes. That man has made that which might be a healthful recreation an usurper of his affections, and he has married it, and he is guilty of moral bigamy. Under this process, the wife, whatever her features, becomes uninteresting and homely. He becomes critical of her, does not like the dress, does not like the way she arranges her hair, is amazed that he ever was so unromantic as to offer her hand and heart. She is always wanting money, money, money, when she ought to be discussing Dexters and Derby Day and English drags with six horses, all answering the pull of one ribbon.

I tell you there are

THOUSANDS OF HOUSES

in Brooklyn and New York being clubbed to death! There are club-houses in those cities, where membership always involves domestic shipwreck. Tell me that a man has joined a certain club. Tell me nothing more about him for ten years, and I will write his history if he is still alive. The man is a wine-guzzler; his wife broken-hearted or prematurely old; his fortune gone or reduced, and his home a mere name in a directory. Here are six secular nights in the week. "What shall I do with them?" says the father and the husband. "I will give four of those nights to the improvement and entertainment of my family, either at home or in good neighborhood. I will devote one to the club." I congratulate you. Here is a man who says: "I will make a different division of the six nights. I will take three for the club and three for other purposes." I tremble. Here is a man who says: "Out of the six secular nights of the week I will devote five to the club-house and one to the home, which night I will spend in scowling like a March squall, wishing I was out spending it as I had spent the other five." That man's obituary is written. Not one out of ten thousand that ever gets so far on the wrong road ever stops. Gradually his health will fail through late hours and through too much stimulus. He will be first rate prey for erysipelas and rheumatism of the heart. The doctor coming in will at a glance see it is not only present disease he must fight but years of fast living. The clergyman, for the sake of the feelings of the family, on the funeral day will only talk in religious generalities. The man who got his yacht in the eternal rapids will not be at the obsequies. They will have pressing engagements that day. They will send flowers to the coffin-lid and send their wives to utter words of sympathy, but they will have engagements elsewhere. They never come. Bring me mallet and chisel and I will cut on the tombstone that man's epitaph:—"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." "No," you say, "that would not be appropriate." "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his." "No," you say "that would not be appropriate." Then give me the mallet and the chisel and I will cut an honest epitaph:—"Here lies the victim of a dissipating club-house!" I think that damage is often done by scions of some aristocratic family, who belong to one of these disgusting club-houses. People coming up from humbler classes feel it an honor to belong to the same club, forgetting the fact that many of the sons and grandsons of just huge commercial establishments of the last generation are now, as to mind, imbecile; as to body, diseased; as to morals, rotten. They would have got through their property long ago if they had full possession of it; but the wily ancestors who got the money by hard knocks, foreseeing how it was to be and they tied up everything in the will. Now there is nothing of that unworthy descendant but his grandfather's name and roast beef rotundity. And yet how many steamers there are which feel honored to lash fast to that worm-eaten tug though it drags them straight into the breakers.

Another test by which you may know whether the club to which you belong, or the club to whose membership you are invited, is a legitimate club or an illegitimate club, is this: What is its effect on your sense of moral and religious obligations? Now, if I should take the names of all the people in this audience this morning, and put them on a roll and then I should lay that roll back of this organ and a hundred years from now some one should take that roll and call it from A to Z, there would not one of you answer. I say that any association that makes me forget that fact is a bad association. When I go to Chicago, I am sometimes perplexed at Buffalo, as I suppose many travellers are, as to whether it is better to take the Lake Shore route or the Michigan Central, equally expeditious, and equally safe, getting at the destination at the same time. But, suppose that I hear that on one route the track is torn up and the bridges are torn down, and the switches are unlocked! It will not take me a great while to decide which road to take. Now, here are two roads into the future, the Christian and the unchristian, the safe and the unsafe. Any institution or any association that confuses my idea in regard to that fact is a bad institution and a bad association.

I had prayers before I joined the club. Did I have them after? I attended the house of God before I connected myself with the club. Since that union with the club do I absent myself from religious influences? Which would you rather have in your hand when you came to die, a pack of cards or a Bible? Which would you rather have pressed to your lips in the closing moment, the cup of Belshazzarean wassail, or the chalice of Christian communion? Who would you rather have for your pall bearers, the elders of a Christian church, or the companions whose conversation was full of slang and insendo? Who would you rather have for your eternal companions, those men who spend their evenings betting, gambling, swearing, carousing and telling vile stories, or your little child, that bright girl whom the Lord took? Oh, you would not have been away so many nights, would you, if you had known she was going away so soon? Dear me, your house has never been the same since. Your wife has never brightened up. She has not got over it; she never will get over it. How long the evenings are with no one to put to bed and no one to tell the beautiful Bible story! What a pity it is that you cannot spend more evenings at home in trying to help her bear that sorrow! You can never drown that grief in the wine-cup. You can never break away from the little arms that used to be flung around your neck, when she used to say: "Papa, do stay home to-night, do stay home to-night." You will never be able to wipe from your lips the dying kiss of your little girl. The fascination of a dissipating club house is so great that sometimes a man has turned his back on his home when his child was dying of scarlet fever. He went away. Before he got back at midnight the eyes had been closed, the undertaker had done his work, and the wife, worn out with three weeks' watching, lay unconscious in the next room. Then the returned father comes up stairs and he sees the cradle gone and the windows up, and says:—"Wha's the matter?" In the Judgment Day he will find out what was the matter. O man astray, God help you!

I deplore this ruin the more because this style of dissipation is taking down our finest men. The admission fee sifts out the penurious and takes only those who are called the best fellows! Oh, how changed you are! Not so kind to your wife as you used to be; not so patient with your children. Your conscience is not so much at rest. You laugh more now, rising louder than once, but are not half so happy. It is not the public drinking saloon that is taking you down, but it is simply and undeniably your club room. You do not make yourself as agreeable in your family as once. You go home at twelve o'clock with an unnatural flush upon your cheek and a strange color in your eye that you got at the club. You morally acknowledge that you feel queer. You say that champagne never intoxicates; that it only exhilirates, makes the conversation fluent, shakes up the humor, and has no bad effect except a headache next day. Be not deceived. Champagne may not, like whiskey, throw a man under the table; but if, through anything you drink, you gain an unnatural fluency of speech and glow of feeling, you are simply drunk. If those imperilled were heartless young men, stingy young men, I would not be so sorry as I am; but there are many of them generous to a fault, frank, honest, cheerful, talented. I begrudge the devil such a prize. After a while these persons will lose all the frankness and honor for which they are now distinguished. Their countenance will get haggard, and instead of looking one in the eye when they talk, they will look down. After a while when the mother kindly asks: "What kept you out so late?" they will make no answer, or will say: "That is my business." They will come cross and befogged to the store and bank, and ever and anon neglect some duty and after a while will be dismissed; and then, with nothing to do, will rise in the morning at ten o'clock, cursing the servant because the breakfast is cold, and then go down town and stand on the steps of some fashionable hotel and criticise the passers-by. While the young man who was clerk in a cellar has come up to be first clerk, and he who a few years ago ran errands for the bank has got to be cashier, and thousands of other young men of the city have gone up to higher and more responsible positions, he has been going down until there he passes through the street with bloated lip and bloodshot eye and a staggering step and hat mud-spattered and set sideways on a shock of greasy hair, the ashes of his cigar dashed upon his cravat. Here he goes! Look at him, all ye pure-hearted young men, and see the work of the dissipating club-room. I knew one such who, after the contaminations of his club-house, leaped out of the third story window to put an end to his wretchedness.

O, men who are victims

OF DISSIPATING ASSOCIATIONS

your sins will follow you! I describe the history of thousands of households when I say that the tea is rapidly taken and while yet the family linger the father shoves back his chair, has "an engagement," lights his cigar and starts out, not returning until after midnight. That is the history of 365 days in the year, except when he is sick and cannot go out. How about home duties? Have you fulfilled all your vows? Would your wife ever have married you with such a prospect? Wait until your sons get to be sixteen or seventeen years of age and they too will shove back from the table, have an "engagement," light their cigars, go over to their club-houses, their night-key rattling in your door after midnight—the effect of your example. And as your son's constitution may not be so strong as yours and the liquor he drinks more terribly drugged, he will catch up to you on the road to death, although you got the start of him, and so you will both go to hell together!

A revolving Dynamo-light of the first of a locomotive calls it down through darkness to it is turned forward; so I catch up the lamps of God's truth and turn it round until its tremendous glare flashes into all the dark corners of our souls. Flee the pretences of dissipating club houses. "Paid your money?" Sacrifice that rather than your soul. "Good fellows" are they? They cannot stay when they are under such influences. Molluscs live two hundred fathoms down in the Norwegian seas. The Siberian stag grows fat on the stunted growth of Altain peaks. The Hedysarium thrives amid the desolation of Sahara. Taffa of cedar and birch grow on the hot lips of the volcanic Sabanchaitan. But good character and a useful life thrive amid club-room dissipations—never! The best way to make a wild beast cower is to look him in the eye, but the best way to treat the temptations I have described is to turn your back and fly. Oh, my heart aches! I see men struggling to get out of the serfdom of bad habits, and I want to help them. I have knelt with them and heard their cry for help. I have had them put one hand on each of my shoulders and look me in the eye with an agony of earnestness that the Judgment shall have no power to make me forget, and from their lips, scorched with the fires of ruin, have heard them cry "God help me!" There is no rescue for such save in the Lord Almighty.

FARMERS!

We would call the particular attention of the Farming community to our

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best pulveriser ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will alone do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulveriser and Gang Plow. The teeth incline forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible extra draft on the team. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and springing; thus they seldom clog with grass, weeds, stalks, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, no common with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning; hence, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened upper edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the part repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

The SUN has $139 of Assets for every $100 of Liabilities. It issues Unconditional Policies. These Policies are, to say the least, unsurpassed for liberality by those of any other Company with whose policies we are acquainted. They are immeasurably more liberal than those of all other Canadian and American Companies. Great care is taken in the selection of risks, but when a policy once issued the money is paid on simple proof of the death of the assured, no matter how, or when, or where. The only condition is the payment of premiums. The SUN has not one CONTESTED or DISPUTED claim on its books. Every man should have a Life Policy in this admittedly superior Company.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

In and Around Our Legislative Halls.

(Correspondence of THE EXAMINER.)

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

The House has been in session all night, several motions favoring an adjournment having been voted down by the Government members, who are determined if possible to force the Franchise Bill through the House. Crowds of Conservative members have been holding a riotous and convival time in the restaurant, and toward morning several came into the House shouting. One insisted on sitting in his seat and smoking a cigar, despite the calls of "order" from the chair. Sir Hector Langevin, in order to try to intimidate the Liberals into giving in, had his breakfast brought into the Chamber, and ate it sitting in his chair.

Sir John having left instructions with his lieutenants, Sir Hector and Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, went off early in the night to bed.

It is known that the Conservatives arranged at their last caucus to take Parliament by the throat and compel the passage of the Franchise Bill through the House this week to the exclusion of all other business. Sir John stated in the House that it was his purpose to push the bill continuously until it became law. Liberal members feel that to hand over the making of the electoral lists to the agents of the Conservative party would be to sign their own political death warrants. There are many tyrannical and objectionable features in the bill, and Sir John is determined to make it law without giving the public time to become acquainted with its details. This Liberal members are bound to resist to the utmost of their ability. The clause giving Indians who are wards of the Government and dependent upon the Government the power to vote is a direct attempt to seize upon the seats of several Liberal members in Western Ontario, as the Government is confident it can force the Indians to assist them in this project. All the morning a band of Tories led by Messrs. Woodworth, Rykert, Clark, Wallace and Prof. Foster, did their utmost to howl down the Opposition. Songs were sung at the loudest pitch attainable, and catcalls, cockcrowing and kazoos were called into requisition to attain the purpose. The most disgraceful results from the Bacchanalian orgies indulged by Tory members were visible throughout the Chamber, and men occupying high positions in social and political circles made disgraceful exhibitions of themselves. Such are the tactics resorted to by the brute majority to force upon Parliament an infamous measure.

The debate on the amendment to the first clause of the Franchise Bill was continued until to-night at 10:15, when Sir John proposed to adjourn the House if a vote was allowed. This was agreed to, when the amendment moved by Mr. Townsend, which strikes out the franchise for women as relating to Quebec, was carried by a vote of 78 to 51. The Government's action was an admission of defeat, as the debate will continue on the first clause as before. It is very probable that the Government, having learned that it cannot choke off discussion at will, may be impelled to withdraw the bill altogether. The capitulation of the Government to-night is largely owing to the fact that the syndicate people are all here, clamoring for immediate assistance, as the exigencies of the company will not permit longer delay. The vote on the Franchise Bill furnished the proof that Sir John had given his followers the wink to eliminate the woman suffrage clause from the bill. The Ontario Tories almost unanimously voted to remove the provision, while Sir John voted to retain it. On this, as on other questions, Sir John played a double game. Professing to be desirous for woman franchise he, as Mr. Pruyn informed the House, let it be understood in the caucus that he would not press the adoption upon his friends.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 29th.

The House of Commons was engaged nearly all of to day in again debating the part of the Interpretation Clause of Sir John Macdonald's Disfranchising Bill which refers to Woman Suffrage. The long sitting of Monday-Tuesday was on the interpretation clause as applied to other Provinces, the words, "or her" occurred, which re-opened the whole question as far as those Provinces are concerned. As Sir John has been masquerading in the guise of a Woman Sufferage Reformer, his present position is a ridiculous one. He kept the House in session for nearly thirty hours in order that he might kill the only respectable part of his own measure as far as regards Quebec; and yesterday he was fighting against reason in order that he may kill Woman Suffrage altogether! A pattern Social Reformer!

Certain Conservative members of the House were again as unmannerly as bears. They seem to have lost every trace of gentlemanly behaviour since they resolved to support this unfair measure.

THURSDAY, APRIL 30th.

To-day's sitting of the House of Commons was entirely devoted to the consideration of the Franchise Bill. A long debate arose on the proposition to give votes to the Indians. The Opposition, while favouring the enfranchisement of the Indians, took the ground that they should be fully enfranchised when free from Government influence and control, and this view was expressed in an amendment moved by Mr. Mills.

The Liberal members of the House of Commons are receiving large numbers of letters daily from all parts of the Dominion, commending their course with respect to the Franchise Bill, and urging them to continue the fight against the timber limit and railway subsidy brigade, with whose aid Sir John Macdonald is endeavouring to force his iniquitous Franchise Bill upon the country. That the Government should try to force such a measure through at a time when the North-West is in open rebellion, has aroused the indignation and disgust of many respectable Conservatives.

A Conservative caucus was held this morning, at which it was understood the Government's scheme to afford further relief to the C.P.R. Co. was acquiesced in. It was also resolved to make another strong effort to force the Franchise Bill through the House. Mr. Van Horne is here pressing the demands of his Company, but the Government are at a loss to know where they are to get the millions that the Syndicate must have. It is stated that Mr. Smithers, President of the Bank of Montreal, went to New York last week at the request of the Government to see if ten million dollars could be obtained from the sale of four per cent. Dominion bonds. Mr. Smither's mission failed. He could not dispose of the bonds at par or even at a discount of one-fourth of one per cent., and now the Government have resolved to despatch Mr. Courtney, Deputy-Minister of Finance, to England, to see if he can procure money to meet the maturing liabilities and the necessities of the Pacific Railway Syndicate. The Government seem to have little confidence in Mr. Thos. White's abilities as financier, and will try to effect a loan before he comes into office.

SATURDAY, MAY, 2.

The session of the House of Commons in Committee on the Franchise Bill, which began at three o'clock on Thursday did not end till twelve o'clock to-night, when the debate was adjourned without a vote being had. The subject before the Committee was the words of the interpretation clause which gives votes to all Indians whether Christian or pagan, civilized or barbarian, living with their tribes or not. The object of the Government it to use the Indians as voting machines with which can be "finished" several prominent Liberals whom the Gerrymander Act, the partisan Returning-officers, and the Revising-barristers are thought insufficient to kill.

Such a clause is a disgrace even to Sir John Macdonald. The Liberals are justified in using every constitutional means of defeating it. They have done nobly, and they are now reaping their reward. The country is becoming awakened to the atrocity of the crime Sir John Macdonald is seeking to perpetrate, and the veteran corruptionist will yet find that he has not completely blighted out from the Canadian people the sense of right and wrong.

The Cream of Occurrences Condensed from Contemporary Columns

OPS.

A four-year old sow belonging to Mr. D. H. Cornell, Ops, Friday dropped three fine healthy calves. This is a very rare occurrence.

MANVERS.

Another old settler has passed away in the person of Mr. Edmund Morphet, aged 85 years. He has resided in Manvers for a number of years.

LINDSAY.

At the recent convocation of Queen's university, Kingston, the degree of D. Sc. (doctor of science) was conferred on Rev. Mr. McTavish, minister of St. Andrew's church, Lindsay. Mr. McTavish's papers or theses were of marked ability.

BOBCAYGEON.

A number of men for the drives left early in the week. It is expected that the water supply will be none too abundant, and the log crop on small streams will have to be moved along at the earliest moment.

Mr. Millburn is again engaged at the river quarry, preparing stone for the English Church, at Lindsay. It is understood that the Macdonald quarry on Pigeon Lake will be opened on the first of next month.

Not for many years has so pleasant an evening been spent, as that enjoyed by the Curling Club, on Saturday. Upon the invitation of the President, Mr. M. M. Boyd, the members of the Club assembled at the Forest House, and sat down to a dinner that was startling in its excellence. Every member of the Club was present. It was a draw in which no man gave a bye.

NORWOOD.

The building which is designed to be a commodious and elegant residence for the incumbent of Christ's Church is being rapidly pushed to completion, and will soon be ready for the finishing work. Great care and skill have been displayed in its construction and modern appliances. It reflects credit upon those concerned in its building.

Mr. Fred Nicoll, who left Norwood about a year ago, has recently died in Minneapolis, Minnesota. His illness was telegraphed home and his father proceeded at once to the place where his son lay sick. His death, however, took place before the father's arrival. His remains were brought home on Monday and he was buried Wednesday.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.

AN IMPERIAL HYPOCRITE.

The Emperor of Russia, who professes to be anxious for peace, has shown his anxiety by sending to Komaroff a number of metal crosses for the decoration of the soldiers who displayed any remarkable degree of bravery in the affair on the Kukah. His majesty is visible head of the Greek church, and ought to be ashamed to prostitute the emblem of man's salvation to the reward of a base and bloody breach of good faith. So long as he can trade off cheap crosses for such services he will remain in the business, and his subjects will remain in rags and chains.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

ARDENT AUSTRALIANS.

The Australians are again to the front with offers of assistance to the Motherland in her coming struggle with the Muscovites. Their fine contingent in the Soudan has volunteered and their services have been accepted for India or elsewhere, and Australia has 10,000 more to send if necessary. What has Sir John Macdonald to say to this in connection with that after-dinner speech of his at the Carlton Club, when he boasted of 40,000 Canadians being ready for the defence of the Empire?

A Wonderful Discovery.

Consumptives and all who suffer from any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can find a certain cure in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Thousands of permanent cures verify the truth of this statement. No medicine can show such a record of wonderful cures. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers now gratefully proclaim they owe their lives to this New Discovery. It will cost you nothing to give it a trial. Free Trial Bottles at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

Canadian Belles.

To one who has heard the beauties of Baltimore, Brooklyn and Murray hill girls rated beyond comparison, the Montreal girls and those from the other Canadian cities, says a correspondent writing of the recent winter carnival at Montreal, proves as interesting as anything where each object he looked at was novel. No woman would dare to go into the street painted so much or with such a pronounced red as superabundant health and spirits has dyed every pair of girlish cheeks. It is not likely that any drug could produce the flash and sparkle one sees in every pair of girlish eyes, for the young women here get the charms they boast of by skating side by side with their brothers, racing on snowshoes with the men, tobogganing, wherever tobogganing can be practiced, walking like Indians, and running like a deer. A group of them is of as many bright colors as a bunch of garden flowers, and one gets the impression that they dress loudly, but this comes of the habit they have of tying a bright-colored worsted comforter over their heads and around their necks whenever they go out of doors in cold weather. To-day, at the snowshoe race, the tobogganing hills, and in the sleighs, the women from the United States shivered under their sealskin sacques, while the Montreal girls stood knee-deep in snow, sat on snow-banks, or stood on the hilltops half-hours at a stretch. "I must tell you how these girls dress," said a New York woman to her husband. "First, they start with flannel from head to foot—and such flannel! Why, it's an eighth of an inch thick. Then they go on like other women, except that they put on more skirts, and usually a quilted one that is as warm as a wood fire. Then they put on a dress, and over that a chamois jacket that fits like a shoe in the mud. Then they put ribbed woolen stockings over their stockings, and arties over their shoes. They don't care any more about the looks of their feet than the St. Louis women do. Then they put on knit wristers, then gloves, then a fur cap, and finally a coil of worsted comforters. When they are dressed, if they are hurled at a speed of a mile a minute from a toboggan they are unhurt. If they fall through the ice, they are not hurt. If the thermometer drops to 15 below, they read of it next day and wish they had known it at the time."

Heirs to a Fortune.

Cox was sentenced to a month's imprisonment at Rutland, Vt., for selling alcoholic beverages, but had the alternative of paying a fine instead at any time within twenty-four hours. He refused to pay for his liberty until he found that, as a prisoner he must part with his beard, which reached to his waist, and had been twenty-five years growing. The warden said it was then too late, and ordered the barber to do his duty. Cox was held fast and his face roughly shaved, without using any lather or first clipping off the whiskers with the scissors. He caught cold and nearly died, as a consequence of this treatment. He sued for damages, and two trials have resulted in verdicts of heavy amounts against the warden; but each time there was an informality, and a third jury will hear the case.

Florida "The Land of Flowers," is a paradise for the invalid, and the "Fountain of Youth" was once thought to be hid in one of its forest glades. It is now the haven of many consumptives, who find benefit in her genial warmth and fragrant flowers. The consumptive invalid need not necessarily go so far from home and friends to get relief. For if not in the last stages of the disease, Dr R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will restore to perfect health. For all chronic throat, bronchial and lung diseases it is a most reliable specific. By druggists.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 7, 1885.

A Park for the People.

The Peterborough Horticultural Society has amply justified its existence by the excellent work it has done, in developing a popular taste for the beautiful and useful by promoting the creation of an interest in floriculture and horticulture. But in no way has it earned the gratitude of the public of Peterborough more richly than in the persistent, energetic and successful efforts it has made to secure the opening of the Court House Park for public use. The directors and prominent members of the society have been for years working in this direction, and it is due solely to their exertions that the County Council, who are the custodians of the enclosure, have consented to give a lease of it to the society in trust for the people, and to devote an appropriation of $75 per year for its maintenance. In like manner the town council has been induced to make a grant of $200 (per year) for the same purpose. These sums will be supplemented by as liberal a grant as practicable from the funds of the Society. The directors are ready to enter upon the work of beautifying the park in a manner worthy of its natural advantages. The formalities of securing the lease of the park are now all that stand in the way of beginning operations. Of course the first year the work done will not show to very great advantage. It is intended to do the work thoroughly, and therefore the matter of drainage, etc., will have to be attended to. We believe the plans proposed embrace the terracing of the grounds, laying out walks and flower plots, and planting ornamental shrubs and trees. Through the liberality of two citizens—Messrs. Stevenson and Cox—a fountain will be placed in the park; it will be lighted by electric light, and altogether the programme of improvements suggests the creation of a place of recreation of rare beauty and attractiveness, which the citizens will delight in resorting to. The funds available for the object are unfortunately not as large as could be desired. While this will somewhat limit the operations of the Society, it will present an opportunity to public spirited citizens to render valuable assistance without any appreciable trouble or expense. There are hundreds of our citizens who could, from the surplus growth of their grounds and parterres, supply perennial flower plants and ornamental shrubs. These will cost nothing to the donors, for, every spring, large quantities of these are thinned out and thrown away. A little thoughtfulness in saving them for the purpose of park decoration, would be an assistance that would be highly appreciated by the Society, and would materially assist in the beautifying of Court House Park. We trust that every citizen will take an interest in the matter, for it concerns all. It has been urged that it was not advisable to tax the poorer rate-payer for the establishment and maintenance of a park; but it is for his benefit especially that this is done. The wealthy taxpayer has grounds and gardens of his own, and while he will pay the larger share of any grant of public money made, he will not receive the pleasure and benefit from a park, such as the average citizen will derive, whose only breathing place and place of resort must be found in a public park. It is to be hoped that the Horticultural Society will receive every assistance and encouragement in their praiseworthy endeavour to give beauty and attractiveness to the town, and to promote the pleasure of the citizens.

During the last session of the Ontario Legislature a fair play amendment was added to the License Act, as follows, and is now the law of the land:

"Every person, not being the occupant or member of his (the hotel or saloon keeper's) family, or lodger in his house, who buys, or obtains, or attempts to buy or obtain intoxicating liquors during the time prohibited by this Act for the sale thereof, in any place where the same is or may be sold by wholesale or retail, shall be guilty of an offence under this Act."

This is as it should be. It seemed obviously unfair that the liquor seller should be alone fined for selling liquors after hours. This is a breach of the law that could not be committed without the help of the buyer, and the latter will hereafter have to answer for his guilt. This amendment, if well enforced, will tend to decrease the sale of liquors during prohibited hours, and to decrease the evils of intemperance.

Sir John Facing-Bothways.

In politics Sir John Macdonald is a shrewd shuffler, with a happy facility of devouring his own professions. When in New York on his return from his red breeches expedition, he received a deputation of female suffragists, and strongly assured them of his sympathy with the proposal to give the ballot to women. He, indeed, inserted a clause to that effect in his so-called Franchise Bill, now before the House. But witness his hypocrisy. He spoke in favour of this clause, but on a subsequent reading he instructed, or at least connived at one of his prominent supporters, introducing an amendment striking out of the bill the clause affirming the principle of female suffrage. And he allowed the amendment to be adopted, although he had, if he were sincere, his desire to give the ballot to women, only to lift his hand and his subservent majority, would have voted for it en masse. He did not want to enfranchise women; but he made a hypocritical pretence of favoring the principle, and it is to him and to him alone, the fact will be due if the new Franchise Bill does not confer upon women the right to vote. Two-thirds of the Reform members of Parliament voted for female suffrage, while two-thirds of the Tories voted against it. In anything else Sir John desires to carry, his supporters vote as he tells them; in this case they voted as they did because, though appearing to favour female suffrage, Sir John intimated to them that they must denounce the principle by their votes.

The Ottawa Franchise Bill.

The manner in which the Franchise Bill, now before the Dominion Parliament, was sprung upon the House is surface evidence showing that there is something about it that will not bear parliamentary and public discussion. After Parliament had been sitting three months this Bill was brought down. The time of the session had been wasted and no Government legislation had been brought down for two months after the House met. The Government is responsible for this delay and waste of time, yet Sir John is, perhaps, entitled to some sympathy in his efforts to dodge the demands of the Pacific Syndicate. He had not the courage to reject their proposal, so he let things dwaddle along, hoping that some lucky accident, to which he has been indebted so often in his career, would help him out of his dilemma. But it did not come, and he felt that he must give in to their demands, and that this new extravagance and his responsibility for the Riel rebellion would injure him before the country; so he introduced the Franchise Bill to accomplish what the Gerrymander had failed to do in bullying a verdict in his favour. The Franchise Bill, as brought in by Sir John, is an utterly and irredeemably bad one. It admits of no defence, hence its introduction at the tag end of the session and Sir John's expressed determination to force it through without discussion. The worst feature about it is the unlimited, irresponsible and arbitrary powers conferred upon the revising barristers, to add to or strike off from the voters' lists the names of electors. These autocrats have almost unlimited power and liberty of action in deciding who shall or shall not be placed on the voters' list. There is no appeal from their decision. They are as absolute as the Czar of Russia. No man, however well qualified by the other sections of this same Act, can be sure that his name will not be struck off. If the "revising barrister" so decides he is disfranchised and there is no appeal. It is easily seen what abuse and injustice this will lead to. These revising barristers are appointed by the Government, and they will do their best to frame the voters' list in the interest of the party that appoints them, so that no matter how corrupt and incapable a Government may be, it has power, by appointing the right kind of "revising barristers," to have the voters' lists so fixed that public opinion can be defied. Again, the Bill is framed in another respect to give the Government an immense advantage in certain ridings. The power to vote is to be conferred on Indians, who are the wards of the Government, who look to Government for favours, and in their barbarous avidity, will do anything the Government wants them to do in consideration of tobacco and blankets. Thus the Government in a riding can drive a horde of unthinking Indians to the polls and so swamp the voice of intelligent white voters. The powers this Franchise Bill confers are dangerous to put in the hands of the most honest Government, not to speak of a Government that generated the Gerrymander. In the line of constitutional government it is a retrograde step of centuries, and the people of Canada are unworthy of their liberties if they tamely submit to being deprived of them without protest. We appeal to their patriotism to resist such baneful and wicked legislation. We appeal to the better class of Conservatives not to countenance it. No honest Conservative can be willing to be a member and ally of a party which retains power by such arbitrary and unjust means. There are other objectionable features in the Bill, but those recited are enough to secure the condemnation of every honest and fair-minded citizen of the Dominion.

The Mail is in ecstacy because it thinks the Northwest rebellion attracts more attention than the Franchise iniquity of Sir John at Ottawa. This is just what the Mail and its faction want, and it is on this that Sir John counted to promote the passage of the unrighteous measure. But public attention is not so easily distracted, and the Mail is too fast in thinking that because the blundering of the government, it supports (for value received) in bringing on the rebellion will permit the perpetration of one of the highest-handed legislative outrages ever proposed.

Sir John Macdonald is called by his admirers the "first statesman in Canada." Hon. Mr. Gladstone is acknowledged to be the first statesman in Great Britian. Yet what a contrast in the mental and moral qualities and methods of the two men. Hon. Mr. Gladstone is capable, courteous, dignified, statesmanlike, honest, sincere, truthful, reliable and trustworthy; not given to double dealing nor shuffling—double or otherwise—no prevaricator—no constitutional lawyer; no braggart; no political bully; no giver of bribes as a business; no gerrymanderer; no despiser and enemy of provincial rights; no $1,000-friend to rebels, like Riel; no license act blunderer; not given to "slap your———chops." Sir John is the diametrical opposite of Mr. Gladstone in all—well, say in politics.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 2.]

"To Song, God never said the words:
'To dust return for dust thou art.'"
—TAYLOR.

We have already stated the object we have in view in preparing a series of articles on the above subject. We are most anxious to direct the attention of Canadians generally to the claims of native poetry. We are desirous of awakening a living interest in the matter among all sorts and conditions of men. We must all admit that literature bears a large part in the formation of a healthy national character, in fostering real patriotism and creating that love of country which is so desirable, and which, so far as Canadians are concerned, must be acknowledged as a great want among us. D'Arcy McGee well said we should "welcome every talent, hail every invention, cherish every gem of art, foster every gleam of authorship, and cultivate that true catholicity of spirit which embraces all creeds, all classes and all races, in order to make our boundless (Dominion), so rich in known and unknown resources, a great new northern nation."

What has materially helped to make England famous, to render her name a tower of defence and to make her sons the wide world o'er, noted for their patriotism, martial ardour and love of country—proud of the land which has borne them, because she is in very truth, "great, glorious and free?" The best answer, perhaps, is, her wonderful national literature. Wherever Britons wander they carry in their hearts the memory of the illustrious names of Britain's worthies. What Englishman can forget the incomparable Bard of Avon? What Scot is not stirred to deep emotion by the poetry of Burns? Take from Ireland its Goldsmith and its Moore, and what a blank there would be? Wherever the Irishman may wander he turns back with fonder love to that dear old land, when he hears the sweet strains of the "Vale of Avoca." England without Shakespeare and Milton would not be England at all, for these mighty men are the boast of the Saxon race and the glory of humanity.

The poet renders the land dear to us by revealing its physical beauty, and showing the glories of its hills and vales, its glens and streams and fruits and flowers. But he does more than this, for he voices the heroism and noble deeds of her bravest sons, and stirs all hearts with the enthusiasm of patriotism by the recital of historical events in "thoughts that breathe and words that burn." Again poetry ministers to the wants of our higher nature. This, indeed, is the true secret of its power. The deeper emotions find utterance in poesy and through the genius of the real songster, those better feelings of our nature are awakened in kindred souls, as we study the poet's words.

We cannot help thinking it is a great national misfortune that in Canada, politicians, and not literature, have, up to the present, the direction of the national mind. There is nothing inspiring nor elevating, and little even that is patriotic, in party politics as we experience them. We are an overgoverned people, possessing more politics to the square acre than any country in the world. This may, in some measure, account for the lack of appreciation which, as a general thing, Canadians have shown for their own writers and poets. Our people do not seem to value the beauties of external nature. Doubtless the exigencies of a new country and the toil and labour incident to life in the colonies, may excuse the want. But surely there are some among us who can boast of that "learned leisure," which, for literature, at least, can accomplish great things? Shall it be said, as some have asserted, that Canada cannot be a poetic country, that it lacks the poetic element, that there is little beauty or variety in our scenery? Norman McLeod, we believe, pronounced all American scenery "the stupidest in the world." But surely they are blind, indeed, who see no beauty in our glowing sunsets, no grandeur in our magnificent lakes, glorious waterfalls, mighty rivers, solemn forests, cloud-capped hills and unsurpassed Autumnal glories?

Why should it be said that the soil of the Dominion is not congenial to true poetry? Have we not, while wanting much of historic interest, which makes older lands famous, the free, bracing air of this new world, with its unshackled thought and liberty of action? Is there not here the same power to foster poetry as in the land of the stars and stripes, in which Longfellow, Emerson, Bryant, Poe, Holmes, Whittier and many others, found the divine afflatus? Are there not some stirring events in our past even, and if not, surely we have bright glimpses of a glorious future for our country, which should readily inspire the true genius to burst into song? Will it always be the winter of inefficiency and cold apathy with us, so far as our literature is concerned? Will not the spring time at least, if not the glorious summer, soon burst among us and give us virgin flowers of poesy and song? Yes, unless chilled by indifference or nipped by the frosts of neglect, we may yet hope the bright blossoms of beauty and of grace will shoot forth even under these cheerless skies, to beautify and enrich our literature, to prove that a true poet has arisen among us, and thus to add another sparkling jewel to Canada's fair crown.

Meanwhile, let us study what has already been done by our native poets. Let us shake off the indifference we have exhibited to our native literature. Let us begin to foster and encourage heartily all true literary efforts and poetic worth, wherever we may find them, so that we may establish a national literature worthy of our great Dominion and of those noble names which make England famous the wide world o'er.

It is now over twenty years since any sustained and earnest effort was made to set forth what had been done by poets to enrich the literature of Canada. About that time the Rev. E. H. (now Dr.) Dewart published a volume entitled "Selections from Canadian Poets." The work was on a small scale and was confessedly brief and imperfect. As a general thing little was given in the way of biography. But for those days it was a stupendous task and showed that the plan was sketched by a wise and far-seeing mind. We must be very grateful to the author for preserving by its means many fugitive pieces, that would otherwise have been forever lost to the reading public. The book is very frequently quoted, and though many names since then have been added to our literary worthies, it still remains the only work professing to awaken interest in the poets and poetry of Canada.

Surely the time has come to enlarge upon Dewart's production, and to show that other prophets have arisen among us? The last twenty years have been tolerably fruitful in poetic lore, yet nothing has been done systematically to call attention to our native writers, to sketch their lives and surroundings, and to give brief extracts from their works. This stigma ought certainly to be removed, and it is to aid in this desirable task that the present series of articles has been begun.

Next issue we shall refer to the life and writings of Thomas D'Arcy McGee, and this article will be followed by others on the more prominent of our Canadian poets until we have exhausted the list. We bespeak for these sketches the thoughtful attention of the hosts of readers to whom THE EXAMINER is a welcome weekly visitant, and trust our efforts to make known the pioneer writers of our country will meet with hearty appreciation and awaken interest in a field left hitherto shamefully untilled and neglected.

Licenses.

The population of Peterborough admits of the granting of eighteen licenses. The commissioners, to meet what they thought the requirements of the town, and as far as possible to deal satisfactorily with the demand for the full number, applied for 21 licenses as they had done previously to last year, owing to the extra large floating population in connection with the railroads. But on Tuesday when the commissioners met to finally arrange the question of licenses, their request for 21 licenses was met with the following letter, which speaks for itself:—

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE, LICENSE BRANCH,
TORONTO, APRIL 27, 1885.

SIR,—In answer to your favour of the 25th, inst., in which you say that you have been instructed by your Board of Commissioners to apply for two more tavern licenses to be issued in the town of Peterborough, I am directed by the Hon., the Provincial Secretary, to say that upon reference to your requisition for licenses, dated on the 16th, inst., you request that 18 town tavern forms be sent you. These were forwarded in due course. You further report in your requisition that the population of Peterborough, according to the last Dominion census, is 6,812, which number would warrant the issue of 18 tavern licenses only. In the absence of any explanations, I am desired to enquire under what section of the Act your Board assumes to have authority to issue more than 18 tavern licenses in Peterborough? The attention of your Board is called to sections 19, 29 and 65 of the Compiled License Acts.

I am further desired to advise your Board that during the session of 1883-4 the hon. member for West Peterborough, John Carnegie, called for returns to be made showing the population of the town of Peterborough, according to the last Dominion census, the number of tavern licences that could be legally issued therein, and the number that are actually issued. The return not having been compiled for presentation before the close of the session, he renewed his motion during the present session, and took occasion to reflect somewhat severely upon the Government for not supervising more closely the action of your board, regarding the number of licenses issued in the Town of Peterborough. Under these circumstances, the objects and intentions of your board are not comprehended, and you are requested to give some explanations.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,
HENRY TOTTEN.

C. LEARY, Esq.,
Peterborough.

Those not granted licenses have petitioned the council in reference to the matter, and a special meeting was called as we go to press.

Editorial Notes.

Bradstreet's report says that there has been practically no improvement in business during the past week.

A despatch from Winnipeg says that the Legislature has refused to adopt the ballot. All the local elections will still be in the old open fashion.

Such is fame. An Ottawa despatch to the London Times, says the Globe, gives the name of Father Chiniquy as one of the Chiefs of the Stony Indians.

In the course of the recent speech on the Northwest affairs, Senator Alexander said he was not astonished that there was trouble among the Northwest Indians. They had been shamefully treated. He had been informed only a few moments ago by a prominent ranch owner, who had recently visited his ranch in the Northwest, that he saw Indians feeding on rotten pork, supplied by the Government, which they were compelled to eat or otherwise starve. Yet enough money is spent to feed the Indians well as they should be fed, for settlement has destroyed the living of the aborigines, the buffalo and game. But the Government trusts the expenditure of the money to political hacks, and it is probable that a good proportion of it sticks to their fingers, and the Indians are left to starve, and at last to resist government authority. If the Indian department had been honestly and efficiently administered there would have been no Indian outbreak, no massacre of innocent women.

The Review publishes a paragraph charging the Globe with sympathizing with the rebels and inciting others to rebellion. This is distinctly false; nothing of the nature attributed ever appeared in the columns of the Globe. But there have appeared telling and hitting denunciations of the mischievous policy of the Dominion Government, that caused the rebellion. The truth of these is so incisive that it cuts through even the thick skin of hide-bound journalistic Tory apologists, and makes them wince. They cannot deny the truth of the charges of Governmental incompetency and neglect, so they resort to the tu quoque trick, hoping thereby to distract public attention from the guilt of the Dominion authorities. The Review can, with flippant ease, formulate false charges against the Globe, yet it has not one word to say in condemnation of the policy of the Government, which is first, last and directly responsible for the North-West uprising, with its attendant bloodshed, suffering, obstruction to business, enormous expense and injury to settlement of the country. The Government feels its guilt so deeply that it dreads the expression of public opinion, so Sir John is endeavouring to force his Franchise Bill through Parliament, whereby a large number of independent Canadians are to be disfranchised, and the ballot given to classes that can easily be manipulated in the Government interests. The Globe is hated because it is feared, and, so long as it fearlessly speaks the truth, according to its wont, so long will the printing-contract-pampered pack of newspaper apologists continue to howl at its heels.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The Celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth, and every man in the land.

HAS IMPORTED FROM FRANCE

Percheron Horses valued at $3,000,000, which includes

75 PER CENT OF ALL HORSES

Whose purity of blood is established by their pedigrees recorded in the STUD BOOK OF FRANCE.

EVER IMPORTED TO AMERICA.

STOCK ON HAND:
150 Imported Brood Mares,
250 Imported Stallions, Old enough for service,
100 COLTS, Two years old and younger.

Recognizing the principle accepted by all intelligent breeders that, however well bred animals may be said to be, if their pedigrees are not recorded, and cannot be authentically given, they should be valued only as grades, I will sell all Imported Stock at Grade Prices when I cannot furnish with the animal sold pedigree verified by the original French certificate of its number, and record in the Stud Book in France. 140 Page Catalogue sent free. It is illustrated with Six Prize Horses of the Exhibition of the Société Hippique Percheronne of France, 1884-1 purchased by W. W. Dunham, and drawn from life by Rosa Bonheur, the most famous of all animal painters.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The ice had left Chemong Lake on Sunday last. As it went off very slowly, no damage was done to the bridge.

We believe Pigeon Creek bridge was badly racked up by the moving of the ice last week.

It is likely that Arbor Day will be recognized here—so may it be.

The following is the monthly report of S. S. No. 5, Smith, for the month of April:—Senior fourth—1st, Mary McEwen, 2nd, Mary Deanard, 3rd, Wm. Morrison. BENSFORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Spring here again.

The members of the lacrosse club are preparing for conquest and victory.

The season so far is showing good prospects for all kinds of grasses. The fall wheat is looking well and is considered past danger from frost.

Mr. J. Henry recently purchased from Mr. Wm. Newell the new building just east of the residence of the latter.

The old bridge floated down on Tuesday, 21st, completing an existence of more than five months. It was very good and substantial, but was seriously affected by a slight rising of the river and other natural causes.

Mrs. O'Heir, relict of the late Hugh O'Heir, has purchased the property recently owned by Mr. T. Hutchinson, consisting of about six acres, near Rice Lake, for $350. This will be her residence for some time.

A choice entertainment was given on Thursday evening, 26th ult., in the Grange Hall. The programme, which was well acted, consisted chiefly of comic songs, violin solos and negro dances. The evening not being favorable the audience was not large, though, from the nominal fee of fifteen cents a handsome sum was collected.

Our old public school building, which is yet handsome and serviceable, best known now as the Sunday school building, has undergone repairs creditable to the managers.

APRIL WEATHER NOTES.

After a severe winter, an early spring is generally expected, although in the present year it has been the reverse April, with a few days' exception of unusual heat, having been a cold, severe month from the 1st to the 19th, inclusive. Only on one morning, namely, the 8th, did the thermometer fall to the freezing point. From the 19th to the 28th we had a very hot spell, on the 23rd, at 3 p. m., reaching 83° in the shade, when again a north, cold wave set in, bearing out to the end of the month. Rain fell on seven days, to the depth of 2 7-100 inches. Snow fell on eight days, to the depth of 15 7-100 inches. The severest storm was on the 28th, from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., snow falling to the depth of 6 2-10 inches. The mean temperature of the month at sunrise was 35 14-30 degrees. Sea gulls made their first appearance on the 3rd, crows on the 7th, robins on the 15th, wild ducks on the 18th. Frogs were first heard on the 22nd. At sunrise during the month the wind has been in the different points the respective number of days, namely: south, 3 days; east, 9 days; north-east, 3 days; south-west 6 days; north-west, 3 days; south-east, 2 days; north, 2 days; west, 2 days.

Ploughing, seeding, and all kinds of farm work are progressing slowly, with the certainty of a late spring. Fall wheat has done well so far, but is now undergoing a severe ordeal owing to frosty nights and hot sun through the day.

HASTINGS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Excelsior Council, No. 184, Royal Templers of Temperance, held their regular monthly open meeting on Friday evening, in the Temperance Hall. There was a very large and appreciative audience present. Mr. F. H. Clark occupied the chair. Mrs. Coad presided at the organ. The glee class rendered several choruses in fine style. Miss Davis' essay on "Character," was of a high order, and made several of the young men wince more than once during the rendering. Rev. Mr. Lewis explained the working of the order, and urged those present (not already members) to sign the pledge. Miss Mary Morrison's song deserves special mention, the expression, "It was the best of the evening," was heard from many. The Councillor, Mr. Ward, is to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

A "Band of Hope" was organized on Saturday afternoon, in the Temperance Hall, under the auspices of the W. C. T. Union. Twenty-eight signed the pledge; they are to meet once every week. The committee of management is Mrs. John Wilson, Mrs. A. N. Clark and Miss Morton.

The roller skating rink was well patronized on Monday evening, and is likely to prove very popular.

The Methodist parsonage is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and when completed, will be an imposing structure.

A military concert will be held in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, the proceeds of which are to be expended in purchasing comforts for the boys from this section who are now doing service with the Midland Battalion in the Northwest. It is likely a large audience will be present.

ACCIDENT.

While Mr. W. McFarlane was assisting to take the stop-logs out of the dam, on Monday, the 26th ult., one of the supports gave away, striking him a severe blow on the arm, breaking it just below the elbow.

NEW LOCK GATE.

Mr. A. Ross, of Lindsay, is engaged with a gang of men framing timber for a new gate at the lower end of the locks.

HIGH WATER.

The water is still rising rapidly, and it is thought our new dam is not any too secure. The ice has not yet broken up in Clear Lake, and should a large quantity come down at once, it will carry away at least the top portion of the dam.

STEAMER FAIRY.

This neat little steamer is being thoroughly overhauled, and will be ready for work as soon as navigation opens. Under the management of Capt. Grylls, she will doubtless come in for a full share of the traffic between Lakefield and the back lakes this season.

THE "FREE CIRCUS AND FIGHT."

The correspondent of the Review for this place, in his account of "a free circus and fight," winds up by throwing a slur at our village constable, Mr. J. E. Kearney. If he has a horror of such proceedings why did he not call upon Mr. Kearney, who was at home in his own hotel, and knew nothing about the affair until it was over?

SCHOOL ELECTION.

An election was held on the 29th of April, to fill the vacancy on the School Board, caused by the resignation of Mr. Thomas Casement, who had left the place.

Mr. Wm. Abbott, sr., was nominated, and declared elected by acclamation, there being no other nominations.

PERSONAL.

We are pleased to notice that our friend and citizen, Mr. Wm. Finley, passed a most creditable examination at Queen's, Kingston, having carried off the Scholarship in Greek, worth $50, and First honors in Latin, in the first year's course.

Rev. Mr. Stevenson of Sunderland, occupied the pulpit of the C. P., church on Sunday last, and also officiates on next Sunday.

TESTIMONIAL.

A movement is on foot by some of our citizens, to procure a testimonial to present to Major Boulton, who was formerly reeve of this village, and now commanding the scouts with Gen. Middleton, as a token of their appreciation of his gallantry, at the battle of Fish Creek. Subscriptions will be received, and acknowledged by the Warden, Mr. R. C. Strickland, Dr. Bell, Messrs. Geo. Graham, John Dinwoodie, W. H. Casement.

LAKEFIELD CHEESE FACTORY.

Mr. W. H. Moore has now his Cheese Factory in operation. It is a fine large building, 30x70, two stories high. The manufacturing and curing rooms are on the ground floor. The building is a credit to the enterprise of the proprietors.

MUNICIPAL.

Council meets on Monday evening next, and the School Board, on Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

The Latest from Detroit.

Many Americans spend the summer months in Canada, and being close observers, and ever on the alert for the best of everything, it is not surprising the proprietors of that marvelous corn remedy. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, should be in receipt of numerous letters of enquiry from the other side of the line. Mrs. W. N. Strong, 71 Adams Ave., Detroit, had used Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor with the most satisfactory results, and March 30th, 1883, writes:—"Kindly give price per dozen, as we want to get some." Hundreds of similar letters support our contention that for a sure, safe, painless, and never disappointing remedy, Putnam's Corn Extractor stands without a rival. N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, propra.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov 17, 1884. 48-52t

PERSONAL.

Mr. Bruce Phillips now makes the responses at the central office of the telephone exchange.

Mr. A. E. Yelland, of Peterborough, has passed the Primary Examinations of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, of Ontario.

Mr. Greene, who has for some time been operator in Mr. Little's photographic studio, has taken a position in Mrs. Esterbrook's studio.

Mr. C. R. Brown, of Norwood, has successfully passed his first year's examination at the Ontario Agricultural College Examinations, Guelph.

The late Col. Kennedy carried life insurance to the amount of $22,000; of this, however, $3,000 was cancelled on his entering upon the Soudan expedition.

The Hayes Valley (California) Advertiser reports at length a banquet given to Mr. John Elder, formerly of this town, in token of the good will and respect of his fellow citizens, on the occasion of his departure on a visit to Scotland.

Mr. A. G. Compigne, of the printer's guild, on the eve of his return to England, was presented, by the members of Lansdowne Lodge of Sons of England, of which he was first president, with a complimentary address.

We understand that Messrs. Fair, Van Every & Co. have secured the services of Miss Semple to take charge of their millinery department. Miss Semple has been long engaged in the millinery business in Peterborough, and is thoroughly conversant with it. She has formed hosts of friends, whom she will be glad to see at her new place of business.

On Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jeffers took their final departure for London, where they will in future reside. Their absence will make a blank in the ranks of our most esteemed citizens, most successful church workers, and most prominent promoters of every good and moral movement. London is to be congratulated on the acquisition of two such estimable citizens.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. Bruce A. Ludgate, second son of Mr. John Ludgate, Ashburnham, has successfully passed the examinations prescribed for the third year's students of the Toronto School of Practical Science. Mr. Ludgate was first in all the subjects, and is consequently the gold medalist this year. We congratulate him on this high and creditable record, and hope that it is but an earnest of brilliant success in his chosen profession.

Just received, a full range of Ladies Jerseys. The improved cut with plaited back. See the line Turnbull is selling at $1.00.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

OR,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET BURT.

Author of "The Leaden Casket," "Thornicroft's Model," &c. &c.

MY DEAR CHILD:—I am ill, and I begin to see that I shall not be able to keep my appointment with you, but that it is much more likely that before the 15th of September I shall have set out on my long journey from which no traveler returns. I have made my will; I have left you all that I possess. I have done this because you are to me the living representative of my dear wife that was to have been. You are like her in face, form, and manner, and I think also that you are as good and sweet as she was. It pleases me to know that when I am gone, that one who resembles her so nearly will live in my old home, see the things which I gathered together for my pleasure and instruction, and, I hope, enjoy them as I have done. I wish you never at any time to part with any of the land I leave you, or any of the houses, or any of the pictures, engravings, or books, or china. I beg you not to discharge any of my old servants, unless grave misconduct on their part should make such a step absolutely necessary, and of this they are incapable. If you do part with any of them provide for them handsomely, and see that they are always safe from want.

"I entreat you to be a kind and indulgent mistress to men and women who have been treated more as friends than as servants. I wish you to take the surname of Clavering. You can guess whose name it was. If you ever marry, I make the condition that your husband takes my name, so that after all, a Clavering and a Kenrick may marry and live happily together in the houses which have seen such sorrow. All these things are stated, and properly provided for in my will; but I mean you will like to hear what I wish in a letter to yourself. I have heard a little about you lately dear child, from some one who knows Litchfield and its neighborhood well. He says young Merivale is paying you great attention. Should you become engaged I wish you every happiness. Should any difficulty arise on the score of your want of fortune, I exhort you on no account whatever to renew the affair when you become rich. His hesitation will prove him to be unworthy of you. Any man possessed of youth, health, and education can carve out a way to provide for the girl he loves, if only he loves her enough to work for her, and both love each other enough to bear a little privation. If he has in any way drawn back, give him up; and if he renew his suit when he hears your circumstances have changed for the better give him up still more. If you are content with half-heartedness, or are soft-hearted and take him, you will regret it all your life. I advise you to live in your London house at once, and not to go to Calderwater until next April. Take possession in Chester Square as soon as those slow folks the lawyers will permit you, and stay there quietly all the winter. I wish you to take lessons in music, drawing, painting, languages, or whatsoever you fancy, and to work really hard at whatever you decide to study. You may be a great proficient in these things already, but something remains for everyone to learn. I desire you to spend two hours daily in reading books likely to do you good, not poetry and not novels. Buy what you read; do not subscribe to libraries—that weakens the mind—but buy what you want, and take a pride in adding works to my library to which those that I bought will not feel ashamed. Ah! how I shall miss my books! Keep up such of my charities as deserve to be kept up, and as a rule, remember that it is better to know the people to whom you give your money, but that is not always feasible. Think kindly of me, and to please me keep things as much as possible in order in which I leave them. I shall like to picture you living in the dear old places, and to know that all is looking as it used to do. I do not know that this power is granted to us after death but it may be. Especially remember me on the day we met—the 15th of June. And now farewell. Always act up to what you think is right. This is the last letter I shall ever write. God bless you, child, and grant this be for your happiness—if it be not, it is at any rate the last mistake made by your friend,

"HUGH KENRICK."

Lucy and Aunt Esther were reading this letter for the hundredth time during the last four or five weeks. Lucy's eyes were full of tears. Aunt Esther did not see them.

She said as she always said when she read it: "What very odd ideas the poor dear gentleman had," and then, as Lucy did not make any reply, she added, "But then, you see, if he had been like all the rest of the world he would not have left what he had to you."

"What kind ideas he had!" said Lucy, I never thought of it before; but do you see why he tells me to take lessons and read so much?"

"To improve your mind, my love," replied Aunt Esther, sententiously.

"Partly, no doubt, but more for the sake of preventing my wasting time in useless thoughts. Don't you see that he had heard of what was likely to happen at Litchfield, and that he wanted me to work hard that I might forget it the sooner? He tells me to think kindly on him the 15th of June. I think most kindly of him every hour of my life."

"And Lucy," said Aunt Esther, coming nearer to her and watching her very closely, "what about Mr. Merivale? I hope you are forgetting him."

Lucy shook her head.

"Are you happy, dear?"

"Not about that yet. Don't let us talk of it."

Aunt Esther had known that she could receive no other answer. She saw how very unhappy the poor child was and how bravely she struggled to be herself again.

Lucy had seen her future home, and many a time she fingered her own little collection of books, and hoped the books in Chester Square would not treat them with too great contempt. She had seen Mr. Kenrick's books. They were in a great big library, in stately bookcases which hid every bit of the walls, and shut in the wire-latticed doors. They were bound in Russian leather, or materials which the most alarming housekeeper told her were known as mottled calf and tree calf or velum—very stiff, solid, and untakedownable they looked. "Never mind," said Lucy, when she thought of them, "I'll read you most faithfully two hours daily, and I'll try to buy you some companions likely to be agreeable to you."

So much for the books; but when she thought of Mrs. Lishman, the housekeeper, and Mr. Sargill, the butler, she was terrified, for she did not see how by any effort of mind or will she could make herself acceptable to them. Both were old, dressed as stiffly and as handsomely as the books; both were full of old fashioned observances, and both evidently had their opinions fully formed on every subject.

Then came the departure from Highgate, and the last walk around the little garden, three times as big as the drawing-room, where the flowers would not grow properly. Lucy had a conservatory in Chester Square, which the gardener filled weekly with flowers, whose bright blossoms were crushed against the glass that the passers-by might see what a blaze of flowers there was in that house—a wealth of which those living within were for the most part unaware—for he only treated them to a back prospect.

CHAPTER IV.

At first Lucy's life in Chester Square was rather trying. She was so afraid of the servants that the chief aim of her existence was to try to make them not notice that she was in the house; but there were so many of them, and the furniture was so old fashioned and stately, her feet sank so deep in the soft carpets, the rooms were so large and strange to her, that she feared she should never feel at home there. Then, too, she could not read her grave, well-bound books which were to do her so much good, without finding her attention wander, nor could she find a taste for china, or think her engravings anything but dull, or her pictures anything but dismal and dingy! People came sometimes and looked at them most reverently; the housekeeper, too, told her they were enormously valuable, and every time she was told so she went and looked at them again, fervently wishing that she could see their beauty. There was a cabinet of antique jewelry and this came more within the range of Lucy's comprehension. One day she was dull, for Aunt Esther had gone to pay the Mostyn's a short visit, and she herself had been dutifully reading for an hour or two in the library and was tired. She opened this cabinet, and while wondering at the strangeness and beauty of some of the necklaces and bracelets, began to put on one after the other, until at last she made herself look more like an Indian idol than anything else. She soon forgot what she was doing, and ceased to take any interest in the contents of her cabinet, while her thoughts turned to Hazelwood and all that happened there. Then she thought of the poor girl whose name she had taken, and whose place she seemed to fill, and wondered if she had ever been in this room, and had ever decked herself out in these jewels, and if Mr. Kenrick, whose portrait when a young man was hanging on the wall above her, had stood by admiring her, and telling her how beautiful she looked and how dearly he loved her! Her portrait, too, was there by Sir Thomas Lawrence, and many an hour Lucy spent in looking at it. She, still decked in her jewels was earnestly looking at it now when the door opened quietly, and Mrs. Lishman came in. Lucy blushed; she was ashamed that the stiff and formidable Mrs. Lishman should see her thus bedizened with beads and bracelets, and hastily began to remove them, looking anxiously at Mrs. Lishman's face the while, to see if that good woman despised her frivolity.

"I came to see if you wanted anything, Miss Clavering. It is rather lonely for you." There was kindness in her tone, and kindness in her eyes. They were grey and honest, but usually very cold-looking. Her face, though strongly marked, was not unpleasing. Her hair was twisted into tight, uncompromising little knots, and then skewered or pinned on each temple. These knots just appeared beyond her widow-like plain cap of softly pleated net. Mrs. Lishman always wore a black silk dress and a net handkerchief fastened with a diamond pin which Mr. Kenrick had given her; but whenever this pin was lost, everyone in the house, from the Butler, whose figure did not lend itself readily to stooping, to the kitchen-maid, searched high and low until it was found.

"Thank you for thinking of me; I am rather dull," said Lucy gratefully. "I was looking at that picture;" and still she stripped off her adornments one by one, hoping all the time that Mrs. Lishman had not seen them.

"That picture is the very 'moral' of you, Miss Clavering."

"You know, Mrs. Lishman, that is why Mr. Kenrick left this house to me. Do you mind his having left his property to me?" asked Lucy, humbly.

"That depends," replied Mrs. Lishman guardedly. "I think not; but I'll see how things go on before I pronounce a judgment."

"Mrs. Lishman, Mr. Kenrick told me he wished me to keep everything as he had it. You will help me to obey him won't you?"

"Naturally, Miss Clavering, I shall see to that," said Mrs. Lishman, and her state of mind was indecipherable.

"If you have any spare time, Mrs. Lishman, I wish you would go through the house with me and tell me a little about Mr. Kenrick—where he used to sit, I mean, what he did, and as much as you can about him."

"There is not much to tell about him, Miss. He was, so to speak, a very inward-minded gentleman."

"I thought he talked very openly when I saw him."

"He took to you, you see, Miss, along of the likeness. It was not his way to strike up with strangers readily, I can assure you of that."

Mrs. Lishman took Lucy into all the rooms, and after about an hour spent in this way she condescended to say, "So far as I can see at present, Miss Clavering, I think you and I might do very well together."

"I am so glad to hear you say that!" cried Lucy—and truly this semi-gracious speech did make her very happy. The last room they entered was a little sitting-room upstairs in which Lucy often spent an hour or two.

"I often see you here, Miss Clavering," said Mrs. Lishman. "It was furnished to be young Mrs. Kenrick's boudoir, I believe. It was before my time, of course, but I have heard all about it."

"But," said Lucy, "was the wedding so near? I never knew that!"

"Mrs. Hugh Kenrick, ma'am, as was to have been, died most unfortunately just a short fortnight before her wedding-day."

"How very dreadful!"

"Yes, it was a pity! Not that I am one that holds much with marrying; but then this was a wedding as had a right to be, for they both loved each other like—like nothing I can think of strong enough to compare them to," said Mrs. Lishman.—"There was no looking to anything but their love and respect for each other in either of them. That made him have a good right to fret for her when she was taken."

How Mrs. Lishman's words struck home! Lucy knew that she had "no right" to fret for Robert Merivale, for his love for her was nothing like so strong as his love for money and position. Nevertheless her heart knew its own bitterness!

Just at this moment a card was brought to Lucy. Mrs. Lishman watched her face as she read the name on it, and was sure it was the name of some one whom she did not wish to see. "Sir Richard Merivale." Lucy looked at the man who brought it, as if to see whether any way of escape remained open to her.

"The gentleman is in the library, madam," said he. "He told me to say that he desired to see you on a matter of pressing importance."

Her impulse was to refuse to see him, but on second thoughts she went. Sir Richard Merivale was all but a stranger to her. A grey-haired, brisk little man of sixty stood in the library, hat in hand.—"I must apologise, madam, for this intrusion, but it was my duty to come, and I came, and I hope before we part you will see that I did right."

Lucy bowed; she felt that she could not speak.

"Upon my word, young lady, you are very pleasantly situated here. Very! I like these Chester Square houses particularly; I always did. Well, I had better tell you why I came—business first, and pleasure after. It has come to my knowledge that my nephew, Robert Merivale, was very much attached to you, and, honestly speaking, I don't wonder at it; but that he was kept back from proposing to you by a strong feeling that I should not approve of such a step. I knew nothing about it at the time, or I could easily have set that right, indeed I should not have disliked the task of making his offer for him. He, however, said nothing to me, but let you go away without securing you. Nay, more, he says he wrote to tell you how fond he was of you, but that he had a Turk of an uncle, who insisted on his marrying some lady of good position in the county. He ought to have spoken to me; he never did. I call that carrying respect and duty, and that kind of thing, to fanaticism; but he has suffered well for it! I did not know what was going wrong, but he became more and more dismal every day, and at last the whole thing came out, and he and I laid our heads together, and thought if I came and ate humble-pie for a thing, by the way, which was no fault of mine, for your name was never mentioned between us, you would forgive him and take him into favor again. Now will you?"

All Lucy's attempts to interrupt this long speech had been cut short; but now he was looking steadily at her and waiting for an answer. "Come, now, say you will forgive him. He is as fond of you as a man can be; he always was, and he is wretchedly unhappy!"

"I am very sorry he is unhappy," began Lucy.

"I was sure you would be—I told him so."

"Yes, but I do not wish to ever see him again. I must refuse to do that."

"What! Piqued! But have I not just told you that it is my fault? He misunderstood my wishes; he paid too great respect to them. I really think you ought to forgive him."

"You may say that I forgive him entirely. In fact I do not know that I have any right to be angry with him."

"Oh, yes, you have. He had no right to go so far and then turn back. Now do tell me one thing—had you any liking for him?"

Lucy blushed crimson. It cost her a struggle, but she said "I liked him very much indeed."

"I admire your sincerity; then tell me whether if he had offered at that time, you would have accepted him?"

"Sir Richard, it is of no use to talk of this now! He did not offer to me. He told me then that he could not give up his chances of advancement for my sake. He took his line then, and I, of course, accepted it. Nothing could ever make me feel for him now as I did before."

"Not when you hear what I tell you?"

"No, not when I hear what you tell me."

"I think that if you saw him—if you heard his justification from his own lips——"

"I have his letter. I never could like him again after reading that. I must ask you to say no more on this subject. My mind is made up. Nothing can change me."

"He really was a most confounded fool!" said Sir Richard, heartily. "He wrote that letter without consulting me. People call me a cross old curmudgeon; but I am certain of one thing, and that is that I can take a generous view far more quickly than they can. Well, but child, don't be so very firm and decided. People stiffen themselves up and think it very grand and fine to be unforgiving, when a little kindness and generosity would be for their own happiness too."

"I could never be happy with anyone I did not respect, and I do not respect him."

"If you saw him, you might believe him, when you do not believe me."

"I do believe you, but you have said nothing to make me alter my opinion of the past. It is past—leave it—let us say no more about it."

"But I want you to be my niece," pleaded Sir Richard. "You will be coming down to Litchfield some day soon, won't you?"

"Yes, but you must excuse me if I decline to see your nephew when I am there."

"Oh, no, now don't be so hard! It is not your real nature to be so. I can see that."

This was true. Lucy's heart was pleading Sir Richard's cause with all its might She found the battle a very hard one.

"You will be happier if you do as I ask you," said he.

"Oh! please Sir Richard, leave me," cried poor Lucy, piteously. "You must not say any more—indeed I will never see him again."

Baby Kissing.

If there is any subject on top of God's green earth, says the Hancock Courier, utterly unkissable and generally repugnant to a man of healthy sentiment, it is somebody else's baby. Indecisive men have been known to yield to the solicitations of fond mothers and actually submit to the indignity of having a new baby thrust under their nostrils, but these men have always repented and usually gone on sprees just to reassert their independence and recover their self-respect. Men who would walk up to a bomb-shell and spit on the sputtering fuse will quail and cower in abject terror before the muzzle of a baby, even when assured that it is not loaded. Some men don't mind having babies pointed at them, but these are the sort of men who blow down gun barrels and monkey with buzz saws and do almost any foolish thing. It is a well known fact that a man who will knowingly kiss a baby is generally addicted to chenile and worsted work and gossip, and there is a well grounded suspicion that he will steal sheep. This baby kissing tends to make hypocrites of good-natured men, and there ought to be a crusade against the pernicious practice indulged in by the perpetrators of babies and frequently abetted by the proud instigators of those inchoate, howling contrivances, of recklessly pointing them at folks.

A grave and dignified D. D., after listening to the recitation of the catechism by a class of children, was asked to make a few remarks to them. Whereupon he rose and said: "I desire, my young friends, to express an unqualified approbation of this exercise. I regard the catechism as the most admirable epitome of religious belief extant." The superintendent pulled his sleeve and asked him to explain the word epitome, which he elucidated as follows: "By epitome, children, I mean—that is—it is synonymous with synopsis!"

Or you gooseberries know how you prickle so?
If not—then you ought to know.

Do you hide from us, over, on purpose,
Amid deep in the flowers, keep still?
Or is it quite acostly [illegible] pleasant
When all peasant and child we fill?

And the bumble-bees—how can you bear them?
Well, sometimes I think it is true
They have their sharp stings for us people
And only their velvet for you.

And how do you berries, I wonder,
Feel, curled on a beautiful dish,
All covered with sugar? That strikes us
As just what a berry would wish.

It's a sort of reward, I am thinking,
That every good berry should merit;
And yet, I'm not sure we should like it,
To be—so delicious to eat?

—Beeda Hill in St. Nicholas for August

"My dear Polly, I am surprised at your taste in wearing another woman's hair on your head," said Mr. Smith to his wife. "My dearest Joe, I am equally astonished that you persist in wearing another sheep's wool on your back."

A train on the Great Northern Railway ran into a cow the other day. It didn't hurt the cow, but it threw the engine off the line. People accustomed to the beefsteak furnished in the restaurants express much surprise at the slight damage done to the train.

"No," said the sad-eyed man, "I never press a young woman to play upon the piano. I tried it once to my sorrow." "Why, what followed?" asked a half-dozen eager voices. "She played," replied the sad-eyed man. "I shall never forget the lesson I learned that day."

Yes, my son, advise all your friends not to marry money. When you have succeeded in getting them all married for love, you can look about you at your leisure and then decide upon what particular girl with money you will lavish your love

RUSSIAN BRAG.

Russian naval officers are boasting, as they did at the outbreak of the Crimean war, of what great things they were going to do when they met the allied fleet. They certainly did a wonderful thing. In the most cowardly manner they deserted their ships and sank them in Sebastopol harbor without ever firing a shot. History may repeat itself when the British fleet again enters the Black Sea.

The "constantly tired-out" feeling so often experienced is the result of impoverished blood and consequent enfeebled vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla feeds and enriches the blood, increases the appetite, and promotes digestion of the food and assimilation of its strengthening qualities. The system being thus invigorated, the feeling rapidly changes to a grateful sense of strength and energy.

CARE FOR THOSE WHO CARE FOR US.

It is to be hoped the Minister of Militia will immediately make some provision for the maintenance of the widows and orphaned children of those brave men who have fallen in the defence of their country in the North-West. These poor women and children are now the wards of the country, and they should not be allowed to suffer in want and misery.

The proper channel for the escape from the system of impurities which would, if they remained, poison the blood, is through the bowels. When this outlet is obstructed it may be discouraged with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, a remedy which regulates the system, invigorates digestion, and is pure and safe as well as effective. It cures all diseases arising from impure blood.

THE PRINCE OF WALES' VISIT TO ROME.

The English Government has sent a secret agent to sound the Vatican as to the Pope's willingness to give the Prince of Wales audience. The Prince would have a double object in going. First, to arrive at an understanding with the Vatican in regard to the Irish bishops and, second, to persuade Italy to form an alliance with England.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at Taylor & McDonald's.

ECONOMY IS WEALTH.

A farmer and his wife went into a dentist's. "How much do you charge for fillin' teeth?" asked the farmer.

"From two to five dollars."

"An' for pullin'?"

"Fifty cents."

"Marlar," he said, turning to his wife, "you'd better get it pulled."

WOULD HAVE TO ASK HIM TO WAIT.

Mother (alarmed): "My little boy has swallowed a gold dollar. What shall I do?"

Physician: "There is no cause for alarm, madam, I assure you. Such things often occur. Give him an emetic and he will be all right in a short time."

Mother (her fears allayed): "And how much am I to pay you, doctor?"

Physician: "One dollar, please."

Mother (searching her purse): "Well, I am afraid, doctor, that I shall have to—er—ask you to wait a little while for the money."

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common experience, especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease. Prolonged cold weather, want of out-door life and sunshine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy, the use of WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-13t

HIS METHOD OF EATING HASH.

"Do you eat hash with a fork?" asked the landlady of her new boarder.

"No, ma'am," he responded kindly.

"Ah, you eat it with a knife, then?" with some evidence of disapproval.

"No, ma'am," he repeated more timidly than before.

"Indeed! Pray, may I ask how you do eat it?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"How?"

"With fear and trembling, ma'am."

He left the same day.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City

MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT.

"Now, my dear," said Mrs. Henpeck, who was reading a magazine, "what do you think of this?"

"What do I think of what?" growled Mr. Henpeck.

"My magazine says that ten single men die of cholera to one married man. Now, what do you think of that, Mr. Growler?"

"Oh, that's because married men take so much more exercise than single men."

"What exercise do you take, Mr. Henpeck, that a single man doesn't take, I'd like to know?"

"Carrying a colicky baby four hours every night."

A PRECOCIOUS PUNSTER.

A little boy, six years old, and a little girl, eight, were looking at the clouds one beautiful summer evening, watching their fantastic shapes, when the boy exclaimed, "Oh, Minnie, I see a dog in the sky." "Well, Willie," replied the sister, "it must be a sky terrier."

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other compounds are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs. Allowed to fasten itself upon the delicate organs, the ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unnoticed exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal disease. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1866 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and grew after a time so reduced as to be confined to bed. My friends gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and effected in me the most wonderful cure. I have since been in good health, and have enjoyed the best of health. I am now 72 years old, hale and hearty, and am confident you owe your life to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. I speak from knowledge, for I have used it in my family, and have given it to my children when they were sick, and it has never failed to cure them. I have also given it to my grandchildren, and it has done them good. I have recommended it to my neighbors, and they have used it with the same results. I have been a member of the Methodist Church for more than forty years, and am well known in this community. I am willing that you should make any use of this letter you may see fit."

HORACE FARNSWORTH.

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and in an hour's time from first dose the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude?" Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY,

139 West 126th St., New York, May 31, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 31, 1882. A. J. BLAKE."

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WARNER."

Byhalia, Miss., April 8, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. Following as I do that fell destroyer, I should long since have died from lung trouble. T. BRADDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

Bay of Quinte Conference

The second annual session of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist Church, will be held in the Brown street church Port Hope, beginning on Thursday, June 4th, at 10 a. m.

The Golden Lion.

Great activity in the mantle and dressmaking department. FAIR, VANEVERY & Co. are showing a large assortment of handsome materials, from which rich and elegant Mantles and Dresses are being turned out daily.

For our Defenders.

On Friday morning there was shipped by express to the "seat of war," in the Northwest, a lot of havelocks and mosquito masks for the use of G Company, Midland Battalion. They were prepared by the young ladies of the George street Methodist church. When our brave volunteers return, seeking some one worthy to be a soldier's bride, they will know right well where to look.

Presbyterian Review.

We had the pleasure of a call on Monday from Rev. W. Christie, M.A., representing the Presbyterian Review, a new connexional organ, which is meeting with great success. The last issue of the Review was only the eleventh, yet its subscription list has reached 5,000. It is an excellently printed, well-edited and well-written connexional journal, and an inspection of its pages reveals the secret of its success. Published in Toronto at $1.00 per year. Address, Geo. H. Robinson, P.O. 2567.

The Deaf and Dumb.

Through the courtesy of Mr. R. Matheson, Superintendent of the Ontario Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Belleville, we are in receipt of the fourteenth annual report. The report contains evidence of good work being done for these unfortunates. Of the total number of pupils received into the institution since its opening, Peterborough county has contributed twelve, ten males and two females. There are three pupils from this county this year, one each from Peterborough, Lakefield and Hiawatha.

Successful Students

The following Peterborough students have passed the Easter term examinations at University College, Toronto:—W. Sanderson, fourth year, Mathematics and Physics; J. D. Graham, third year, Mathematics; J. A. Fife, third year, Mineralogy and Geology. Mr. A. F. Chamberlain, of the third year, made a most creditable capture of the laurels. He took prizes in English, Chemistry and Mineralogy and Geology, and stood well to the front in Italian and German. We congratulate him heartily. He is a credit to the teaching of the Collegiate Institute, where the ground work was laid.

Unfortunate Port Hope.

We are sorry to say that the Y. M. C. A. rooms have been closed in this wicked hamlet. It's a shame that a town of the size of Port Hope, and so much in need of Christianizing influences should allow such an institution to die of financial starvation. Port Hope's achievements, when she has to depend on her own enterprise and resources, are not much to boast of. Even the two most creditable buildings in her limits are due to extrinsic circumstances, For the new post office, Port Hope is indebted to the favour of an indulgent government; and she owes her Opera House to Peterborough capital and enterprise.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

Life, Love and Death.

There were registered with the town clerk during the month of April, five births, seven marriages and seven deaths.

A Fire.

On Saturday morning, the bakeshop of Mr. P. McCabe, Rink Street, took fire and was burned to the ground before the engine could be got to the spot. The building was a frame one and insured for $450 and the machinery for $35.

Closing Concert.

The final entertainment of the season, under the auspices of the St. Luke's Temperance Society will be held on Monday next, the 11th of May, at 8 p.m. An excellent programme has been provided. The public are cordially invited to attend. Admission, ten cents.

Church Parade.

On Sunday afternoon, about fifty men of No's. 1 and 3 Companies, of the 57th Battalion, mustered for church parade. They marched to St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, where Rev. Mr. McLeod, Toronto, preached. The men were accompanied by Major Bell, Capt. Edwards, Lieut. Lee, and Lieutenant Snyder.

St. Andrew's Church.

The venerable structure at the head of Brock street, whose roof has sheltered so many worshippers for so many years, has disappeared. The contractors for the rebuilding of St. Andrew's Church have levelled its walls, and are rapidly preparing for the construction of the new church.

Changed Hands.

Mr. James Little has sold his photographic gallery and business to Messrs. Hammel & Ball, of Millbrook, who took possession on Tuesday. During Mr. Little's five years business experience in Peterborough, he has won hosts of both business and personal friends. We are sorry to lose so good a citizen, and hope that Mr. Little's career in the Northwest, whither he is going, may know nothing but prosperity.

Before Insuring Your Life

see the new non-forfeiture plan of The British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, whereby failure to pay your renewal premiums at any time does not cancel your policy, but keeps it in force so long as Reserve held pays for extension—one of the most just and equitable systems ever adopted in Life Insurance. Ask for this plan to be explained by the General Agent, E. E. HENDERSON, Peterborough.

"Peculiar People."

That celebrated platform orator, John B. Gough, will deliver his lecture on "Peculiar People," in George street Methodist church, on Monday evening, May 18th. A plan of the church may be seen at Mr. W. J. Mason's, where seats may be secured—absolutely. Admission 50 cents. Tickets at A. L. Davis & Co's, Johnston Carey's, John Braden's and T. W. Robinson's, (Metropolitan Grocery). It is unnecessary to say one word of praise of Gough's wonderful oratory.

"Dollar Boy."

Mr. W. M. Fair, Cavan, always on the lookout for a tidy bit of horse-flesh, has found out what he is after. He has purchased, from Mr. Beith, of Bowmanville, the imported Clyde stallion, "Dollar Boy." This fine animal is a dark brown, and was bred by Mr. Drysdale, of Lorn's Hill, Scotland, by Allos, by Clackmannan. He was sired by Farmer's Fancy; dam, Drysdale's mare, held to be the best mare in that part of Scotland. "Dollar Boy" will be moved through Peterborough and will be at Cavanagh's Hotel on Wednesdays.

Roller Rink Carnival.

The second and most brilliant, yet, of a series of Masquerade Carnivals, will be held in the Water Street Roller Skating Rink, on Friday, May 15th. Preparations on a grander scale than heretofore attempted are being made for the occasion. It is promised to be something new, unique and unrivalled. Handsome prizes will be given for the best costumes. The public will enjoy a rare treat by attending this carnival. There is no danger of overcrowding, as there will be extra seating accommodation for all that may come. Fire Brigade Band in attendance. Skates will be furnished free to those in costume. The rink will be free to ladies wishing to practise the day before and the day of the carnival. Admission 25 cents; children 15 cents.

Peterborough's Record.

The assessors have completed their returns, and we are indebted to the town clerk's office for the following interesting comparative table:

	1885.	1884.	Dr.

Practical Preaching.

Rev. J. E. Starr, well-known in Peterborough, now of Berkley-street Church, Toronto, gave a pointed practical rebuke to those of his congregation whose anxiety to get out of church led them to rather indecorously mix up the donning of their overcoats and the benediction. Last Sunday evening, while the people were standing waiting for the benediction to be pronounced, Rev. Mr. Starr made a sign to the sexton to hand him his overcoat. When it was given to him he put it on, turning the collar up all round. Shrugging up his shoulders until his ears were hidden from view, he inquired if he wasn't a nice-looking object. While his auditors stood gazing in open-mouthed astonishment, and wondering whether their pastor had suddenly taken leave of his senses, the latter proceeded to explain. He said that every Sunday night during the winter he had observed certain male members of his congregation make a grab for their overcoats and drag them on while the benediction was being pronounced. He thought he would show these persons what they looked like as viewed from the pulpit. Doubtless the pastor's rebuke will have the desired effect, if the remembrance of it does not wear off before the time for overcoats gets round again.

The large display of Hats, Bonnets, Plumes, Artificials, Ribbons, Parasols, Sunshades, etc., in FAIR, VANEVERY & Co's establishment excites the admiration of every beholder, and are selling rapidly.

Providing For Our Protectors.

Supplementary Supplies for Company "G."

While the Midland Battalion has been choking in irksome inactivity on a Saskatchewan sand bar, willing and ready to meet the enemy, and lacking many little comforts and necessaries, they would be cheered if they knew that loyal hearts and willing hands were feeling for them and working to aid them by adding to their comfort. On Saturday afternoon, a number of citizens assembled in the Council Chamber to consider the matter of providing supplementary supplies not included in the war regulations, for the members of, at least, G Company. Rev. Mr Clementi occupied the chair and delivered a stirring address, and complimented the volunteers on the alacrity with which they responded to the call of duty and mustered at the post of danger. The meeting decided to take action to secure and forward the needed supplies, and the following committee of ladies was charged with the work:—Mrs. R. P. Boucher, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. G. Baries, Mrs. H. C. Clementi, Mrs. Weller, Mrs. Halliday, Mrs. Pigeon, Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. J. Burnham, Mrs. H. C. Rogers, Mrs. Hamilton, (Hon. Robert.), Mrs. M. Clementi, Mrs. Geo. A. Cox, Mrs. Brownscombe, Mrs. W. J. Greer, Mrs. A. L. Davis, Mrs. E. Phelan, Mrs. J. O'Sullivan, Mrs. Cossin, Mrs. J. Hackett, Mrs. Robert Nicholls, Mrs R. W. Bell, Mrs. John Carnegie, Mrs. J. McClelland, Mrs. J. Stratton, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. J. McKee, Mrs. Walton, Mrs. Hilliard Mrs. Dumble, Mrs. Fife, Mrs. R. Kincaid, Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. E. B. Edwards, Mrs. Innis, Mrs. Hazlitt, Mrs. Mackerras, Mrs. J. F. Dennistoun, Mrs. A. Smith, and Mrs. Fairbairn.

For scarce and desirable goods such as Cashmere Prints, Madras Muslins, Black Lawns, Darned Nets, look for them at Turnbull's.

To Dairymen.

Fair, VanEvery & Co., have received a large supply of "Cheese Cloth" at a price to make it an object to all cheese makers.

Gone for Five Years.

Mr. H. Nesbitt, jailor, took the young man Wright, sentenced to five years for tampering with the mails, to Kingston Penitentiary last week.

Shipment of Horses.

On Tuesday, Mr. T. Cavanagh sent out of town, sixteen splendid horses, bought by him for a party in New Jersey. They were taken to Port Hope and shipped by boat.

Keene.

We regret to state that owing to our correspondent, Dr. Massie, being prostrated with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, our usual readable budget of Keene news is lacking.

New G. T. R. Time Table.

A new time-table came into effect on Monday on the main line of the G. T. R. The trains going east are now due at Port Hope at 9:55 and 10:40 a. m., and 6, 8:20, and 10:-17 p. m. Those going west are due at 6:25 and 7:45 a. m., and 2:53 and 8:20 p. m.

Come to Hazel Brae.

All ladies of the town interested in the work and the success of Hazel Brae Home are requested to meet at the Home on Thursday, the 14th of May, at 3 o'clock, p.m. The ladies of the Sewing Society of the Home are requested to make special efforts to be present.

Sale of Horses.

Mr. W. M. Fair, of Millbrook, is fortunate in his horses. He has sold his team of black mares for $800, and his "John Anderson" took first prize at Millbrook spring show this week, in competition with imported horses. Mr. Fair has just reason to be proud of the "John Anderson" colt. Mr. Fair has also purchased the fine, thorough-bred filly, "Jersey Lilly," from Drusley of Darlington.

Obituary

In the death of W. Bell, M. D., the town loses one of its best known and respected elder citizens. He came to Canada from Cumberland England, and spent the remainder of his life in this country, excepting ten years passed in the study and practice of his profession in England. Returning to Peterborough he followed various callings till 1866, when he entered the drug business, from which he retired about ten years ago. He enjoyed public respect to a high degree, and died after a brief illness. He was in his 79th year. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon

Otonabee Mills.

These mills, under the vigorous management of Mr. H. A. Mulhern, are now in complete running order, having been furnished with the machinery for the full roller process, with all the latest improvements. Mr. Mulhern has had an extensive experience, and this fact added to a thoroughly equipped mill, warrants him in guaranteeing satisfaction to all customers. The best grades of family and baker's flour constantly in stock, and orders filled with promptness. Orders left at Rush & Elliot's, W. J. Morrow & Co's. or Morgan's drug store, will be forwarded by telephone. Farmers receive special attention, and the highest cash price is paid for wheat and oats.

The Raw Cutting Winds

Of winter bring to the surface every latent pain. It is one of the strangest things associated with our physical well being that the very air, without which we could not exist, is heavily laden with the germs of disease. Rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, and other complaints of a similar character hold revel at this season of the year amongst human nerves and human muscles. There was a time when fortitude alone could make life tolerable, but now with the advent of powerful, penetrating and nerve soothing remedies pain becomes a thing of a moment. The best, the most powerful and most certain pain cure is Polson's NERVILINE. Nothing equals Nerviline for penetrating power. Nerviline is beyond comparison the grandest discovery for the relief of pain offered to the public. Druggists sell a sample bottle for 10 cents; large bottles only 25 cents at any drug store.

The Late Col. Kennedy.

A cablegram received by the Governor-General on Sunday, conveys the sad news of the death of Col. Kennedy, who went to Egypt in command of the Canadian contingent. He arrived in London on his way home with 80 voyageurs, suffering from an attack of small pox, contracted at Suakim, from which he died. Col. Kennedy was a native of Peterborough, and well known here. He was a law student in the office of Mr. Dumble, and a member of the town council for six years. His military spirit, which has indirectly led to his death was inborn. His connection with the Canadian volunteers dates from the time of their organization. He served in the time of the Fenian raid, and was at one time Adjutant of the 57th. In 1870 he joined the Red River expedition. He did not return with it but remained in Winnipeg, where he rose to important public positions. He was Registrar of Winnipeg and a member of the Northwest Council. He organized the Winnipeg Field Battery and the 90th Battalion In the latter, two of his sons are now serving. Col. Kennedy was a popular and greatly respected man, both in civil and military circles, and the sad ending of his active career will create sorrow and sympathy in many a heart. He leaves a wife and a large family to mourn his loss.

AN INTERESTING EPISODE

In a Sunday School Entertainment.

On Friday evening, the officials of the Charlotte Street Sunday School, gave the pupils the annual entertainment, and the occasion was taken advantage of, to formally recognize the departure, for London, of Mr. Jeffers, who has, for nine years, with the most satisfactory efficiency, filled the position of Superintendent.

About two hundred and fifty pupils were treated to refreshments in the Sunday School rooms, and at eight o'clock they assembled in the body of the church, together with a large portion of the congregation and a large number of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers' personal friends. Mev. Mr. Manning, pastor occupied the chair, and Rev. Mr. Tovell offered prayers, after which an interesting programme was entered upon.

The first number was a very pleasing recitation by Miss Flora Maddea, followed by a solo song "Lights of, the City," by Miss Stevens, who sang the song very sweetly. A recitation by Miss Clara Kingdon succeeded, and also a dialogue spoken by seven little girls. Mrs. Chambers then sang in her usual excellent manner "The Better Land."

THE EVENT OF THE EVENING.

Miss Emma Morrow and Master Willie Hamilton then came forward to the platform and the latter, read the following address, the former at the proper moment unveiling the clock mentioned therein:

Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, M. A.:

DEAR SUPERINTENDENT AND FRIEND,—We, the teachers, officers, and pupils of the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School deeply regret that your duties call you to leave Peterborough, and before you go we wish to thank you most sincerely for the kindly Christian interest you have shown in our welfare, during the nine years you have been our Superintendent. Throughout this period your untiring and earnest devotion to your duties, have not only resulted in implanting in our hearts many Christian truths and holy lessons, whose importance eternity can alone unfold; but the pleasant smile and cheery words that have marked your ever-genial greeting, your affectionate anxiety for our good, have awakened a personal affection too deep for words to express.

It has been a source of pleasure to us to witness the voluntary consecration of your literary talents to the work of training the young for Christ, and we cannot repay the devotion thus shown by you, except by striving to remember and live the sacred lessons you have taught us, and by giving you our prayers for the day-by-day and ultimate triumph of the Truth you hold so dear and do so much to spread.

We regret to have you go from us, because the town loses an estimable and respected citizen, the Sunday School an earnest, cheerful, faithful, and successful worker; the Church a member devoted to her every interest, whose daily life reflects the glow of a heart, warm with the presence of a sincere and earnest piety; because every good work, every moral movement, will miss a zealous advocate and persevering promoter; and finally because we shall lose not only a beloved personal friend, for such we feel you are to us, but also a dear spiritual monitor and guide.

As a slight evidence of our love esteem and gratitude, we beg you to accept this clock, and as it marks the passing time, we hope by our lives to give you reason to feel that the good seed you have sown is hourly ripening in our hearts into good deeds.

Wishing you and Mrs. Jeffers all worldly and spiritual prosperity we say good-bye, with heavy hearts but cheered by the hope of a happy re-union when God shall call the workers in his vineyard to his everlasting rest.

Signed on behalf of the officers, teachers and pupils of the Sunday School,

A. L. DAVIS, Superintendent.

Mr. Jeffers in replying seemed to be too greatly moved to speak freely. He returned his thanks to the pupils on Mrs. Jeffers' behalf and his own and said it did not need this testimonial to recall all the goodness and kindness he had experienced at the hands of his late pupils. He could not in his humility appropriate all the expressions of the flattering address just read. He had always felt warmly and kindly toward the children of the school. He and Mrs. Jeffers had expected to spend their lives in Peterborough, but circumstances had changed and he had deemed it best to make the arrangements for removal that he had made. They both knew and felt that they went from Peterborough with the best wishes, prayers, and sympathies both of the children of the Sunday School, and of the congregation. Even in their new home there would be presented many reminders of Charlotte street and Peterborough. During a visit to London he had been cheered by meeting former members of his Sunday School, which mitigated the loneliness he felt, as a stranger in a strange city. He gave the children some wholesome advice in reference to staying at home contentedly and cheerfully fulfilling the duties that home presented them. He said that both himself and Mrs. Jeffers had learned more in connection with Sunday School work than they had taught and they felt stronger to go forth in the world to do God's work. It was sadness to part but he detected on young faces the smile of hope that there would be a meeting and reunion in a better world.

Rev. Mr. Tovell made a feeling little speech complimenting Mr. Jeffers and enlarging upon the appropriateness of the gift made.

Mr. Geo. A. Cox could say that he sincerely regretted the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers. Mr. Jeffers was one of his warmest and most intimate friends and it was a great test to his self-denial to advise Mr. Jeffers to accept a position that, though materially bettering his worldly position, yet took him and his wife from Peterborough. They would both be missed in the home circles and church circles.

After remarks by Mr. W. A. Morrow and Mr. Cumming, Mr. Jeffers requested the children to sing one or two hymns, and asked them to give the same support they had accorded him to his successor, Mr. Davis.

Rev. Mr. McAmmond pronounced the benediction and the pleasant gathering dispersed.

Matrimonial.

We extend our congratulations to Mr. R. L. Smart and Miss Jennie Mowry, on the occasion of their marriage, which took place on Monday. The newly wed left at once on a bridal tour in Western Canada, including Niagara Falls and other points of interest.

The Post Office Robbery.

Through the clever detective work of Inspector Sweetnam, the thieves who robbed the post office here last winter have been traced. The remainder of the stolen stamps —$211 worth—were found in Buffalo. "Clutch" O'Donoghue, a member of the village council of Fort Erie, opposite Buffalo on the Canada side, has been arrested. He is the middleman who disposed of the stamps. His hearing has been adjourned for Tuesday to allow the attendance of witnesses from Peterborough.

In his Franchise Bill, Sir John has decided to allow the reserve Indians of the North-West, and other parts of Canada, including Big Bear and Poundmaker, whose hands are red with the blood of murdered white women, to vote at elections for members the Dominion Parliament, while white women, though owning property and possessing almost as much intelligence, one would think, as a savage Indian, are debarred from voting.

Private Fraser, of the 90th, was killed, and Capt. Brown, of Boulton's Scouts was shot through the heart.

A mounted half-breed has just been brought in.

During the heat of the engagement the following correspondence passed between Middleton and Riel. First carried by a prisoner named Ashley: "If you don't cease firing on houses, thereby injuring our families, we will massacre prisoners, commencing with Indian Agent, Lash." General Middleton answered, "Let me know where your women and children are, and we will not fire on them." Riel replied, thanking him for the courtesy, but subsequently, as our troops rushed forward to the attack, he pencilled on an envelope: "As I don't like war, I have all the same." Before he had time to go through with the programme, our boys were on them, and the prisoners were released. The advance was a gallant affair.

RIEL SENT A WHITE FLAG

CONCLUDED TO MASSACRE THE PRISONERS.

THE REBEL LOSS

Must be very heavy. Twelve breeds have been seen dead already.

The wounded breed brought in just now is Ambroise Jodin, a member of Riel's council.

THE NOR'WEST WAR.

THE CUT KNIFE CREEK FIGHT.

Details of Otter's Onslaught—How He Frightened Poundmaker—His Daring Dash—Valiant Volunteers.

THE ADVANCE.

BATTLEFORD, NORTH-WEST TERRITORY, Wednesday, May 6th.—A column made up of men of the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, C Company Infantry School, Toronto, Governor-General's Foot Guards, of Ottawa, B Battery, of Kingston, with two guns and the teaming, and some volunteers of the Battleford Rifles, started out under the command of Colonel Otter from Battleford at three o'clock on Friday afternoon, to attack Poundmaker and the Indians gathered under him near the reserve, about thirty-five miles north-west of this place. A forced march was kept up until dark, when, as we were a further advance in the growing dusk was deemed inadvisable. The force encamped beside a small pool of water and waited for the moonlight. At midnight the moon rose and we left the encampment. All went went well until we reached Cut Knife Creek, about five o'clock in the morning, where there was a gully which we found extremely awkwark and difficult to cross. It was full of brushwood, and rocks projected through the banks, making the descent and ascent difficult. We had just got through this most dangerous spot in time, as it proved, for the Mounted Police, who were in advance, had just gained the turfy slope which leads up from the west brow of the gully, on the ground where Poundmaker once had defeated Cut Knife's Sarcees, and, therefore, knew the ground well, when they were met by

NEARING THE ENEMY'S GROUND

A WELL-DIRECTED FIRE

of the Indians who, it appears, had arrived just too late to take up their position in the gully. One of the Mounted Police fell and several were wounted here at this time. The Indians charged down upon the Mounted Police, evidently with the intention of yet gaining the gully, but although nine of their number got within thirty yards of the Mounted Police they were driven back, and the guns being brought up to the brow opened upon them and they retreated across the open ground. With desperate bravery they charhed again, firing as they came, and so fierce was their attack that the artillery were forced to retreat, some of the men receiving bad wounds at this time. Major Short, who was in command of the men of B Battery, succeeded in rallying his men, and they made a

MOST SUCCESSFUL COUNTER CHARGE,

during which the Major's cap was pierced by a ball. While this attack was being made in front the Indians tried to steal around our flanks and seize the gully, a project in which they nearly succeeded and we were at one time nearly surrounded. A party of whites who stole around the bank of the wooded gully to our right captured four ponies. The men of C Company of the Infantry School, who formed our right flank, by a well directed fire prevented the Indians from occupying the hill on our right, while our left flank composed of the Guards and the Queen's Own covered the coulee and the hill on the left. The Battleford Rifles occupied the ground in the rear. The waggons with ammunition were gathered in the centre of the slope thus occupied, forming a refuge to which the wounded were brought by the Ambulance Corps. The cover was not well selected as it was too much exposed, and here 3 horses and a teamster were killed. The Police formed the front line of the extended square thus formed out of lines of skirmishers on the west slope and held the principal post of the front lines throughout the engagement. In this order the fight went on. For was kept up, and though tired with their long ride through the afternoon and night and hungry from the hard exercise and keen night air, no breakfast or rest was taken. At this point the trails of the gun carriages were broken down under the hard usage to which they had been subjected or we would have smashed the enemy much more completely than we have already done. Before the guns were disabled two tepees were destroyed by them and also many Indians. The enemy then succeeded in occupying the gully in considerable numbers and held it stubbornly despite the fire of our Gatling. The Queen's Own, Ottawa Guards and Battleford Rifles succeeded in chasing them out of the coulee or gully to the right, and the scouts, despite the galling fire to which they were exposed, cleared the trail across the gully in our rear. The trail across the gully was thus re-opened and the teams with waggons were enabled to recross the creek to the prairie were we intended camping. The troops then withdrew across the creek leisurely and in good order, the rear guard descending with admirable steadiness and as if on parade, with the result of not losing a single man in the operation. The Indians followed, but the steady cool fire of our men when they attempted to get within range, ket them at a safe distance, and they finally stopped altogether when about half way down the slope from which we had retired.

SEVEN HOURS HOT FIRING

NO PRAISE IS TOO GREAT for the men. Volunteers and regulars alike were magnificently cool throughout the whole engagement. The fight was of a perculiarly trying character. The Indians never appeared many together, but fired from cover in all directions. It is hard to estimate their strength, but they are believed to have been six hundred strong. They are now believed to have retired to inaccessible woods fifty miles distant. Hence the column returned to Battleford immediately. Seven of our men who were killed at the battle on Saturday were brought back, and were buried here on Monday. The funeral, which was a military one was very impressive.

THE OBJECT OBTAINED.

Colonel Otter obtained the object of the expedition against Poundmaker, which was to ascertain his intentions and attitude towards the Government.

POUNDMAKER'S CAMP.

BATTLEFORD, N. W. T., May 6.—Poundmaker is still in the same camp, and scouting is very vigilantly followed, perhaps more than before,

THE WOUNDED

The wounded are all doing well, the Battleford ladies furnishing much needed delicacies for the injured. Doctors Natrass, Brown, Pallestown and five assistants have arrived to form a field hospital corps.

MIDDLETON'S CAMP.

CLARK'S CROSSING, May 8.—A train of eighty waggons, under command of C. M. Black, arrived here to-night, from Moosejaw via The Elbow. Gen. Middleton struck camp this morning, moving forward on Gabriel's, where it is expected an engagement will take place to-morrow morning.

THE MURDER OF THREE PRIESTS.

WINNIPEG, may 8.—The bishop of St. Albert writes to Mgr. Tache, stating that no doubt exists of the killing of Father Lafard, and doubtless Fathers Legroff and Marchand are also dead.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N. W. T., May 8.—A courier arrived to-night from Gen. Middleton's camp. It is expected that the troops will to-morrow encounter the rebels who are reported to be strongly intrenched at Batouche. The "Northcote" will accompany the troops down the river. She has been made bullet proof as far as practicable, and, as the river continues rising, will render invaluable service. The coming fight is deemed by settlers to be the critical one of the campaign.

FRIDAY'S DESPATCHES

OTTER'S FUTURE PLANS

A special from Battleford May 8 says:—Col. Otter has not yet decided his plans for the future. The attack on Poundmaker must be renewed, but cannot be without reinforcements. The scouts sent out to reconnoitre the Indian portion returned to-day, and reported them to be still at Cut-Knife Hill, were Saturday's battle occurred. It is not known whether Big Bear is with Poundmaker or not.

It is reported to-night that a letter was received in camp from a priest at Poundmaker's stating that the Indian loss on Saturday was one hundred and twenty-five.

CAUSE OF THE RETURN.

Two seven-pounders became disabled by trails breaking down during the engagement and to this Col. Otter's withdrawal is attributed before the enemy was completely silenced. The return was made in perfect order and was covered by a perfect piece of generalship. The men had no sleep the night before and no breakfast. Several of the men fell asleep while lying in the skirmishing line where the enemy had been silenced. For some time the sun was very hot, and no water could be got. The Indians have received severe punishment, and will get more of it. Reinforcements are now on the way up from Swift Current.

SATURDAY'S DESPATCHES.

Special Telegram to the EXAMINER.

BATTOCHE'S CROSSING VIA CLARK'S CROSSING, MAY 9TH.

We are having another engagement with a large force of Rebels at Battoche's, as I write. We left the camp at 6 o'clock this morning, leaving camp supplies and tents behind. We advanced seven miles without seeing or hearing anything of the enemy. The morning was bright and warm. Suddenly there came a sound of the steamer's whistle, blowing continuously. As we drew nearer we heard the

SOUND OF HEAVY FIRING

on our front in the direction of the river. Our line of march was as follows:—First, Boulton's Scouts, accompanied by Gatling Gun. The Royal Grenadiers formed the advance guard with "A" Battery. The 90th Battalion supported them with the Winnipeg Field Battery and the detachment of the Midland Battalion in the reserve. Directly the firing was heard we fired a signal. The guns on the steamer replied. The Scouts and the Gatling then pushed rapidly ahead and came upon two houses near the bank of the river, which here is very precipitous. The advanced party of rebels were met here. They fired and retreated behind a house towards a hollow.

THE GATLING WAS BROUGHT TO BEAR ON THEM

when they ran into the house near the church of St. Laurent, which was also fired on by the Gatling, when they ran into the bush. "A" Battery by this time came up with a rush, and got into position, sending several shells after the rebels.

TORONTO BOYS DASH IN.

The Royal Grenadiers then dashed into action, and deployed into line, continuing to advance in skirmishing order till the church was reached, when a priest came out the house waving a white flag. General Middleton and staff advanced and shook hands, when three other Priests and five Sisters of Charity came out.

A number of half-breed children were also inside, in charge of the Sisters. Father Moulin informed me that the steamer arrived at a point a little above Battoche at 5.30 a.m.

THE REBELS IMMEDIATELY COMMENCED FIRING ON IT

from both banks. It shortly after struck on a mud bank but swung clear again, and just before our arrival, passed the crossing. He also said the rebels had six killed and twelve wounded at Fish Creek, and we just got a glimpse of the steamer down the river, and she must have had a hard fire, as the smoke stack was gone. The Grenadiers still advanced in skirmishing order through the bush on the right of the trail. The Gatling being pushed forward down the declivity towards Battoche's, now plainly visible in the valley below. Here "A" battery unlimbered on the top of the ridge,

SENDING SHELLS INTO THEM, and whilst doing so were almost surprised by a number of the rebels, who crept up through the bush and were not discovered until twenty yards distant, when they made a rush for our guns, firing and yelling as they ran. Captain Howard saw the danger and with cool daring ran his gun a couple of yards in front of the battery, and, opening a fire, literally

MOWED THE REBELS DOWN.

Those remaining turned and ran for the shelter of the bush. They opened fire again, but Howard escaped from injury. His escape was something marvellous—the bullets flying around him. He gallantly maintained his position and the rebels unable to stand the terrible fire, returned to the pit, constructed in the ravine.

POSITION OF THE TROOPS.

Running from the river our line was now as follows:—Two companies of the Midland with the Winnipeg Battery, supported by E and C Companies of the 90th. In the centre and extending across to the right where the Grenadiers, who were supported on the left by B Company of the 90th; on the right centre by D Company of the 90th, and on the extreme right by F and A Companies The A Battery occupied the left centre, afterwards returning to the right rear. Col. Straubenzie, who commands the entire Infantry force, is in the rear.

LATER—11 A. M.

As I now write Capt. French with his Scouts and part of the dismounted men of A Battery are down in the ravine firing continuously on the left and centre, but scattered on the right. After gallant efforts to draw the rebels from the rifle pits, French's Scouts and Battery men retired. The wounded are now coming in.

KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The list of the killed and wounded on our side is as follows:

A Battery—Gunner Phillips, shot through the stomach, while in the ravine. He died while being carried in.

Thos. J. Stout, run over by carriage. Not fatal.

Chappatier, shot through both legs, one fractured.

Gunners Fairbanks and Tooley, also shot in the leg.

The Grenadiers—Captain Mason, No. 2 Company, slightly wounded in the thigh.

French's Scouts—R. Cook, slightly wounded in the leg.

Curley Allen in the shoulder. None of the Winnipeg boys injured so far.

At 2 p.m.

THE REBELS FIRE GRADUALLY CEASED,

the troops, however, keeping up a scattered fire along the line, gradually slackening until 4 o'clock, when only a few dropping shots were heard. No more of our troops hurt.

A PRISONER ESCAPED.

Wm. Bruce, lately a prisoner of Riel's, but who escaped on Tuesday, was brought in by scouts. He corroborated Tait's story.

Riel's force he says, was a little over four hundred, half of whom were on the other side of the river when he left. He also says that when ammunition was served out to the rebels, only a keg of powder remained. The bullets are also scarce. The women and children had been sent to the other side of the river. The prisoners are safe so far as he knew. Beardy is not with Riel, but has been sent for. Riel, Dumont, and other leaders are in Riel's camp

SIX O'CLOCK P.M.

Boulton's Horse have gone back to our corral to bring up all waggons and supplies. We camp here to-night, Gen. Middleton being determined

TO HOLD THE POSITION.

Capt. Young has just climbed on the roof of the church and descried a body of Indians on the level near the river bank about one mile away. The Winnipeg Battery was at once ordered up and sent several well directed shells, scattering them immediately.

The firing has now entirely ceased, but it may be resumed at any moment. No news has been received from but she keeps blowing her whistle, hence it is concluded that she is safe. The sound comes from two or three miles down the river.

During the day the Grenadiers, A Battery men, and Boulton's Scouts, who constitute the advance line behaved admirably. The Winnipeg boys occupying the position of supports were only able to get in an occasional shot, much to their disgust.

REBELS TAKE TO THE WOODS.

Early in the morning, crowds of women children and mounted men were seen hurrying into the bush on the other side of the river.

REBELS RE-OPEN FIRE.

6.20 p.m.—A body of rebels have just re-opened fire from the bluff near the ravine on our left front, evidently as skirmishers. They fire three volleys, but are shooting too high to reach us. The Winnipeg Battery resuming, are in the distance, where a large number of rebels are gathered. A second shell crashes through the first house and the rebels run out. Another shell tears the roof off the house beyond. As the despatches leave scattered fire is going on. We expect to to-morrow and communicates with boat later. The troops are now constructing earthworks around the camp. The General is determined to hold this position. This despatch is carried by Armstrong, a bold scout.

SHELLING THE HOUSES

CLEAR OUT THE REBELS

I open just as he leaves to say, that the rebels have opened fire on our front. The fight continued on Sunday and culminated in the capture of Batoche and rout of the rebels as detailed in our special despatch in another column.

MONDAY'S DESPATCHES.

SASKATCHEWAN LANDING, via Swift Current, N. W. T., May 11.—An order was issued late last night by Gen Laurie here that the entire corps of the 7th Fusiliers and two companies of the Midland Battalion were to proceed at once to Clarke's Crossing. They left this forenoon at 8 o'clock on twelve barges. The force numbers near three hundred and fifty, they were in command of Col. Deacon, of the Midland Battalion. They expect to reach Clarke's Crossing in about five days.

THE HALIFAX BATTALION.

Two companies of the Halifax Battalion will march for Swift Current to night, reaching here to-morrow evening, and will remain here until further orders. Weather clear and warm.

LORD MELGUND ON HIS WAY TO OTTAWA—WHY IS HE RETURNING?

OTTAWA, May 11.—Gunner Phillips of "A" Battery, who was killed in the Batoche battle, was an Ottawa boy. He was formerly in the Canal office here, and was a son of General Phillips, of the regular army. He was six feet in height, and was engaged to be married to a young Ottawa lady, who is almost distracted over the sad news.

LORD MELGUND'S MISSION.

Lord Melgund is known to be on his way to Ottawa from General Middleton's camp. Though the object of his return is still a mystery, it is hinted that General Middleton finds himself handicapped by instructions from Ottawa directing him to make no attack upon the rebels that would be likely to result in serious loss on either side.

REINFORCEMENTS ORDERED.

General Middleton having called for reinforcements, the Prince of Wales' Rifles, Montreal, the 62nd Battalion, St. John, N. B., and the Bruce County Battalion have been ordered to prepare to go to the front.

THE MONTREAL ARTILLERY.

The Montreal Garrison Artillery, 300 strong, under Lieut-Col. Oswald, passed through here to-night en route to the North-West. Mr. Caron says this battalion is to be used to garrison Winnipeg, but why this should be considered necessary is not explained.

ORDERED TO THE FRONT.

WALKERTON, May 11.—The 32nd Battalion (Bruce,) under Lieut-Col. Cooper, roeived orders to-night to go to the North-west immediately.

THE SITUATION.

The break in the telegraph wires just now, when everybody is anxious to learn the result of the fighting at Batoche is, to say the least of it most unfortunate. It is said that the break is somewhere between Touchwood Hills and Humboldt, and while this does away with any apprehension as to the probable connection of the rebels with the mishap, it makes it none the less unsatisfactory to the thousands who are awaiting news from the front. It is known that immediately after the battle of Saturday, and even before the firing had quite ceased, Lord Melgund set out for Humboldt or for Ottawa on some mission, which it is only reasonable to suppose was

ONE OF SUPREME IMPORTANCE.

Had the errand been one of any but the gravest import, it is probable that some messenger of less value to General Middleton would have been entrusted with it. As to the gravity of Lord Melgund's mission, it is easy to judge, but as to its nature it is difficult to conjecture.

The most apathetic observer of events in the North-West must now be awakening to the GRAVITY OF THE SITUATION.

General Strange in the far west is not only looking for assistance from Col. Otter in his campaign, but is asking to have his own column re-enforced.

Col. Otter at Battleford, after one engagement with Poundmader, deems it advisable to remain at the fort till he is re-enforced.

MORE TROOPS CALLED OUT.

General Middleton has ordered up forces to strengthen his column, and wants more cannon and more Gatlings. The Bruce Battlion has been called out. The Montreal Garrison Artillery has started for the front, The Toronto Field Battery is in expectation of receiving orders at any moment, and the Prince of Wales' Rifles of Montreal, and the 52nd of St. John, New Brunswick, are both ordered out.

Saving the Lawyers.

"The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers." This is rather a blood-thirsty proposition, which we modify by offering to save this worthy class of people. Most of them suffer in common with nearly all others of sedentary habits, from the injurious effects of dyspepsia, constipation, pales, loss of appetite, and other ailments caused by a constipated habit of the body. Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" eradicate all these disorders in promptly removing the cause thereof, and induce a sure degree of comfort and health.

THE LACKING LICENSES.

The Town Council Called on—They are Powerless in the Matter.

A special meeting of the Town Council called by the Mayor at the request of several councillors, was held on Wednesday night of last week, to consider the question of memorializing the Lieut-Governor to grant additional licenses—three were—in the town of Peterborough. There were present, His Worship, the mayor, Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, McClelland, Yelland, Douglas, Menzies, Kendry and Hartley.

Mr. Menzies favored the object of the meeting on the ground of increased revenue, while the additional licenses would not involve the drinking of any more liquor.

Mr. McClelland pointed out that if the commissioners had not sent in a certificate of more hotel accommodations being required, the council had no power of action.

No such certificate, the clerk said, had been sent in, and the mayor read section 16 of the Liquor License Act, at the request of Mr. McClelland. This section provides that, upon the commissioners certifying to the need of increased hotel accommodation, and the council memorializing the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council, the council may authorize a new census to be taken, and the number of licenses on such census shall be one for each full 250 of the population under 1,000, and one for each 500 over 1,000 population.

No action was taken.

His worship pointed out that the cow by-law was not properly enforced, and that vagrant cows were doing damage throughout the town.

Mr. McNaughton said the police were busy with sanitary work, and Chief Johnson stated that the pounds were not fit for use.

Some discussion followed, during which the Mayor stated that he would, in view of the possible hardship that might arise from the enforcement of the cow by-law, pasture the cow of any person he was satisfied was not able to pay for pasturage.

Mr. Menzies moved, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that Constables Pigeon and McGinty be employed to enforce the cow by-law at $25 each, and that Constables Pigeon and Adams be paid $25 each for such service in 1884, and that two more pounds be procured, one to be in the Fourth Ward.

Mr. Douglass raised the point of order, and the motion was allowed to stand as notice of motion.

MORE LICENSE MATTERS.

Mr. J. E. McIntyre presented a petition praying that the fine for the breaking of the billiard by-law be remitted.

The Mayor observed that the petition deserved consideration; the petitioner had, when the law decided against him, shown a disposition to respect the by-laws of the town, while Mr. Faucher had fought and was still fighting the town. The petition was referred to the License Committee.

Mr. McClelland remarked that the report was circulated that the council had interfered with the issue of hotel licenses, and he wanted the council cleared of the imputation.

Mr. McNaughton said that Mr. Edmison had stated that Mr. Cox, as mayor, had stated that Faucher should not get a license.

The mayor explained that in writing to Mr. Edwards he had stated that if Mr. Faucher continued to defy and resist the town by-laws he would oppose his getting a liquor license.

Mr. Edmison, who was present, stated that that was substantially what he had told Mr. McNaughton.

The council adjourned to meet at the call of the Mayor.

Ashburnham's Arbor Day.

The Occasion Well Observed.

The School corporation of Ashburnham is entitled to great praise for the hearty and practical response made to the proposal of the Minister of Education to observe last Friday as Arbor Day, to be devoted to the planting of trees in and around the school grounds, and otherwise beautifying them. With the chairman, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, as moving spirit, the School Board did their duty by providing trees for the purpose and a competent man to superintend the proper planting of them. And the principal of the school, Mr. J. J. Roosey, and his assistants, the Misses Jennie and Annie Smith, and all the pupils, are to be praised for the hearty manner in which they entered into the spirit of the day. At an early hour the teachers and pupils were on hand, and they spent the day most industriously and profitably. In all twenty-five trees—hard, or sugar maples—were planted, inside the school grounds. Besides, flowering shrubs and evergreens were contributed by smaller pupils. Four or five flower beds were also laid down and plentifully planted with perennial flowering plants, furnished by the pupils. The soil to make these flower plots was brought from a considerable distance, and the boys showed a remarkable interest, and took an active part in the work. The girls were not behindhand, and did their share of the work in manual labour. The lady teachers did not disdain to use the rake, and practically assist in the operations of the day. The result of the active co-operation is shown in beautifully neat and trim school grounds. The trees are the care of the boys, and the flower plots of the girls. Mr. Rooney, acting on the suggestion of the chairman, will open a register, in which will be entered the number of the trees and the names of the boys to whom the care and protection of designated individual trees will be assigned; and the girls will be similarly detailed to look after and be responsible for the culture and safety of the flowers. Thus a spirit of rivalry and sense of personal responsibility will be developed, and each boy will become a special policeman for the protection of the trees from mischevious pranks of his school mates or outside vagrants, whether boy or bovine. The beginning of the observance of Arbor Day in Ashburnham has been a great success. If the other village and rural school sections in Ontario have done porportionately as well as the Ashburnham School Board and school teachers and pupils, it is probable that on Friday last there were between 125,000 and 150,000 trees planted in and about school grounds. Ashburnham has made a most promising beginning, and intelligence of the manner in which the other school sections of the county and province have co-operated with her in the grand work of remedying the evils of forest destruction, and the development of a love for the beautiful and in the higher education of the pupils in relation to their duties regarding arboriculture, will be awaited with great interest.

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

THE DREADFUL EFFECTS OF BAD AMUSEMENTS.

The text was from Judges xvi., 25:—

"And it came to pass when their hearts were merry that they said: 'Call for Samson that he may make us sport.' And the called for Samson out of the prison-house; and he made them sport."

In this course of sermons I am now preaching you must have noticed that I have no sympathy with ecclesiastical strait-jackets, or with that wholesale denunciation of amusements to which many are pledged. I believe the church of God has made a tremendous mistake in trying to suppress the sportfulness of youth and drive out from men their love of amusement. If God ever implanted anything in us, He implanted this desire. But instead of providing for this demand of our nature, the Church of God has for the main part ignored it. As in a riot the mayor plants a battery at the end of the street and has it fired off, so that everything is cut down that happens to stand in the range, the good as well as the bad, so there are men in the Church who plant their batteries of condemnation and fire away indiscriminately. Everything is condemned. There are a great many who denounce ball-playing. They hate puzzles. They despise charades. They abhor tableaux. They say: "Away with all parlour games!" They talk as if they would like to have our youth dressed in blue uniform, like the children of an orphan asylum, and march down the path of life to the tune of the Dead March in Saul. They hate a blue sash, or a rosebud in the hair, or a tasseled gaiter, and think a man almost ready for Sing Sing who utters a conundrum. Young Men's Christian Associations of the country are doing a glorious work. They have fine reading rooms and all the influences are of the best kind, and are adding gymnasium and bowling alley, where, without any evil surroundings, our young men may get physical as well as spiritual improvement. We are dwindling away to a narrow-chested, weak-armed, feeble-voiced race, when God calls us to a work in which He wants physical as well as spiritual athletes. I would to God that the time might soon come when in all our colleges and theological seminaries, as at Princeton, a gymnasium shall be established. We spend seven years of hard study in preparation for the ministry, and come out with and liver complaint, and then crawl up into the pulpit and the people say: "Don't he look heavenly!" because he looks sickly. Let the church of God direct rather than attempt to suppress the desire for amusement. The best men that the world ever knew have had their sports. William Wilberforce trundled hoop with his children. Martin Luther helped dress the Christmas tree. Ministers have pitched quoits. Philanthropists have gone a skating. Prime Ministers have played ball.

This church to-day is filled with men and women who have in their souls unmeasured resources of sportfulness and frolic. Show me a man who never lights up with sportfulness and has no sympathy with the recreations of others and I will show you a man who is a stumbling block to the kingdom of God. Such men are caricatures of religion. They lead young people to think that a man is good in proportion as he groans and frowns and looks sallow, and that the height of a man's Christian stature is in proportion to the length of his face. I would trade off five hundred such men for one bright-faced, radiant Christian, on whose face are the words: "Rejoice, evermore!" Between here and Fulton ferry every morning by his cheerful face he preaches fifty sermons. I will go further and say that I have no confidence in a man who makes a religion of his gloomy looks. That kind of a man always turns out badly. I would not want him for the treasurer of an orphan asylum. The orphans would suffer. Among forty people whom I received into the church at one communion there was only one applicant of whose piety I was suspicious. He had the longest story to tell; had seen the most visions, and gave an experience so rapturous and profound that all the other applicants were discouraged. I was not surprised in a year after to learn that he had run off with the funds of the bank with which he was connected. Who is this black angel that you call religion—wings black, feet black, feathers black? Our religion is a bright angel—feet bright, eyes bright, wings bright. Taking her place in the soul, she pulls a rope that reaches to the skies and sets all the bells of heaven a chiming. There are some persons who, when talking to a minister, always feel it politic to look lugubrious. Go forth, O people, to your lawful amusement! God means you to be happy. But when there are so many sources of innocent pleasure, why tamper with anything that is dangerous and pointing? Why stop our ears to a heaven full of songsters to listen to a hiss of a dragon? Why turn back from the mountain side all a-bloom with wild flowers and a-dash with the nimble torrents, and with blistered feet attempt to climb the hot sides of Cotopaxi?

Now, all opera-houses, theatres, bowling allies, skating rinks and all styles of amusement, good and bad, I put on trial to-day and judge them by certain cardinal principles. First, we may judge of any amusement by its healthful result or by its

BALEFUL REACTION.

There are people who seem made up of hard facts. They are a combination of multiplication tables and statistics. If you show them any exquisite picture they will begin to discuss the pigments involved in the coloring. If you show them a beautiful rose they will submit it to a botanical analysis, which is only the post-mortem examination of a flower. They have no rebound in their nature. They never do anything more than smile. There are no great tides of feeling surging up from the depths of their soul in billow after billow of reverberating laughter. They seem as if nature had built them by contract and made a bungling job out of it. But blessed be God there are people in the world who have bright faces and whose life is a song, an anthem, a paean of victory. Even their troubles are like the vines that crawl up the side of a great tower on the top of which the sunlight sit and the soft airs of summer hold perpetual carnival. They are the people you like to have come to your house. If you but touch the hem of their garment you are healed. Now it is these exhilarant and sympathetic and warm-hearted people that are most tempted to pernicious amusements. In proportion as a ship is swift it wants a strong helmsman, in proportion as a horse is gay it wants a stout driver; and these people of exuberant nature will do well to look at the reaction of all their amusements. If an amusement sends you home at night nervous so you cannot sleep, and you rise in the morning, not because you are slept out, but because your duty drags you from your slumbers, you have been where you ought not to have been. There are amusements that send a man next day to his work blood shot, yawning, stupid, nauseated, and they are wrong kinds of amusement. There are entertainments that give a man disgust with the drudgery of life, with tools because they are not swords, with working aprons because they are not robes, with cattle because they are not infuriated bulls of the arena. If any amusement sends you home longing for a life of romance and thrilling adventure, love that takes poison and shoots itself, moonlight adventures and hairbreadth escapes, you may depend upon it that you are the sacrificed victim of unsanctified pleasure. Our recreations are intended to build us up; and if they pull us down as to our moral or as to our physical strength, you may come to the conclusion that they are obnoxious.

The table has been robbed to pay the club. The champagne has cheated the children's wardrobe. The carousing-party has burned up the boy's primer. The table-cloth of the corner saloon is in debt to the wife's faded dress. Excursions that in a day make a tour around a whole months wages; ladies whose lifetime business is to "go shopping" have their counterparts in uneducated children; bankruptcies that shock the money market and appal the church and that send drunkenness staggering across the richly figured carpet of the mansion and dashing into the mirror and drowning out the carol of music with the whooping of bloated sons come home to break their old mother's heart. When men go into amusements that they cannot afford, they first borrow what they cannot earn, and then they steal what they cannot borrow. First they go into embarrassment, and then into lying, and then into theft, and when a man goes as far as that he does not stop short of the penitentiary. There is not a prison in the land where there are not victims of unsanctified amusements. How often I have had parents come to me and ask me to go over to New York and beg their boy off from crimes that he had committed against his employer—the taking of funds out of the employer's till, or the disarrangement of accounts. Why, he had salary enough to pay all lawful expenditure, but not enough salary to meet his sinful amusements. And again and again I have gone and implored for the young man; sometime, alas! the petition unavailing. Merchant of New York, is there a disarrangement in your account? Is there a leakage in your money drawer? Did not the cash account come out all right last night? I will tell you. There is a young man in your store wandering off into bad amusement. The salary you give him may meet lawful expenditures, but not the sinful indulgences in which he has entered, and takes by theft that which you do not give him in lawful salary.

How brightly the path of unrestrained amusement opens! The young man says: "Now I am off for a good time. Never mind economy. I'll get money somehow. What a fine road! What a beautiful day for a ride! Crack the whip and over the turnpike. Come boys, fill high your glasses. Drink! Long life, health, plenty of rides just like this!" Hard-working men hear the clatter of the hoofs and look up and say: "Why, I wonder where those fellows get their money from. We have to toil and drudge. They do nothing." To these gay men life is a thrill and an excitement. They stare at people and in turn are stared at. The watch chain jingles. The cup foams. The cheeks flush. The eyes flash. The midnight hears their guffaw. They swagger. They jostle decent men off the sidewalk. They take the name of God in vain. They parody the hymn they learned at their mother's knee; and to all pictures of coming disasters they cry out: "Who cares!" and to the counsel of some Christian friend, "Who are you!" Passing along the street some night you hear a shriek in a grog shop, the rattle of the watchman's club, the rush of the police. What is the matter now? Oh, this reckless young man has been killed in a grog-shop fight. Carry him home to his father's house. Parents will come down and wash his wounds and close his eyes in death. They forgive him all he ever did though he cannot in his silence ask it. The prodigal has got home at last. Mother will go to her little garden and get the sweetest flowers and twist them into a chaplet for the silent heart of and push back from the bloated brow the long locks that were once her pride. And the air will be rent with the father's cry: "Oh, my son, my son, my poor son! Would God I had died for thee, oh, my son, my son!"

You may judge of amusements by their effect upon physical health. The great need of many good people is physical recuperation. There are Christian men who write hard things against their immortal souls when there is nothing the matter with them but an incompetent liver. There are Christian people who seem to think that it is a good sign to be poorly, and because Richard Baxter and Robert Hall were invalids they think that by the same sickliness

FEAR NOT!

I am not going to tell you that Hop Bitters will build you up miraculously for your unvalidism, if it is your fault, and when through right exercise and prudence you might be athletic and [illegible] you acknowledge. Put a man of mild disposition upon the animal diet of which the Indian partakes, and in a little while his blood will change its chemical composition. It will become like unto that blood of the lion or the tiger or the bear, while his disposition will change and become fierce, cruel and unrelenting. The body has a powerful effect upon the soul. There are good people whose ideas of Heaven are all shut out with clouds of tobacco smoke. There are people who dare to shatter the physical vase in which God put the jewel of eternity. There are men with great hearts and intellects in bodies worn out by their own neglect, magnificent machinery capable of propelling a Great Eastern across the Atlantic, yet fastened in a rickety North River propeller. Physical development which merely shows itself in fabulous lifting, or in perilous rope-walking or in pugilistic encounter, excites only our contempt, but we confess to great admiration for the man who has a great soul in an athletic body, every nerve, muscle and bone of which is consecrated to right use. Oh, it seems to me outrageous that men, through neglect, should allow to go down beyond repair, spending the rest of their life not in some great enterprise for God and the world, but in studying what is the best thing to take for dyspepsia. A ship that ought with all sails set and every man at his post, to be carrying a rich cargo for eternity, employing all its men in stopping up leakages. When you may through some of the popular and healthful recreations of our time work off your spleen and your querulousness and one-half of your physical and mental ailments, do not turn your back from such a grand medicament.

Again, any amusement that gives you a distaste for domestic life is bad. How many bright domestic circles have been broken up by sinful amusements! The father went off, the mother went off, the child went off. There are to-day the fragments before me of blasted households. Oh, if you have wandered away, I would like to charm you back by the spell of that one word, "home." Do you not know that you have but little more time to give to domestic welfare? Do you not see, father, that your children are soon to go out into the world, and all the influence for good you are to have over them you must have now? Death will break in on your conjugal relations, and, alas, if you have to stand over the grave of one who perished from your neglect! I saw a wayward husband standing at the death-bed of his Christian wife, and I saw her point to a ring on her finger and heard her say to her husband, "Do you see that ring?" He replied "Yes, I see it." "Well," said she, "do you remember who put it there?" "Yes," said he, "I put it there." And all the past seemed to rush upon him. By the memory of that day, when in the presence of men and angels, you promised to be faithful in joy and sorrow, and in sickness and in health; by the memory of those pleasant hours, when you sat together in your new home, talking of a bright future by the cradle, and the joyful hour when one life was spared and another given; by that sick bed when the little one lifted up the hands and called for help, and you knew he must die, and he put one arm round each of your necks and brought you very near together in that dying kiss; by that little grave in Greenwood that you never think of without a rush of tears; by that family Bible where, in its stories of heavenly-love, is the brief but expressive record of the births and deaths; by the neglects of the past and by the agonies of the future; by a judgment-day, when husbands and wives, parents and children, in immortal groups, will stand to be caught up in shining array or to shrink down into darkness; by all that I beg you to give to home

YOUR BEST AFFECTIONS.

I look in your eyes to-day, and I ask you the question that Gehazi asked of the Shunamite: "Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband? Is it well with thy child?" God grant that it may be everlastingly well.

Let me say to all young men, your style of amusements will decide your eternal destiny. One night I saw a young man at the street corner, evidently doubting as to which direction he had better take. He had his hat lifted high enough so you could see he had an intelligent forehead, stout chest; he had a robust development. Splendid young man. Cultured young man. Honored young man. Why did he stop there while so many were going up and down? The fact is that every man has a good angel and a bad angel contending for the mastery of his spirit. And there was a good angel and a bad angel struggling with that young man's soul at the corner of the street. "Come with me" said the good angel, "I will take you home. I will spread my wing over your pathway. I will lovingly escort you all through life. I will bless every cup that you drink out of, every couch you rest on, every doorway you enter. I will consecrate your tears when you weep, your sweat when you toil, and at the last I will hand over your grave into the hand of the bright angel of a Christian resurrection. In answer to your father's petition and your mother's prayer I have been sent of the Lord of Heaven to be your guardian spirit. "Come with me!" said the good angel, in a voice of unearthly symphony. It was music like that which drops from a lute of heaven when a seraph breathes on it. "No, no," said the bad angel, "come with me; I have something better to offer; the wines I pour are from chalices of bewitching carousal; the dance I lead is over floor tesselated with

UNRESTRAINED INDULGENCIES;

there is no God to frown on the temples of sin where I worship. The skies are Italian. The paths I tread are through meadows daisied and primrosed. Come with me!" The young man hesitated at a time when hesitation was ruin, and the bad angel smote the good angel until it departed, spreading wings through the starlight upward and away, until a door flashed open in the sky and forever the wings vanished. That was the turning point in that young man's history; for, the good angel flown, he hesitated no longer, but started on a pathway which is beautiful at the opening, but blasted at the last. The bad angel, leading the way, opened gate after gate, and at each gate the road became rougher and the sky more lurid, and what was peculiar, as the gate slammed shut it came with a jar that indicated that it would never open. Passed each portal there was a grinding of locks and a shoving of bolts, and the scenery on either side the road changed from gardens to deserts, and the June air became a cutting December blast, and the bright wings of the right angel turned to sackcloth, and the eyes of light become hollow with hopeless grief, and the fountains, that at the start had tossed with wine, poured forth bubbling tears and foaming blood, and on the right side of the road there was a serpent, and the man said to the bad angel, "What is that serpent?" and the answer was, "That is the serpent of stinging remorse." On the left side of the road there was a lion, and the man asked the bad angel, "What is that lion?" and the answer was, "That is the lion of all-devouring despair." A vulture flew through the sky, and the man asked the bad angel, "What is that vulture?" and the answer was, "That is the vulture waiting for the carcasses of the slain." And then the man began to try to pull off of him the folds of something that had wound him round and round, and he said to the bad angel, "What is it that twists me in this awful convolution?" and the answer was, "That is the worm that never dies!" And then the man said to the bad angel: "What does all this mean? I trusted in what you said at the corner of the street that night; I trusted it all, and why have you thus deceived me?" Then the last deception fell off the charmer, and it said: "I was sent forth from the pit to destroy your soul; I watched my

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best pulverizer ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will alone do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulverizer and Gang Plow. The teeth lustine forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible extra draft on the team. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and springing; thus they seldom clog with grass, weeds, stalks, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, so common with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning: hence, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened upper edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the part repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

Col. Kennedy's Last Letter.

He Thought it was His Duty.

The Ottawa Citizen publishes the last letter sent by the late Col. Kennedy from the Nile. It was sent to Senator Schultz, Ottawa. It is a long letter containing details of many events in the Soudan, of which the telegrams have already informed us. But a few extracts respecting the voyageurs and other matters, showing Col. Kennedy's patriotic zeal in the service of his country, will be interesting. Under the circumstances the close of the letter, indicating his hope of soon being re-united with his family, is peculiarly sad. Referring to the voyageurs, Col. Kennedy says:

"The ascent of the river from Korti to above Hamed was very difficult, we might almost say impossible, although we managed to get through. Everybody spoke highly of the skill and pluck of our followers. (The Canadians I mean.) . . . We were within about 10 miles of Abou Hamed when the order came to return. No doubt Lord Wolseley is taking the best course, as his force here is not sufficient, and the hot weather coming on (now 110 in the shade) would be too much for us. Speaking of this, I dined again with him at Korti. He intends to come out to the North-West the first opportunity, and see old friends, as well as to ride on the C. P. R., in which he is a stockholder, across the continent. You will be glad to know that our Manitoba men turned out so well. I brought down 94 men. Among those a few, say 10, who are not professional boatmen, but those latter were among the best on the force, and were more asked for by the regular officers, than almost any others. Of the men re-engaging more than half of them are from Manitoba. I say this not that I want to place Manitoba men above those from the other provinces, as we all work well together as one body, but because a desire it seems to me, exists in some quarters to belittle the prairie province and not give our own men their proper place in the expedition.

. . . . . .

Please excuse me for not writing to you oftener, but indeed it has been difficult to do so. If there is a war with Russia I suppose I will have to come out again with the 90th. I do not want to offer until I see that there is a possibility of being accepted. I will know better when I arrive in London.

What a good time we will have in London! I never have been there, and expect to make good use of the week placed at my disposal. I can assure you I am also very much pleased with the prospect of seeing my wife and family soon. My business, no doubt, needs me in Winnipeg, and has suffered in my absence; but I am not at all sorry I came, as I believe it to have been my duty.

Again thanking you, dear doctor, and wishing you and yours health and success,

I am yours sincerely,

WM. N. KENNEDY.

"Obstruction" Clearly Explained.

On Saturday night, after the House of Commons had been sitting for fifty-seven hours, Sir John Macdonald rose and charged that the Liberals were continuing to obstruct the passage of the franchise in the hope that he, poor old man, would be worn out and forced to surrender. They were, therefore, guilty of a shameful and criminal waste of time. Not only this but Sir John argued that the Liberals were opposing that which they had previously advocated, and said they had spent days debating whether an Indian was a "person," when, as a matter of fact, they were debating nothing of the kind. Mr. Blake was on hand and during the few minutes at his disposal he made a speech which called forth repeated applause. He said:

"The hon. gentleman says we are guilty of a criminal waste of time in trying to wear out the majority. Why, sir, how could a minority of one to two having to do all the fighting while the majority do all the sleeping, hope to wear out the majority. No, sir! We have maintained, as we now maintain, that the duty of the government was to bring down this measure for discussion early in the session, to bring it into committee early in the session, to allow us to discuss at intervals with reasonable adjournments for rests, with opportunities for the full and free expression of opinion. That was the view expressed by the hon. gentleman himself some years ago, when he said that the Franchise Bill would be a subject for an entire session. What are the facts, sir? The bill is moved into committee four days after the expiration of the three months, which the hon. gentleman has so often told us is the normal length of a complete session.

And when public business is in this condition; that five-sixths of the estimates are yet to be passed—(cheers)—that ways and means have to be attended to—(cheers)—that the Canadian Pacific Railway has to be attended to—(cheers)—that the Chinese restriction has to be attended to—(cheers)—that the consolidation of the statutes has yet to be considered; that the court of claims has yet to be attended to; that the Insolvency Bill has yet to be attended to; that the North-West affairs have yet to be attended to; and that the financial affairs of the country have yet to be attended to—it was at such a time, and in such a condition of affairs, that the hon. gentleman proposed to put the House into committee and told us that we were to sit day in and day out until the measure became law—(cheers)—and the hon. gentleman proposed to do that by virtue of a process of sitting at unreasonable hours, and it is as a protest against that method of discussion, unfair to the minority, unreasonable to the country, that we have taken the course we have. (Cheers.) The hon. gentleman says that our tactics are to wear him out. I deny that. (Cheers.) I agree with him that that would be a base, an infamous, and ignoble proposal. (Cheers.) I agree with him, but I deny that such was any part of the tactics of the Reform party. (Renewed Cheers.) Besides, sir, we know perfectly well that it would have been useless to adopt any such tactics.

"Our tactics are to insist upon liberty of discussion, upon popular rights, and upon the rights of parliament, upon our right to have a free, a full and ample discussion, which at this time, and under the circumstances and conditions which the hon. gentleman desires to impose, would be rendered impossible." (Loud and prolonged cheers.)

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

[illegible] and Above the Legislative Halls.

(Correspondence of THE EXAMINER.)

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6th.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Fleming presented a monster petition against the Franchise Bill, setting forth that the present franchise system was cheap and satisfactory, that the expenditure should not be increased, and that the regulation of franchise should continue in the hands of the Provincial Legislatures.

The House then went again into committee on the Franchise Bill.

Mr. Yeo protested against the proposed interference with the system of universal suffrage which now exists in Prince Edward Island. That system was the only one existing in that Province, and had been obtained after a hard struggle. The system was popular with all classes, and any infringement upon the rights now enjoyed by the people would be resented. He claimed no exemptions for his own Province that he was not willing to grant to others.

Mr. Fisher said that already the Government had abandoned their principle of an uniform franchise, which was the only excuse for introducing this Bill. If Prince Edward Island was to have an exceptional privilege, other Provinces should be treated in the same way. The member for Montreal (Mr. Gault) had declared himself in favor of the Chinese, because he no doubt wanted them to come to Montreal and work in the cotton mills for little or nothing. The Tories boasted that now the municipal officers were manipulated by politicians, and if so, the revising barristers would be manipulated in the same way. He challenged the member for Carleton to explain what had induced him to change his opinion on this question since 1874, when he had declared that the regulation of the franchise should be left to the Local Legislatures.

Mr. Hackett said the people of P. E. Island wanted manhood suffrage maintained there, but they wanted the revising barristers to make up the electorial lists. He was opposed to manhood suffrage for the whole Dominion.

Mr. Davies pointed out that, though the Franchise Bill might not be extended to Prince Edward Island, that Province would have to pay its share of the costs of its operation in other parts of the Dominion.

After recess Mr. Béchard was about to resume the debate on the Franchise Bill when Sir John Macdonald said that he would move that the committee should rise, as he desired to put through some other Bills, in order to give the Senate something to do.

The Speaker took the chair amid cheers. This is regarded as a back down on the part of the Government and as an indication that the Franchise Bill may be dropped altogether.

Sir John moved resolutions proposing the appointment of two Joint Librarians.

In the Senate, to-day, Mr. Almon moved the following amendment to the Scott Act: That dealers in ales, porter, lager beer, cider and light wines, containing not more than 12 per cent. of alcohol, be exempt from the operation of the Canada Temperance Act. After a protracted debate the amendment was carried by 42 to 20.

THURSDAY MAY 7th.

The Montreal Gazette, the organ of the Government, owned and edited by Mr. Thos. White, urges that the Government should drop the Franchise Bill because of the expense that is involved in keeping Parliament in session discussing it. The Montreal organ of the Government is shrewd enough to see that if the Bill is forced through it will be a death blow to the Tory party, and in that event its printing jobs will cease. Mr. Thomas White can be trusted to look after "Number One." He sees that popular opinion is against the proposal to create revising barristers and enfranchise savages. If the Opposition can defeat the Franchise Bill they will save the country at least $500,000 a year. That is something worth fighting for.

A Ministerialist caucus was held this morning to endeavor to reconcile the differences among the supporters of the Government with respect to the Franchise Bill. The Prince Edward Island members wanted their Province exempted from the qualification clauses of the Bill, and manhood suffrage continued there. The Government agreed to this, but at once Mr. Landry and other Bleus demanded that if P. E. Island were to be especially exempted Quebec should receive similar treatment. Here was a new danger against which Sir John had not provided. That was why he was so anxious to take up other business last night instead of disposing of the amendment to exempt P. E. Island. At the caucus to-day there was a stormy time, but at last it was arranged that Prince Edward Island should not be exempted, but that a special low qualification should be provided for voters in that Province. What will be the next difficulty in which Sir John will find himself it is hard to say.

The opponents of the Canada Temperance Act are jubilant over the recent action of the Senate in inserting an amendment permitting the sale of ale, beer and light wines in Scott Act counties. This they declare completely nullifies the operation of the Act everywhere. Temperance Tories are quiet because they dare not condemn the action of Sir John Macdonald's colleagues and followers in the Upper House.

The ignorance or incorrigible mendacity of those who run the Montreal organ of the Pacific Syndicate is shown by its statement that the policy of the Ontario Grits is Legislative Union. Anything further from the truth was never uttered, written or published. The Liberals have been for years, and are to-day, battling for Provincial rights against the encroachments of Sir John Macdonald and his party. What are the Liberals doing in connection with the Franchise Bill? Are they not struggling to preserve to the Provinces the right to regulate their own franchise? The Syndicate are pressing the Government hard for money, and if the Franchise Bill is dropped at all it will be in order to clear the way for helping Messrs. Stephen and Company to the contents of the Treasury.

DRAWING LESSONS FOR TEACHERS.

Ontario School of Art.

The honourable the Minister of Education has made provisions for for free industrial drawing classes, which will be conducted during the ensuing summer holidays for the benefit of Public, Model School and High School teachers.

The classes will commence on Tuesday, 7th July, 1885, and continue until the end of the month. These classes will be conducted by competent Art Instructors, and will consist of the following primary subjects:—

ELEMENTARY OR PRIMARY GRADE B.—Freehand from flat examples, 12 lessons; Practical Geometery, 12 lessons; Linear Perspective, 12 lessons; Model Drawing, 12 lessons; Memory and Blackboard Drawing, 12 lessons.

SECOND OR HIGH GRADE A.—Shading from flat examples, 20 lessons; Industrial Design, 15 lessons; Machine Drawing 15 lessons; Drawing from Dictation, 10 lessons.

At the close of the session, examinations will be held, and successful candidates will be awarded certificates of proficiency. (65 teachers were awarded full certificates in Grade B last year, entitling them to teach industrial drawing in Mechanics' Institutes and Public Schools.) Any teacher not a student in the Art School may become a candidate for examination provided that application is made not later than 15th July. The success of free drawing classes last summer in obtaining for so many teachers lucrative employment as teachers of drawing in Mechanics' Institutes, will no doubt induce a large number to apply for the privilege of attending these classes, but as the accommodation is limited, it is probable that all the applicants cannot be admitted, therefore the students will be taken in the order of applications until the school is full. Notification will be sent to the applicants as soon as their names are enrolled.

"These classes will not be conducted unless there be a sufficient number of applicants to warrant the expenditure in connection therewith.

A MURDEROUS MOTHER.

Lucy Gilchrist, wife of John Gilchrist, of New Jersey, on Tuesday morning, while insane from drink, seized her six-months'-old baby, and placing it on its back, chopped the head, neck and body with an axe, killing it instantly. The elder child gave the alarm, but too late to save the baby. The woman was evidently mad, and said she did the deed because the spirits told her and because she must save Ireland. The husband arrived for dinner soon after, and was restrained from attacking his wife with difficulty. The woman is 28 years old, and has three remaining children. She was taken into custody.

A Wedding Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a mere skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health and strength, and a gain in flesh of 46 lbs." Call at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.00.

THE COST OF WAR.

For the seventeen States of Europe, says a London paper, the total of the armies on their footing is 2,338,258 men. Calculating the wages at 2s. 6d. per day, and omitting the holidays, we have a sum of £37 16s. per annum for each man. Multiplying this sum by 2,338,258, the total comes to £86,250,375 per annum. Adding to this the total of the seventeen war budgets, which is £161,972,782, the total loss suffered by Europe annually on account of her armies is £198,514,868—about a thousand million dollars.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers; they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers. Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver Complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, by its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the best Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "Windsor Co., New York, Oct. 20, 1883.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the enclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his friends must have considered the former for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I cannot say he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are four men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. H. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin crusted so as to cause the blood to flow in many places wherever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1883. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 14, 1885.

Sympathy for our Volunteers.

The present wide-spread liberality and sympathy evoked throughout the country for our brave defenders in the Northwest, is in many respects certainly very creditable to Canada, and supplies another proof, if such were wanting, of our people's unswerving loyalty and patriotism.

We trust we shall not be misunderstood, however, if we emphasize in a few brief lines the danger there is overdoing such charitable work, and call attention to certain phases or aspects of the question, which hitherto have escaped the notice they deserve.

For ourselves, we are quite willing and ready to give tangible proof of our desire to sympathize to the very fullest extent with those now on duty at the front, and to provide for them, if needs be. THE EXAMINER'S contribution to the local fund for the volunteers was freely given, and we hope to be always ready to support any such good and commendable cause, according to our means, whenever the occasion may arise.

We believe, however, that with the bare exception of socks, underclothing, and a few useful articles, such as mosquito nets, it is altogether a mistake to send contributions, such as the papers tell us have already been forwarded from various parts of Canada. The men will not want, while on the march, to be overburdened even with kindness; and luxuries, such as sweetmeats, chocolate and plum pudding, they neither expect nor desire.

For the sick and wounded, assuredly, comforts of all sorts should be provided without stint; but these, we understand, have already reached the field in large quantities, under the care of the Red Cross and Ambulance Corps. If more articles of this sort are needed, they will soon be forthcoming.

A fund for the families of those dependent on the killed and wounded, seems to us a much more essential and a more truly charitable way of marking our sympathy for the volunteers just now. For this purpose we should like to see a general fund established, and appeals made for assistance throughout the Dominion. Already several brave men have fallen who have left wives and children behind them totally unprovided for. These we should, as a nation, accept as a sacred legacy, and such a cause will at once appeal to our better nature. Here true charity will find a wide sphere and a blessed one.

But it should not be forgotten that the work of providing for the force now in the field against the rebels, rests altogether on the Government. It is their bounden duty to support our citizen soldiers while fighting our battles, so that neither in the matter of food nor clothing these brave defenders shall suffer harm. Of course in camp the volunteers do not expect dainties nor luxuries. Provided with good substantial fare and suitable clothing, not a grumble will be heard from those accustomed to revel in the fat of the land at home. If these needful things are not supplied, (and we have no reason to think this is the case), no spasmodic efforts of the people here can make up the deficiency.

Besides, the country will be called upon to foot the bill when the rebellion is crushed. The people must certainly expect to provide the sinews of war, and are prepared to do so, though many of them believe the outbreak has been due to the delinquencies of the Government and the vacillating policy which refused to consider expressed grievances in proper time. This being the case, private charity and beneficence, though willing to cheer and aid in every possible way the defenders of our country, should not be expected to undertake and carry out a duty which certainly lies at another's door. In this case every one should bear his own burden. But this is not always looked to. In every community there are found a number of persons inclined to seek cheap popularity and a reputation at the expense of generous natures, and the burden thus too often falls on a select few. There is a proper way to deal with the demands upon the people's generosity in a case especially where the interest of the general public is involved. The business men of George street are continually subjected to demands of one kind or another upon their liberality, and the amounts contributed by them represent a liberal percentage of their profits, especially in these dull times. To equalize the pressure of giving to the relief of the volunteers, it seems that it would have been a more equitable way, for a deputation to have waited upon the Town Council, to solicit a liberal grant, against which there would, we venture to say, have been no dissenting voice. Thus the contributions would have been proportionately distributed, and the willing would not have been taxed, and the unwilling, though under similar moral obligations, would not have escaped.

We have no desire, again we say, to repress in any way, the deep and generous sympathy extended to our volunteers. They are worthy of all they receive, and much more. We rejoice at the feelings their manly deeds have evoked, and see in it another mighty lever in the unification of our race. By such brave heroism as they have hitherto displayed, nations become "great, glorious and free." But we know how extremes meet. Enthusiasm bursts out in sudden eruptions as volcanoes belch out lava and scoria. And too often the fires thus swiftly kindled leave only smoke and disaster behind.

It has been so in the past with regard to the volunteer movement. Let our people determine to show more cheerful alacrity in sustaining and aiding the volunteers in the piping times of peace as well as when rebellion lifts its hated head. And let us above all else be prepared to sustain and help with liberal gifts and generous offerings, those needy and bereft ones in our own land, whose hearts have been crushed with the bitterest of all sorrows, and whose homes have been desolated by the dread scourge of war.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada

[No. 2.]

Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

"Poet, Historian, the Forum's bright glory—
Light lie the sod, noble D'Arcy on thee;
Blest be thy name till the ages are hoary—
Honor'd, oft' uttered in prayer, song and story,
O desthless McGee!"
—Anon.

The career of the Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee and the tragic circumstances attending his mournful end, are well known throughout the whole Dominion. His name, indeed, is still a household word among us. And yet, while many remember him as the skillful Canadian statesman, orator and politician, few there are who recognize in him the clever poet, author and essayist. We are not alone in holding firmly the opinion, that had McGee chosen to devote himself to literature, he would, if spared, have reached a very high niche in the temple of fame. As it is, his name is worthy to be remembered, as one who did much, under very adverse and untoward circumstances, for the literature of his adopted country. His work as a poet was chiefly the result of hasty moments snatched from other arduous and pressing occupations. In consequence of this his literary productions are, many of them, fragmentary and incomplete, but what remains prove conclusively that his warm heart, impulsive energy, true patriotism and lyrical taste and skill give breadth and colour to his poetical productions and mark him as a poet of no mean order

We propose on this occasion to sketch briefly the life and work of our author, and in a future issue will give some specimens of his poetry.

Thomas D'Arcy McGee was born at Carlingford, in the county of Louth, Ireland, on the 13th of April, 1825. He was nurtured and brought up amid the very beautiful and romantic scenery of Rosstrevor, and the wild scenes of his childhood no doubt fostered largely that poetic fancy which tinged his speeches in after years, and infused itself into his more important poems. When about eight years of age, his father removed to Wexfordshire, and here D'Arcy McGee laid the foundation of what, in that day, was esteemed a very liberal education. It is said that even then his love for history and poetry was excessive, and he greedily devoured all that came within his reach. When but a youth he seems to have looked upon America with longing eyes, as a land of liberty and freedom, where all the oppressed found a ready welcome, and where he, like some of his own nation, could soon secure wealth and fame and "troops of friends."

He was little over seventeen when his project of emigrating was carried out. He arrived in Boston in June, 1842, when he joined the newspaper press, delivered lectures on various subjects, and eventually made his mark as a public speaker. His first position was in connection with the Boston Pilot, a widely circulated Irish-American journal, in whose columns McGee, by his skillful advocacy and splendid eloquence soon rendered his countrymen good service in the Repeal movement. In 1845, through the advice of Dan. O'Connell, he was offered a position on the Dublin Freeman's Journal, and accepted it. Hence his speedy return to Ireland no longer, however, an unknown, unnoticed youth, but a clever journalist, who had already gained proud laurels in the cause of Irish freedom, both at home and abroad.

Of his career in Dublin, Mr. Fennings Taylor gives a good account. He says: "Ardent by temperament and enthusiastic by disposition, it was impossible for Mr. McGee to keep within the bounds of moral force which Mr. O'Connell had prescribed and which the newspaper he served was instructed to advocate. Mr. McGee felt that such fetters galled him, and he became impatient under restraint. Following the lead of his feelings, he determined at all hazards to associate himself with the more advanced and enthusiastic of the liberal party then known by the name of "Young Ireland." Of such hot blood was that party compounded, that little surprise was occasioned and none was expressed, when its mischievous revels were broken up by the Riot Act. The coterie was not without adherents, neither was it without attraction, and especially to the class, a by no means inconsiderable one, whose judgment is controlled by their imagination, and who seem to think that feeling and wisdom are identical qualities. We decline to indicate those attractions by any particular name. We all know that they were failures, and since time tempers judgment, we venture to believe that the actors of that day concur with the critics of the present time in thinking that they were follies."

This certainly was the case so far as McGee himself was concerned. He lived to bitterly lament his part in inciting the "Young Ireland" rebellion in 1848. In that year McGee escaped to America, in the disguise of a Roman priest. He had scarcely landed when he took steps to found the New York Nation, and, with characteristic energy, issued the first number within sixteen days of his arrival. In this organ he gave expression to such strong sentiments regarding the Irish priesthood, blaming them for the recent revolutionary collapse, that he was obliged to give up all connection with the paper and finally to leave the city. In 1850, he founded the American Celt, which he published, first in Boston and, afterwards, in Buffalo. From this period his principles underwent a change; he was no longer the instigator of rebellion and anarchy, but the friend and promoter of peace and good government. He desired now to make his countrymen good citizens of their adopted land and lovers of their native country, while he employed every legitimate method to stimulate their social and moral well-being, by means of lectures and associations, instead of through impracticable schemes of revolution. In fact, from being an out-and-out Radical, he became a calm Conservative, who hated fiery denunciation and the cant of faction as much as he had formerly loved them.

In 1857 he received an invitation to remove to Montreal, and the change in his opinions, as well as his growing dislike to Republican institutions, made the offer most acceptable. He gladly consented to make Canada his future home, and at once began the publication of another organ—The New Era—in the city of Montreal. The remainder of his career is well known to most of our readers. He was returned to Parliament by his countrymen as one of the members for Montreal before a year had expired, and was again chosen, we believe, for three successive elections afterwards by acclamation. From May 1862 to 1863 he held office as President of the Executive Council; and again, from April, 1864, until 1867, as Minister of Agriculture. As a public man he identified himself specially with two prominent and important subjects—Immigration and the Union of the Provinces; and of these he was an earnest and consistent advocate. The great Act of Confederation was happily effected before his untimely end.

He was very soon looked upon as the ablest speaker in the country, the very life and light of the Canadian Legislature. In 1865 his countrymen in Montreal presented him with a handsome residence, suitably furnished, as a tangible evidence of the esteem and admiration in which they held him. He visited both the Dublin and Paris Expositions, attending the latter as Canadian Commissioner. His strong and determined opposition to the Fenian movement, as "a conspiracy against law and order," made him many bitter enemies. He severely denounced their intention of invading the Dominion, and used his powerful and scathing pen to set forth the hollowness and injustice of their cause before his countrymen. In consequence of this action the Fenians were terribly enraged, and all sorts of vile calumnies were started in order to injure him. The Irish of Montreal, hitherto his staunch friends, were made to look upon him as a traitor, and, to their eternal shame, many of them believed the dastardly reports. At the next election the Irish Roman Catholics opposed him, but again he came off victorious, though the success cost him his life. The very night before his death he delivered a noble speech in Parliament on cementing Confederation by bonds of mutual kindness and good will. His mellifluous voice had scarcely ceased when "the great orator, the preacher of peace, the sagacious statesman, the gifted son of song, the loved of many hearts, had ceased to live!"

He was shot on the 7th of April, 1868, just as he reached his temporary home in Ottawa, the wounds causing instant death. His death was secret and unseen, the work of a prowling, midnight assassin; but his funeral rites were grand and imposing, being solemnized by special services in Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax.

One of his biographers says: "Far away from the green churchyard where the ashes of his parents rest in the friendly embrace of the land of their birth—in the New World, far over the sea, in the land of his adoption, high up on the the sunny side of beautiful 'Mount Royal,' which, sloping towards the far-famed St. Lawrence, laves its foot in the limpid waters of the majestic river, overlooking the fair city of Montreal, where for years his voice was the most potent, his smile the most friendly, his influence in all that was most noble, patriotic and good, was most felt, sleeps the greatest poet, orator, statesman, historian, the best, the truest friend, counsellor, and guide of the Irish race in America. His grave is bedewed by a young nation's tears; his memory lives, and shall live, in that young nation's heart; his name and fame shall cast lustre on the pages of her history, and his life-labours stand forth as an example worthy of emulation to future millions."

PERSONAL.

Mr. John McLennan, of Lindsay, has been appointed Sheriff of Victoria in the stead of George Kempt, deceased.

Mr. Max. Dennistoun has returned home from attendance on lectures at Queen's College, Kingston.

Mr. Rawlings, of Chatham, Past Grand Master, visited Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows on Thursday night.

Mr. John Kincaid, building contractor, Omemee, and family have removed to Peterborough, which will be their future home.

Mr. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, is absent in Welland, attending the trial of "Clutch" O'Donoghue, arrested in connection with the robbery of the post office here.

Mr. Geo. Munro, formerly of Peterborough, now of Brighton, Ont., paid us a visit on Wednesday. He is visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Carlisle. We were glad to see him so well.

Mr. Alfred Johnston, of Stonewall, Man., has returned to Peterborough on a visit. Mr. Johnston looks well, and his many friends here hope that he may take up his abode here permanently.

On Monday Mr. Geo. A. Cox was elected a director of the Toronto General Trusts Co'y. Mr. Cox besides owning (nearly) Peterborough, seems to have a hand in the leading financial institutions of this province.

Mr. Hugh Ross, of Ross & Co., clothiers, has received a letter from his brother, Mr. A. Ross, detailing the narrow escape of the latter at the battle of Fish Creek, in which he was engaged, two bullets having grazed his person.

Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, D. W. Dumble, and James Stephenson were in Port Hope on Monday looking after their property interests there and providing for its improvement. Port Hope has to have a little stimulus of Peterborough enterprise to keep life in her.

Capt. Brown, of Boulton's scouts, who was killed at the storming of Battoche, on Monday, is a twin brother of Mr. Stewart Brown, Douro, who lives near the Red Mills. The deceased officer will be well remembered by many of his former school mates in Peterborough.

A. L. DAVIS & Co.

Frank A. Robbin's New Shows, Museum, 2-Ring Circus, and 50 Cage Menagerie.

This mammoth and deservedly popular tented exhibition is to give two performances here Thursday, May 28th, and has added largely to its long and satisfactory catalogue of novelties seen in previous years. For five years this sterling exhibition has been a power in the land, and has advanced so rapidly to the front that it is now more than the acknowledged peer of the leading shows of the world. In the selection of his features and attractions from year to year, Mr. Robbins has exhibited rare tact and superior judgment, and he has stopped at no cost, no matter however great to render his the more meritorious and preferable of all travelling shows. This season more than ever before he has bended every faculty, employed all his wonted energy, and expended every resource to make his gigantic enterprise the standard and pattern for all others to follow; and there is no doubt he has succeeded beyond even his most sanguine hopes and that he has actually "builded better than he knew." The circus in double rings is an innovation and has already grown unprecedentedly popular. The large number of performers from almost every clime under the sun made this step imperative and absolutely necessary. In no other way could the multiplicity of acts, feats and deeds by the greatest artists living, be presented. The trained and well-educated animals—including the clown elephant, whose tricks and antics are ludicrous, surprising and inimitable—are the most perfect and numerous ever tutored by human teachers. The menagerie is large in proportions, and is exhibited in fifty palace dens, vieing with the wonders of the rare museum in elaborateness and perfection. The regal parade, which always occurs in the forenoon hours of exhibition day, gives some idea of the magnitude of the grand entertainment. Do not fail to see it and the quarter of a hundred beautiful lady riders.

(LATE ROGERS' MILLS.)

H. A. MULHERN

Takes pleasure in announcing that he has started up the above well-known Flour Mills, which are now in complete running order.

Having at a large expense, put in the FULL ROLLER SYSTEM, with the Latest Improvements in use, I respectfully solicit the patronage of all the old customers of this favorite Mill, and all others who may favor me with their trade.

As I have had a lengthened experience in the Milling Business, and with a Mill now so thoroughly equipped as this is, the public may depend upon being supplied with a Quality of Flour Superior to any produced in this District.

Families, House-keepers, Farmers, Bakers and Consumers generally, can have their orders filled with promptness and care. Orders left with Messrs. RUSH & ELLIOTT, W. J. MORROW & CO., and other Grocery Stores, and at G. W. MORGAN'S Drug Store, will be sen to tthe Mill by Telephone.

FARMERS' GRISTINGS will have special attention. Oatmeal exchanged for Oats. Highest price paid for Wheat and Oats.

H. A. MULHERN,
Successor to the Late G. C. Rogers.

From the Midland Battalion.

Mr. Thomas Graham, formerly a type in this office, and a member of No. 3 Company, 57th Batt., sends us the following interesting letter, which we publish with pleasure, hoping to hear from him often:—

CAMP MAPLE CREEK, May 3rd, 1885.

DEAR EXAMINER,—Acting on the suggestion of many members of the company I have consented to try my hand at a short account of our doings in the North-West, for which I hope you will find space in your columns. I suppose you have read ere this full accounts of our marches across the "gaps," and heard more of them than of Bonaparte's retreat from Moscow. What chiefly surprised us on these marches was the strange and wonderful idea of distances that the inhabitants of the Lake Superior region seem to possess. A weary soldier, stumbling along track across the lake, would hail a returning mule driver with an inquiry as to the distance to be traversed and would probably receive the encouraging answer of "Five miles" Roused up by the assurance, he would step out manfully for a mile or so till he hails another, who, with a solemn face, answers, "Ten miles," and so on, till we finally put no faith in any one who talked of distances, not even the "oldest inhabitant." We suffered some discomfort, but it was not of much account to most of us, but

THE SLIPPERY AND SLUSHY

SLEEPING WITH THE SKY FOR A ROOF

and the thermometer crawling around away below zero is not the pleasantest thing in the world, at least for a typo. An outsider might think that some of our doctors were humorists to hear them sometimes. One of our company went to one of our doctors, after sleeping out all night, to get something for a cold and sore throat. The doctor looked serious; looked at his tongue; felt his pulse; and asked him had he a warm and comfortable place to sleep in at night. My friend looked at him for a moment and answered that he had a share of the general bed the night before, which was a bed of snow, with his feet to the fire.

On our arrival at Winnipeg we expected to have a few days to ourselves, but were disappointed, as an order came for us to PROCEED TO THE FRONT AT ONCE.

We were marching up Main street when the command, "Halt! Front!" rang out. We came to our front, forming a long and steady line, and Col. Williams read the despatch ordering us off again. The men gave three hearty cheers, tossed their caps into the air, and immediately "Fours right! quick march!" was heard, and back to the station we went, and were soon en route for the scene of the trouble.

After leaving Brandon, where we were so well treated, we got additional news, to the effect that we were to form part of Col. Otter's column for the relief of Battleford; and again the warlike enthusiasm of our men was but eventually we went on to Swift Current, passing Qu'Appelle on our way. We reached Swift Current about three o'clock in the afternoon, and pitched our tents in the middle of a gale of wind and rain, and also on the prairie, and we were soon very comfortable, and cheered by the expectation of soon going to the front and having a crack at the breeds, which seemed to be the earnest wish of every man, especially as regards "G" Company.

WORKED UP TO A HIGH PITCH;

A day or two after two companies of our left wing went to the Saskatchewan. Well, we did not like that idea of dividing, but it had to be done; besides, we expected to follow them in a day or two, and in the meantime devoted ourselves to hard and steady drill, consisting of battalion movements and skirmishing, particularly the latter, which is most important in the style of warfare required here. Under our efficient officers, Captain Burke and Lieut. Brennan, you may be sure that

"G" IS NOT THE WORST COMPANY

in the Battalion. In shooting, also, our company took the first place, the best score in the battalion being made by Mr. William Reynolds, of No. 2 Company, 57th, our average score being the highest in the battalion. Shortly after the ball practice the whole of our right wing was ordered off to Clark's Crossing, which left only "G" and "H" Companies at the Current, and pretty lonesome companies they were when they saw their comrades marched away, to possible battle. Still we did not despair, but hoped our turn would soon come to go too. Swift Current is situated in a pretty valley surrounded with low hills in all directions, with a break in them to the north-east, where the river flows. There are plenty of specimens of the "noble red man" around here; some of whom are quite dudeish in their own fashion, but the most of them are anything but noble in appearance or attire, and it does not conduce to the dignity of a chief to see him scrambling hastily after a handful of hard-tack, which a Red Coat has thrown to him. We regard the storekeepers as sharks, and our sworn enemies, their prices for everything are so enormous. We remained at Swift Current up to yesterday, (May 2nd). The boys are all continuing to

GET FAT ON THE GOVERNMENT RATIONS

of hard-tack and canned meat; and in the meantime the 7th Fusiliers, of London, the 9th of Quebec, the 66th of Halifax, and some artillery from Halifax, all arrived and pitched their tents on the ground close by us. Then we began to give up hope of going to the front, and there was much grumbling indulged in, and some of our enthusiasm began to abate. On Thursday last ten of our men, selected from volunteers, were sent to assist the boats in the Saskatchewan, by taking the supplies on barges, and the next day we got orders to hold ourselves in readiness to proceed at once to Maple Creek, where an Indian outbreak was feared, and on Saturday morning we embarked for our present abiding place. It is far and away the BEST PLACE WE HAVE STOPPED IN YET,

being a pretty little settlement of about 150 souls. Away to the south rise the Cypress Hills, standing out against the sky in bold relief and well clad with jack pine and other timber. They are 20 miles from here, but they do not look to be more than five miles. Maple Creek, a beautiful little stream, winds past our camp; it is thickly fringed with soft maple, which is a perfect godsend to us who have not seen a shrub for weeks, and we all enjoy these, filled as they are with singing birds.

Close to us is Fort Maple Creek, a large barrack, in which are quartered about 50 Mounted Policemen, and fine fellows they are, all of them. It is very warm here now, with delightfully pure and healthy air, and we can get plenty of fresh beef at reasonable prices. We were agreeably surprised to find including Mr. John Dixon, formerly of the firm of Dixon, Bros., Peterborough who does the chief trade of the village and surrounding country, and is a general favorite Mr. English, formerly of Ounemee, keeps the International Hotel, and he did not know how to do enough for us when he found we were from Peterborough. The boys all agree in pronouncing that the best place we have yet been in, and would not mind stopping here a while. There are said to be swarms of Blackfeet and Cree Indians in the vicinity, and our duty will be to look after them, which I guess we will succeed in doing. Our Battalion is so woefully split up that we are afraid we will be all entirely lost before long, but letters addressed to the "G" Company, Midland Battalion, will find us all right. All our boys are well, with but two exceptions, (one we left in the hospital at Winnipeg, and one was sent home from Swift Current). T. G.

WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE, but not found wanting. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure has been weighed in that just balance, the experience of an impartial and intelligent public. Both remedially and pecuniarily it is a success. Its sales constantly increase, testimony in its favor is daily pouring in. The question of its efficacy in Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Kidney Ailments, and for Blood Impurity, is decided.

LAKEFIELD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

NEARLY CHOKED.

On Saturday last Sarah a daughter of Mr. Thos. Gordon was nearly choked to death by a crust of bread sticking in the throat. She had been eating alone at the table when she was noticed by one of the family with her head on the table and quite black in the face. Mrs. Gordon was immediately called and found the child quite motionless as well as unconscious, and thought her dead. She took her to the open air, and with some difficulty got her fingers into the mouth and removed the crust before the medical man, who had been summoned in the meantime, arrived.

TESTIMONIAL.

The testimonial to be presented to Major Boulton, commanding the scouts in the North-west, is to be a splendid repeating rifle and Colt revolver. The Major was the first reeve of Lakefield and will be gratified to know he is not forgotten.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

WINDOW BREAKING.

On Tuesday evening of last week some mischievous boy, or boys, broke a number of panes of glass in the school windows. Boys who are guilty of such work, if they have come to the years of understanding, deserve a year or two in the reformatory.

ARBOR DAY.

This day was not observed by our villagers. Our school trustees should have set an example; but they, it appears, considered it more advisable to keep school open. In our opinion the day might have been spent with good profit in clearing and decorating the grounds. The establishment of an Arbor Day for the schools by the Educational Department is an admirable idea, and cannot but lead to good results in the near future. We trust our school trustees will view the matter in a different light next year, and that the day will be observed, and every assistance and encouragement given to the children on their Arbor Day.

FARMING.

Up to the present the prospect for good crops here this summer is very slight. Very little seeding has been done, and all kinds of farm work is very backward, the weather being so wet and cold.

Ginghams, Ginghams. A large stock of new Ginghams to arrive this week at Turnbull's. Look for them.

APSLEY.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mrs. Tumblison and Miss Charleton were arraigned before Mr. James Golborne, J. P., on Monday evening, the 4th inst., for keeping a disorderly house: there were several witnesses examined. Mr. Golborne sent them to Peterborough jail for 21 days. Constable Lane escorted them on the stage last Tuesday.

Old Mrs. Tumblison will be sorry to learn that her house was burned to the ground on last Thursday night, the 7th inst., at about 9 o'clock at night by some parties unknown. The house was situated about three miles on the east road from Apsley.

OBITUARY.

We are sorry to have to chronicle the death of Sergeant James Tanner, of Chandos. He emigrated to this country about ten years ago, and settled at Loon lake, in Chandos. He leaves a wife and ten children to mourn his loss; he was a very useful member of the church. He and Corporal John Young superintended the Sunday School in St. Stephen's church last summer. He enlisted in the 32nd regimment of foot on the 16th of July, 1855, at Bristol, and embarked at Gravesend on the 21st of July, 1855, for the East Indies, and was at Lucknow the time of the mutiny. He had a medal with several clasps on it. He belonged to the 69th hospital corps.

BAILLIEBORO SPRING SHOW.

The Baillieboro Union Agricultural Society held their first Spring show, on Thursday, April 30th. There was a large attendance, and the number of entries far exceeded the most sanguine expectations; the stock was first-class. The following is a list of the prize winners:—

IMPORTED HEAVY DRAUGHT.—1, Johnson & Wilson, "Criffle;" 2, W. M. Fair, "John Anderson;" 3, W. M. Fair, "Dollar Boy."

CANADIAN BRED HEAVY DRAUGHT.—1, H. Henders, "Pride of Ontario;" 2, R. W. Bothwell, "Ontario Chief;" 3, Jas. McLarance, "Clansman."

AGRICULTURAL, OR GENERAL PURPOSE.—1, Rodger Gist, "General Middleton;" 2, W. Locke, "Comet;" 3, John Arnott, "Donald Dinnie."

ROADSTER.—1, W. Oakes, "Highland Boy;" 2, W. Dickey, "Victor Gold Dust;" 3, F. Burk, "Windsor."

DURHAM BULLS, AGED.—All pedigree animals, 8 entries—1, W. Redmond, "Challenge;" 2, Alex. Anderson, ——.

YEARLING.—1, W. Ratherford, "Sir Isaacs;" 2, Geo. Berry, ——.

The judges were Mr. Noakes, Boston; W. Gisher, V. S., Baillieboro; N. Ragaislin, Montreal.—Guide.

Victory at Last.

Consumption, the greatest curse of the age, the destroyer of thousands of our brightest and best, is conquered. It is no longer incurable. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a certain remedy for this terrible disease if taken in time. All scrofulous diseases—consumption is a scrofulous affection of the lungs—can be cured by it. Its effects in diseases of the throat and lungs are little less than miraculous. All druggists have it.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY

To be Right Royally Remembered.

Monday, May 25th, is to be observed as a holiday, and the preparations now in progress indicate that this anniversary will be celebrated this year in Peterborough in a thoroughly enthusiastic manner. If is to be an all-day celebration, the Athletic Association leading off with a splendid programme of sports and games, to be presented on the Cricket Grounds, Ashburnham, on Monday forenoon. There will be handsome medals, cups and prizes presented for excellence in sixteen different athletic events. These will be succeeded in the afternoon by a baseball match between the Silver Stars, of Peterborough, and the Lindsay club. One of the town bands will furnish music. No doubt the grand preparations made will draw a great crowd, which will be well rewarded for its attendance. Admission to the grounds 15 cents.

IN THE AFTERNOON

the Peterborough Driving Park Association will present a varied and attractive programme at the Driving Park. The first part of the programme will consist of fourteen athletic sporting events, including professional half-mile and 100-yards races, bicycle races, etc., etc. Concurrently with these will be brought on a fine set of horse races, including trotting race, running race, hurdle race, farmers' trot and green race, for good substantial purses. Those races are open to three counties, and, as many first-class horses are already entered, they will be both exciting and interesting. During the day a lacrosse match will be played between the Peterboroughs and the Ontarios, of Toronto. As both are first-class clubs a fine game may be expected.

In the evening a grand masquerade carnival will be held in the new mammoth Charlotte-street Roller Skating Rink, which will be a blaze of gorgeous attractions. Admission to the Driving Park, 25 cents; to the carnival, 25 cents.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—A number of anonymous complaints as to alleged nuisances having been sent in to me, I beg leave to inform those making such complaints that in all cases the name of the writer must be given. Charges have been brought up from time to time which on examination were found to be bogus and caused great annoyance to innocent persons. The name will not necessarily be made known but is required as a guarantee of good faith.

I may also call the attention of those interested to the fact that the 15th of May is at hand by which time all yards and premises must be cleaned up.

Yours,
J. CLARKE,
Medical Health Officer.

Peterboro', 13th May, 1885.

C. P. R. "EXTORTION."

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—About the end of March, my son, James Franks, of Emily, chartered from Mr. A. Elliott, C. P. R. Agent, Peterboro', a car for the conveyance of stock, etc., to Moosejaw, N. W. T., and paid for the car $187.50. My son accompanied the car intending to settle at Moosejaw. But great was his surprise and indignation to find when he arrived at St. Vincent, he was required to pay $63 additional; under threat of being taken no further, he was forced to submit to the extortion. Now, Mr. Editor, I wish to know if the C. P. R., subsidised and pampered with the people's money, is to be allowed thus to bleed their pockets twice as they have done in the case of my son. I have made up my mind not to submit to this extortion, and will see if the law will not compel the Company to disgorge the amount paid above, what their agent fairly agreed to charge for the car to Moosejaw. Mr Elliott distinctly stated there would be no further charge than the $187.50 as first agreed on.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM FRANKS.

Emily, May 12th, 1885.

Editorial Notes.

The total number of loyal Canadians thus far sacrificed on the altar of government incompetence, in connection with the claims of the Half-breeds, and the treatment of the Indians, in the Northwest, amounts to 47, besides a large number wounded.

The journalistic hirelings of the government advocate another "give away" to the C. P. R., on the grounds of its advantage to Canada. But the question arises, what benefit it will be if the country is bankrupted, to pay for the extravagant schemes of the company, and to admit of the directors paying themselves big dividends the road never earned, out of capital supplied by the tax payers of Canada.

The Review censures Reform journals for not forgetting party differences, when "rebellion raises its horrid head." It asserts that the members of the Administration have enough to "tax their energies," in putting down the rebellion. Yet the members of the Administration can find time "at such a crisis" to concoct and attempt to force upon the country without explanation or discussion, one of the foulest schemes of pestilent partyism, the depraved human heart ever conceived. The Franchise Bill is not needed by the country now, and why does not the Review call upon the Government, when "its energies are taxed" so greatly to put down the rebellion, to forego the passage of legislation, aimed solely at the service of party ends, that is, to keep the present Conservative Administration in power.

In the Commons on Saturday the longest sitting on record was brought to a close at midnight, after the House had been sitting without intermission, except the recess from six p. m. to eight, provided for by the rule of the House, since 3 p. m. on Thursday. Including an aggregate of six hours of these recesses, the House sat continuously for 75 hours, which is more than double the longest sitting up to that of last Monday and Tuesday. The subject of debate was the Franchise Bill. The Government, with the aim of choking off discussion, asserted its determination to force the bill through before an adjournment would be allowed. This the Opposition refused to permit, and by keeping up a discussion, in which was exposed the iniquitous features of the bill, thus staved off an adjournment. The Tories call it "obstruction" when the Opposition refuse to allow the passage of an unrighteous law without discussion or explanation—yes, obstruction to the scheme to disfranchise Liberal voters by the thousand, to allow the Government to retain power. In that sense, it is obstruction, and a very good kind too.

Mr. Wm. Ross has resigned the agency of the Confederation Life Assurance Company here, and has taken the agency for the Mutual Reserve of New York, for two or three western Counties. He is now absent attending to his new duties. His headquarters will be in Toronto, whither his family will remove about the end of June.

SUN

Insurance on Volunteers!

The agitation regarding the policies on the lives of our Volunteers has induced many persons to read their policies for the first time. Too many of our Volunteers have found that their policies are null and void just when they are most needed. It is true that some companies return the small amount paid in premiums in case the assured be killed during the rebellion, but this is a mere trifle. These brave men are risking their lives in the defence of our country, they derive no profit by going, but are in fact losing, and it is terrible to think that many are also losing their life policies, and if killed will leave their wives and children to the cold charities of the world. The policies of probably the majority of companies doing business in Canada become null and void in case of death during the rebellion, although many of them AS AN ACT OF GRACE have voluntarily stated they will hold them good. It is at a time like this that the UNCONDITIONAL policies of the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA are appreciated. They cover every risk. It is not a matter of option with the management, for the policy is clear. There is no excuse for accepting a policy with numerous small print conditions when you can get an UNCONDITIONAL ONE in the SUN.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,

THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The London Casket," "Thornicroft's Model," &c. &c.

He left her, and hardly had he gone before she flung herself into a corner of the sofa and sobbed convulsively—the strain had been almost beyond her strength.—Before many minutes had passed, the door opened once more. Lucy did not look up; her eyes were full of tears, her heart very sore, her head very weary; her only thought was, "He has come back. Oh! I cannot, cannot bear to go through all that again. How cruel!"

Some one came towards her, flung himself on his knees took her hand. She turned and looked through her tears—it was Robert Merivale himself!

"Lucy, my dear, dear Lucy, you do love me a little! You are crying. You are unhappy. Have some pity on me. Have some belief in me. I have loved you, and you only, ever since I first saw you!"

Then she sprang to her feet, and tore her hand away from him. "Spare me!" she said faintly. "Why are you here?"

"I ought to be here! Lucy, you are not happy."

"I know I am not. I do not deny it," said she.

"You do love me a little, Lucy."

"I know I do."

"Ah! Thank God! My uncle made me so wretched. He said there was no hope for me; but there is a chance of happiness yet."

"Not in the way you mean. I never can forgive what happened at Hazelwood! It is cruel of you to give me this pain.—You ought not to have come here! I've been trying to overcome what I felt for you. I was getting over it—and now you come and I shall have to begin afresh."

"No, you shall not begin. You own you love me a little. I love you most passionately! My darling Lucy, let us love each other and be happy."

"I happy with you, after that letter—"

"How cruel to remind me! Don't you know that it was written wholly and solely because——"

"Oh!" cried Lucy, "spare me all that! I know it so well."

"But, Lucy, you must have seen that I loved you."

"Valuable love, indeed!" cried Lucy.

"It was true—you were not much more than a girl when I first saw you; I loved you then, and I have loved you ever since! So help me God, I have not known a happy hour since last I saw you!" He saw a movement of impatience and disbelief, and cried, "You do not believe me—I tell you I nearly shot myself one night lately! I should have done it if it had not been for my uncle. He said he would come and talk to you."

"No talking can change me," said Lucy.

"Listen to the feeling in your own heart, which tells you to forgive me and to love me—you know you would be happier if you yielded—Dear Lucy you do not know how good I will be to you."

Lucy was still standing by the sofa—he was standing by her—her eyes were cast down; she dared not let them meet his.—His voice made her tremble, his words stirred her profoundly. She saw his hand quivering with desire to clasp hers which was near it; she knew she loved him still. Alas, she knew also that she despised him, and that if she lived to be a hundred, she should never cease to do so when she remembered that letter. Would it be possible to love him and set it aside? She wondered if that could be.

What if she drove him to kill himself? Now when he left her she would be more miserable than ever, for that dread would be added to her other pain. She felt his fingers touch hers—should she—could she yield? She felt his hand close on hers, and still she stood as if spell-bound.

"Lucy," said he, "my whole life shall be spent in showing my love and gratitude." Then he was making sure of her forgiveness.

Her strength came back to her; she wrenched her hand away—"Oh, no, no, no," she cried, "you are are quite wrong! I cannot listen to you. I do not believe in your love. You cannot make me believe in it. Good-bye, and for ever." Before he could prevent her she was gone. She dared not stay;—the temptation to listen to him, and thus at once and forever to quiet the aching pain she felt in her heart was so great. She was true to her resolution; if she had stayed she might perhaps have yielded. She ran back to the room where she had left Mrs. Lishman, and to her surprise found her still there, walking up and down and waiting for her. She did not know that the poor woman was feeling very anxious about her. Lucy saw a motherly look in Mrs. Lishman's face—a look of pitying kindness. She ran up to her and threw her arms around her, and said, "Oh, Mrs. Lishman, I am such a poor miserable girl!"

"My poor lamb, I am afraid so."

"Will he follow me, do you think?—Make him go if he does. I cannot, cannot see him again."

"You shall not see him unless you like! You have come bravely out of it, I can see that," said Mrs. Lishman, who knew all that could be told by the Mostyns' servants, and by the familiar process of putting two and two together.

"If I only had Aunt Esther here," said Lucy, "I am so alone!"

"Not alone," said Mrs. Lishman, "leastways not if you will count me as anybody. Miss Clavering, if you will trust me, I'll do anything I can for you." After that day, if Mrs. Lishman had been Lucy's own mother she could not have been more devoted to her.

CHAPTER V.

It was a very long time before Lucy recovered from the pain caused by these two visits. She could not read or work as before, and when April came she could not go to Calderwater. She had a great desire to get away into the country, but her doctor would not let her go. The only occupation in which she now took any pleasure was painting. Mr. Fraser of the Old Water-Color Society, was her master, and under his tuition she made great progress; but the burden of his song was always "Go to nature as soon as possible.—She is the best teacher—the only one indeed, when once you know how to draw tolerably and to lay on a wash. You look, Miss Clavering as if a little country air would do you good too," said he, one day."

"Yes, I have been wanting to go to Calderwater for a long time."

"I don't wonder at anyone's wanting to go to Calderwater; at least, not if young Richmond paints it faithfully."

Lucy was interested, languidly interested; her spirits were low now, but she roused herself to ask who he was.

"One of our last elected associates. If he goes on he has a splendid future before him."

"Will he go on?" asked Lucy.

"I don't know; so many of these young fellows surprise you by an extraordinary good picture or two one year, and never do much more."

There was a silence; then Mr. Fraser said, "This is the last lesson but one, Miss Clavering, that I shall have the pleasure of giving you until the autumn. I suppose you will come back to town again then, like the rest of us. I am going to Brittany for a few months' sketching."

"Are you? I wish my doctor would let me go to some nice place. He will keep me here—and when my drawing lessons are over I don't know what I shall do.—They are my one great pleasure! Do you think anyone else would give me some lessons while you are away?"

"Undoubtedly, Miss Clavering, you will easily find a master, but I shall not like losing such a promising pupil."

"Only while you are in Brittany, Mr. Fraser; I hope you will teach me when you return. Please think of some one who would come to me in the meantime."

"Perhaps this very Mr. Richmond would—but you might not like his style, it means work, I can tell you! Will you and Miss Moore come with me to the Gallery, and see what you think of it?"

They did so, and Lucy thought she had never in her life seen anything so beautiful as these drawings of Mr. Richmond's—they were so tender, refined, and poetical, so full of air and sunlight. "They are nature itself!" cried she, "I never saw anything more lovely! This Mr. Richmond paints with jewels. And, oh, what heavenly scenery! I had no idea Calderwater was so beautiful. Is it really painted there?" She looked at the catalogue and read, "No. 15—View from a Cumberland Garden. No. 26—Calderwater, Evening."

"They are both painted at Calderwater. One is from Calder-Grange, the other merely a general view, he told me so himself."

The Grange belonged to Lucy; the garden must be a terrestrial paradise, and she at once resolved that in one month's time she would go there, whether her doctor gave his consent or not. He did not know the cause of her illness half as well as she did herself. If the place were like this the mere sight of it would do much to restore her.

"Yes," said Mr. Fraser, looking admiringly at the drawings with no signs of vexation or disappointment at the most evident fact that two of his own works, which hung near, were completely eclipsed by them. "Yes, that is a really clever fellow. There is a touch of downright genius in the way that he has managed that bit of cloud composition in the centre."

"They are beautiful drawings!" said Lucy. "Why should I not buy them?" was her next thought. Up to this time she had scarcely exercised her newly-gained power of buying anything she fancied; indeed, her spirits had not been good enough to allow her to have many fancies. But these gem-like drawings touched her to the heart. "I wonder whether they are sold?" said she.

"If they are, you can easily get another drawing of the same subject, if you want one. I was in Richmond's studio a month ago, just at sending-in time, and he was in a terrible way because he could not get a big morning-subject done. It was this very view from the garden—a sunrise, I believe."

"What is Mr. Richmond like?"

"He is young and good-looking—yes, very good-looking—for he is a tall, well-made fellow, and full of energy and courage. It was a great piece of good luck for a youngster like him to get into the society, but he quite deserved his success."

One drawing was unsold. Lucy bought it, and straightway the keeper began an epistle to Mr. Richmond to this effect:—"Sir,—I beg to inform you that your drawing, No. 15, 'View from a Cumberland Garden,' was this day purchased by Miss Lucy Clavering, of — Chester Square, for the sum of twenty-five guineas."

"I don't think young Richmond has been very prosperous so far," said Mr. Fraser; "you see he has his way to make yet. This will be a nice little help towards his summer's tour."

"What a shame if he has not been prosperous!" said Lucy. "A man who paints as he does ought to have everything the world can give him."

A quiet smile passed over Mr. Fraser's handsome old face. Curious things sometimes happen in this world of ours. Suppose young Richmond—there was no denying he was a handsome fellow—well, suppose he and Miss Clavering took a fancy to each other. It would be a very odd thing. If it did happen, too, no one would ever give a certain [illegible] old drawing-master credit for having brought it about, and yet most assuredly he would have been the one who first set the stone a-rolling.—Mr. Fraser promptly checked this soliloquy, and told himself sharply that he most sincerely hoped nothing of the kind would ever come to pass. It would be a thousand pities if Richmond married an heiress, and such an heiress, too. Why, perhaps it might be the means of preventing the world from possessing one of the greatest painters who had ever lived.

Lucy was jubilant. She made Mr. Fraser and Aunt Esther go back to her picture repeatedly to admire it, and then, when they were engrossed by something else, she, who had just learned her way to the keeper's table and the method of making herself mistress of a drawing, slipped back there and bought a large drawing, of twice the price of Mr. Richmond's, painted by her present kind and generous-minded drawing-master, and told him nothing about it till she bade good-bye at the door of the exhibition, when she said very kindly: "Thanks to you, Mr. Fraser, I have become possessed of two treasures to-day."

As soon as she got home she persuaded Aunt Esther to write a note for her to Mr. Richmond, Lucy dictating in her best highly ceremonious manner. "Miss Esther Moore presents her compliments to Mr. Richmond, and begs to know if, during the ensuing month, he can with convenience to himself give lessons in water-color painting to her niece, Miss Clavering? Miss Clavering has the greatest admiration for Mr. Richmond's beautiful drawings in the Old Water-Color Gallery, and as she wishes to profit as much as possible by his teaching, and will not be long in town, she would like a lesson daily."

"There!" cried Lucy, "will that do?"—Aunt Esther approved. "And now," exclaimed Lucy, "now that I am going to have him for my master, I do think I have a chance of painting better! I believe that drawing of his I bought is the most beautiful picture in the world."

Seeing that this was Lucy's genuine opinion, it was unfortunate that the last post that evening brought her a letter to say that "The View from a Cumberland Garden could not be hers. It was from Mrs. Richmond, the artist's mother, who said that she had been requested by her son, who was out of town for a day or two, to open any letters which came in his absence, and she "begged to inform, Miss Clavering that the drawing No. 15 was not for sale. It had by some mistake been entered on the keeper's list as if for sale, but such was not the case."

"What a disagreeable, rude kind of letter!" cried Aunt Esther.

"I have lost my lovely drawing!" said Lucy, "and he has got a mother who is a dragon! Well, I shall have my lessons—I hope he is not going to be long in coming home."

But the lessons were also denied her; all she received was a very prettily written note from Mr. Richmond himself. It was short: Mr. H. E. Richmond begged to inform Miss Clavering that he could not have the honor of giving her instruction in water-color painting—and that was all—not one word of explanation or regret.

"This is the strangest thing I ever heard of!" said poor Lucy. "He won't let me have his drawing, and he won't let me have his lessons, and yet I know he does give lessons—Mr. Fraser told me that he did, sometimes."

"Show that note to Mr. Fraser, Lucy," said Aunt Esther, "and then you will hear what he says about it."

Mr. Fraser did not say much. Being asked if he did not think it very odd of Mr. Richmond to write such a note, he said it was rather strange; but added, "Miss Clavering, artists are queer people, I am sorry to say."

Lucy's last lesson being now over she took to wandering listlessly about the house again. She missed the little pleasure her drawing lessons had given her.—She could not enjoy anything else. On the stairs, one day, she met her dear Mrs. Lishman, for so she now called her. "I am so stupidly dull, Mrs. Lishman," said she, "and so ashamed of being so; I do so wish I had something nice to do."

"Why don't you sit down to your paper and paints, Miss Clavering, ma'am; you generally seem to amuse yourself pretty well with them."

"But I have not Mr. Fraser now. I like a master to come and tell me how I am going on. It was very tiresome of Mr. Richmond to refuse to give me lessons, was it not?"

"Mr. Richmond! Did you ask him to come here, ma'am?"

"Yes, I got Miss Moore to write and ask him, but he would not. And he would not let me have my drawing either. Fancy, Mrs. Lishman, I bought the most lovely drawing by him of Calderwater, from the garden of Mr. Kenrick's own house; you cannot think how beautiful it was; and after all, Mr. Richmond wrote to say I could not have it. It was not for sale, he said; at least, his mother said so for him."

"Poor young man," said Mrs. Lishman, "you cannot wonder at his being disappointed."

"He need not be disappointed about my buying his drawing! I wanted it! I would have given anything for it! Besides he lives by selling them, they say."

"I don't mean that—I mean disappointed about something else."

"What else? Do you know these Richmonds, Mrs. Lishman?"

"Yes, Miss Clavering, I know them well enough, of course I do."

"But what have they to be so disappointed about? And why need they punish me for what has happened to them? I never either saw them, or did anything to them."

"People can do things to people without seeing them."

"What do you mean? Do you mean that I really have done anything? Tell me all you know about these Richmonds. Please do, Mrs. Lishman; you can't think how very curious I feel!"

"And what the better will you be Miss Clavering, ma'am, for hearing a great deal of disagreeable ins and outs when you need know nothing of them? I am sure you might have lived to be quite an old, old woman—or lady I ought to say, for that's what you would have been—and you would never have heard a word on this subject from me."

"On what subject? Is there a subject? Oh, if there is, be quick, Mrs. Lishman, and tell me all about it, like a dear, sweet, kind creature as you are."

"Well, sit your ways down, then, and I'll begin; but mind, if what I tell you vexes you, Miss Clavering, it is your own bringing on, for, as I said before, you might have gone on living until you were quite an old ——"

"Oh, now, Mrs. Lishman, please, that is not fair. Please do not begin all that again. Let me hear your story at once."

"Well, then, this young Mr. Richmond who paints pictures, his real name is Mr. Hugh Kenrick Richmond, and he is our Mr. Kenrick's own nephew."

"His nephew!" Lucy drew a long breath of dismay. "Then that explains everything," cried she, "That is why they do not like me. He and his mother are the people who ought to have had everything that Mr. Kenrick left to me."

[To be Continued.]

A Woman's Revenge.

The mother of a young Baltimore merchant of great wealth, married to a beautiful wife, had her mind much disturbed at the moment of her great elation over the birth of a red-haired, handsome, dimpled grandson by the receipt of the following letter: "Your son's wife is a nigger. He married a nigger. I am her grandmother, and am what they call a mulatto. You would think she is white like you folks, but she ain't. If you don't believe me come and see me. I send my address." She proceeded to investigate the case and found the statements true. Confronting the wife with the proofs, the wife confessed to her husband that there was a slight drop of African blood in her veins. Her grandmother was a mulatto; her grandfather white; so was her father. The grandmother was addicted to gambling, and had, under threat of exposing her, obtained large sums from the young wife, which were spent in low dives and policy shops. Harassed by the reproaches of her husband for spending so much more money than she could account for, the granddaughter refused to furnish the old woman with any more funds. Her revenge was the letter written to the husband's mother, who had originally opposed the husband's choice, as the girl was employed in a fashionable glove establishment, and was of unknown antecedents. The husband is inclined to stand by his wife, but his mother insists on his beginning a suit for divorce. The marriage, however, is legal.

Verdict of a Baltimore Coroner's jury over a dead colored woman: "We find that she came to her death through natural causes—cramp colic, produced by eating sausage for breakfast—and in the opinion of the jury the sausage was good."

Nothing so suddenly obstructs the perspiration as sudden transitions from heat to cold. Heat rarifies the blood, quickens the circulation and increases the perspiration, but when these are suddenly checked the consequences must be bad. The most common cause of disease is obstructed perspiration, or what commonly goes by the name of catching cold Coughs, colds, sore throat, etc., if attended to in time are easily subdued, but if allowed to run their own course, generally prove the fore-runner of more dangerous diseases. Nine-tenths of the consumptives date their affliction from a neglected cold, and the diseases that are caused by wet feet, damp clothes, or exposure are more numerous than are generally supposed. One of the most efficacious medicines for all diseases of the throat and lungs is Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It promotes a free and easy expectoration, which frees the lungs from viscid phlegm by changing the secretions from a diseased to a healthy state.

"My mother's started thinkin'," said Nellie Smith to Mrs. Smith, who was making a call. "First she sent you coming up the street she said: "There's that horrid Mrs. Smith; I hope she isn't coming here," and a minute after she said, "Oh, dear, I wish—" [illegible] "Nellie, I do believe your mother's [illegible] as sudden. You must give me time to think it over. One week, George, and you shall have your answer."

"HOT-HOUSE" GROWTH IN MANITOBA.

Rapid City (Manitoba) Standard: We have a twig of poplar twenty-three inches long grown this year. You don't believe it, eh? If you call at The Banner, (p. 13, 2, 2) you may see it. (Just below the name.) Last winter Mr. Badger built himself a house of green black poplar, chinking and plastering it. He has lived in it during the winter, and from the heat of the stove the logs have sprouted and grown till the whole inside of the house is almost a mass of foliage.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D. New York City

A NATURAL DEATH.

Two Arkansas acquaintances: "Captain, what was the matter with your son when he died?"

"Nothing the matter with him when he died, except that he was dead."

"Pretty sick though before he died, wasn't he?"

"Well, he wasn't as peart as he had been."

"Died a natural death, I suppose?"

"Yes."

"Whisky?"

"Whisky."

ENGLAND'S WOOD WANTS.

England is the largest importer of wood in Europe, requiring 280,000,000 feet per annum more than she produces. Inasmuch as neither Canada nor the United States can much longer spare large quantities, and since no European country can now produce much more than is required for home consumption, while almost all of them are importers, Great Britain must ere long depend on her own resources. There are extensive tracts of land in Ireland and Scotland that might be profitably devoted to forest culture.

Catarrh - A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This in none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefited, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov 17, 1883. 48-52t

Capping the Climax.

"Mr. Plumbottle," said an Austin man, "I hear from numerous parties around town that you are an awful liar, one of those Jumbo prevaricators who stretch the truth from Orient to Occident without snapping it once. How is it?"

"Well, well," meekly replied Mr Plumbottle, "I don't know about that. I never made any such extravagant claims as you speak of, and I haven't the least doubt in the world but that even you could lay me out in the shade if I told the first story."

"Well, so long as you keep within the shadow of truth I might keep somewhere in sight of you. Just give us one little lie for a starter."

"H'm! yes, well," replied the mild mannered Mr. Plumbottle, "let me see, I once sucked nineteen raw eggs at one sitting."

"Nineteen!" answered the Austin man, "why that isn't a circumstance to what I did once on a wager when I was a boy. Down back of my father's barn I once sucked twenty-two raw eggs, and did it easy, too."

"Sucked twenty-two, eh. I knew I stood no show if you made me tell the first story, ha, ha. That's pretty good. Sure you sucked them?"

"Yes, sir, twenty-two hen's eggs."

"O, hen's eggs, eh, well, I forgot to mention my nineteen were ostrich eggs, holding about three quarts apiece, fifty-seven quarts, about fourteen gallons and a quarter. Figures won't lie, you know. Good day, I must drift along down town."—Texas Siftings.

An Irishman whose soberest moments are when he first awakens at morning, attempted to lean against the shadow of a post the other night and fell on the sidewalk. Getting up with difficulty, and seeing a policeman approaching, he thrust his head into a neighboring store and exclaimed: "A nice way to trait a gintlemin. 'Tis have the whole av ye arrested for kaping a disorderly house."

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the glow and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a uniform, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Dressing, this Preparation is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and pliable in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mrs. C. F. Bucknam writes from Derby, Conn. Aug. 4, 1881: "I have had my hair unusually thick and long, but it began to fall out and turn gray. I used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and restored it to a natural color. I have now a full head of hair, entirely free from dandruff, and am absolutely delighted with the use of your preparation. I should have been entirely bald."

Mr. Arous Fairbairn, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1883: "Your Hair Vigor has restored to my gray locks their former color, and I am very glad to say that it has also stopped them from coming out. I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable importance to public singers, actors, etc., and, in fact, every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

Mrs. O. A. Prescott, writing from 16 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 24, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It fell out very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On the advice of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. In this condition it remained for about a year before it fell. I regularly used the Hair Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

SEEDS

Purchasers of Seeds must now be convinced of the disappointment experienced in buying seeds from boxes or packets already put up and placed in Stores on commission, and in many instances transferred from place to place for years, before being sold; the disappointment experienced, not only from their non-vegetating power, but from the small quantity contained in each paper. To prevent these disappointments Messrs. ORMOND & WALSH sell the whole of their seeds by weight, at a fair and moderate price, with a guarantee of their

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The Celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth, and every man in the land.

John B. Gough.

That grand old man draws immense crowds. Say, get an accident policy from Geo. A. Morrison, the accident agent. You may may need it in the jam.

"Smart as Usual."

Mr. McCabe wishes to thank "the National Assurance Company of Ireland," for prompt payment in full of his loss by fire through their agent. Geo. A. Morrison.

New Farm. New Dress

The proprietor of the Almonte Gazette, one of the leading Reform journals of eastern Ontario, has enlarged its size by eight columns, and has wisely adopted the increasingly popular eight-page form. A new dress has also been donned, and now the Almonte Gazette comes to us well printed, neatly made up, well filled with interesting reading matter, and an able and unwavering exponent of Reform principles. We can congratulate our contemporary, and wish it every success, of which its push abiblity and enterprise make it worthy.

Whitby Chronicle.

The steady progress made by the Whitby Chronicle under the proprietorship and management of Messrs. Robertson & Bros., is practically shown by the addition of a splendid new Cottrell Air-Spring Press to the machinery of the office. It is a handsome and excellent machine, and we are glad to see the enterprise and ability that mark the management of this staunchly Liberal journal, rewarded with material prosperity. The Chronicle is the leading paper of the county of Ontario, and we wish it a progressive degree of success. It is richly worthy of the liberal patronage it receives.

The Last of the Series.

The last of the series of entertainments held in St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, during the season, under the auspices of the St. Luke's Branch of the C. E. T. S., was held on Monday night. Instrumental music was supplied by Mrs. R. B. Rogers and Miss McNab, vocal solos by Miss Bowman, Misses Watson and Logan, and Mr. Bowman. Mrs. Bowman and Mr. Geale and Misses Logan and Galletly contributed pleasing duets, and readings were given by Miss Grundy, Mr. Coleman, and Dr. Clarke. A charade of five characters closed the programme.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

Roller Rink Carnival.

The second and most brilliant, yet, of a series of Masquerade Carnivals, will be held in the Water Street Roller Skating Rink, on Friday, May 15th. Preparations on a grander scale than heretofore attempted are being made for the occasion. It is promised to be something new, unique and unrivalled. Handsome prizes will be given for the best costumes. The public will enjoy a rare treat by attending this carnival. There is no danger of overcrowding, as there will be extra seating accommodation for all that may come. Fire Brigade Band in attendance. Skates will be furnished free to those in costume. The rink will be free to ladies wishing to practise the day before and the day of the carnival. Admission 25 cents; children 15 cents.

The large display of Hats, Bonnets, Plumes, Artificials, Ribbons, Parasols, Sunshades, etc., in FAIR, VANEVERY & Co's establishment excites the admiration of every beholder, and are selling rapidly.

Cattle Shipment.

Mr. George Webb made a shipment of fat cattle for the Montreal market on Saturday.

The Day Appointed.

The Oddfellows of Peterborough will decorate the graves of deceased brethren in Little Lake Cemetery on June 28th.

Boating Events.

At a special meeting of the Club, the sale of canoe racks resulted in a brisk demand and numerous transactions. All owners of boats who have not paid their rack dues will find their boats removed.

Rev. Mr. Munro's Sermons.

Last Sunday, Rev. Mr. Munro resumed his series of sermons on "Remarkable Characters in the Bible." Joshua was the subject for the evening's discourse, which was full of interest and useful lessons.

For a large and varied stock of reversible Cretonnes, entirely new patterns, go to Turnbull's.

A Fatal Fall.

James Beattie, a carpenter employed on Mr. J. Alford's contract on the English Church, Millbrook, through the scaffolding giving way, fell a distance of about 70 feet and was killed. He resided in Port Hope.

The Golden Lion.

Great activity in the mantle and dressmaking department. FAIR, VANEVERY & Co. are showing a large assortment of handsome materials, from which rich and elegant Mantles and Dresses are being turned out daily.

Attempted Train Wrecking.

On Wednesday night of last week a wicked attempt at train wrecking was made on the O. & Q. line about 15 miles west of town. Ties were piled on the track, but the obstruction was seen in time to save the Montreal express.

Before Insuring Your Life

see the new non-forfeiture plan of The British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, whereby failure to pay your renewal premiums at any time does not cancel your policy, but keeps it in force so long as Reserve held pays for extension—one of the most just and equitable systems ever adopted in Life Insurance. Ask for this plan to be explained by the General Agent, E. E. HENDERSON, Peterborough.

Peterborough Presbytery.

At the meeting held in Cobourg on May 6th, there were 15 ministers and 7 elders present. Rev. Mr. Bennett resigned as commissioner to the Assembly, and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Smith. Among other business done, Rev. Mr. Bennett was given leave to moderate in a call at Lakefield. A special meeting will be held at Hastings, May 26th, to hear a report from Grafton, and consider a call from Campbellford.

A Beautiful Block.

The restoration of Mr. James Stevenson's business block, corner of George and Hunter streets, has resulted in making it one of the finest in town. This week workmen have fitted the windows with heavy window caps, and the gutters on both fronts are being paved with cobble stone. The City Clothing Store has thrown a shoe on the head of the matter, but as soon as the repairs are completed the golden emblem of good luck will be remounted.

As if by Magic.

This is always the case when Polson's NERVILINE is applied to any kind of pain; it is sure to disappear as if by magic. Stronger, more penetrating, and quicker in action than any other remedy in the world. Buy a bottle of Nerviline to-day, and try its wonderful power of relieving pain of every description. Pain cannot stay where it is used It is just the thing to have in a house to meet a sudden attack of illness. Only 25 cents a bottle. Sample bottles only 10 cents, at any drug store.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Monday afternoon. There was a fair attendance, a number of the ladies being in the Y. M. C. A. Parlour attending a meeting of the Volunteers' Relief Committee. Mrs. J. Stratton occupied the chair in the absence of the President. The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted, and a report from the Treasurer was received. The committee on new members reported five having joined since last meeting. The secretary announced that the general convention report and the Scott Act leaflets had been received. The cottage prayer meeting discussion was postponed until next meeting. The meeting then adjourned.

If you want to replenish your Gloves and Hosiery, you will find everything desirable in quality, color, and price, at Turnbull's.

Gough's "Peculiar People."

The reader is requested to recollect that John B. Gough delivers his celebrated lecture in the George street Methodist church next Monday night. Don't postpone the important duty of securing a seat at once—at W. J. Mason's, George street. The seats have been taken freely, and those desiring their seats reserved for them had better apply early. The committee will see that each lessee of a seat will get it when he arrives at the church. Seldom has any lecturer advertised in Peterborough aroused so great interest. If all who say they would like to hear Americas' greatest orator should go the church will be packed. This may be the last chance for many to hear the noted Gough.

A Couple of Companies.

The Ontario Gazette contains the notice of application for letters patent constituting T. G. Haslitt, Geo. A. Cox, Richard Hall, Wm. Walsh, Wm. Davideon, and any persons that may become shareholders, a company under the name of "The Dickson Company, Peterborough." The company to carry on business such as erecting or purchasing mill privileges, mills, water powers, buildings, machinery, etc., and to do all and any business incidental to the foregoing businesses. The place of business is to be Peterborough, and the capital stock of the company is one million dollars—ten thousand shares of $100 each. The same Gazette contains the application for incorporation as a company of A. P. Poussette, Geo. M. Roger, F. G. Bell, J. W. Bennett, and Jas. Wasco, the company to be known as the "Toronto Real Estate Investment Company," empowered to acquire property, to lend money on real estate mortgage security, or municipal debentures, etc. The chief place of business is to be the city of Toronto, and the capital stock of the company $400,000, divided into 4,000 shares of $100 each

BOUNTY FOR THE BRAVE.

Supplementary Supplies for the Midland Battalion—Cash Contributions and Contributions in Kind.

The energy of the committee of ladies charged with securing supplementary supplies for the Midland Battalion has resulted in very gratifying success. The citizens have responded liberally to the call, and there was collected about fifty large cases of clothing, including fatigue blouses for the members of G Company, shoes, boots, socks, canned fruits, and vegetables, stationery, bedding, tobacco, matches, etc, etc. Besides some $300 in cash was contributed which will be principally held as a reserve fund and to pay expenses of shipment, etc. The following is a list of contributors and contributions:

Entertainment.

A free Stereopticon entertainment will be given on the street this evening. Look out for it.

The First Match.

The Ontarios, of Toronto, have accepted the challenge of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club to play here on May 25th. The match will be played on the new grounds, and, although our boys have not had as much practice as could be desired, they will no doubt make a good showing with one of the first clubs of this province.

A Meritorious March-Out.

On Tuesday evening, the portion of the 57th Battalion companies in town, remaining home from the wars, paraded in heavy marching order, for a march out. There were about seventy men of No's. 1, 2 and 3 companies and a dozen men, and a sergeant of the Durham Field Battery. The officers commanding were Col. Rogers, Major and Adjutant Bell, Captains Edwards, Langford and Rogers, Lieuts. Lee, Dennistoun and Haultain, and Capt. Sanderson of the Battery. The Battalion Band preceded the turnout, which marched through the principal streets. The marching was very steady, and the appearance of the men was creditable. The object of the turnout was to give the men steadiness in marching.

Unaccountable Absence.

Mr. John Cook, of Ashburnham, has been mysteriously missing since Tuesday, May 5th. On that evening he was seen on George street north, but since that time he has not been at his home, and nobody in town has seen anything of him. There is nothing but mere conjecture to account for his whereabouts. Some surmise that on his way home across the river he may have fallen into the water and drowned. Others think that he may have gone to some distance and neglected to inform his friends or family. The latter are naturally greatly alarmed at his prolonged absence, and afflicted with the agonizing suspense. Mr. Cook was a foreman in Hazlitt's saw mill when it was running in summer, and was, or rather is (for it is to be hoped he will yet turn up all right) the best saw mill operator in this district.

Saved Army.

A Council of War under the auspices of the Saved Army, and which promises to be one of the largest that has ever taken place, will be held in Peterborough during the ensuing week. A large number of representatives from different parts of the Province are expected to be present. It is expected that the officers and soldiers of this station will make every preparation for them. It is intended to take advantage of this occasion by holding a grand concert in Bradburn's Hall, on Wednesday evening, May 20th, at which quite an array of talent will appear. The Hon. Smith has promised to be present and will occupy the chair. The following will be the programme during the week:—On Monday evening, consecration meeting; Tuesday evening, grand jubilee; Wednesday evening, grand concert; Thursday evening, grand social; Friday evening, sing-song. For particulars see bills.

The "Silver King."

The "Silver King" theatrical company, under the management of Messrs. J. H. Mack and E. E. Hume, will delight the people of Peterborough with a short season at Bradbura's Opera House, on Friday and Saturday evenings, May 15th and 16th. This company comes with the highest praise of the press, and of playgoers attending its performances. The moral of the play, the Silver King, is excellent, while the manner of presenting it with all the accessories of beautiful scenery, stage setting and adjuncts such as used in Miner's People's Theatre, New York, speaks volumes in its favor. The scenery comes to Peterborough direct from Montreal. The Silver King as presented by this company supplies an opportunity to those appreciating the better class of theatrical productions, of passing two delightful evenings. Reserved seats at Hartley's

Illustrated War News.

We have received the sixth number of the popular Illustrated War News. The front page contains a picture which will be of intense, though mournful, interest to Canadians. It represents the burial of the volunteers who fell at the battle of Fish Creek. A graphic sketch shows the attack of halfbreeds on the steamer carrying the first expedition for the relief of Battleford. The commencement of the fight at Duck Lake is given from a sketch furnished by a North-West Mounted Policeman. The advance guard of the Royal Grenadiers passing Humboldt, and the men of "C" company (Infantry School) returning from a rabbit hunt are from sketches from the same source. The entertainment of the 7th Fusiliers, of London, at Port Arthur, is shown on page four, also the Ottawa Sharpshooters (G. G. F. G.) at Winnipeg. This number contains the usual two-page supplement, which is a fine one, and represents, in three sketches, Toronto ladies receiving and packing contributions for the soldiers at the front. The paper sells at 15 cents per copy, obtainable either from local booksellers or from the office of publication.

Peterborough Markets

Little or nothing doing in grain; not sufficient offering to make quotations. Spring wheat will likely bring 90c. to 92c.; fall wheat, about the same; no barley, rye, or peas offering; oats selling from 41c. to 42c., few offering. On the market, fresh butter more plentiful, prices ranging from 15c. to 18c., expect lower prices; eggs not so plentiful, selling at 10c. to 11c.; poultry scarce, and wanted, little offering; potatoes, 35c. to 40c. per bag. fair demand; veal, 6c. to 7c.; hay, $12 to $13.

BIRTHS.

SHORTLY.—In Peterborough, on Wednesday, May 13th, 1885, the wife of Mr. B. Shortly of a daughter.

DEATHS.

TULLY.—At Peterborough, on Sunday, May 3rd, Mary Jane Tully, relict of the late Andrew T. Tully, of Peterborough, aged 38 years.

BAKER.—In Peterborough, on Saturday, 25th April, 1885, Eliza Edwards, the beloved wife of John Baker, sr., in the 70th year of her age. After a lingering illness, which was borne with Christian fortitude, she sweetly fell asleep in Jesus—

And hope, sweet hope, it points there, too,
And bids us hope and not despair;
That when death's mantle round us draws,
We may in glory meet her there.—E. S. M.

ROYAL ARCANUM.

Grand Council Instituted.

On Thursday last, in London, the Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum was instituted by Hon. J. H. Butler, of Boston, Supreme Regent. There was a large number of delegates present from the different councils. The following are the grand officers:

Dr. Ci. T. Campbell, London, past grand regent.
D. Spry, Barrie, grand regent.
W. Totten, Woodstock, grand vice-regent.
D. L. Leitch, Strathroy, grand orator.
W. R. Brown, Hamilton, grand secretary.
C. Cottle, Guelph, grand treasurer.
Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, Peterborough, grand chaplain.
S. O. Perry, St. Thomas, grand guide.
W. Williams, Sarnia, grand warden.
T. L. Lewis, Chatham, grand sentry.

The following were elected trustees:—Messrs. D. McLellan, Hamilton, J. M. Logan, London, and T. Sergeant, Toronto.

At the banquet in the evening, amongst other speakers, Rev. Mr. Bradshaw is reported by the London papers as making a speech "full of enthusiasm and hopefulness," during which he recited the following original lines:

Stand, brothers, stand to the cause of our Order—
The Royal Arcanum—all orders above:
May no vile dissensions, no hate or disorder,
E'er mar our communion of virtue and love.
We have raised up an altar, where true love abiding,
Shall shine as a star from the heavens above;
And the spirit of charity ever presiding,
Shall brighten its flame by the light of her love.

No frowning malignity,
Mars her fair dignity,
But love and benignity
Ecchhinedly flow.
See, Virtue enchases,
Sweet Mercy embraces,
And Love leaves its traces
On mortals below.

In sad days of sorrow the great secret will open
The portals of plenty, to brethren in woe;
And round them will hover blest charity's token,
A shield for our dearest 'gainst every dark foe.
With virtue's bright blessing all stand to deliver
Our brethren even from sorrow below;
This life's choicest treasure we drain from our quiver,
For the Rainbow of Love is our beautiful bow.

Her eye mildly gleaming
With friendship is beaming.
Her heart richly teeming
With mercies untold.
In the glance of her face is Perfection of graces,
And the sheen of her tresses
Is radiant with gold.

"May the great secret flourish!" be this our endeavour;
While no enemies trouble; no dangers befall;
May councils increase in this Land of the Beaver,
And this first Grand Council grow strongest of all.
Success to our Regent, the Vice and Collector,
Past Regent and Warden and Orator too;
Let the Guide and all brethren seek God as protector,
And the Scribe and the Chaplain prove faithful and true.

May concord and unity
Mark our community,
And grant u- immunity
From hatred and strife.
May kindness and verity
Smooth our asperity,
And true prosperity
Brighten our life!

All those who attended the organization meeting were, according to the constitution adopted, made life members of the Grand Council. The next regular annual meeting will be held in Toronto on the third Wednesday in May, 1886.

Gingahams, Gingahams. A large stock of new Gingahams to arrive this week at Turnbull's. Look for them.

SOUND PROGRESS.

We have placed before us the thirty-eighth Annual Report ending 31st December 1884, of the British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, from which we take the following: 2,362 proposals were received during the year, amounting to $4,284,410, of which 421 for $790,250 were declined or not completed before the close of the year. In the course of the same period 217 Policy Holders have died, on whose lives 246 assurances had been effected; the claims thus arising with bonuses, amounted to $320,531.64. The sum of $357,961.27 has been added to the Accumulated Fund, which now amounts to $3,141,078.56. The total income is in round numbers $1,000,000.

The number of Policies in force is 16,261, assuring $24,000,000; the profits just declared are the largest since the Company was established; the claims still continue to fall much below the estimated rate of mortality, a standing proof of the great care in the selection of lives.

This Company is showing such liberality and enterprise in its dealings with its Policy Holders that to quote the words of its directors, "No Company in the country can offer greater advantages, combined with solid security" as its record for the past 38 years will prove. Among its recent enterprising efforts we may note its new non-forfeiture scheme, whereby Policies which would lapse for non-payment of renewal premiums will be kept in force by appropriating the surrender value to the payment of premiums so long as any value remains. This is a most just and wise provision and shows the genuine desire of the Directors to meet every objection to Life Insurance in such a solid and reliable Company. Its Policies are also entirely free from conditions, which renders, with the many other advantages of the company, Insurance in the British Empire Mutual Life, of more than ordinary value, and its special reduced rates places Insurance within the reach of every man. We understand this Company accepts risks on volunteers going to the North-west without extra charge and secures those dependent upon its policy holders absolutely against loss, as every claim would be promptly paid in full. The Company has never yet contested a claim since it was established in 1847. Its representative in Peterboro' and district is Mr. E. E. Henderson, General Agent.

We hereby certify that we have examined the cash book and vouchers of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute for the year ending 30th April, 1885. The within is a correct abstract of the receipts and expenditure as taken from the Treasurer's cash book.

Peterborough, 18th May, 1885.

GEO. G. GLADMAN, } Auditors.
FRED. E. BELL, }

The director's report was read and adopted as follows:

To the Members of the Peterboro' Mechanics' Institute:

The directors beg to submit the following report for your consideration and have much pleasure in congratulating you on the satisfactory financial condition of the Institute.

Our fair town is now rapidly approaching the dimensions of a city, and in consequence counter attractions are much more numerous than formerly, the result being that the membership has slightly decreased during the year. It is hoped, however, now that all subscriptions terminate on the first of May in each year as was formerly the rule—the Directors and others who are interested in the welfare of the Institute will so increase the sale of tickets as to regain old subscribers who may have dropped off, as well as to induce many others to become members.

Were all the advantages which the Institute offers to its members more generally known, there is no doubt that many more would avail themselves of them.

The present list of members shows a total of 273.

A number of new periodicals and newspapers, in addition to those formerly taken, are now received in the reading room, there being 23 magazines and periodicals, and 19 newspapers.

Owing to various causes, one of which was the difficulty of getting a teacher of drawing who could qualify under the new regulations of the Educational Department, no classes were formed during the past winter.

A statement of receipt and expenditures which has been duly audited, is submitted herewith.

The Library Committee have prepared a report which shows the addition to the library of 205 volumes, costing $208.15, which report is submitted as part of this report.

The works of reference, which are not allowed to be taken from the Institute have been frequently consulted by the members.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

For the Directors,
ANDREW McFARLANE, President.

JOHN CORKERY, Secretary.

Peterborough, May 18th, 1885.

The Library Committee also presented their report, as below:

Your Library Committee beg to report that 200 volumes have been added to the library during the year ending 30th April 1885, at a cost of $208.15, in addition to which $152.47 has been expended on the reading room.

The new books purchased may be classified as follows:

Biographical	Class	A	20 vol.	$31.25

There are now in the reading room 19 newspapers and 23 magazines and periodicals. Our list of members shows a total of 273, being 217 senior and 56 junior.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

F. J. LEWIS, Chairman.

SMITH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In accordance with an announcement in these columns, the Ontario Gazette has a notice that application will be made to the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council for letters patent, constituting Michael E. Sanderson, Coleman Blewett, William Graham, Robert Henry Braden and William James Northey, all of the township of Smith, farmers, and such other persons as may become shareholders in the company, a body coporate for the manufacturing and selling of cheese, butter and dairy products, under the name of the "North Smith Dairy Company." The operations of the company are to be carried on throughout the county of Peterborough, and the chief place of business of the company is to be in the township of Smith. The amount of the capital stock is three thousand dollars, ($3,000). The number of shares of the company is one hundred and twenty, and the amount of each share is twenty-five dollars.

The following is the report of S. S. No. 2, Smith, for the month of April:—Fourth class—M. Williamson. Senior third—1st, A. McDonald, 2nd, J. Young, 3rd, W. J. Young. Junior third—1st, A. BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Thursday last Mr. S. Corban met with an accident in Mr. Kelly's mill. His right arm was caught by a belt and, before it could be extricated, was badly shattered above the elbow. The broken limb was set by Dr. Kincaid, and is getting along nicely.

The Bella Fair is busy towing logs down the lake for her owner, W. B. Kelly.

The Maple Leaf made her first trip to Bridgenorth this season on Monday evening. She carried a number of passengers from Bobcaygeon on their way to attend the opening of the Roller Rink in Peterborough.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

BATTOCHE FALLEN.

PARTICULARS OF ITS CAPTURE.

Gallant Charge of the Volunteers.

The affair was the most brilliant and dashing of the whole campaign. The resistance offered by the half-breeds to our advance was something terrific, and it is wonderful that the loss of lives was so small on our side. Volley after volley of musketry was poured into our ranks; the impetuousness of our charge must have caused the rebel marksmen to become nervous, and their shooting was not so effective as it would otherwise have been. The fighting of the past few days has had an irritating effect upon the force. The fact of their having to stand for hours at a time up to the waist in cold water, a target for a hundred hidden rifles, was by no means pleasant. At last the order was given. So great was the enthusiasm of the men that they were with difficulty restrained within the bound of military discipline, many of the most daring wanting to start off on the "double" and charge at once down into the ravine.

A SURPRISE IN STORE.

The General had kept his intentions so great a secret that few had any idea that a dash had been decided upon by him. Although the surprise was an agreeable one to our force, it was by no means agreeable to the rebels. They were taken by surprise, for at our first forward movement, they seemed to waver in their fire, the advance commenced shortly before three o'clock, Boulton's scouts and French's scouts leading, being ably supported by the Royal Grenadiers, the 90th Battalion and the Midland Regiment. The rebels were strongly entrenched, occupying nearly the same as they did in the fight on Saturday, with the exception that many of the houses where they took shelter in the previous fight had been rendered untenable as a place of refuge.

A GALLANT CHARGE.

As the troops advanced to the top of the slope leading down to the ravine, they were met by a rattling fire from the enemy; who also raised their terrible war cries, "coyotting" so distasteful to the ears of our men. French's scouts leading, made a dash down the slope towards the enemy's position. The captain at the head of his men, was seen to start, the next moment he cried out, "I'm shot, boys, advance without me." The captain staggered and would have fallen to the ground but for the timely arrival of one of his troopers, who rushed to his aid and supported him to the rear. The men paused for a moment, then rushed down the embankment, determined to wreak a severe revenge on the rebels for the loss of their leader. Meanwhile the Grenadiers, Midland Battalion and 90th were rapidly charging down the slope, the officers cheering on their men as they advanced. The rebels here poured a heavy fire into the advancing force, causing many of our men to fall; it was about this time that Captain Brown, of Boulton's scouts, who was in advance of his men, was shot through the heart, falling to the ground and immediately expiring. Several men of the Grenadiers, 90th and Midland Battalion were also hit by rebel bullets in this volley.

AMONG THE RIFLE PITS.

Undeterred, however by the fierce fire the troops continued to steadily advance, and soon reached the rifle pits, which were each manned by rebel sharpshooters. With bayonets fixed our men advanced on the pits. Here Capt. Fitch, of the Grenadiers, who was leading on his men, was shot through the head, and died instantly. Being ably supported by the other regiments, after a short struggle, the rebels were driven from the pits to more secure cover in the village. The fierceness of the attack was evidently a surprise to the rebels, as Riel had been telling his men that the volunteers were a lot of boys who would not stand fire, after half a dozen were shot, and the rebels were led to momentarily expect peace proposals from Gen. Middleton.

A NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN CHARGE.

The charge down the slope entering the village was one never to be forgotten. As the General saw the desparate, defiant onslaught of the Volunteers he called to Lieut. Freer, his aide, "There is death or victory in that charge; let them go." The men had been harassed and goaded by ambush firing until they were fairly gnashing their teeth with rage, and would have been a match for the best trained regulars; for their blood was up. Private Barton was shot twice. After his first wound he tripped and fell forward, but recovering himself, he dashed after his company. It was not until he received a second hit that he gave way. Several other deeds of bravery were noticed, men who were wounded fighting with desperation till forced to give up, owing to loss of blood.

IN THE VILLAGE.

As soon as the rifle pits were captured our men dashed after the fleeing rebels, and attempted to dislodge them from their cover. This was a work of no little difficulty, and was attended with considerable hard fighting, but, by extraordinary exertions on the part of the men, the rebels were at last dislodged from all the houses in the place, which were captured, and all the prisoners held by Riel released. Batoche was now ours, and the men cheered lustily over the result of the fight. In several of the houses men, women and children were found hiding in cellars and in a state of piteous trepidation.

General Middleton will go to join Col. Otter in an attack on the Indians under Poundmaker. In the march there will be fighting, as rebels have retired in that direction but nothing serious is anticipated. Prisoners report the rebels in a state of terror, and nothing but fear of execution and Riel's threats keep them up in the defence.

AFTER THE FIGHT.

The rebel camp after the capture was suggestive. Reil's ammunition must have giving out, because tins full of pebbles were found distributed at different points. On the door of a log house were found remnants of the rebel official bulletins. One of these apparently gave an account of the Fish Creek fight, in which the words "200 killed," in French, were deciphered. On the same door was a piece of paper, about letter size, urging the men to fight to the last, and saying that surrender meant death. Those who distinguished themselves by personal bravery were to get large rewards in lands. After the rout was complete Gen. Middleton expressed the opinion that there is no better fighting material in the world than the Canadian volunteers. Of course in the flush of victory it is natural to suppose that the commanding officer should feel in a complimentary vein. But Gen. Middleton does not give way to emotion, and rarely says what he does not feel.

THE KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The doctor's list of casualties on Saturday reports eight killed, one, named Watson, mortally wounded, and thirty-one wounded. There are three wounded on the boat. The doctors expect that the thirty-four mentioned here will get over their wounds.

The loss of the rebels in the three day's fighting is put down by some at 51 killed and 173 wounded. Gabriel Dumont, after the withdrawal of the skirmishers on Sunday evening, entered the Mission school in a rage and threatened the priest and nuns for giving assistance to our wounded.

Reil Captured.

Special Telegram to the EXAMINER.

CLARK'S CROSSING, N. W. T., May 15th.—It was ascertained that Riel and some of his followers, after leaving Battoche, made towards the river, intending to join those who had previously crossed over to the other side. The Northcote with "C" Infantry and some of the 90th, went down intending to head them off. A number of Major Boulton's Scouts meantime patrolled the river's banks.

Yesterday afternoon they heard a whistle from the steamer and some shots. A party immediately went in the direction the sound came from, and a couple of miles below Fisher's Crossing espied

A PARTY OF REBELS.

They challenged them, and in reply were fired at. The scouts answered, and then made a dash. The rebel party quickly scattered, but

RIEL WAS RECOGNIZED, and at once became the object of attention. He was mounted on a stalwart pony, and set off at a hard gallop. The SCOUTS GAVE CHASE.

finally overhauled the rebel leader who surrendered without firing a shot, but not without threats. He was last evening and taken direct to the General's tent. There was no demonstration, Middleton having ordered the men to their tents, fearing violence to Riel. None are allowed to see him.

BROUGHT INTO CAMP

Latest despatches state when seen by the scouts, Riel was with three companions.

HE WAS UNARMED

but they carried shotguns. They at once recognised Riel and advancing towards him

HAILED HIM BY NAME.

No effort was made on his part to escape, and after a brief conversation Riel declared that he intended to GIVE HIMSELF UP.

His only fear was that he would be shot by the troops, but he was promised safe escort to the General's head-quarters. He knew nothing of Dumont. He wished and asked if he would get a civil or a military trial. He said he wanted a civil trial.

A FAIR TRIAL,

He said his wife and family were with a half-breed woman near by, and when he saw the Gatling go down with the scouts at Battoche's, Riel was much alarmed on account of his wife and family.

REIL'S APPEARANCE.

Riel appears careworn and haggard. He has let his hair and beard grow long; he is dressed in a poorer fashion than most of the breeds captured.

While talking to Gen. Middleton, as could be seen from the outside of the tent, his eyes rolled from side to side with the LOOK OF A HUNTED MAN.

He is evidently the most thoroughly frightened man in the camp and in constant fear of violence at the hands of soldiers. There is no danger of violence. Riel spent nearly all day Monday in the woods.

A later despatch gives fuller particulars: Riel was taken about four miles below, or northeast of Battoche on Friday noon. While patrolling the river in that locality Major Smith and the members of C company infantry school saw several rebels in the brushwood near by. Fire was opened on them, which was returned. A signal whistle was blown to warn Col. Boulton's scouts, who were known to be near, and in a few minutes several of these appeared on the scene, but the rebels had scattered.

Three of the more daring scouts, Wm. Diept, Thos. Hourie and J. H. Armstrong, pushed on through the brushwood and striking by chance along an unfrequented trail suddenly came out on the open prairie, where within short rifle range stood Riel and three rebels, only two of whom were armed. The three scouts at once bore down on the four rebels, at the same time calling on Reil to surrender. His associates escaped, but stood somewhat agitated until the scout arrested him.

REIL, SEEING THE GAME WAS UP,

Meanwhile the remainder of the scouts were drawing near, and Reil was hidden, his captors fearing some of their comrades would shoot him at sight, as many had sworn to do.

The news of his capture speard rapidly to camp, and caused great excitement and joy. Toward nightfall he was brought in under a strong escort, and all volunteers were ordered to remain within or to appear unarmed,

TO PREVENT THE PRISONER BEING SHOT.

He was taken to Gen. Middleton's tent and wore a haggard, dissipated look. His actions was very nervous, and he continually rolled his eyes from side to side, evidently fearing violence. His appearance was that of a hunted man.

He gave the scouts the letter Gen. Middleton sent him, which stated that if he surrendered no violence would be done him, but that he should have a fair trial. He knew nothing of Gabriel Dumont, but understood he had three wounds received before Batoche. He had sworn not to be taken alive.

Riel said his nights since the assault had been spent in the bluffs near Batoche, and that his wife and children were near by with some halfbreed women. He expressed himself as in mortal terror of the Gatling gun.

In appearance

RIEL LOOKS DILAPIDATED.

His clothes are old and dirty; his hair and beard long and unkempt. In short there seems very little difference in the outward appearance of Louis David Riel, "president of the rebels," and a Montana bummer. He looks more dignified now, however, than when being brought home in a Yankee wheelbarrow. He is kept a close prisoner, and will be sent on to Clarke's Crossing and thence to Regina.

Riel's books and papers were captured. He says they will show that he was not the instigator of the rebellion but was urged into it by people of good standing at Prince Albert. He spends most of his time talking in a wandering manner and praying. The papers show that the Duck lake fight was premeditated and that the rebels were thoroughly cognizant of General Middleton's movements from the time he left Qu'Appelle station.

Riel, whilst riding into camp said: "I do not think this trouble will be without result, as the complaints of the farmers will be regarded with some degree of attention."

A detachment of troops comprising C infantry, A battery, the Midland battalion, two companies of the Grenadiers and three companies of the 90th have crossed the river on their way to Prince Albert. It is expected Col. Irvine will now be induced to come out and meet them.

THE NEWS AT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The house convened at 1 p.m., and before the orders of the day were called, the hon. minister of militia said, "I wish to read a telegram received from General Middleton confirming the report of the capture of Riel and read:

"CLARK'S CROSSING, May 15."

"Riel is my prisoner.

"FRED MIDDLETON,"

This announcement was received by the members without a single cheer.

The following letter was addressed to Riel just before his capture or surrender, whatever way it may be viewed.

"BATOCHE'S, May 11th

"MR. REIL,—I am ready to receive you and your Council, and to protest you until your case has been decided upon by the Dominion Government.—Fred. Middleton, Major-General commanding North-West field forces."

"FRED. MIDDLETON."

General Middleton in a despatch to the government says:—I cannot of course be certain, but I am inclined to think the complete smash of the rebels will have pretty well broken the back of the rebellion at any rate; it will, I trust, have dispelled the idea that half-breeds and Indians can withstand the attack of resolute whites properly led, and will tend to remove the unaccountable scare that seems to have entered into the minds of so many in the North-West as regards the prowess and fighting powers of the Indians and breeds. There is not a sign of the enemy on either side of the river for miles.

AFFAIRS AT BATTLEFORD.

The Indians still Active—Otter Waiting for Reinforcements—Capture of a Supply Train—Calgary in Danger—Help Wanted.

WINNIPEG, May 15.—News from Battleford would indicate that 21 teamsters were captured with the transport teams, and are now prisoners with the Indians under Poundmaker, who are said to be in the woods in the vicinity of Sounding Lakes, south-west of Battleford. Two waggons had been left by the Indians, and the ground was strewn with portions of supplies, biscuit and forage being scattered around in every direction. The courier who gave the information observed the enemy disappearing over a ridge three miles distant, taking along with them the train of supplies. The latter greatly encumbered them in their flight. There were sixteen rifles in the teamsters outfit, but the onslaught by the Indians was so sudden that the teamsters were taken unawares, and far from being able to resist attack, had great difficulty in making their escape. Two hundred Indians were observed by scouts yesterday moving to the Stoney reserve south of Battleford. They are on the war path, and the incident causes great excitement in both the town and camp.

BIG BEAR AND POUNDMAKER ON THE MOVE.

BATTLEFORD, May 15, via Winnipeg May 16.—The scouts out since Wednesday returned this evening with the intelligence that the Indians are moving east, probably to join Riel. They covered thirty miles the first day. The scouts found the Cut Knife Hill camp gone, and starting southward they moved Wednesday night to a point near Eagle lake, 65 miles from here. They saw a band of mounted Indians a long way off. Coming east they discovered the tracks of eight horsemen and a buckboard, and concluded that sentinaries of Riel's had gone to Poundmaker's.

CALGARY IN DANGER.

CALGARY, May 16.—Reports have reached here that hostile Indians from Sounding lake are on the warpath and making for Calgary. Reinforcements are absolutely necessary.

Midland Boys at Battoche.

Their Chivalrous Charge—Their Unrestrainable Rush—"There's Death or Victory in that Charge"—"Let Them Go!"

Col. Williams, M.P., and his Midland battalion highly distinguished themselves in the charge on Monday. The officers and men almost disobeyed orders in their anxiety to charge; in fact it was downright disobedience, as Gen. Middleton's orders were not to charge; but the men were so annoyed and harrassed that they felt victory was theirs if the charge was made. Had it not been for Col. Williams, Riel would still be at large and the rebels as aggressive as ever. Following is the Montreal Star's report of the charge:

"There had been no firing all the morning until the red line were ordered to skirmish, which they did in excellent order, the advanced ranks alternately stopping and pouring in a heavy fire. They, meanwhile, were subject to a fierce fire from the rebels in the front and to the left. The Midland regiment, under Colonel Williams, who by this time reached the bank of the river, kept straight on and went down the steep wooded bank with a rush, carrying everything before them. The rebels, who were carried away with the left the rifle pits which they had so long held and took to the river to swim across and become the prey to the bullets of A company of the 90th battalion, who had extended over the brow of the promontory to the right of the camp. Wheeling round the promontory the battalion kept on discharging at the rifle pits on the bank as they came to them, and clearing them out in grand style. The fire of the rebels was very heavy, and the wonder is that no more men in the regiment were hit.

The Grenadiers were making a magnificent advance across the open above the church in a "B" line towards Battoche. The rebels were driven out of the large pits on the top of the ridge without a check in our advance. Here the fire of the rebels fell off a trifle and the men halted some minutes. Meantime the Midland battalion had wheeled round the edge of the plateau, where A battery guns had bombarded Battoche on Friday and were in line with them on the left, making a complete line from the river. "Come on, Grenadiers," said Col. Straubenzie, "I am proud to command you; keep steady, and we shall clear them out," and with loud cheers, which were replied to by the force in camp and the Midland regiment below, the men made a dash down toward the rebels, who had retreated into the brush, firing as they went through."

The above seems to explain the remark of General Middleton, "There's death or victory in that charge. Let them go!"

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The water, which has not been so high for many years, is now falling rapidly.

Our new dam was put to a severe test, but it stood the strain in a manner which reflects great credit on the skill and workmanship of Mr. C. Wyan.

The farmers are now busily engaged seeding, and the outlook for the harvest is more promising than it was at the beginning of the month.

The first drive of saw logs this season, owned by Mr. Fowlds, of Hastings, arrived here on Saturday.

On Saturday last, Joseph, son of Mr. J. Welsh, was nearly drowned by falling off one of the abutments of the bridge while fishing. Capt. Grylls, who observed him fall, hurried to his assistance, and with the aid of a pole succeeded in rescuing him as he was sinking the third time.

Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

Why is Evil Permitted to Exist?

Why do the Wicked Live and Prosper?

But Mark the Disgrace and Misery of Their End.

The subject discussed was, "Why does God permit Satan and sin to exist when, with one blow, He might annihilate them?" The text was Job xxi., 7: "Wherefore do the wicked live?" Following is the sermon:

Poor Job! With tusks, with horns, with hoofs, with stings, all the misfortunes of life came on him at once. Bankruptcy, bereavements, scandalization, eruptive diseases, so irritating that he had to reinforce his ten finger nails by a piece of earthenware to scratch himself withal. His wife took the diagnosis of his complaints and prescribed for him profanity. She thought he would feel better if, between the paroxysms of pain and grief, he would swear a little. For each boil a plaster of objurgation. Probably no man was ever more tempted to take this bad advice than was Job when at last his three exasperating friends, Elijha, Bildad and Zophar, came to comfort him, saying in substance: "You old sinner, this serves you right. All this is because you are a hypocrite. What a sight you are! God has chastised you for your wickedness.

THE DISFIGURED INVALID

lifts his swollen eyelids and puts down the piece of broken saucer with which he had been rubbing his arms, and tells his garrulous group of friends that it is often the wicked who have the best health and the most prosperity, and in this connection hurls the question which every man and woman that ever existed has at some conjuncture of events asked, "Why do the wicked live?"

They build up fortunes that overshadow the earth and confound all the life insurance tables on the subject of longevity, some of them dying octogenarians or perhaps nonagenarians, or possibly centenarians. Ahab, in the palace, and Naboth in the cabin. Unclean Herod on the throne, and Paul, the consecrated, twisting ropes for tent-making. Manasseh, the worst of all the kings of Judah, lived the longest. While the general rule is that the wicked do not live out half their days, there are instances where they live to great age in paradises of beauty and luxury, with a whole college of physicians expending its skill in the attempt for further prolongation and then have a funeral with casket under mountains of calla lily and a procession with all the first equipage of the city, flashing and jingling into line, taking the poor angle-worm of the dust out to its hole in the ground, with a pomp that might make the passing spirit from some other world think that the Archangel Michael was dead.

First, they live to demonstrate beyond controversy the LONG-SUFFERING PATIENCE OF GOD.

You rouse up and say, "I will not stand it any longer," but perhaps you are compelled to stand it. God, with all the batteries of omnipotence, loaded with thunderbolts, stands it century after century. Sometimes, I have no doubt, an angel comes up and begs that he may unlimber the batteries, crying "Now is the time to strike." "No," says God, "Wait a year," "wait twenty years," "wait a century," "wait five hundred years." What God does is not so wonderful as what he does not do. He has enough reserve corps to sweep from the earth Mormonism, Mohammedanism, Paganism, in one day. He could take all the frauds of New York City on the west side of Broadway, and in an hour pitch them into the Hudson, and all the frauds on the east side of Broadway, and in an hour pitch them into the East River. He understands the combination lock of every dishonest money safe in Christendom, and could blow it up quicker than by any earthly explosive. Written all over the earth, from east to west and from north to south, and all over history, are the words: Divine patience, divine forbearance, divine long-suffering. It is a wonder to me that God did not burn up the world 2,000 years ago, and scatter the ashes through immensity, its aerolites dropping into other worlds and kept in their museums as specimens of a defunct planet. People talk of God as though he were hasty with his judgments and snapped a man up quick. No! Before the ancient deluge the people were warned 120 years to get aboard Noah's ark. The Anchor Line gives only a month's notice of the sailing of the Circassia; the White Star Line only a month's notice of the sailing of the Britannic; the Cunard Line only a month's notice of the sailing of the Oregon. But of the sailing of that first ship under Noah, the commander, God, gave 120 years of notice. Patience antediluvian. Patience post-diluvian. Patience in times Adamic, Mosaic. Davidic, Pauline, Lutheran, Whitfieldian, patience with men. Patience with nations, patience with barbarisms and civilizations. Six thousand years of patience. Overtowering attribute of a God all of whose attributes are immeasurable

Why do the wicked live? To make the overthrow of sin more climacteric. They must pile up their mischief very high so that whole communities may see it, very high, so that all continents may see it; very high, so that all the world may see it. The higher it rises, the harder it will fall and the greater the vindication of righteousness. Sin is not to be permitted to sneak out of the world in silence. It is not merely to resign and quit. It is not a case to go by in default because no one appears against it. It is to be arraigned, handcuffed, put in prisoner's box, condemned by the verdict of all the good, and gibbeted so high that if one foot of the gibbet stood on Mount Washington and the other on the Himalayas it would not be any more conspicuous.

About fifteen years ago we had an

ILLUSTRIOUS INSTANCE

of how God lets a man go only to make his undoing the more impressive as a moral lesson. First an honest chair-maker, then alderman, then member of Congress, then supervisor of the city, then school commissioner, then State Senator, then Commissioner of the Department of Public Works. On and up, stealing thousands of dollars here and thousands of dollars there, swindling on the largest scale of malfeasance ever witnessed in this country, so that the new city court house of New York is a monument of municipal crime, having cost more than the capitol at Washington or the Parliament Houses of London, and running the city debt from thirty-six million of dollars to ninety-seven million. Now he stands high up in millionairedom. Country seats, terraced and arbored and parterred to the water's brink. Horses enough to stock a king's equerry. Grooms and postillions in full rig. Wine cellars enough to make whole legislatures drunk. New York politics and finance in his vest pocket. He winked and officials went down. He lifted his little finger and ignoramuses took high places. He whispered, and at Albany and Washington people said it thundered. Higher up and higher up until pandemonium seemed about to adjourn to this world, and there was some prospect that in the Satanic realm there would be a change of administration, and that Apollyon, after holding dominion so long, would have an earthly competitor. To bring all to a climax, a wedding came in the house of that man. Diamonds as large as hickory nuts. A pin of sixty diamonds, representing sheaves of wheat. Musicians in a semi-circle, half hidden by a great harp of flowers. Ships of flowers. Forty silver sets, one of them with 240 pieces. One wedding dress that cost five thousand dollars. A famous libertine who owned several Long Island Sound steamboats, and not long before he was shot for his crimes, sent as a wedding present to that house a frosted silver iceberg with representations of Arctic bears walking on icicle handles and ascending the spoons. Never such a convocation of bronzes, of pictures, of shawls. The highest rate of New York, splendor rolled in upon the scene, and recoiled never again to rise so high. But at the moment when all observation of earth and hell was concentered upon the scene of eternal justice, impersonated in that wonder of the American bar, Charles O'Connor, got on the track of the offender. First, arrest; then indictment; then sentence of twelve years' imprisonment on twelve indictments; then penitentiary on Blackwell's Island; then suit against him for six million dollars; then Ludlow street jail; then escape and flight in foreign country; then return under tight grip of the constabulary, and death from a broken heart in a prison cell. Allowed to go on until all the world learned, as never before, that the way of the transgressor is hard, that dishonesty permanent dividends, that a man had better be an industrious chair-maker on day's wages than a fraudulent commissioner of public works, with all his pockets crammed with plunder.

DOES NOT PAY

How proudly in history sounded the name of William the Conqueror, intimidator of France and Anjou and Brittany, victor at Hastings, snatching the English Crown, driving people from their homes that he might have a game forest, making a Doomsday Book by which all the land was put under despotic espionage, to avenge a joke at his obesity proclaiming war, trampling harvest fields and vineyards under cavalry hoof until nations were horror-struck. But at that apex of renown, while he was riding one day, his horse put forefoot on a hot cinder and plunged, wounding the rider against the pommel of the saddle, so that he died, his son hastening to England to get the crown before his father's breath ceased. The imperial corps, coffinless, carried in a cart, and most of the attendants leaving it in the street at a fire alarm that they might go and see the conflagration. The burial in the church built by the Conqueror interrupted by some one who cried: "Bishop, the man whom thou hast praised was a robber; the very ground on which we are standing is mine, and is the site where my father's house stood. He took it from me by violence to build this church upon it. I re-claim it as my right, and in the name of God I forbid you to bury him here or cover him with my clods." "Go up," said the ambition of William the Conqueror. "Go up by way of criminality. Go up by way of revenge." "Come down," says God. "Come down by the way of miserable death. Come down by the way of ignominious obsequies. Come down in the sight of all nations. Come clear down. Come for ever down!"

So all around us, though on smaller scales, the wicked are allowed to live so that their overthrow may be the more impressive, memorable and climacteric.

AN APPROPIATE PERORATION.

No: God is going to let him get to the tip top of all endeavor and then, while all the earth and all the solar system and all constellations and galaxies and the universe are watching, hurl him down with a violence and horror enough to teach five hundred eternities that the most acute and prolonged and stupendous rebellion against God and the righteousness shall come down into a crash of everlasting ruin. God is not going to do it by piecemeal. He is not going to do it in small skirmish. He is waiting till all the forces are massed, and some day when in confident and defiant mood, at the head of his army, this great Goliath of all stalks forth, our champion, the Son of David, will strike him down, not with smooth stones from the brook, but with a fragment from the Rock of Ages. Yet this will not be done until the giant of evil and his holy antagonist stand fully within sight of the two great armies of heaven and hell. This tragedy is only postponed to make the scene more warningly and tremendously climacteric. That is the reason why God does not kill the devil. It is not quite time yet to kill him. Be patient. If God can afford to wait you can afford to wait. The clock of destiny strikes

Why is it a thousand times better to use Hop Bitters than any other medicine? Because they are made of the purest and best remedies, and contain all that is claimed for them in the most honest and truthful manner. Because they are not a new and untried medicine, but have been used by thousands for many years, and have established a reputation for actual merit unequalled by any other medicine. Because they are not a vile drugged whiskey, but are entirely free from all poisonous and intoxicating properties. Because they are the only medicine that cures all diseases caused by bad blood, all liver complaint, all kidney complaint, all urinary troubles, all nervousness, all female weakness, all debility, all sleeplessness, all malaria, all nervous complaints, all drunkenness, all the effects of youthful indiscretion, and are the most perfect and complete family medicine in the world. Because they are a certain cure for all intemperance, and will positively cure the most confirmed drunkard in a few days. Because they are a certain cure for all kidney complaint, all liver

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two pos are stamps.

The Celebrated author in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth, and every man in the land.

Two Characters of Men.

The Wait to Honor and Wealth.

Lines respectfully inscribed to Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Mayor of Peterborough:

Sir,—Pardon me, if herein I am found
Presumptuous, by asking on forbidden ground;
It ill become a humble hard like me,
Address'ng one of so much high'r degree;
But, proud license has a wide expanse,
Yet always right, the opinions they advance—
Pass this in candid, not a midnight dream.
Provide such as you, supply me with a theme.

It matters not in what rank men are born,
Whether princely brown, which children's Possess galore,
Or the poor beggar, formed from equal dust,
Press near to door, implores a humble crust,
In each and all, this ardent wish we find
By nature planted in the human mind,
Varying in hopes, still the desire the same,
To grasp at riches, through them courting fame.

The middle class, most numerous on God's earth,
Doomed sons of toil, true Lairs of lowly birth,
They hoard their longings, and their pines by which,
They to their lifetime may be worldly rich.
Spurred by this motive, every nerve is strained
To solve the problem, how gold may be gained;
Man's treacherous nature quickly lends to view,
Two ways to riches which they can pursue;
First, seek gold, get riches, any way you can;
Second, deal justly, with both God and man
The 1st is most natural to man's greedy mind,
In this wrong path, yes, t.o to one we find,
They start in life with Satan themselves to be Most strictly honest to the last degree,
And for a time pursue that equal pace,
But soon forward stealings betray the base and rash.

Wealth comes too slow, their life-laid plans give way,
And over their hearts the gold god bears the away,
Their hopes of wealth in that slow course grow faint,
They crush remorse, and cast of all restraint;
In their transactions always seeming fair,
With sweet tongued flattery the unwary snare;
Their highest object and their chief desire,
Is, by what means they riches can acquire;
Wealth's strong temptations bind them as its slave,
Prompt them to trickery, grab, deceive and rave;
From morn till night, in thought, gold's glittering gleams
Rising in pues throughout their midnight dreams.
Good name and honour they will sacrifice,
To please their cravings, wealth to aggrandise;
Their life and hearts becomes so drop engrossed,
Wealth must be gained though name and soul be lost;
Fair honest dealing they have cast aside.
Hear they can scheme and chisel as their pride;
A fraudulent deal gives pleasure to their heart,
They smooth down conscience, saying "that was smart."
From day to day their hearts are fixed on self,
They seek no high'r things than pile self;
Mania for gold entwines them in its folds,
They never think God gives and withholds;
They hold their riches, right or wrongly made,
And close their purse to charitable aid;
They press their treasures to a small cold heart,
As if from them they never would depart.
Some have amassed wealth in that dangerous path,
Alas! the greater number never hath;
Those that obtain it, ah, how small their joys,
A gnawing conscience all their peace destroys.
Their aim was faultless, but the path was wrong,
Their haste for wealth increased temptations strong;
Oft the possessor stands in blank dismay,
Wrong gathered wealth takes wing and flies away;
If they do hold them while on earth they live,
No peace, no honor they can daily give;
God from the poor and needy wrongly wrung,
In after life, won't cool their burning tongue.

As from our subject we must not digress
Reverse our thoughts and view the second class:
Obscurely born, of humble parentage;
No wealth by birth, no hopes of heritage;
No bells no music sounding out their birth;
No princely likes signs of worldly worth;
Born of poor parents, in some lowly cot,
To share their hardships and their scanty lot.
From youth a hard fate they never did recoil,
Though daily pressed by poverty and toil;
To honest labour they fait quite resigned—
Higher aspirations filled their youthful mind:
They had their longings, prospects and desires,
Wealth's joys and comforts their young heart inspires;
They long for riches, but they must be won
Through higher motives than class "number one."
They view this world with all its ups and downs—
All stamps of men—ready with smiles or frowns;
They see two paths—the narrow and the broad:
One a all self; the other, trust in God.
Their plans are formed and firm resolves are made—
In search of riches, sought by heavenly aid—
Man's duty first, let them succeed or not,
While every dollar must be justly got.
They curb their nature—well they know its power—
By seeching succor in each tempting hour;
Gold's great allurements only tempts them when
It is got justly from their fellow-men.
Straightforward dealing, upright in each act,
Reliable name, unpeachable, intact.
Industrious, watchful, saving what they gain—
Wealth thus obtained brings no remorse or pain.
Their thoughts and actions, always just and fair;
Word good as note—the signature they bear;
In all life's business, principle the same—
While gathering wealth keeps an unblemished name.
Arduous they labour with both hands and brain—
Still pressing onward, riches to attain—
Improving cer fully time and talents, too,
To grasp that object which they have in view;
Exerting all the powers which they possess
To make their mark in life a true success;
Steadfast, progressing with determined aim
To honour, influence and unstranished name;
Striving for wealth they still on God relied
To grant them what their humble birth denied.
Fortune has smiled on many in that way
Honoured and wealthy in our midst to-day.
Justly gained wealth, and by them liberal used
God's true lent blessing, not to be abused,
Not to be worshiped, nor be hoarded up,
But feed the hungry, sweet n some bitter cup,
Riches bring blessings to each men as those,
Whose hearts can share in fellow-creatures' woes,
Whose liberal hand will give to some distressed,
Unfortunate being, who has been less blessed.
Their ears are open to the needy cry;
Their hands are ready succor to supply;
Their bounteous rie es rich reward secure,
Bestowing those blessings on deserving poor.
Riches with them a two-fold good achieves,
Blessing the giver and him that receives—
Sweet as the dew drops of the early morn,
Relieves distress sorrow adorns.
Yes! happy those that in their life-time hath Gathered their riches in the s fest path;
If proper used, one joy will fill their mind
They have shared out their riches with mankind.

—WILLIAM TELFORD, Smith.

A Woman's Age.

A woman, it is said, is no older than she looks. Many women, however, look double their actual age by reason of those functional disorders which wear upon the nerves and vitality, and which, if neglected, are liable to change the most robust woman to a weak, broken-down invalid. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" will positively cure every irregularity and weakness peculiar to the sex, and requires but a single trial to prove its superiority. Sold. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

ECCENTRICITIES OF BEES.

Very recently we moved a couple of bee-hives that were sitting on a box about six inches above the ground and placed them, when moved, about three feet from the ground. The bees, on returning loaded would light on the box about the height of the former box. We noticed, also, they would, on returning, go to the old place, about forty yards distant, and seemed perfectly lost. It took them over a week to learn their new place and surroundings. The habit even of a bee controls them when once formed.

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months.

Free trial Bottles of this certain cure of all Throat and Lung Diseases at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store. Large Bottles $1.00.

THE JOB SWAP.

There is a semblance of truth in the rumor now existing that Sir Charles Tupper will again return to Canada and assist in Government out of their difficulties. The commissionership is going evidently to be used for allowing sick ministers to recuperate, and in that case Tilley would take a few months of it. At all events young Tupper is negotiating for a private residence in London (either for himself or his father.

By land or at sea, out on the prairie, or in the crowded city, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best for purgative purposes, everywhere alike convenient, efficacious and safe. For sluggish bowels, torpid liver, indigestion, bad breath, flatulency, and sick headache, they are a sure remedy.

A FARMER'S REASONING.

Public Ledger of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I am [illegible] for the public, but am a constant reader of the light that to me seems to be inspired from the regions of darkness, i.e., the beautiful little fifth thrower, the Review. It seems to have forgotten of late that Mowat was once man-t wonderfully anxious to be hoisted from his place and power. So anxious that he bribed his friends to give him an excuse to resign, by casting against him. In order that [illegible] prickly, luminous paint, and kindred articles might the more successfully be introduced to terrify voters that elected him! Alas! alas! the fates were against poor Mowat. And how anxious the Review has been, how faithful in striving to blacken his character. You know the praises of evil with sensible people are curses, and curses are blessings. So it has been in this case, and Mowat has to retain his place and power in Ontario. If the Review staff had known (fate has ordered it otherwise) that their praise of Mowat would have had a salutary effect in permitting him to retire from public life how different their course would have been. Wisdom says get opposite evil and keep opposite.

Now, Mr. Editor, you know the Review has told us the Globe was a bad paper; when it told the people the land policy of Sir J. A. Macdonald and his colleagues was not in the interest of the actual settler, and that the C.P.R. would not be satisfied with their $35,000,000 and 25,000,000 acres of land, the Globe kept a blank party paper, a curse altogether than three need. When the C.P.R. asked for the big loan of the extra $30,000,000, and the Globe opposed it and said it would not be the last call from the same party, the Review said in effect that the Globe men were fools—they were party men and many other bad things. After last fall, when the Globe published that another money boost would be asked for at the expense of the poor man and his interest, i.e., more taxes and more debt, the Review denied the truth of the statement; and when the truth of black deeds and baser attempts has been proven as plainly as noon-day could reveal deeds of darkness, the local Government organ has attempted to put both parties on a level by saying to the Grits, "you are another." When the Globe said the half-breeds were uneasy, that their grievances should be inquired into at once and justice done, the Review claimed all was happiness and loyalty in the West except the Globe correspondent, and called bad names; and when a report of a rising came through the Globe the Review says "party!" and "party," "rebel," "traitor," "obstructionist" and such like beautiful epithets, have been the delight of the local organ. Ever since I became a reader I have read it; first, because it was the only daily; second, I could get the back home of Toryism from it, and have tried to boil it down in this article. It has proved, like any other put of filthiness, to be a stench to my nostrils. Yet, necessity demands its exposure and removal. When Sir John A. said in Peterborough, "Would to God I could catch Riel," did the Review think he wanted to do so in order to give him a reward for rebellion? or did the editor suppose it was to punish him. We must presume the former, for did not the Review applaud Sir John A. in both the declaration of his desire to catch Riel, even when abundant proof of the reward and John A.'s acknowledgement of the $5,000 being given to Riel to get him out of the country? The organ feels very bad apparently because Blake and his compatriots object to the Bill before the House at present, which is intended to permit Sir John A. to appoint some 200 lawyers throughout the Dominion to choose the members of the next Parliament. "Drawing a herring across the trail," it says: "The course the Opposition is taking during the past few weeks will prove disastrous if not stopped." "The country," it says, "has trouble on its hands, and of such a nature as to tax the energies of the Administration and to hold a great part of their attention." Pray, Mr. Editor, can you tell us what this great burden of administrative business is. The Review has not told us except the Franchise Bill. That must be their great trouble. Surely a Franchise Bill is not a Bill to put down rebellion—not of very pressing importance except for party purposes, and the local Conservative sheet denounces party strife or even party talk (of course, by a "Grit" organ) in this great trouble. It occurs to me, Mr. Editor, that Sir John has made another blunder in showing the cloven foot of party and setting his poodles to barking. No party! If country was his object rather that preparing for an election, that may be still two years in the distance, some measure would be introduced to relieve our boys at the front, and the energies of the Government would be turned to devising means to bring about peace in our borders. As every curse that has hitherto come upon our country has been attributed to the "Grits" by the Review and Tory press generally, will not some of the organs tell us which Grit in Canada is responsible for the late spring and the war trouble in the East and other sad happenings? As this forenoon was rainy, and, of course, prevented seeding operations, I devote it to this writing. If my first effort is worthy of publication you may hear from me again. Allow me to close by expressing my mind that the local Conservative organ is only the echo of the lower and more scandalous of the Tory party.

Yours, etc., AGRICOLA.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK for June has one of the most captivating frontispieces we have seen yet. It is a handsome steel-plate engraving which represents "The Puppy Class" at a bench show. Nine very cute little dogs in characteristic poses are arranged on a line for public inspection, and furnish a fine study of what is most attractive in the puppies of some of the best breeds patronized by our kennel clubs. The June number of GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK is replete with illustrations of a fine character. An unusually elaborate view of an ornate interior is furnished this month, together with a capital work design, a handsome colored fashion plate, the usual abundant illustrations in black and white, and a beautiful cut taken from a much admired picture by Luke Fildes, entitled "The Village Wedding." The story matter in the June number is excellent. Christian Reid's short serial is ended, and a new two-part story by M. R. Housekeeper is begun. "Through Fire" is one of the stories submitted in the Prize Competition, and shows unusual strength. "The Doctor's Dilemma," by Leigh North, is a spicy little sketch with a pretty turn to it. The short stories this month are unusually numerous and are all very good. Judging from our own home, we think that GODEY'S should be in every household.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov 17, 1882. 48-52t

Household Conveniences.

From experience of years as a builder, I find a great lack of system in planning among farmers. When it comes to the erection of a house, if we are to take the description of the thought as we see it embodied in the country houses that dot the landscape, it is not strange that the dwellers in villages and city houses of comfort and beauty should call those places to live in instead of homes. It is often remarked by those from the country who visit friends in the village or city, or especially the wives, mothers, and sisters, "How handy and convenient you do have everything about your house to save work! I wish our house could be as handy." The farmer may say, perhaps, "It costs money to have all these things." Well, so it does; but on which side of the account does the profit or loss come in the end? Farmers buy improved implements to save time and money, but rarely think that the time of the wife and daughter in their daily journeys to the woodpile, well or cistern, is worth the saving. He rarely thinks of the extra steps to the cellar and pantry, in the preparation of a single meal. He does not take into account the saving that would be accomplished if all the necessary adjuncts of the household were in closer proximity to each other. I have often seen the woodpile at the farmer's house two or three rods from the kitchen door, and then not under roof; the well ten or twelve rods away, and sometimes down a steep hill, having been located there to save a few feet of digging (and this alone makes miles of extra traveling in the course of a year); the cistern with no other convenience for drawing water than a pail and rope. Is it any wonder that mother and daughter in such a farm house are tired out with extra labor and drudgery of household duties? The building of a good house by the thrifty farmer may perhaps have been long in contemplation; he may have considered how much money he intended to put into the structure, but the most important part, how to make it a home embodying comforts and conveniences, has been left entirely out of his calculations.

A mistake that the farmer often makes is that of imitating something that he has seen somewhere, that, so far as the exterior is concerned, he thinks just suits him. In his attempt to copy from it, he finds that the location as to frontage and all its surroundings is quite different in the two cases, and when too late he discovers that he has made a mistake. Frequently as much depends upon the location of a farm-house and its buildings for pleasing effect as the design of the building itself. We often see the dwellings on one side of the public highway, while on the opposite side are spread out barns and various other out-buildings, to reach which gates must be opened, and the dirty or muddy road crossed hundreds of times in the course of a year.

"Merry Christmas, mother!" cheerfully exclaimed little Charlie Migge, as he bounded into his parent's presence with a face beaming like a new brass kettle. "O don't merry Christmas me!" growled the old lady. "Yesterday afternoon there were six mince-pies upon the top shelf of the pantry. This morning there are only five. Now, where is that other pie?" "Mother," solemnly answered the boy, "as true as I live, I don't know, but brother Bill has been rolling round the bed all night, sick enough to die."—Brooklyn Eagle.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the economical manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship gaily crowded Cape Town, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely relieved the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

PETERBOROUGH, MAY 21, 1885.

Ourselves.

THE EXAMINER has recently added to its already extensive equipment of printing machinery, one of the finest presses in the province. This press has been put in with a view, long entertained, of publishing a daily edition, which will be begun on Saturday, May 30th, and be issued regularly every lawful day thereafter. The daily edition of THE EXAMINER would have been issued sooner, but an unusual quantity of contract work had to be disposed of before the requirements of a daily edition could receive proper attention. THE EXAMINER press rooms are now better supplied with machinery than any office outside the cities, consisting of a large Wharfdale, large Cottrell, Air Spring; small Wharfdale, and two Gordon presses. We shall refer more fully hereafter to our mechanical equipment. We ask for THE DAILY EXAMINER the patronage of the public.

The New Grab by the C. P. R.

The following from the Mail, the official organ of the Government, is an explanation of the scheme by which it is proposed to sink five more millions of the people's money in the bottomless pit of the syndicate's financial receptivity, and to destroy the security now held by the Government for the thirty million "loan" of last session. The Mail says:

"As matters now stand, the company stands indebted to the Dominion to the extent of $30,000,000, for which the Government holds a lien upon road and all its belongings. This loan was granted last year to enable the company to complete the road; while the measure of relief now proposed will enable it to equip it. The company will issue bonds of the face value of $35,000,000. The Government will take $30,000,000 of these bonds as security for $30,000,000 of last year's loan, and a lien on all the lands remaining to the company from the original land subsidy for the remaining $10,000,000 of that loan. The Government will then make a temporary advance to the company of $5,000,000 to enable it to meet its most pressing needs, taking as security $5,000,000 in bonds of the issue of $35,000,000, the remaining $30,000,000 of bonds with the $5,000,000 to be held by the Government and paid over to the company from time to time as the necessities of the road may demand. In this way the road will be released from the lien which now covers it, and the company will at once be able, its hands being thus untied, to realize a fair price for the new bonds, and to provide ample resources for operating the entire line in the most efficient manner. It will be seen, too, that the country will be fully protected, the scheme simply involving a change of securities."

This is the Mail's statement of the case. While it outlines correctly enough the stand-and-deliver demand of the C. P. R. Company, it contains two statements that require explanation, and are distinctly misleading. The statement that the new loan is for the purpose of equipping the road is false on the face of it. It is well known that not one cent of the five millions will be devoted to the purposes of equipment. Every cent of it is required to meet the pressing liabilities of the company. In spite of, or, rather, in consequence of the appalling number of millions lavished on the company, enough to build and equip the road, the syndicate has overrun its bank account to the extent of some six millions of dollars, and all the new grab from the Government chest will be absorbed in paying floating debts. The excuse of "equipment" is, therefore, a sham. Again the Mail asserts that in this new deal "the country will be fully protected, the scheme simply involving a change of securities." Is that so? This "last" five millions added to the other "last" thirty millions, makes thirty-five millions advanced to the syndicate. For the first "last" thirty millions the Government held as security a mortgage on the entire Canadian Pacific Railway; now it surrenders that lien absolutely. True it takes in security for the thirty-five millions, a like amount of the bonds of the company at par. But the Government will never be able to realize, at the very highest calculation, fifty cents on the dollar. If releasing a mortgage of thirty million dollars on a line of railroad to build which has cost the country something like a hundred million dollars, and accepting syndicate bonds worth from five to seventeen million dollars, in place of such security is placing the country "fully protected," as the Mail declares it is in this new affair, then the country is very easily protected. The Monetary Times, an independent authority, thinks it a losing bargain for the country. It says:

"The chance of the Government getting back the property, which was a minor motive with many to support the loan of last session is cut off. This increased advance by the Government is accompanied by renewed security, and the possibility of getting back the property is gone: in two ways the company gains and the Government loses. The Government is making the loan of last session it was making an advance of thirty million dollars more than it was required by the contract to make. It was understood that in making the contract it was dealing on strictly commercial principles, and with contractors who were able to carry out what they undertook to do. But this proved to be a mistake, and a most portentious mistake it was. The Government was willing to give a liberal subsidy in land and money, but not a definite, limited amount; if Parliament had been told whom it made the contract that the contractors would fail in their part of the undertaking, and that the Government would have to advance $30,000,000 additional, there can be no question that the bargain with the Syndicate would not have been ratified. . . . The Government, though practically it has no choice in making the additional advance, will not be held justified in abating one tittle of the security held on behalf of the public."

We had the most solemn Governmental assurances last session that the loan of thirty millions would be the last. Yet hardly a year has elapsed when there is a call for millions more, and Sir John will give it freely as water, as far as his will is concerned. Ruin seems to stare the country in the face. As we are governed now there seems only the prospect of jumping from the frying pan into the fire. We have either to contemplate the Syndicate yearly bleeding the country of millions upon millions, or the Government taking possession of the road. It is a hard problem to solve, whether the latter with the extravagant corruption of the present government would be preferable to the futile attempt to stop, with giving, the cry of the corporate daughter of the horse-leach, "give! give!"

A Few Features of the Franchise Bill.

With a satisfactory franchise in each Province of Canada, it is worth while to inquire what is the object and effect of the Bill now under attempt to be forced through the House by Sir John Macdonald.

The object is simply to stifle the voice of the people who would denounce his corruptions and incapacity, and by cowardly and dishonest legislation to wrest a verdict in his favour and to perpetuate his corrupt control over the Dominion, independently of the wishes of the people.

Its effect will be that no opponent of the present Government, no advocate of pure Government, has the least assurance that his vote will not be taken from him by the arbitrary and irresponsible "revising barrister."

The effect will be that the voters' lists will be absolutely in the hands of the Government, for the Government appoints the "revising officer," from whose decision there is no appeal. Whom he puts on the list as a supporter of the Government, is put on; whom he strikes off, is struck off—absolutely.

The effect will be that the electors have no control over this tyrannical arbiter of the voter's fate. He is appointed by the Government for life or good behaviour—that is, while he manipulates voters' lists in the Government's favour.

The effect will be that the municipalities will be robbed of the control of the preparation of the voters' lists for election of members of the House of Commons. The "revising officer" tramples on a privilege they have enjoyed for a quarter of a century.

The effect will be that the Government candidates, who nominates Government appointees, will have the appointment of the "revising officer who prepares the voters' lists. Thus the candidates will be able to select what voters he may wish to be placed on the list and what voters shall be disfranchised.

The effect will be that tens of thousands of electors who now have votes under the liberal franchise of the several provinces, will be deprived of votes, absolutely, by this Bill, independently of what slaughter the "revising officer" may make of the lists.

The effect will be that thousands of intelligent white men will be robbed of a vote and the ballot given to savage Indians, who are dependent on the Government and will vote as directed.

The effect will be that the autocratic horde of "revising barristers" will entail an additional cost of over half a million dollars per year, whereas the work they are supposed to do is now effected with little appreciable expense.

The effect will be that a death-blow will be struck at responsible Government, for which half a century ago, our forefathers spilt their blood. The Conservative candidate selects his revising tool to fix the lists in his interests, and even if Parliament declare that this official has done wrong and deserves dismissal, the Senate, the instrument of the Government, would veto any such legislation, and, being irresponsible, would snap their fingers at Parliament and the people.

In view of the unfair and retrograde character of this act of outrage on constitutional liberties, Provincial rights and individual rights, it is no wonder that the people are uniting to hold indignation meetings in various parts of the Province and that petitions are flooding the House of Commons against such iniquitous legislation. The people of Ontario at least are bound to exhaust every constitutional means of opposition against a most deliberate attempt to disfranchise a vast number of respectable citizens. We hope the agitation will not cease, and that the noble little band of Oppositionists at Ottawa, who have made such a noble stand, will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.

It is There

A Keene correspondent says the Tories tell him that the following extract from the Globe of May 15 is false, and that there is no record of it in Hansard:

Mr. Mills This will include Indians in Manitoba and British Columbia?
Sir John Macdonald—Yes.
Mr. Mills—Poundmaker and Big Bear!
Sir John Macdonald—Yes.—[Extract from the Hansard.]
Sir John does not propose to enfranchise "the Indian of the plains."—[Toronto Mail.]

It is there, and more to the same purpose. Let our correspondent or any doubting Tory turn to Hansard, April 30th, page 1539, right hand column, beginning seven lines from the bottom of the column, and he will find the exact words quoted. There is no lying out of it; it is there.

NO ONE BUYS A "PIG IN A POKE,"—in other words, purchases on mere guesswork—who buys for his or her relief Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 4.]

Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

"I'd rather turn one simple verse
True to the Gallic ear,
Than slavish odes I might rehearse,
With senates listening near."
—Meline, "The Exile's Devotion."

In our last sketch we gave an outline of McGee's life, knowing that a brief, biographical description was sure to create more interest in his poetical productions. To-day, then, we turn to his works.

In many respects McGee was certainly a remarkable man. He received no collegiate education, and when a mere youth emigrated to America and entered actively into life. His genius almost immediately lifted him to the pinnacle of fame, and he quickly became a popular lecturer and skilful editor. It is computed that he delivered over eleven hundred lectures on every conceivable subject that could elevate and instruct the people. We give the titles of a few: "Columbus," "Shakespeare," "Milton," "Burke," "Grattan," "Barns," "Moore," "The Jesuits," "The English Reformation," "The American Revolution," "The Future of Canada," "Will and Skill," "Character of Champlain," "The Germans in Canada," "The Irish in Canada," "Public Opinion," "Public Life," and many others. He was also a careful and painstaking historian, having, in conjunction with other kindred spirits, planned a series of stirring shilling volumes for the people, entitled, "The Library of Ireland." To this series McGee contributed two volumes—one clever work, entitled, "Lives of the Irish Writers of the 17th Century," and the other a memoir of "Art McMurrough," a half-forgotten Irish king of the 14th century. He also published in 1854, a readable history of North America, and in 1863, a popular history of Ireland. Later on in his career he was noted as a clever politician and statesman, but in the midst of hard toil and constant occupation he found time then, as he did always, to cultivate the muse of song. The wearing, wasting cares of life and the high conceptions of the patriot's soul were closely interwoven with the soft and tender threads of poetic fancies. Poetry became his solace, cheering him in dark and trying days, brightening his pathway, refreshing his burdened mind, and breathing a blessed charm over the hard and thankless tasks of political and editorial life.

The London Athenæum, speaking of his "Canadian Ballads," said, long since:—"Canada has one true poet within her borders, Mr. D'Arcy McGee, who should not altogether give up to politics that which was meant for poetry." Duffy said, "His poetry and his essays touch all like the breath of spring and revive the buoyancy and chivalry of youth." In his preface to the "Canadian Ballads," published in 1858, McGee says "That we shall one day be a great northern nation, and develop within ourselves that best fruit of nationality—a new and lasting literature—is the firm belief of those at least to whom this volume is mainly addressed. And here I would remind them, that of all the forms of patriotism, a wise, public-spirited patriotism in literature is not the least admirable. It is, indeed, glorious to die in battle in defence of our homes or altars; but not less glorious is it to live to celebrate the virtues of our heroic countrymen, to adorn the history, or to preserve the traditions of our country."

His poems may be classified under the following heads:—Patriotic, historical and legendary, religious, poems of the affections and miscellaneous. Undoubtedly his best and sweetest lyrics are those inspired by love for Ireland. Again and again he passionately sings of his native land, of her sorrows and triumphs, the beauty of her natural scenery and the glorious deeds of her noblest sons. We cannot, from want of space, give many specimens, but we would direct attention to the following wonderfully beautiful and pathetic ballad:

"THE DEATH OF THE HOMEWARD BOUND."

I.

Paler and thinner the morning moon grew,
Colder and stiller the rising wind blew—
The polestar had set in a forest of cloud,
And the icicles crackled on spar and on shroud,
When a voice from below we feebly heard cry,
"Let me see, let me see my own land ere I die."

II.

"Ah! dear sailor, say! have we sighted Cape Clear?
Can you see any sign? Is the morning light near?
You are young my brave boy! thanks, thanks for your hand,
Help me up till I get a last glimpse of the land.
Thank God, 'tis the sun that now reddens the sky,
I shall see, I shall see my own land ere I die."

III.

"Let me lean on your strength, I am feeble and old,
And one-half of of my heart is already stone-cold:
Forty years work a change! When I first crossed this sea,
There were few on the deck that could grapple with me;
But my youth and my prime in Ohio went by,
And I'm come back to see that old spot ere I die."

IV.

'Twas a feeble old man, and he stood on the deck,
His arm round a kindly young mariner's neck—
His ghastly gaze fixed on the tints of the east,
As a starveling might stare at the sound of a feast;
The morn quickly rose and reveal'd to his eye
The land he had pray'd to behold, and then die!

V.

Green, green was the shore, though the year was near done—
High and haughty the capes the white surf dash'd upon—
A gray ruin'd convent was down by the strand,
And the sheep fed afar, on the hills of the land!
"God be with you, dear Ireland!" he gasp'd with a sigh;
"I have lived to behold you—I'm ready to die."

VI.

He sank by the hour, and his pulse 'gan to fail,
As we swept by the headlands of storied Kinsale;
Off Ardigna Bay it came slower and slower,
And his corpse was clay-cold as we sighted Tramore;
At Passage we waked him, and now he doth lie
In the lap of the land he beheld but to die.

Mr. McGee, as our readers know, belonged to the Roman Catholic Church, but his life and writings show clearly that he was free from blind bigotry and intolerance, which too often characterize Protestant and Romanist alike. His sympathies were broad and free as the air. His was a religion of the heart and not simply of the head. In him, even the poor Indian of this continent had a friend and sympathiser. He thus writes of

THE ARCTIC INDIAN'S FAITH.

I.

We worship the Spirit that walks unseen
Through our land of ice and snow;
We know not His face, we know not His place,
But His presence and power we know.

II.

Does the Buffalo need the Pale-face word
To find his pathway far?
What guide has he to the hidden ford,
Or where the green pastures are?
Who teacheth the Moose that the hunter's gun
Is peering out of the shade—
Who teacheth the doe and the fawn to run
In the trust the Moose has made?

III.

Him do we follow, Him do we fear—
The Spirit of earth and sky;—
Who hears with the Manitou eagle ear
His poor red children's cry.
Whom whisper we move in every breeze
That stirs the birch canoe—
Who hangs the reindeer moss on the trees
For the food of the Caribou.

IV.

That Spirit we worship who walks unseen
Through our land of ice and snow;
We know not His face, we know not His place,
But His presence and power we know.
Wapiti—the elk.

We should like to quote "Jacques Cartier," "Our Ladye of the Snow," "Prima Vista," "Arm and Rise," "The Three Minstrels," "The Exile," and many others, but space forbids. We cannot forbear giving a few lines from that noble poem, "The Death of Hudson." After a description of how Hudson sailed from Amsterdam, he describes the mutiny of his crew, and the awful fate of their commander cast adrift, with "seven sick men, five hundred leagues from shore." He draws a fearful awe-inspiring picture of their fate. He thus concludes the poem:—

Powerless he sat—that chief escaped so oft by sea and land—
Death b eckoning o'er him—all so weak he could not lift a hand.
Even his bloodless lips refused a last short prayer to speak,
But angels listen at the heart when the voice of man is weak.

His heart and eye were suppliant turned to the ocean's Lord on high,
The Borealis' lustres bright were gathering in the sky,
From south and north from east and west, they clustered o'er the spot
Where breathed his last the gallant chief whose grave man seeth not;
They marked him die with steadfast gaze, as tho' in heaven there were
A passion to behold how man the direst fate may bear;
They watched him through the lifelong night—those couriers of the sky.
Then fled to tell the listening stars how 'twas they saw him die.

He sleepeth where old Winter's realm no genial air invades,
His spirit burneth bright in heaven among the glorious shades
Whose God-like doom on earth it was creation to enfold,
Spanning this mighty orb of ours as through the spheres it rolled.
His name is written on the deep, the rivers as they run
Will bear it timeward o'er the world, telling what he had done;
The story of his voyage to Death, amid the Arctic frosts,
Will be told to unborn ages on earth's remotest coasts.

A totally different poem is "The Irish Wife," yet it is a great favorite and deservedly, too, with all who hail from the Emerald Isle. We can only give the last two verses, which are as follows:—

My Irish wife has clear blue eyes,
My heaven by day, my stars by night
And twin-like, truth and fondness lie
Within her swelling bosom white.
My Irish wife has golden hair—
Apollo's harp had once such strings—
Apollo's self might pause to hear
Her bird-like carol when she sings.

I would not give my Irish wife
For all the dames of the Saxon land—
I would not give my Irish wife
For the Queen of France's hand;
For she to me is dearer
Than castles strong, or lands, or life—
In death I would lie near her,
And rise beside my Irish wife.

What we have given here, will, we trust, cause all our readers to thirst for more, and to study for themselves the poems of D'Arcy McGee, which, as has been said, are redolent with the purest Irish feeling, love of country and of kin, reverence for what is old and venerable, and high appreciation of the beautiful and the good—"while over all are diffused the choicest, graces of fancy, the most subtle humor, the most delicate beauty of thought and expression."

The Review is outrageous. It says that Hon. D. Mills is as much a murderer as the North-West Indians, since he is a party to breaking down the health and strength of Sir John Macdonald—"a murderous attempt," the organ adds, "in a man of his age." This would be barely libellous if it were not utterly idiotic. Sir John only reaps what he has sown. He declared that he would force his heinous Franchise Bill through Parliament without adjournment or, of course, discussion, and the Opposition, of which Hon. Mr. Mills is a member, discussed the Bill in spite of the Minister's decision. While the Opposition were fighting Sir John's Franchise iniquity, the latter was sleeping in his bed. "Murderous attempt," indeed. Bah! go to! Partyism run rabid could write nothing baser; journalism gone idiotic, nothing weaker.

The people of Canada are becoming familiar with the daily tales of bloodshed and misery from the Northwest. Already three score and six Canadians have laid down their lives as a sacrifice to the criminal incompetency and negligence of the Dominion Government. The latter was warned repeatedly that there was danger in delay. Yet matters were allowed to drift on till millions of money and scores, if not hundreds of lives will have to be sacrificed before order is restored. It is stated on the best authority, that Col. Houghton communicated to the Government in the fullest manner, the great danger to be apprehended from a half-breed and Indian rising on the Saskatchewan as early as July last. If Dominion Cabinet Ministers had been alive to their responsibilities the present sad outbreak might have been prevented. It is a wonder that they can take their sense of guilt to bed with them and sleep.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—It having come to my ears that it is currently reported that I refused to take part in the "Service of Praise" with the "Old Choir" in St. Paul's Church last Sunday, thus placing me in a false position before the congregation and thereby estranging many of my old friends from me, I thus publicly through your columns pronounce the report a falsehood. I offered my services early on Monday morning to assist in the said services along with all the "Old Choir," but for some reason, or no reason, the services of one-half of the old choir, including myself, were not acceptable to some person or persons, therefore, we were not invited. As the report referred to has been very freely circulated among the members of St. Paul's Church, by publishing this denial you will confer a great favor on

Yours truly,
D. D. GALLETLY.

ON DRINKING WATER.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—Now that the hot weather is on, a word as to water-drinking will not be out of place.

In shops, stores, factories, etc., it is customary to keep a pitcher of water for the use of the men. Being seldom covered, more or less dust falls in and finds its way to the bottom. A certain amount of mineral matter is also deposited, and this with successive layers of dust gradually forms a coating which only in its later stages of development merits the name of dirt. When it is considered that air is more apt to be contaminated with disease-germs inside a building than outside, and that with each replenishment of the pitcher the deposit is stirred up, it will be seen how easily these germs may find their way into the system. Typhoid fever has been traced to this cause. Rinsing the vessel at the pump or water-tap does not remove all this coating, but the remedy is simple—scald the pitchers occasionally and keep them covered.

Yours, etc.,
J. CLARKE.

C. P. R. FREIGHT RATES.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—Your last issue publishes a letter from Mr. Franks, of Emily, which, in justice to the C. P. R. and myself, I must answer.

Mr. Franks called on me in regard to tickets and rates for car of settler's goods to Moosejaw. Not being a freight agent, I telephoned (for his convenience) to the station for freight rate, which was $187.50 per car to Moosejaw. The car was not chartered from me, neither did I give him a receipt or receive $187.50, which from his letter you would infer. He made his arrangements in regard to freight with the freight agent, and received his receipt and free ticket from him. He was also told distinctly by the freight agent that the price would be $187.50 for a car of twenty thousand pounds, and in justice to the C.P.R. I will guarantee that if the car was not over weight, if there is an extra charge, (of which we have no proof), he will be refunded the amount.

Yours, etc.,
ALEX. ELLIOTT,
C.P.R. Ticket Agent.

(From our own Correspondent.)

SCHOOL BOARD.

Present, Wm. Caldwell, chairman; Dr. Armour, W. J. Wallace, R. Q Dench, and Mr. Wm. Abbott, sr., the new member. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The following accounts were presented and ordered to be paid:—Wm. Jones, cleaning water closets, $5; Review Printing Company, $1.25. The monthly report was received from the head master for the month of April. The resignation of Mr. August, head master, was, by resolution, accepted, the board at the same time expressing their regret at losing his efficient services, which have given so much satisfaction during the last two years. A by-law defining the rules and regulations for the government of the Board in conducting the business in connection with the Lakefield Public School, received its several readings. The following committees were appointed for the remainder of the year:—Supervision, Dr. Armour and W. J. Wallace; Property, Mr. T. Gordon and Mr. Wm. Abbott; Finance, Mr. Dench and Mr. W. J. Wallace.

The Board adjourned to meet the second Tuesday in June.

RUN AWAY.

On Friday last Mr. Chapin's team, which was standing in front of his machine shop, and not tied, started off, and ran up Queen street, then down past the station as far as Mr. Wright's, where they were caught. No damage was done, though they made pretty good speed.

ACCIDENT.

On Saturday last master John Bell, a son of Mr. C. Bell, fell from a tree a distance of twenty feet, striking a stump and breaking his thigh bone.

HORSE KILLED.

A few days ago while Mr. Arthur Jory was leading a two-year-old colt along the road it reared up and went over backwards, its head striking a small stone. It died within a few days.

HIGH WATER.

The water, which has been higher above the dam than it has been during the last fifteen years, has begun to lower this week.

NEW CHEESE FACTORY.

A new cheese factory has been erected in Douro, and commenced operations. It is situated two miles from Lakefield, on Mr. E. Foley's farm, at the Young's Point road. There are two buildings, the one in which the cheese is manufactured, 18 x 24, and the curing room, 18 x 36.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Robert Strickland arrived this week from England, looking well.

REMEMBERING BOULTON.

The testimonial to Col. Boulton, mentioned in my last, has been forwarded to its destination, and consists of a handsome repeating rifle, of the latest design, a brace of Smith & Wesson revolvers, 38 calibre, and a cartridge belt; the rifle bore the following inscription, engraved on a silver plate:—"Presented by the village of Lakefield, to Col. Boulton, commanding Boulton's Scouts, N. W. T., May, 1885;" and was accompanied with the following address:

Col. C. A. Boulton, commanding Boulton's Scouts, N. W. T.

DEAR SIR,—On behalf of the citizens of Lakefield, we beg your acceptance of the accompanying rifle, revolvers and cartridge case, as a slight token of our esteem for you as a former resident of this village, and as our first reeve, and also in admiration of the gallant manner in which you are leading your scouts against the rebels and Indians in the Northwest.

Wishing you a speedy and safe return to the loved ones at home.

We are on behalf of your Lakefield friends,

R. C. STRICKLAND, Reeve,
ALEX. BELL, Village Clerk.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Fragile and frail are the things of time,
Like the dew on the grass, or the morning rime;
And fleeting as vapor, our lives go by,
Like clouds on the breast of a moonlit sky;
And the things that were future, are future no more;
And the things that are present, are leaving the shore;
And the Past's mighty gullet will gulp them all down
As a Nile alligator would gobble a clown.

WINTER,

cold, stern, heartless and hard, has departed. His icy chains are broken and his iron prison rent asunder. Time has beckoned, and he has fled. His hoary locks, iron frame, and relentless brow were of no avail, and though his despotic grasp turned the very hills to stone, he is no more. Our quiet, placid river, unbound, flows on its winding way, and Rice Lake, picturesque and beautiful, again rejoicing in its freedom, reflects once more from its bright, glad bosom, the beauties of earth and the wonders of heaven.

Spring work is advancing rapidly. Farmers are sowing, and the gardeners gladly "improve each shining hour." Mr. White's fine little steamer has been several times at our wharf. More power to its elbow!

Our boys have organized a football club, and may be seen almost every evening in the Town Hall lot, in the exercise of their energetic game.

Our volunteers are attentive and diligent in their drilling duties, which speaks well for their courage and patriotism.

Wm. Lang, Esq., has finished his dwelling, and is now busy putting a good iron fence around his premises, which when finished will add much to the appearance of our village.

Mr. Harper has just about completed the church contract, of which more anon.

Where do some persons get intoxicants late on Saturday night? Even on Sunday some parties are seen more than "half-seas over." Be careful of your names, friends.

A number of the Presbyterian church congregation are practising music for the church opening, the date of which is not yet decided.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union is doing good work. Among other things the members have organized a series of Sunday afternoon meetings. The first was held last Sabbath afternoon in the Methodist church, and they will be continued every two or three weeks. By this means local talent will be made available, and developed, and the cause strengthened. The ladies deserve great praise for their zeal and energy.

The scarlet fever appears to be dying out again. The family of Mr. P. Drummond are improving, also that of Mr. John R. Kindred

Have You Thought About It?

Why suffer a single moment when you can get immediate relief from all internal or external pains by the use of Polson's NERVILINE, the great pain cure. Nerviline has never been known to fail in a single case; it cannot fail, for it is a combination of the most powerful pain subduing remedies known. Try a 10 cent sample bottle of Nerviline. You will find Nerviline a sure cure for neuralgia, toothache, headache. Buy and try. Large bottles 25 cents, by all druggists.

Underground in San Francisco.

A correspondent of a Philadelphia paper writes: "Highbinders" seem to be a sort of Chinese Thug, and the weapon they employ is a short, round bar of iron with a basket hilt. It looks like a broken-off single stick, but, as wielded by them, is very deadly. The blow is generally given at the back of the neck. The guide regaled us with an account of the finding of one of the "Highbinders" victims a few days before, and then took us into a cellar in which he suspected some of the murderers were. Two floors underground, in a narrow, tortuous passage, the rats running over my feet, and the only light a flickering candle held by Choy, it may be imagined we kept close together. On arriving at a doorway the magic "Amona" soon gained us admittance, and we stood in a room about nine feet long by six wide. On the right-hand side were four bunks, one above the other, with less heighth between them than is usual in the forecastle of a ship. Across the end of the room were four more bunks, leaving clear space only at the side of the right hand row. Each of the berths had an occupant, and here, nearly eighteen feet under ground, in a space not so large as an ordinary stateroom, with foul smells arising from the saturated ground, which was the only flooring, and with rats so numerous and frequent visitors as not to be thought worth noticing, lay eight human beings. Some were asleep, some were smoking opium, and some tobacco from little pipes which only hold a pinch of the weed, and are exhausted in two or three whiffs. The air was almost intolerable. Yet the Chinese live and thrive in it. A dreadful hole, known as the hospital of the "Lost Chance," is supported by the Six Companies. Our visit was made at about 3 o'clock in the morning and because the villainous-looking attendant delayed some time in opening the door the detective boxed his ears soundly. The "Last Chance" is, indeed, worthy of its name. Here sick Chinese are brought to die. They get medical attention. Upon the wooden floor, in one corner, lay a man evidently dying of consumption; by his side was some food and a cup of tea. The attendant explained that if the patient felt better he turned over and took his food; if not he kept his face to the wall and died. In a shed built out from the room were some trestles supporting roughly-made coffins awaiting occupants—a cheerful sight for the eyes of the sick and dying!

Emerson's First Money for His Books.

An interesting bit of literary history has recently come to us from authentic sources. The early works of the late Ralph Waldo Emerson, including the first volume of essays, "Nature," and the early poems, were printed by the old publishing house of Monroe & Co. After Mr. Emerson's return from England, in 1848, he delivered the series of lectures afterward published under the title of "Representative Men," which, by the influence of the Rev. E. E. Hale, he was invited to give at Worcester. Mr. Phillips, of the publishing house of Phillips & Sampson, was residing at Worcester at that time, and, his wife being a relative of Mr. Emerson, the lecturer made Mr. Phillips' house his headquarters whenever he came to the town to speak. The acquaintance which resulted led Mr. Phillips to suggest that his firm be allowed to publish Mr. Emerson's next volume.

"I am very willing," was in substance Mr. Emerson's reply, "but I wish to own the plates myself." And so it was arranged. Emerson had at this time been before the public for a number of years, had published three volumes of essays and a volume of poems; the Dial had lived and died, and the writings of the Sage of Concord were read, or at least talked about, on each side of the Atlantic, so that the sale of any book from his pen was in a manner assured beforehand. Some time after the appearance of "Representative Men," Mr. Phillips sent Mr. Emerson a check for a considerable sum, we believe about $600.

Mr. Emerson went immediately to see his publisher.

"You do not understand," he said, "before I receive any money I wish to pay for the plates."

"If you had examined the statements I sent you," was the publisher's answer, "you would have seen that you have already paid for the plates."

"And the copies that are on your hands," inquired Mr. Emerson, "who owns them?"

"You," was the reply, "subject of course to our commission."

"And this check is mine also?"

"Certainly; that covers the balance due you."

"Well," said Mr. Emerson, "with all my publishing that is the first money I ever received from one of my books."

WARSAW.

Rev. Peter Fenning, of the Presbytery of Peterborough, formerly of this place, has been inducted into the pastorate of the Laskay and Rice congregations, in the Presbytery of Toronto.

A Costly Mistake.

Sometime ago Mr. W. D. McAdoo, proprietor of the McAdoo house, in Greensboro, wanted a plate of glass, in size 22x32 inches, and wrote to a New York house to send it to him, and to draw on him at sight for the pay. Now, it might have been all right, but Mr. McAdoo wrote "feet" instead of "inches." The New York firm, on receiving this extraordinary order—the glass wanted being described as fine French-plate—concluded that there must be some mistake, and telegraphed to Mr. McAdoo in substance about as follows:

"Haven't you made a mistake? In all of our thirty years' experience we have never received an order of this sort."

Mr. McAdoo, confident that he was correct, telegraphed that he "wanted what he ordered," and for them to send it along. The firm, not yet satisfied, wrote him a letter stating that they would not be able to fill the order unless they were to import the glass, and to this Mr. McAdoo replied: "Go ahead and 'import.'" In the course of time Mr. McAdoo was astonished at receiving a bill of lading for a piece of French-plate glass, one inch thick, thirty-two feet long and twenty-two feet wide, shipped on steamer from France to Norfolk. The immense piece of glass, carefully boxed, was carried across the ocean on the steamer's deck, and was laid on the wharf at Norfolk, where it now remains. There is no possible way of transporting it over land by rail, as it would not pass through the cuts along the railrod, nor could it go through the covered bridges. No doubt if Mr. McAdoo could get it to Greenboro he would find some use for it, but how to get it there is the question. In the meantime the plate of glass is lying on the wharf at Norfolk, waiting his orders. It cost him $3,100.—Raleigh, (N. C.) News.

There Was Method in His Politeness.

Probably the politest and most considerate man who ever lived was General Bradsbale, of Arkansaw. Some time ago, boarding a train, he perceived his son, whom he had not seen for twenty years, occupying a seat, reading. The old gentleman sat down immediately behind the young man. After the train had gone about thirty miles, the young man laid aside his newspaper, and discovering his father, seized the old man with affectionate warmth. "Why didn't you let me know that you was on the train, father?"

"Because," replied the old gentleman, "I saw that you were reading and I did not wish to disturb——"

"That would have made no difference."

"And besides," continued the father, "I thought that you might want to borrow a few dollars."—Arkansaw Traveler.

SUN
Insurance on Volunteers!

The agitation respecting the policies on the lives of our Volunteers has induced many persons to read their policies for the first time. Even many of the Volunteers have learned that their policies are null and void, and are now cancelled. It is true that some companies return the small amount paid in premiums in case the insured be killed during the rebellion, but this is a mere trifle. These brave men are risking their lives in the defence of our country, they make no profit by going, but are in fact losers, and it is surprising to think that they should also hazard their life policies, and if killed will leave their wife and children to the cold charities of the world. The policies of probably the majority of companies doing business in Canada become null and void in case of death during the rebellion, Quebec valley of course, and AN ACT OF GRACE, have voluntarily stated they will hold them good. It is not a time like this that the UNCONDITIONAL policies of the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA are appreciated. They cover every risk. It is not a matter of opinion with the management, for the policy is clear. There is no excuse for accepting a policy with numerous small print conditions when you can get an UNCONDITIONAL ONE in the SUN.

HUGH KENRICK'S WILL,
OR,
THE STORY OF A POSY RING.

BY MARGARET HUNT.

Author of "The Loadless Casket," "Thorncroft's Model," &c. &c.

"Well, in one sense they ought, twice; but then, in another, they ought not.—Mrs. Richmond was Mr. Kenrick's only sister. She married very much against my master's wishes, a rich young Manchester merchant. He was very unsteady—and for that and other reasons master never could abear him. No more could I, though my feelings were not expected to show themselves. She had been brought up expensive at home before she married, and when she went to her new home she found plenty of expense going on there, and had no mind to do anything to lessen it; so after a year or two the natural end of such goings on was that her husband failed, and none too creditably either. My master, he set them on their legs again, but he advised them to be prudenter than they had been; but they liked his help better than his advice; that's the way of a many. Well, they failed again, and he helped them again, and harder words passed between them. She's a deal younger than master was. She ought to have listened humbler to him, but there was no getting it out of her head that she was to have all she fancied, whether she could afford it or not; not but what she was a very good, upright woman in all but that. At last they quarrelled outright, she and master, and she went her way and he his, and for the last twenty years they never saw each other; indeed, he died without seeing her. They were quite friendly on paper. Four times every year they wrote to each other kind and tender like, and asked each other all particulars how they had been going on in the meantime, but that was all. They never once met. I daresay my master often sent her a good sum to help her after she lost her husband, and was poorly left; and then she had called her boy after master, Hugh Kenrick Richmond, and she was always mighty careful when she wrote to say how particularly steady and dutiful he was, and how well he was turning out; and so, seeing as how my master he never married, and was so rich and old, and had no one to leave what he had to but her and her son, I make no doubt she counted on getting it all when he died; and you see Miss Clavering, ma'am, you can hardly wonder if she did, for he could not take his wealth away with him, and she was the only one he had to look to."

"Oh, dear! oh dear! what harm I have done!" thought Lucy.

"You see, Miss Clavering, said Mrs. Lishman, who was talkative enough now that she was once set a-going, "he never made friends with anyone. If he was not friends with his sister and her son, there was at any rate no one else whom he appeared to esteem above them, so no doubt they would in their hearts make sure of getting all he had."

"And if he had not met me ——" said Lucy. "It really was a strange thing that he took so to me."

"It is more like magic than anything else that I can find to compare it to," cried Mrs. Lishman; "it really was."

"And so, dear Mrs Lishman, you really think if he had not met me he would have left all to the Richmonds?"

"Oh, no, indeed, I do not. I am sure he would not have left it to them, but still I think they would have got it. It is my belief that he would not have made any will at all if he had not seen you, but would just have let his money take care of itself and go as the law directed when he was done with it."

"And in that case——"

"They would have got all."

"I feel very guilty and uncomfortable about this," said poor Lucy. "I must go and talk to my aunt."

"It is of no use to talk to anyone, Miss Clavering. You are innocent of all intention to give away their money from them. I daresay you did not know he had any money until you heard it was left to you."

"No, indeed. But it seems so hard."

"Well, so it does, in a way; but I don't hold with people making their own of other people's money like that until they really get it. One way or other, such like are always getting themselves well disappointed. Look to yourself for what you want, say I."

"Do you know if they showed any disappointment?" asked Lucy.

"You won't get much showing anything but ugly queer temper out of Mrs. Richmond. She is too proud to complain much. She came here to this house to see me after I came back from Calderwater, after the master's funeral. She said something about disputing his will. She declared he must have been out of his mind to make such a ridiculous disposition of his property; but none of us servants would hear a word of his being out of his mind, although we were none of us, so to speak, remembered in the will he made. Lord bless you, Miss Claveriug, ma'am, his mind was just as clear up to the day of his death as it ever had been. No one could have called him anything but a sane and sensible man and master. Mrs. Richmond went away resigned and scornful, but as bitter as—well, as bitter as any thing I have ever heard named bitter."

"But how does her son happen to paint Calderwater so much? Did they go there often?"

"They never went when master was there, never! I have heard of them being there when the house was shut up, and hiring lodgings in the village."

Lucy sighed heavily. "All this makes me very unhappy. I wish Mr. Kenrick had only left me a part of what he had—I should have been just as grateful for a little of it."

"I don't think that Mrs. Richmond would, though; she is one of the all-or-nothing kind."

"And her son?"

"I have hardly seen him. He is pleasant-spoken and good-looking enough outside; inside, I daresay he is much the same as his mother. They say that no apple ever falls very far from the tree that bore it."

CHAPTER VI.

"Aunt Esther," cried Lucy, breaking in abruptly on the quiet old lady's repose—Lucy had given her a sitting-room opening out of her bedroom, with all her own pet chairs and tables in it. "Aunt Esther, dear, do be quick and put on your bonnet and shawl, and come out with me. I have ordered the carriage, and it will be here in a minute; do come, I can't be happy unless you do."

"Dear child, half as much 'petitionary vehemence' will take me anywhere you like, only tell me where."

"Wait till we are in the carriage, please," said Lucy, and ran off; and not till they were on their way did she unfold to Aunt Esther that she could not know a moment's peace until she had been to the Mrs. Richmond, and had offered to share Mr. Kenrick's wealth with her.

"And you do not tell me of an important scheme like this, until we are actually in the carriage and on our way to do it!" said the aggrieved lady.

"Never mind, dear—I am so certain I am doing right. This is one of those just things which require no consideration at all."

"And what do you mean to give up to her, Lucy? Your town house?"

"No, I like it. I could not let her have that!"

"Your Cumberland house and land?"

"Certainly not if it is only half as beautiful as her son makes it in his pictures, I can't part with that!"

"Then what is she to have?"

"Only some money, that's all! She shall have four or five thousand a year. That will do just as well for her as either of the houses. They are nothing to her—she never lived in either of them—when she and her brother were young, and lived together, it was in their father's house in Bryanston Square. Mrs. Lishman told me so."

Aunt Esther was much disturbed. "You talk of giving away thousands like——"

"Like nothing that I can find to compare you with—that does give away thousands, as Mrs. Lishman would say," cried Lucy, whose spirits were quite restored by the pleasure of this expedition. "Don't mind about this, Aunt Esther dear; I had great delight in Mr. Kenrick's present to me until to-day when I heard of these people. Now, if I am to have any enjoyment out of it, I must resign at least half his money to those who have, in equity, such a strong claim."

"Please yourself, wilful child. Give away the money and keep the houses! I suppose you think houses can be kept up without money?"

They were soon in Gower street—that was where the Richmond's were lodging.

"We must try to see the mother alone," said Lucy; "the son would be sadly in the way. We had better not give our names."

Their names were not asked. A maid of all work, not too clean, took them upstairs, opened a door, and said, "Here's two ladies wants to speak to you, ma'am."

Mrs. Richmond, a tall, thin, upright, dignified woman, of sixty or more, with severely regular features, silvery white hair and pale complexion, laid her work down, rose and bowed gravely to her unexpected visitors. "Pray be seated," said she and waited to hear their errand.—Then, and not till then, did Lucy feel what a terrible difficult task she had imposed upon herself—what a plunge she had made! With as little shyness and hesitation as might be, she briefly told Mrs. Richmond that she was Lucy Ilderton, who had in obedience to Mr. Kenrick's will taken the name of Clavering—that only this day had she learnt that Mr. Kenrick had a sister living—that ever since she had been told this she had been miserably uncomfortable about taking all that he had left her, and that she had come to entreat Mrs. Richmond to be so very kind as to make her mind easy by taking four or five thousand pounds a year from her. Would Mrs. Richmond be so good as to overlook the fact that her brother had in this unaccountable manner left his wealth to a comparative stranger, wholly undeserving of such kindness, and share his money with her?

Mrs. Richmond left Lucy's question unanswered, and, as it were, unregarded, and said, "You know, Miss Ilderton, or Miss Clavering, for really I scarcely know by which name to address you, that my brother and I were not on terms of friendliness."

"Madam, I was not even aware of your relationship till this morning, when Mrs. Lishman told me about it. Yes, I know you and Mr. Kenrick did not meet, but then you wrote to each other."

"Yes, we wrote to each other, and our letters were friendly—you, who have everything which belonged to my brother, will doubtless have my letters also—that is, if he honored me by keeping them—so you will be able to judge of the terms on which we corresponded. We were not such good friends as brother and sister ought to be, but still I never expected to be left without a penny!"

"It hurts me very much to think this was the case," said Lucy. "But——"

"It hurts me a thousand times more!" interrupted Mrs. Richmond, "more especially as there is no help for it! My brother left me nothing, and I will take nothing! I do not choose to fare better than he intended me to do. I am poor enough, I can assure you, but I do not mean to become richer in the way you propose."

"But consider, madam," urged Lucy, "he has left me far more than I want—it would divide into two very good incomes, and it is but just that you should have half of it!"

"That is true; indeed, I think it would be more just if I had the whole, for I do not see why a young lady, whose only claim on my brother's regard was that she bore some likeness to a girl he was in love with some fifty years ago, and whose face he had, no doubt, so entirely forgotten, that he could easily have persuaded himself that any girl of eighteen was like her—well, I do not see why an imaginary likeness of this kind——"

"But it was not imaginary, madam," interrupted Aunt Esther energetically, for to doubt this likeness seemed to her to make Lucy's claim to be Mr. Kenrick's heiress entirely invalid. "We have the other Miss Clavering's picture hanging up in the breakfast-room in Chester Square, and it is so like my niece that it might have been painted from her!"

"You wish to think so, madam. Well, likeness or no likeness, I do not see why my own brother is going to set me aside for the sake of a chance likeness! I shall always call his conduct most monstrous, most unjust!"

"Madam, you need not say so much about this, or use such words when my niece is going to behave so generously to you!"

"Please, Aunt Esther," began Lucy, "please don't say that——"

"You are generous," said Mrs. Richmond, apparently making the admission reluctantly, "I do not deny that you are, but I do not intend to profit by your kindness. My brother made a will which bears every appearance of being made by a man in his dotage—I must suffer—I do not accuse you of any attempt to influence him, for I know you were not near him to do it; but I do say he acted very foolishly and very cruelly! I can never forget or forgive it. You wrote to ask my son to give you lessons. How can you expect him to enter your house?—you did not know who we were, you say; now that you do know, you must see how painful it is to both of us to be reminded of your existence! Leave me now, please, and keep away from us! We were poor before my brother died—we are poor still—but, thank God, my son has talent!"

"Your son has genius! I never in my life saw anything more beautiful than his drawings!" cried Lucy, enthusiastically; and then she added, "Please let me buy that one I liked so."

"You have got the place itself!" replied Mrs. Richmond, bitterly. "Be content with that! My son does not paint for you!"

"Lucy's eyes began to shine with a watery brilliancy—still she persisted, "Mrs. Richmond, I feel the truth of what you say—I think it most unjust that you should have been thus treated by your brother—I do not offer to resign all he gave me, but I offer you five or six thousand a year—I entreat you to take it."

"And I refuse to take it! I am as proud as you are! You don't like to keep it when you know my claim, and I don't choose to be beholden to you! I must beg to put an end to this interview. You, as a rich lady, will move in a sphere of society wholly removed from mine—if we do happen to meet, please be so good as to leave me unnoticed. Before you go, let me thank you, though, for this offer that you have made me."

"You might have accepted it! You might have spoken as woman to woman! Why not receive what I offer in the spirit in which I wish to give it?"

"I receive nothing from you! Whatever came to me ought to come from my own brother—I wonder you do not see that. I can never forgive my brother!"

Miss Esther Moore groaned audibly—"Not forgive a dead man!"

"Could you forgive him yourself, madam?" said Mrs. Richmond, indignantly turning to Aunt Esther. "Could you patiently see your own father's portrait, your mother's, all the family plate, books, jewels, and everything else which had interest for you taken from you and your son, and handed over to a child like your niece there, for whom they have, and can have, no value!—your niece, who was almost as much of a stranger to the man who heaped all this wealth on her as she is to me whom she has deprived of it!"

"You shall have every picture you wish to have," cried Lucy, starting to her feet; "you shall come yourself and take away everything you see which ever belonged to your family! I did not ask Mr. Kenrick to give these things to me, and I do not intend to keep them."

Mrs. Richmond shook her head—"A little more or a little less, what does it matter?—one thing is not more unjust than another in this. What is done is done—I must once more beg you to leave me. I am not a young woman, and a conversation like this is very trying to me!"

"To Lincoln's Inn Fields," said Lucy to the coachman, the moment she was once more in her carriage.

"Where are you going now?" inquired Aunt Esther. "Dear Lucy, let us get home. That dreadful old lady has quite shaken my nerves."

"I must see Mr. Strachey."

Mr. Strachey was Mr. Kenrick's lawyer.

"You are going to force your money on a woman who is determined not to have it!"

"No, I am going to have it made over to her son."

"Lucy, you are a very odd mixture of strength and weakness; sometimes you let people turn you any way they like, and at others you are perfectly headstrong."

"Only when I am sure I am right," murmured Lucy; and when Aunt Esther looked round she saw the poor girl was crying quietly in the corner of the carriage. "It will make you happier to do this, you think, darling?" asked the old lady, kindly.

"Yes, I shall be miserable until it is done."

"Then let us have it done."

But when they got to Mr. Strachey's chambers he was as business-like and stiff as his own parchments. "Resign five thousand a year in favor of Mr. Hugh Kenrick Richmond! Miss Clavering, you do not seem to have studied the late Mr. Kenrick's will. You are unable to alienate a penny. You can dispose of the property after your death, but not alienate any part of it. The testator was very anxious that all should be kept as he left it. He had his own ideas on this subject, and his will expressly forbids you to part with any books, pictures, plate, houses, lands, or money either, except in the way of lawful and necessary outlay."

"And if I transgress and get you to settle four or five thousand a year on this gentleman, who has a far better right to it than I have?"

"It can't be done, madam. If you take any step of this kind you forfeit your claim to the whole of Mr. Kenrick's estate."

"And what becomes of it?"

"It will be divided among various charitable institutions—but this is out of the question! You must renounce your generous, and pardon me if I add, most Quixotic intention."

"Say what you like," cried the oppressed Lucy; "I have had worse things than that said to me to-day. I have been with Mrs. Richmond."

The lawyer smiled. He had heard a description of that lady.

"You told me a minute since that I could not give away any pictures or plate.—Surely that does not apply to family pictures? I may let Mrs. Richmond have her father's picture and her mother's, and any family plate or jewels?"

"Indeed, Miss Clavering you may not. All these things come under the category of property not to be alienated. You can part with nothing. You can allow Mrs. Richmond a yearly income dependent on your pleasure. You can make nothing absolutely hers."

"Has Mrs. Richmond never read her brother's will?" was Miss Moore's most natural question. "Does she not know the conditions he made? She did not appear to do so."

"Her son saw the will, but I doubt if he has imparted much of its contents to his mother. He said he should not do so.—The disappointment made her very ill, and I am pretty sure that he has kept everything from her knowledge that he could."

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best pulverizer ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will alone do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulverizer and Clang Plow. The teeth incline forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible strain upon the beam. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and self clog, they pass from wet soil with grass, weeds, stubble, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, so often with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning: handle, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened up or edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the past repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

Editorial Notes.

Toronto has now a population of 105,211, with an assessment of $68,966,060.

The revised version of the Old Testament was published in London on the 19th, and in New York to-day, May 21st.

The Toronto News asserts that Sir John Macdonald's Franchise Act is "an attempted usurpation of Provincial power, and as such it should be opposed by every patriotic citizen."

According to the latest advices, Sir John lost 125 supporters at the Cut Knife Creek fight. Colonel Otter cut off that number of Indians in their political prime, who would have voted for Sir John under his new Franchise Bill at the next election. Otter's bullets rather anticipated Sir John's ballots.

The British general election will be brought on by Gladstone in November. He will go to the country with a franchise bill so fair that even his Tory opponents endorsed it. Sir John dare not face the country without a dis-franchise bill that will knock enough Reformers out of votes to secure his elections.

For Spring Millinery, neat and nobby shapes and shades, to suit every style of dress, now in stock at Turnbull's.

There are now about five thousand of the best young men of Canada actively engaged in endeavouring to put down the rising of the rebellious Indians. Under Sir John's new Franchise Bill, the majority of these will not have votes; while the Indian savages whom they are fighting to subdue, will have ballots at the next election, if Sir John's infamous Franchise Bill passes, as proposed.

Mr. Geo. Stephen, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, asks for relief for the Company on "patriotic" grounds. Some of the members of the Company have, it seems, been giving personal guarantees for debts due by the Company, and they want the taxpayers of Canada to advance five million dollars to relieve them. Not long ago Mr. Stephen built a million dollar residence out of profits on the C. P. R., and he and his partners have divided as dividends among themselves about five millions and a half dollars of money that should have been devoted to building the road. The check of the last demand is tremendous; Canadian taxpayers have other uses for their money.

The Toronto World, (Independent) describes the revising barrister clause of the Dominion franchise bill as a most iniquitous proposal, and condemns the whole measure. The Toronto News, (Independent Conservative), speaks equally as scathingly of the clause giving the tribal Indians the voting power. The Montreal Post, (Independent Conservative), also condemns the proposed tribal Indian vote, and says it is a blow struck at the root of free government. Thus, says the Ottawa Free Press, newspaper after newspaper which were at first indifferent upon the fate of the franchise, have justified the policy of the Liberal Opposition in forcing a prolonged discussion upon the franchise bill, by condemning without qualification those clauses of the bill to place which principles into operation, the whole bill was introduced. Had not the Opposition forced a fight, the bill would have gone through, and the votes of the whites in this country sacrificed, so that corrupt politicians could retain power on the ballots of illiterate Indians.

If you want to replenish your Gloves and Hosiery, you will find everything desirable in quality, color, and price, at Turnbull's.

There is little probability that the scheme for University Federation will amount to anything. Queen's University, Kingston, has decidedly shown its hostility to the proposal, and Victoria University is morally committed to a like course. We have received a cleverly written pamphlet on the question "Should Victoria University Join the Proposed Federation?" and the author categorically answers the several questions arising out of this. Its claims of location preclude the entertainment of this idea; the standing and progress of the University do not require the proposed change to promote the success of the institution; if the permanency of the University were assured to Cobourg there would be no difficulty respecting the money question; from a moral point of view the present location is the better for students; the federation would amount to "an abandonment on the part of the church of of its traditional policy of the oversight of the interests of higher education;" the conclusion of the writer is that with the degradation of the college would come in a sense the degradation of the church. That the sentiments and opinions promulgated by the writer are sympathized in by the great majority of the friends and supporters of Victoria, there can be no doubt. With two such important Universities hostile to the scheme of University Federation, it is plain that little can come of the agitation.

Mrs. Tom Thumb is beginning in a small way to show her age.

There is nothing equal to Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator for destroying worms. No article of its kind has given such satisfaction.

The extreme depth of misery is a small boy with a new pair of boots and no mud puddle.

Holloway's Corn Cure is the medicine to remove all kinds of corns and warts, and only costs the small sum of twenty-five cents.

Our great business in life is not to see what lies dimly at a distance, but to do what lies clearly at hand.

An Ex-Alderman Tried It.

Ex-Alderman Taylor, of Toronto, tried Hagyard's Yellow Oil for Rheumatism. It cured him after all other remedies had failed. 20-2t

For a man to shine in society it is not necessary for him to have his character blackened.

It is no indication that a cent knows the value of sap-sap, simply because it always carries its party with it.

Clergymen, Singers and Public speakers will find Robertson's Phosphorized Emulsion of the greatest benefit to them, where there is any tendency to weakness of the throat or Bronchial tubes, as it soothes the irritated membrane, gives full-tone and strength to the vocal organs and imparts new life and vigor to the enfeebled constitution. 21-2t

The Earl of Selkirk, who died very rich lately, left a Year's salary to all employed on his estates.

Mr. Giles Loder, England's largest personal taxpayer, is assessed on property of that description at $15,000,000.

After Twenty-Three Years' Suffering.

Rev Wm. Stout, of Wiarton, was cured of scrofulous abscess that seventeen doctors could not cure Burdock Blood Bitters was the only successful remedy. It cures all impurities of the system 20-2t

What must be shall be, and that which is a necessity to him that struggles is little more than a choice to him that is willing.

There is no disgrace in being poor. The thing is to keep quiet and not let your neighbors know it. 20-2t

Notwithstanding much has been said about the importance of a blood purifying medicine, it may be possible that the matter has never seriously claimed your attention. Think of it now! If, by the use of a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla you avoid the evils of scrofula, and transform a healthy appetite to your food, thanks is all the suffering.

A Continental paper says that England's wars in remote regions at least, promote the study of geography.

The person who has a firm trust in the Supreme Being is powerful in his power, wise by his wisdom, happy by his happiness.

Fabrication of the Heart

Is quieted more by the use of NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELT than can be done by any other remedy. Ask for Norman's; take no other. Every one guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen Street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 20-2t

Queen Mary restricted the wearing of broad-toed shoes by proclamation. The proclamation ran to the effect that shoes should not be worn wider than six inches.

Mr. Henry Marshall, Reeve of Dunn, writes: "Some time ago I got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery from Mr. Harrison, and I consider it the very best medicine extant for Dyspepsia." This medicine is making marvellous cures in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, etc., in purifying the blood, and restoring manhood to full vigor

An old bachelor says: "It is all nonsense to pretend that love is blind. I never knew a man in love that did not see ten times as much in his sweetheart as I could."

"A petrified baby was recently discovered in Texas." Unmarried men may believe this, but those who have seen a baby in motion, know it is never still long enough to petrify.

This is Reliable.

R. N. Wheeler, Merchant, of Everton, was cured of a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs, by Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. This great throat and lung healer cures weak lungs, coughs, hoarseness, bronchitis, and all pectoral complaints. 20-2t

A little girl sent out to hunt eggs came back unsuccessful, complaining that "lots of hens were standing round doing nothing."

"What object n is there to young ladies kissing their poodles?" asks a fair inquirer. None that we know of, dear, if the poodle can stand it.

Mr. G. W. Macully, Pavillion Mountain, B.C., writes: "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best medicine I ever used for Rheumatism. Nearly every winter I am laid up with Rheumatism, and have tried nearly every kind of medicine without getting any benefit, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It has worked wonders for me, and I want another supply for my friends, &c."

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

Little Jones the tailor, whose gray mare is the better horse, thinks a greater punishment than imprisonment for polygamists would be to shut them up at home with all their wives.

A Sport.

The secret of beauty lies in pure blood and good health. Burdock Blood Bitters is the grand key that unlocks all the secretions. It cures all Scrofulous Diseases, acts on the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Skin and Bowels, and brings the bloom of health to the pallid cheek. 20-2t

COLOR RECOGNIZED.

Dexter Williams, who has been appointed United States Minister to Hayti, has the distinguished honor of being the first Member of his race who has been appointed to office by a Democratic Administration. He is to be leader of the colored people of the South.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES,
In Consumption and Wasting Diseases.

Dr. C. W. Barringer, Pittsburg, Pa., says: "I think your Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is a very fine preparation, and fills a long felt want. It is very useful in consumption and wasting diseases."

These are Solid Facts.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever require an appetizer, tonic, or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

HE HAD NO ANXIETY.

"I hear your wife's left you, Mr. Bliff."
"Ya'as. 'Riah's gone."
"Left for good?"
"Don't it make you feel kind of anxious?"
"No. 'Riah was a woman of strong determination. I ain't got no anxieties. She won't come back."

Headache.

Headache is one of those distressing complaints that depends upon nervous irritation, bad circulation, or a disordered state of the stomach, liver bowels, etc. The editor and proprietor of the Canada Presbyterian was cured after years of suffering with headache, and now testifies to the virtue of Burdock Blood Bitters. 20-2t

EXTENUATING CIRCUMSTANCES.

"You are accused of snatching a handful of small change from the till of a grocery store on Austin avenue," said Justice Tegener to Jim Webster, a colored prisoner.

"Yes, yer honor, I knows I did; but when a man am hungry, and hasn't had nuffin ter eat fer more den ten days, he am desperit an' crazy, an' he doesn't care what he does."

"But it appears that, at the time you stole a handful of small change, you had a $5 bill in your pocket."

"I 'clar' am so, but I did not want to bust a $5 bill. As soon as you busts a $5 bill hit melts away."

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the error and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN Station D, New York City.

WANTED TO MAKE HER FEEL BAD.

"My dear," said a young wife, who had been married about a year, "will you step at Smith & Smith's on your way home to-night and get a pound of sodium phosphate?"

"Wouldn't Brown & Brown's do just as well?"

"Certainly. But why do you prefer Brown's?"

"There's a young lady behind the counter there who engaged to marry one and very nearly gave it up, and I want to buy there solely out of spite."

The Wentworth Cricketing Club is an organization that will be the envy of the cricketing world next season. In the society no fee is required and they will agree on all subjects; but it was surprising as soon as it was learnt that Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is unanimously pronounced the most unequalled remedy extant, for poisonous conditions of the blood, however originating in blood, skin or scalp; positively arrests the disease and restores health and strength, if administered in its early stages. by druggists.

A DIFFICULTY OVERCOME.

"I say, Patsey, yo can't weigh yer head on dem scales."

"How by can't I, Larry? What's the matther wid the scales?"

"Dem 'ar two, yez hev more than a ton on dem; and the matther only weighs half a ton."

"Well, be dad, I'll tell ye—ye must divide the front wheels on and weigh half a ton, and then drive the hind wheels on and weigh the other half ton."

"There for you, me by. What a fokse thing it is to have a big brain."

That job line of Scotch Tweeds Turnbull purchased a few days ago deserves the inspection of all who need suits. You will find something to suit you, at astonishing low prices, at Turnbull's.

HOW HE WAS BLOWN UP ON A STEAMBOAT.

"You've travelled a good deal, Sikesby; were you ever in a railroad collision?"

"No; but I was blown up on a steamboat this winter."

"On your trip to New Orleans?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's singular. There wasn't a word in the papers about it. How did it happen?"

"My wife caught me flirting with another woman."

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

In spring the want of a restorative to tone up the general health is a common cry (more especially among those constitutions impaired by age or disease). Prepared cod's liver oil, calisaya bark, iron and strychnine, lower the vitality, diminish the red globules of the blood and interrupt the nutrition of the tissues. By promoting digestion and assimilation of food and securing increase of nerve force and muscular energy the use of WHEELER'S TISSUE PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA will bring up constitutional vigor to its normal plane. 11-52t

NOT QUITE READY FOR "HONESTY IS THE BEST POLICY."

A peddler was displaying some business methods to a fellow peddler, as he said, "hand-painted and lithographed, the best fabric made, only costs 75 cents. I have sold up three peddlers on it and you'll double your trade in three months."

"I'd like one of 'em first-rate," the grocer replied. "I believe there's money in the scheme, but I've got a big lot o' maple sugar left dear an' if I should hang up that sign now it would give me away. Come in two months an' we'll make a dicker."

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes: "AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One pill will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I should do so upon occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

Annual Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the Peterborough Horticultural Society will be held in the Water-street Roller Skating Rink on Tuesday, September 8th.

Cheese Board Meeting.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday, but, owing to the lateness of the season it was thought the cheese had not sufficiently ripened to warrant its going upon the market. Seven or eight factories were represented, and one buyer, Mr. Flavelle, of Lindsay, was present. The next meeting of the Board will be held on Thursday, May 28th.

Telephone Improvement.

The telephone trumpet is the latest, and it is being introduced into Toronto. The device is simple, consisting of a trumpet made of vulcanized rubber and connected with a transmitter. It concentrates the tone of the speaker's voice, and enables him by using a very low tone or whisper, inaudible by a bystander a few feet distant, to make himself distinctly heard at the end of the largest lines.

Summer School Vacation.

The new school law makes a change in the length of the mid-summer holidays. It provides that in rural districts the schools will close for the summer holidays on the first Friday in July and re-open on the third Monday in August. The other holidays remain as before. In cities, towns, and incorporated villages, Public and High Schools also close on the first Friday of July, and re-open on the last Monday in August. Trustees cannot reduce the holidays as before.

International S. S. Lessons.

The meeting of the International Lesson Committee was held in Cincinnati last month. For the third term of seven years' study the Committee agreed upon three years in the Old Testament and four years in the New, with an alteration once in six months, save in a few exceptional cases. Lessons were selected for the first year only, it being understood that for subsequent years such modifications of detail may be made as circumstances may seem to require. The selections made for 1887 will be given to the public as soon as possible after corresponding members in Great Britain and France shall have considered them, and shall have informed the American Committee what modifications they may think desirable.

The Day of Small Things

Is forever. It is not the great difficulties of life that try us, but the small annoyances that ceaselessly wear away patience and good temper. The smallest grain in the eye or the pricking of a pin, even an aching corn, upset us completely, and therefore it becomes our duty to protect ourselves against the lesser evils which grow great by repetition. To remove corns all that is necessary is to purchase Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It will very quickly remove them and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Putnam's Extractor, like other articles of merit, has numerous imitators. Be on your guard against such. Ask for and get Putnam's Extractor.

Court House Park.

The beginning of the operations for beautifying Court House Park is at hand. A meeting of the Directors of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held in the office of the Bank of Toronto on Saturday afternoon last. The lease of the grounds from the county to the society was read, discussed and approved, and the President and Secretary of the Society were empowered to sign it and take the necessary steps to give it effect. The lease covers a period of 21 years. A committee composed of Rev. Mr. Clementi and Messrs. J. H. Roper, D. W. Dumble, J. Stevenson and John Barnham, with power to lay out the grounds and to expend to the best advantage the available funds, which now amount to $325, the society making a grant of $50 from its treasury. Volunteer plans, for laying out the grounds, from Mr. Sabine, were submitted and referred to the committee. Persons desirous of contributing to the fund for improving the park may communicate with Mr. Roper, President of the society.

The Golden Lion.

Great activity in the mantle and dressmaking department. FAIR, VANEVERY & Co. are showing a large assortment of handsome materials, from which rich and elegant Mantles and Dresses are being turned out daily.

Foot Ball.

At a meeting of the Boy's Union, in connection with the Y. M. C. A., a Foot Ball Club was formed—on Wednesday, May 13th. J. Eastwood is captain, J. Perry, secretary, and Fred Ratcliff, treasurer. The club has a trouble in finding suitable practice grounds.

The Town Seizure Criticised.

"Rattle his bones over the stones, he's but a poor pauper whom nobody owns." Thus quoted a County Councillor, referring to the practice, alleged by him, of the town authorities, committing the town paupers, when they become broken in health, to jail as vagrants, thus throwing their care, keeping and funeral expenses on the county.

How He Died.

A correspondent of the Montreal Witness furnishes particulars, not before received, of the death of Mr. John Sherlock, of this town, who was a member of the Canadian contingent of Nile voyageurs. He was attacked with smallpox, and placed in the hospital at Korti. After recovering from the smallpox he was seized with apoplexy, and death was the sad result.

Before Insuring Your Life

see the new non-forfeiture plan of The British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Company, whereby failure to pay your renewal premiums at any time does not cancel your policy, but keeps it in force so long as Reserve held pays for extension—one of the most just and equitable systems ever adopted in Life Insurance. Ask for this plan to be explained by the General Agent, E. E. HENDERSON, Peterborough.

By the Book.

The members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club have adopted a new form of badge. It consists of a miniature book, the outside of the cover adorned with the crossed sticks and a flag in low relief in gold. The book being opened reveals the certificate of membership of the wearer, duly attested by the signature of the secretary. The new insignia are neat and tasty, and the boys can now go into a match with the feeling that such a thing as defeat "is not down in the books."

First-Class Drain Tile.

We had the pleasure of inspecting a specimen of drain tile made by Messrs. Curtis & Sons, Otonabee. They have added a new tile making machine to their plant, and having on the premises, within easy reach, an inexhaustible quantity of the very best clay, they are in a position to put on the market the best drain tile made. The clay is the same as that used for making white brick, and judges say that for tile making it can't be beaten. Their first kiln of tile will be on the market in about three weeks.

New Furniture Warerooms.

The public will be interested in being informed that Mr. W. McKee has opened a retail branch of his wholesale furniture business. The warerooms are situated on Water street, in the shop under the Roller Skating Rink, and will contain a superb stock of every kind of furniture usually to be found in such an establishment. By extending their patronage to the Roller Rink Furniture Shop the public will be rewarded by securing first-class goods at very low prices. Ordered work will receive special attention. The fame of McKee's wholesale furniture business reaches from Brandon to the Bay of Fundy, and we are sure that every corner of the county will speedily discover the advantages of his retail department. 16-tf.

Shipping the Supplies.

On Friday last the supplies for the Midland Battalion, collected in Peterborough and other quarters from whence the battalion was drawn were shipped. The supplies from Lindsay, Millbrook, Campbellford, Cobourg, Hastings, Belleville, Bowmanville and Kingston, were sent to town by the different branches of the G. T. R., and sent on to the Ontario and Quebec station from the Midland station here, and a single car was loaded with the aggregate collection. This consisted of 274 bales, packages, boxes and barrels, and weighed altogether about 30,000 lbs. Peterborough's contribution a mounted to 36 cases, weighing 3,116 lbs. The goods will go by C. P. R. and the lake route. Private Gooch, of the 15th Battalion, Belleville, accompanies the car as supercargo.

Illustrated War News.

The seventh number of the Canadian Pictorial and Illustrated War News is to hand. We are pleased to learn that the publishers have decided to make this a permanent publication, under the foregoing title. The illustrations in this number are fine. On the first page we have a telling picture entitled "A brave Scout's untimely end." It will be remembered that, after the battle of Fish Creek, Lafontaine, with other scouts, was sent out to ascertain the whereabouts of Poundmaker. They were surrounded by Indians, and compelled to retreat, Lafontaine was wounded, fell from his horse, but died game, rifle in hand, facing the enemy. A full-page picture shows the battle of Cut Knife Creek, which resulted in victory for the troops under Col. Otter. Other sketches are as follows: Scenes with the North-West Field Force (from sketches by the special artist of the War News, Mr. F. W. Curzon, with Major-General Middleton's command); Camp of the 7th Battalion (Fusiliers) at Winnipeg; also six Portraits of Interest (reproduced from photographs). The two-page supplement is a fine cartoon picture entitled "And now for business." General Middleton is here represented as preparing to strike a decisive blow at the rebels. The paper sells at 15 cents per copy, obtainable either from local booksellers or from the office of publication.

Roller Rink Carnival.

The fancy dress carnival in the Water-street Roller Skating Rink on Friday evening was a very pleasant one. There were just enough masquers on skates to make the floor comfortably full, and the costumes were unusually excellent and in good taste. The judges for the award of prizes were Mrs. Dunsford, Mrs. Budden, Mrs. (Dr.) Boucher, Messrs. F. J. Lewis, R. E. Wood and Geo. Dunsford. They had considerable difficulty in coming to a decision, owing to the close manner in which the honors were competed for. The prizes were awarded as below:—

BEST DRESSED LADY IN FANCY COSTUME.—1st, Miss Hall, "Lady of the 18th Century;" 2nd, Miss McNaughton (Port Hope) "Veronica."

BEST DRESSED GENTLEMAN IN FANCY COSTUME.—1st, Mr. R. J. Sailsbury, "Charles II;" 2nd, Mr. W. J. Morrow, "Mephistopheles."

BEST DRESSED MASKER IN COMIC COSTUME.—Mr. Geo. Stevenson, "Clown."

There were many other costumes of much merit, but as many neglected to hand in cards containing their names and characters, they cannot be particularized by name. From this reason it was impossible to obtain a list of characters for publication.

The May pole dance, in which four couples took part, was a delightful feature of the evening's enjoyment, which was further added to by the excellent music of the Fife Brigade Band, furnished most liberally. Mr. P. Henry, the manager of the rink, did everything possible to promote the pleasure of both skaters and spectators.

The large display of Hats, Bonnets, Plumes, Artificials, Ribbons, Parasols, Sunshades, etc., in FAIR, VANEVERY & Co's establishment excites the admiration of every beholder, and are selling rapidly.

MANUFACTURING MATTERS.

New Factories in Prospect.

The advantages of Peterborough as a manufacturing centre are beginning to be recognized, and the next important addition to our numerous industries will be extensive stove works. For some time past Messrs. Cox and Stevenson have been negotiating with Messrs. Powell & Jones, of Smith's Falls, stove makers. These gentlemen have concluded to remove their works to Peterborough. They were in town for several days looking at several sites. At length one was decided on, the plot of ground west of Bethune street and south of Wolfe street. Messrs. Powell & Jones brought plans for the new premises and the work of building will be at once begun. The main building will be of brick, 42x144 feet, three stories in height. There will be a two-story annex 35x60, and the moulding shop, one story high, will be 32x65 feet. The buildings will cost between $8,000 and $10,000. The factory will be placed in the hands of a company. The stock books have been opened and a large portion of the proposed stock subscribed. Within a few months the Powell & Jones Stove Company will be at work turning out stoves of all kinds, to which its business will be exclusively restricted. The new factory will employ a large number of hands.

THE LOCK FACTORY.

The Peterborough Lock Company has begun operations. The premises occupy for the present the second floor of the Central Iron Works. The brass foundry is in full working order, and the iron castings are made every two days. At the present only seven or eight hands can find employment in the premises available for use, but the necessary additional buildings are being pushed on rapidly. On the west side of the Iron Works a large wooden building covered externally with corrugated plates of galvanized iron, is nearly completed, and another addition 100 feet in length will be thrown out from the west end of the works. Mr. Thomas Brooks, the manager of the company, is a man of nearly twenty years practical experience and a great deal of energy. He says that within three months there will be fifty hands employed in the new factory. The business of the company is the manufacture of locks for building purposes, and all sorts of builders supplies, such as window fastenings bolts, etc., etc.

A NEW POTTERY.

Mr. George Elliott has just erected for Mr. Richard Kingdon, on the corner of Sherbrook street and the western boundary of the town, a building 20x36, to be used for a pottery. Other necessary buildings, for the silns, sheds, etc., will be constructed immediately. Mr. Kingdon intends to manufacture all kinds of pottery, such as jars, lawn vases, flower pots, etc., etc. He will procure his clay, of a first-class quality, from Orillia. Mr. Kingdon has had an extensive and varied experience in many of the largest potteries of the United States, and if he cannot make the new business go, it is hardly worth while for any other person to undertake it.

For beautiful designs in Lace Curtains and Lambrequins, all new goods, go to Turnbull's.

LANSDOWNE ROLLER RINK.

The Opening Evening.

On Monday evening the Lansdowne Roller Skating Rink, on Charlotte Rink, was formally opened to the public. The rink is larger than any rink in Canada, and the dressing rooms are the same as those used for ice skating, with which everybody is familiar. The floor is a first-class one, and was laid by Mr. T. Rutherford in a manner that does credit to his energy and push as a contractor and his skill as a mechanic.

On Monday evening there was a large attendance of spectators, and over two hundred and fifty skaters gyrated on the immense expanse of floor. The electric lamps supplied abundant light. An interesting feature of the evening's enjoyment was the fancy skating of Prof. Aitken, a deaf mute, whose performances on the rollers were marvels of motion and withal gracefully done. During the evening the City Band and Orchestra furnished excellent music. Judging from the success of the opening night, the grand carnival to be held on the evening of May 25th will be well worth patronizing.

Masonic Excursion.

Last week a deputation representing the various Masonic chapters and lodges in town, consisting of R. W. Bro. E. H. D. Hall, W. Bro. R. E. Wood and Bro. W. Brundrette, were in Toronto making arrangements for an excursion to Toronto, to take place on Wednesday, June 24th, St. John's Day. We understand that a special train will be placed at the command of the brotherhood on the Midland line of the G.T.R., and that brethren from Lindsay, Orillia and intervening places will join with those from Peterborough.

Gigantic Advertising.

On Thursday evening Mr. F. M. Griffith, agent of the National Advertising Company, gave the business men of the town more mammoth advertising than they ever got before. He stretched a huge canvas over the front of Belleghem's furniture warerooms, Hunter street, and from the window of Sullivan & Co's. Hotel, opposite, threw stereoptican pictures on the canvas, alternating them with the advertisements in gigantic letters, of about fifty business firms in town. They secured a wide publicity, for the street was crowded, and the voices of hundreds of street boys could be heard spelling them out, thus imprinting them on the public memory. Mr. Griffith states that Peterborough was the best advertising town he has struck—better than the minor cities.

Gough's "Peculiar People."

On Monday evening the George street Methodist church was well filled to listen to John B. Gough's lecture on the above subject. The lecturer, after being introduced by Rev. Mr. Tovell started out by remarking that he had within the past 42 years delivered 8,500 addresses. He did not lay claim to logical arrangement of arguments, but his desire was to impress useful truths and helpful lessons. He pointed out the immense variety that existed throughout the whole range of animated nature, and asserted that similar differences existed in the characters of men, leading to the peculiar people to be daily met with. Peculiarites of character, so long as they were not positively repulsive, served to distinguish our friends and often endear them to us. He would not attempt to classify peculiar people, but would treat them as they suggested themselves to him. The lecturer continued by dealing with blunt people, and they were sharpened up with caustic clippings of the corners of their characters. Grumblers were next dealt with, and their grambling at being singled out for misfortune was put down to sheer self-conceit, which will not admit that the evils that annoy them are any fault of their own. The speaker continued, and in his peculiar style handled such peculiar people as the "obtuse" man, the "tactless" man, "persistent jokers," (in season and out of season), "canting" religionists, etc. These were all dealt with in a clear and forcible manner, and the useful lessons were pointed with wit and illustrated by apt and often intensely amusing anecdotes. His eloquence has lost little of the magnetism that holds his hearers' attention undividedly. While piercing the peculiarites of people with the shafts of ridicule, Mr. Gough inculated many noble sentiments, and taught many useful lessons, and all that heard him must have been amused, edified, enlightened and bettered by listening to his two hours' flow of eloquence.

For a large and varied stock of reversible Cretonnes, entirely new patterns, go to Turnbull's.

MATRIMONIAL.

Baptie—Brealy.

On Tuesday evening the employes of Mr. J. D. Baptie (Baptie's Planing Mills), in view of his marriage, which took place on Wednesday, presented him with the following address;

J. D. Baptie, Esq.:

DEAR SIR,—We your employes desire on this auspicious occasion to give expression of the good will entertained towards yourself by each and all of us. Please accept this slight testimonial as an earnest of our good will and esteem; and ever as you look upon it, may it remind you of the very cordial relations existing between yourself and your employes, and we hope the future may be the happiest years of your life.

We beg to offer you our most hearty congratulations on this happy occasion, and sincerely hope that in your new relations in life you may be spared to enjoy many long and happy years.

J. C. Stinton	Wm. Hill,
J. Morrasey,	Wm. Pratt,
J. Burns,	G. McWilliams,
W. J. LeGrandeur,	H. Sanders,
J. Parnell,	W. J. Sanders,
R. Parnell,	J. Robinson.

J. R. Donal, Foreman.

Peterborough, May 20th, 1885.

The "slight testimonial" referred to was a beautiful silver ice pitcher and drinking cup, purchased from Mr. W. A Sanderson, who had neatly engraved on it the following:

"Presented to J. D. Baptie on the occasion of his marriage, by the employes of his factory."

On Wednesday afternoon, at four o'clock, Rev. I. Tovell performed, at the residence of the bride's father, Ashburnham, the ceremony that united for life Mr. J. D. Baptie and Miss S. J Brealy, daughter of Mr. Charles Brealy. The newly-wed took their departure on their wedding tour, which will include Niagara Falls and other points of interest in the west. We tender our best congratulations and wishes for future happiness.

Lawn Social.

Mrs. James Dickson has kindly placed the lawn attached to her residence, at the service of the Ladies' Aid Society, of St. Paul's church, for the purpose of holding a lawn social, towards the end of the month.

At the Driving Park.

On Monday, May 25th, the programme to be given at the Driving Park will be carried out to the letter. Several professional athletes from a distance have entered for the events, and many outside horses have entered for the races. There will be a big afternoon's sport. Don't miss it.

St. Paul's Church.

The recent allocation of pews in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was gratifyingly successful. The pews brought, in general, prices in excess of the bonus placed upon them, some going as high as $71. The total amount realised from the sale of pews was over $2,000, with only something like 20 pews still unsold.

Stock Shipment.

On Tuesday, Messrs. Eakins, of Port Hope, shipped fifty-two head of superb cattle purchased from Mr. Joseph Redmond. They were thoroughbreds and beautiful beef material. The aggregate weight was 87,000 lbs., making the average weight over 1,600 lbs. each. The price paid was 5 cents per lb. on foot.

Saved Army Council of War.

The executive committee, composed of four representatives of each of the three divisions, met in the Gospel Hall, Market Square, on Tuesday and Wednesday morning. The chief business was the drawing up of rules for the guidance of officers and stations, incorporating the organization, the receiving reports of divisional captains, etc. A programme was also drawn up for the guidance of the council of war, which is in session as we go to press.

A Narrow Escape.

On Saturday the two-year-old infant of Mr John McKee, druggist, in its restless rounds about the house came upon a quantity of rat poison that had been mixed with oatmeal and placed under the kitchen cupboard. Of course the child began putting the poisonous stuff in its mouth, but was discovered by the mother before much could have been taken. Help was at once called, and the prompt administration of an emetic prevented any serious consequences

Parlour Roller Rink.

Since its opening the Water Street Rink has been managed with a view of securing the best of order and making it a safe, pleasant, and quiet resort, where ladies and children, even without escort, may enjoy the pleasure of skating at all times. So strictly and successfully have the rules of order been enforced that it has earned the name of the Parlour Skating Rink, and no pains will hereafter be spared to make it worthy of the name. Open morning, afternoon and evening as usual.

Military Matters.

No. 3 Company, Ashburnham, were out on Monday night, and were put through skirmishing drill on Burnham's Point. The rifle range opened for the season to-day, and it is expected the volunteers will take advantage of the opportunity to practice sharp shooting. The Association will offer special prizes of ammunition. The newly formed signal corps of the 57th are pretty fairly equipped, but field glasses are needed, and generous citizens are called on to take the hint.

Dramatic Treat in Store.

On Saturday, the celebrated McDowell Comedy Company will delight the playgoers of Peterborough with two of their thoroughly excellent presentations. In the afternoon at matinee, the play of "Snowball," will be given, and in the evening, the great London and New York success, the "Private Secretary." The play is a good one, and the McDowell's have received unlimited praise wherever they have performed, for the superb manner in which they have placed it on the boards. Bradburns Opera House, Saturday, May 23. Reserved seats at Hartley's.

A Splendid Enterprise.

The new show of Frank A. Robbins which is to exhibit here on Thursday May 28 is regarded as an institution of more than ordinary merit by competent judges in the profession. It is a brilliant and successful combination of a classic two-ring circus given by over one hundred performers: a museum of savage and unnatural human freaks and an ethnological gathering of aboriginal tribes from all parts of the world (particularly the Orient) and a complete and elaborate menagerie of fifty odd cages of rare wild beasts, which comprises every notable animal, bird and reptile known to natural historians. A newly invented elevated stage has been added for the better and more appropriate production of bicyle contests, roller skating carnivals and other athletic sports. A chief feature is the trained elephant, which does the medley and plays comical antics with its keeper until the audience roars with delight. The educated donkeys, pigs, mules, horses and elephants are all very great and add largely to the interest of the exhibition. Chas. W. Fish, the brightest, greatest and most famous bareback rider is a principal novelty, are as, also the twenty five lady equestrians. In the forenoon, at ten o'clock, there will always occur a resplendent gorgeous free street parade, which will inaugurate the fetes of the day and convey some idea of the merits of the largest show of the year.

This is Reliable.

R. N. Wheeler, Merchant, of Everton, was cured of a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs, by Haggard's Pectoral Balsam. This great throat and lung healer cures weak lungs, coughs, hoarseness, bronchitis, and all pectoral complaints. 19-2t.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Adam Hodgsath, Q. C., Lindsay, suffered a great bereavement on Wednesday, in the death of his wife.

Mr. M. B. Aylsworth, of Toronto, architect, has located in town, and is ready to do business.

Dr. Massie, of Keene, who has been suffering from illness has, we are pleased to say, completely recovered and is able to attend to his professional duties.

Mr. John McCannan and family, of Otonabee, left on Thursday to take up residence in Rat Portage, Ont.

The True Blue delegates from Peterboro' to the Grand Lodge of British North America, being held in Belleville, are Messrs. F. Weir, Wm. Marshall and H. Sherwood.

THE REBELLION BROKEN.

Poundmaker Penitent.

Riels Capture breaks his Heart—Middleton Requires Unconditional Surrender—The General on his way to Battleford—Riel in jail at Regina.

BATTLEFORD, NORTH-WEST TERRITORY, MAY 20, via QU-APPELLE, MAY 22.—The greatest rejoicing was caused here yesterday (Tuesday) evening by the arrival of a white flag from Chief Poundmaker and the hostile under-chiefs who are with him. Bearing the flag came a large party of prisoners in four waggons. All of the teamsters captured on Thursday last (May 14th) were sent in There names are: G. Barnes, John Sbea, G. Brodie, Frank Cox, W. Fish, J. Fish, T. Hynes, C. Sheriff, W. Parkin, T. Cooney, R. Cardy, D. McNewan and Neil Brodie, J. F. McNeil, J. G. Retly, W. McNeil, A. W. Freeborne, G. F. Morton, W. McKane, T. Westaway and D. McLean. Another captive returned is Scout Baptiste Lafontaine, who fell from his horse when the party was chased from Poundmaker's camp on the Thursday after the battle. Besides these there are six professedly friendly half-breeds. They were residents of a settlement near here, but their friendship is suspected. Father Cochin, who accompanied the party, was the bearer of Poundmaker's letter which he delivered to Colonel Otter. The letter asks the terms upon which he will be allowed to surrender. I interviewed the teamsters as to their capture and stay among the Indians. They state that when within what they considered safe distance of Battleford they were surprised by the Indians, and, before they had time to do anything, the whole train was surrounded by a band of one hundred Indians and halfbreeds. They had very little ammunition, so on the halfbreeds promising to escort them to within safe distance of the town, they surrendered their arms. The Stoney Indians compelled the halfbreeds to take them back to the camp. They were well treated there. Poundmaker was even polite, and the halfbreeds attended to all their wants. They suffered no hardship at the hands of the Indians. The only captive who suffered was the scout, Lafontaine. Though he spoke Cree the Indians failed to get any information regarding our situation from him. They accordingly watched him closely all day, and shackled him at night. all the time he was in their camp. Among other things captured with the provision train were three bags of newspapers, which they opened. The news of Riel's defeat, which they received from some Indians from Duck Lake, on Monday last, completely demoralised the whole band, and

THE UTMOST CONSTERNATION PREVAILED.

A council was held and, on Tuesday, the captives were told that Poundmaker had determined upon returning all the prisoners in camp. He offers to return the teams taken, within four days if they are wanted. R. Jefferson, who was farm instructor on the farm on Chief Sweet Grass' Reserve on the Battle river, and who has been a captive with the Indians ever since, wrote Poundmaker's letter for him. Colonel Otter has answered Poundmaker's letter, telling him that he must treat with General Middleton. The halfbreeds who came in from the Indian camp say that Poundmaker has five hundred well armed warriors In the battle at Cut Knife Creek four hundred and fifty fought. Osgoode, who was missing after the fight, was found dead on the field; my informant tells me that he was given permission to bury the body, which he did. Our arrival at their camp so early was a surprise, and the Indians were caught mostly asleep. They had expected to be obliged to fight, and had chosen the position with a determination to entrap and slaughter our force. Riel's emissary was in camp at the time, and he, with two other halfbreeds, fought on the Indian side all through. The halfbreeds say that they did not want to join the Indians, but that Riel ordered their removal from the settlement near here to Poundmaker's camp. They blame the Stoney Indians, who, they say, caused the trouble so far as the Indians are concerned. Elliott, the Mounted Policeman, who was killed a week ago Wednesday, was unhurt when he fell from the horse. He travelled four miles toward the trail on the open prairie, in the hope, apparently, of receiving help. He was seen by another band of Indians, however, who surrounded him, and he was only killed after a brave fight in which he used his rifle to the last. An escort composed of a detachment from the Queen's Own and the Mounted Police under Colonel Herchimer, with two guns, leave on Saturday to bring back a large train of one hundred and forty wagons with supplies of provision and ammunition, and also the long looked for and impatiently awaited gifts of the Toronto ladies. The delicacies will be very welcome, and are very much needed in the hospital. All the wounded are progressing favorably.

CLARKE'S CROSSING, N. W. T., May 24.—The Grenadiers have left Prince Albert today on the march to Battleford. The balance of the troops there, with the exception of the Winnipeg field battery, which garrisons that place, and three hundred which accompanied Gen. Middleton by the steamer Northwest, left this morning by the steamers Alberta and Baroness.

A courier from Carlton says the general passed there yesterday.

Cayen, one of Riel's messengers to Poundmaker, and the latter's brother-in-law, were captured at Duck Lake by the police and taken to Carlton.

News of Riel's defeat was brought to Poundmaker by loyal halfbreeds but not credited. The report being confirmed messengers were sent to Gen. Middleton to intercede for peace. They met the general, who replied that Poundmaker and his counsellors must go to Battleford and surrender with their arms unconditionally. If the redskins decline the terms the general will at once proceed to the reserve and fight.

THE REBEL LEADER AT REGINA.

REGINA, May 23.—The train conveying Riel arrived here at 11.30 to-day. Riel was at once taken to the barracks. The original destination was Winnipeg, but orders by telegram met Capt. Young at Moose Jaw to hand his prisoner over to the police authorities at Regina and await orders. Riel is well, but showed some nervousness at being handed over to the police. He does not talk much. The other prisoners will likely be brought here to be tried, as this is the capital of the territory.

The escort consisted of 9 men of the 90th and 7 of the Midland.

RIEL'S TRIAL.

WINNIPEG, May 23.—Attorney general Hamilton, interviewed as to how Riel's alleged American citizenship would affect the latter's trial and punishment, says: "Riel can be tried by a military court martial just the same as if he were a British subject. No right of citizenship gives protection in case of such offence. Riel could also be tried in the civil courts and condemned, and in either case the sentence could be executed with perfect safety even if he were an American citizen. He forfeits all protection by violating the law of the country in which the act providing for punishment in such cases was passed. A military court martial is likely to be adopted in Riel's case, and doubtless in any event the sentence will be executed."

WINNIPEG, May 26.—Gen. Middleton has received congratulatory telegrams from Lord Lansdowne and Lord Wolseley in Egypt upon his recent victories.

THE RIVER RISING.

The Saskatchewan is again rising rapidly and is three feet above the average water level of the season. Steamers will now be able to do effective service as transports between Swift Current and Prince Albert.

MIDDLETON AT BATTLEFORD.

BATTLEFORD, N. W. T., May 26.—The steamer Northwest, with Gen. Middleton, came in on Sunday evening. Four hundred volunteers are with him. Rev. Father Cochin is just in with a communication from Poundmaker saying that he will surrender unconditionally. The Indians are now coming to talk with Middleton. They are thoroughly scared. There are about forty breeds with them. The Indians number 2,000 souls. When the priest gave Poundmaker Col. Otter's letter they all laid down their arms. This was on Thursday last. The Indians have already commenced moving in to surrender. The priest says the enemy were two days burying their dead at Cut Knife hill, sixty at least. The rebellion is virtually over.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

Result of the Gathering.

The Secretary of our local association gave an account at the young men's meeting last Sunday of the recent International Secretaries' Conference and also of the Biennial Convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations, which were held in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., respectively. A number of practical topics connected with Y.M.C.A. work were discussed. The gatherings, though not so large as usual, were very pleasant and profitable. The meetings on the Sundays resulted in a large number of young men professing faith in Christ. One of the chief features of the convention was the presence of Bishop Baldwin, formerly of Montreal and now of London, Ontario. His Catholic spirit and earnest words made a very favorable and impression on the convention. Messrs. M. H. Hodder and E. J. Kennedy, of London, Eng., and Count Preeckler and Christian Phildius, of Berlin, Germany, were present as visitors. Mr. Kennedy, who is Secretary of the Central London (Exeter Hall) Y.M.C.A., will visit Peterborough and Lakefield before he returns home, and will address a meeting here on or about 4th June. To show the impression made on the community where the convention was held we reproduce an editorial from the Atlanta Constitution, the leading commercial newspaper of the South:—

"It may be fairly said that the proceedings of the convention of the Young Men's Christian Association have been in the nature of a revelation to the people of Atlanta. They have disclosed a breadth, comprehension, earnestness and compactness of Christian work of which the general public had no adequate idea. The beauty of this work is that it is neither narrow nor creed-bound, but is as wide as the limits of Christianity itself. Its aim is to build up no sect, but simply to do good. So sincere, so practical and so all-embracing is the spirit pervading the associations, and transmitted to the convention, that even careless observer smust be thankful to know that there is back of the governmental machinery, behind the turmoil of business and the whirl of society, so powerful an organization working for the elevation and purifying of the people. If there were no view but the temporal one, and if the good this association is doing were limited by its effect on the day and generation in which it works, we should even then account it the most beneficent social force of which we know. The Government has established and now maintains at heavy expense a life saving service that guards our coasts. Trained men with the very best appliances are placed at convenient stations to warn unwary sailors and to save such lives as may be delivered from the storm into their hands. But it had done nothing to save the thousands of young souls that are storm-tossed daily and wrecked on the shores of life. This great and glorious work, beyond the power or the purview of the Government, has been reserved for the Young Men's Christian Association. It has established and maintains the life-saving service of the moral world. Where storms burst most steadily and where wrecks cluster thickest, there these brave and unselfish men are gathered, moving this fair young soul from off the hidden reefs, plucking that struggling life from the eager waves. The work is God-given, God-inspired and God-directed. God will bless it, and will bless those who hold up the hands of the men who have so unselfishly given themselves to it.

"We thank the delegates to this convention for the amazing disclosures they have made to our people of the scope and accomplishment of the association they represent. The disclosures carry with them a lesson that will sink into the hearts of our people, and will not soon be forgotten."

Among the results of holding the convention in Atlanta will probably be the erection of a $60,000 building for the local association. Steps were taken in the matter before the convention was fairly over. The convention accepted the invitation of the San Francisco association, to hold its next meeting there. If sufficient reduction in fares cannot be obtained it will be held in Philadelphia.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. L. G. Fobert will offer a number of handsome prizes at a regetta which will be held on Chemong Lake about the 18th of June. Under Mr. Fobert's management the event cannot fail to be a success.

Shortly before four o'clock on Saturday morning last, fire was discovered in the saw mill of Mr. J. H. Bramwell, of this place. When first seen the fire was too far advanced to be checked, so that, with the exception of a few shingles, the mill and a large quantity of shingles, with some lumber were completely destroyed. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary and the presence of some suspicious characters around the village that morning tend to strengthen the suspicion. There was some insurance on the building.

VICTORIA REGINA!

HALF A CENTURY A QUEEN.

Her Majesty's 66th Birthday—How it was Celebrated in Peterborough—A Full Holiday—Observed by Everybody.

Of the three hundred and sixty meridian lines that cross the face of mother earth on every side, there was not one that did not, last Monday, witness the loyal remembrance of the sixty-sixth birthday of Queen Victoria. Among the many millions that celebrated the day, Peterborough was early astir. Every occupation as a general thing was laid aside, and the day given over to enjoyment. Some sought amusement in quiet ways, riding, driving and in peaceful piscatorial pursuits. Some, but not very many went out of town to seek pleasure.

DOWN THE RIVER.

At seven o'clock the "Golden Eye" took out a happy load of about fifty, and proceeded to Idyl Wild, where a very pleasant day was spent. And a comparatively small number "took in" the excursion by G. T. R. to Cobourg. But the influx of visitors was considerable.

FROM TORONTO WAY

the O. & Q. brought in six well laden coaches, with visitors from the Queen City and intervening places.

FROM THE NORTH,

especially from Lindsay, there was a large number arrived by the G. T. R., although an excursion was run from the latter place to Omemee. A large number also arrived from the east, Norwood and other places, by the O. & Q., and the citizens of Port Hope, especially the sporting fraternity, was largely represented. In the town abundant sports were presented.

IN THE MORNING

the Athletic Association inaugurated its new grounds by presenting a splendid programme of sports and games. The grounds have been well fitted up for the purpose. The fences have been repaired and the liquid refreshment gate on the south side closed. A cinder track has been laid around the grounds; it was on Monday in very good condition, and with use it will make a splendid course. A fine new pavillion and grand stand has replaced the old structure. The lower story is divided into dressing rooms and scoring and refreshment booths, and a new walk has been laid to the entrance gate from Elizabeth street. The award, under the care of Mr. Norley, the coach of the Cricket Club, is in capital condition, and looks as green and smooth as a bright patch of Ireland. The arrangements for the sports were excellent and were excellently carried out. The judges were Hon. Robert Hamilton, Mr. C. A. Weller, Dr. G. Burnham and Col. J. Z. Rogers. The starters were Col. H. C. Rogers and Mr. A. Moffat, and Messrs. J. E. Hammond and H. T. Strickland were clerks of the course. The different events were brought on promptly in succession, and intelligently managed. There was a fair attendance of spectators, the grand stand being well filled with ladies. The following is a

RECORD OF THE RESULT of the different events:

ONE HUNDRED YARDS RACE.—1st, J. Hamly, 2nd, T. G. Wells.
220 YARDS RACE.—1st, P. E. S. Cooper, 2nd, R. B. Rogers.
5 MILE BICYCLE RACE.—There were four entries for this race, A. Gibson, V. Eastwood, C. A. Lawford and A. E. Ames. The quartette got off well together, but Lawford met with a spill the first few yards. Gibson and Ames went to the front while Eastwood took things very cooly. The race was virtually between Gibson and Ames, the former doing his work and keeping his lead with ease, and making some fine spurts. Towards the close he called for a Scotch air, and the band gave him "Bonnie Dundee." during which he gained a lap on his foremost competitor. Considering the new state of the track he finished his forty furlongs in the good time of 25:37.
440 YARDS RACE (open).—1st, P. M. Hamilton, of Bobcaygeon, time 1 minute; 2nd, P. E. S. Cooper.
ONE MILE RACE, Association.—1st, C. A. Lawford, time 6:45; 2nd, P.E. S. Cooper.
HURDLE RACE.—1st, T. G. Wells, 2nd, R. B. Rogers.
HALF MILE RACE.—1st, P. M. Hamilton, of Bobcaygeon, time 2:34.

The Association is to be congratulated upon the success of its first essay at giving an entertainment consisting of events within the province of the objects of the Association. Everything was managed with the most scrupulous regard to fair dealing, and in a manner to show that those having charge of the programme, knew what they were doing. There is no doubt that the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, now that it is established on a good financial basis, will succeed in elevating to a normal standard of respectability, the healthy and manly practice of athletic sports, which are sometimes degraded from the associations with which they are surrounded. It is in the hands of gentleman whose position in the community is a guarantee that any entertainment presented under its auspices will be characterized by merit, and the maintenance of good order and the meting out of square dealing to all contestants.

The Fire Brigade Band furnished music during the morning, and the spectators were delighted, not only with their music, but also with the smoothness and promptitude with which their programme of sports was carried out.

A brief breathing spell for a hurried lunch and everybody was OFF FOR THE RACES.

The Driving Park was the general rendezvous. Though the afternoon opened with a slight rain the weather soon cleared, and at once the streets leading to the Park were thronged with every variety of the public wending its way thither. Cabs, crowded to the steps, bowled swiftly along; buggies and phætons whirled by; the farmers' democrat, and even lumber wagons, showed up in the procession, while here and there the equine contestants in the day's races were jogged along, blanketed to the eyes. The fine spring weather and the holiday brought a great crowd together. There must have been at least 2,500 persons present, and the grand stand was an animated terrace of humanity, frescoed with spring tweeds, present under masculine auspices, and bewitching bonnets perched on happy heads over pretty faces. Every "coign of vantage" was occupied, the promiscuous crowd mounting on top of the tea fest fence for a good view, where they looked not unlike pigeons on roosts, and the occupants of this position were not unlike pigeons—plucked—after betting more or less lavishly on the wrong horse. Several refreshment booths dispensed both solid and liquid refreshments of a light type. The City Band was present and supplied music.

THE PROGRAMME

was a mixed one, there being put down athletic sports, foot races, jumping and vaulting contests, trotting races, running races and a lacrosse match. The track was in a fine condition, the sprinkling of rain nicely laying the dust and putting the turf into fine shape.

THE OPEN TROT

gave the excitement the crowd was looking for. The entries were, R. Thompson's "Indian Billy," J. Daly's "Fanny B.," and Appleton's (Cobourg) "Ben Morrow."

The first heat resulted in a not very exciting race. Ben Morrow cut out the pace, which was a little too hot for either of his competitors, and he came first under the string, with Indian Billy a very respectable second, and Fanny B. right after him.

In the second heat Ben Morrow again took the trotting in hand, pretty well pushed by Fanny B., and when, on the back stretch, he made a skip, the mare slid to the front, keeping the lead to the finish and doing the mile in 2.57.

The third heat fell again to Ben Morrow, though the gray mare made it interesting for the first quarter, the chestnut getting to the wire first in 2.53¾.

In the fourth heat Ben led the way from post to finish, winning the heat and first money. Fanny B. second.

RUNNING RACE.

Mile heats, best two in three. The starter's bell brought up four flyers—B. Maybee's "Victoria Maid" (Lindsay), J. Maybee in the stirrups at 130½ lbs.; W. M. Fox's "Fred. F." (Cobourg), ridden by J. F. Fox, 127 lbs.; J. McLean's "Lady Macdonald" (Port Hope), Gus. White, rider, 123½ lbs.; C. S. Stapleton's "Inglewood Maid," W. Robinson, jockey, 122 lbs.

In the first heat the quartette got off well together, Victoria Maid leading till the three-quarter turn, when she resigned first place to Lady Macdonald, who held it till the finish in 2.01, Victoria Maid second, Fred. F. third, and Inglewood Maid fourth. This heat was a pretty race for the first quarter, the horses keeping together like the fingers of a hand.

The second heat Inglewood Maid dropped out and only three started. Lady Macdonald led the procession, with Fred. F. following and Victoria Maid next in order, Lady Macdonald thus winning the second heat and the wealth.

GREEN TROT.

For the green race the entry book showed H. C. Winch's "Sleepy Dan," J. Billington's "Regulator," A. P. Morgan's "Minnie M.," and H. Appleby's "Nellie Blye (Cobourg). In the the first heat it took Nelly Blye 3.14¼ to get first to the wire, with Regulator next, Sleepy Dan 3rd, and Minnie M. 4th. The second heat was trotted in the same order, with the time about two seconds slower.

The judges stand was occupied with the following officials:—Judges, Messrs. R. B. Lundy, Charles Stapleton, Jas. Kerr (Port Hope), and Edward Phalen; Mr. James English acted as timer, and Mr. B. Hughes as clerk of the course.

THE SPORTS.

The first event brought on was the 100 yards amateur foot race, for which ther were three entries made. Mr. J. S. Hamley, of Port Hope, captured the cup without appearing to more than half try.

Half Mile (professional) Foot Race—three entries.—Won by H. T. Hamley, Port Hope, with ease.

Running High Jump—There were six entries, and the contest resulted in a tie between J. Rose and T. Sharp.

Three-Legged Race—four entries—1st, Hamley and Hamley; 2nd, Garrison and Rose.

THE LACROSSE SKIRMISH.

During the progress of the races, the new Lacrosse grounds were dedicated by a match between the Mutuals of Toronto and the home twelve.

The following players answered the roll call:

Peterboroughs.		Mutuals.
J. Joyal	Goal	P. Mulqueen
M. Tierney	Point	C. Adamson
R. H. Fortye	Cover Point	J. Boyd
M. Halpin	Defence Field	W. Wood

K Cameron	" "	T. Anderson
J Henderson	" "	E Walton
W Rudkins	Second Home	E Broomer
G H Giroux	First Home	F Foley
Jas Coughlin	Field Captain	Jas Nell

Mr. H. LeBrun, President of the Lacrosse Association, was chosen as referee, and Messrs. Robert Fair and Charles Wilson umpired for Peterborough and Teronto respectively.

THE "GO-OFF."

Sheehy, of course, secured the ball on the face, and passed it towards the Mutual's goal; it travelled out again, but soon returned, and for the most of this game it threatened the visitor's flags. At last Rudkins got possession, and sent it between the poles 27 minutes after the face.

ABOUT A MINUTE

was required to give the second game to the Peterboroughs. The ball went down on to the Toronto flags from the face, got behind the goal, Giroux dropped it in front and Henderson put it through.

THE THIRD STRAIGHT

was a mere matter of 22 minutes defence play on the part of the visitors. There were many hot skirmishes around the Mutual's goal, which was well defended, and in one of these, Giroux scuffled the ball through.

IN THE EVENING

the Lansdowne roller skating rink was the scene of a splendidly successful carnival. The immense rink had been gaily and tastefully decorated with flags and bunting for the occasion, and as soon as the doors were opened the crowd began to pour in, and continued to do so till the vast space was filled with spectators, and the floor of the rink with brightly and beautifully dressed masquers. The City Band orchestra furnished music, and the scene, with the electric light distilling its nocturnal sunshine over all, was a very fine one. There were many spectators as well as skaters from a distance. The following is as complete a list as possible to get, many maskers failing to supply their names:—

BEST DRESSED BOY (under 14 years).—Master Stanley McNaughton, of Port Hope, as K. C. B., prize $3 or a pair of Ralway skates.

The prize for fancy skating was awarded to Mr. John Sallans, of Port Hope, who was also winner of the mile race.

BASE BALL.

A Maple Leaf nine went to Lakefield in the morning to play a game on the diamond, winning by a score of 21 to 8.

THE CANOE CONGRESS.

About a dozen Peterborough canoeists, commanded by Commodore R. E. Wood, went to Lindsay to join with Lindsay canoeists in an outing at Sturgeon Point. Some went on Saturday evening, and on reaching Lindsay proceeded by canoe and moonlight to the point. The night was a delightful one, and the wind being fair, some went the whole distance by sail alone. These were followed on Monday by others. There was a large gathering of canoeists, and a delightful day was spent.

DROWNED.

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle one of those sad drowning accidents which are so numerous throughout the summer season. The victim this time is Mr. Thos. White, who resided about a mile from the village, on River Road. It appears from the information received, that deceased left home about 8 a.m., on Saturday last, to fish on Lake Katchewanooka, intending to return home at noon. As he did not return at the time appointed, his wife became uneasy, and sent for his son Richard. He at once started off to search for him, which resulted in finding his boat close to an Island in Henderson's Narrows. It appears from finding a portion of his trawling-line, with the hook caught in a sunken log, the unfortunate man was standing up in the boat, holding the line when it caught in the log, and he was thrown into the water. On Sunday afternoon the steamer Fairy took down Mr. A Ross and his diving apparatus, who searched the channel, but could not find the body. Parties are searching constantly for the body which has not been found up to the time of writing. Deceased was 66 years of age, and had resided here upwards of 30 years, and was highly respected by all who knew him. Mrs. White and family have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in this sad bereavement.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The scholars and teachers beautified the grounds around the High School, by planting trees and flowers on arbor day.

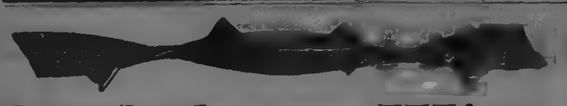
Everything in the shape of manufactures is in full blast around here. The Saw Mills and Hub Factory are working to full capacity, night and day.

The farmers are nearly through seeding. The crops are making rapid growth.

Building operations have commenced. We notice among the many, the residence's of Mr. Geo. Duffield, and Mr. I. N. Ackerman, also that of Mr. P. W. Reynolds, near the High School. We believe that Mr. John Herring intends erecting a shop on Peterboro' street, and many more too numerous to mention.

FORESTRY.

On the last meeting of Court Rob Roy, No. 114, C. O. F., the following officers were installed for the current term, by Mr. H. W. Watson, D.D.H.C.R., viz:—



Buckthorn Wire.

It is not dangerous to Cattle and Sheep. Owing to its width, all Animals can easily see it.

The Barbs being short, broad at the base, and only one inch apart, will not injure Cattle.

Being made of Solid Rolled Steel, its strength is much greater than that of Barbed Wire Fencing.

It is easily put up, and requires no repairs.

Wherever it has been tried by Farmers or Railroad Companies it has been preferred beyond question to all other fencings.

It is made of the best and toughest Bessemer Steel.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Buckthorn is cheaper than the old style of Barbed Wire.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

Does the Use of Tobacco Cause Cancerous and Other Troubles?

Physicians of all Schools Condemn the Use of Tobacco.

The Habitual Use of the Weed Injurious to Both Body and Mind.

Smoking is a Most Expensive Habit.

The subject of the sermon was: "Does the use of tobacco cause cancerous and other troubles?" The text was from Gen. i, 11: "Let the earth bring forth grass and herb yielding seed." Dr. Talmage said:

The first-born of earth were the grass-blade and the herb. They preceded the brute creation and the human family—the grass for animal life, the herb for human service. The cattle took possession of its inheritance, the grass-blade; and man took possession of his inheritance, the herb. This herb we have for food in case of hunger, for narcotic in case of insomnia, for anodyne under paroxysms of pain or for stimulus when the pulses flag under the weight of disease. The caterer takes the herb and serves it up in all delicacies. The physician takes the herb and compounds it for physical recuperation. Millions of the human race take it for ruinous delectation of body and mind. The herb, divinely created and for good purposes, in cases without number prostituted for evil results. There is a lawful and unlawful use of the herbaceous kingdom.

There sprang up in Yucatan, on this continent, an herb which has

BEWITCHED THE WORLD.

It crossed the Atlantic Ocean in the fifteenth century, and captured Spain. Then it captured Portugal, whither the French ambassadors took it to Paris, and it captured the French empire. Then Walter Raleigh introduced it into England. The botanists ascribe it to the genus Nicotians; but you all know it as the inspiring, the elevating, the emparadising, the radiating, the nerve-shattering, the dyspepsia-breeding, the health-destroying tobacco. I shall not be offensively personal while I speak on this subject, because you all use it, or nearly all! Indeed, I know from personal experience how it soothes and rosettes the world and kindles sociality, and I know what are its baneful results. I know what it is to be its slave, and, thank God, I know what it is to be its conqueror. I have no expectation that I will persuade the great masses of you to change your habits upon this subject, but I thought I might help you in some advice to your children. You say: "Didn't God make tobacco?" Oh, yes. You say: "Isn't God good?" Oh, yes. You say: "Then, God, when he created tobacco, must have created it for some good purpose?" Oh, yes; it is good for a great many things—tobacco is. It is good to kill moths in the wardrobe and tick in sheep, and to strangulate all kinds of vermin and to fumigate pestiferous places, and, like all other poisons, God created it for some particular use. So he did henbane, so nux vomica, so opperas, so belladonna, so all those poisons which he directly created or had man to extract. But the same God who made the poisons also created us with common sense know how to use them and how not to use them. "Oh," say some of my friends, "don't people use it without seeming harm to themselves, and are there not cases of plethora which absolutely need this depletion?" Oh, yes! Skilful and prudent physicians have sometimes prescribed it just as they sometimes prescribe arsenic, and they prescribe it well. There can be no doubt about its being poisonous. There was a case reported in which a little child lay upon its mother's lap and a drop from her pipe fell on the child's lip, and it went into convulsions and into death. "But," you say, "don't people live on to old age who indulge in this habit?" Yes; so I have seen an inebriate seventy years old. There are some persons who, in spite of all the outrages to their physical system, live on to old age. In the case of the man of the jug, he lasted so long because he was pickled; in the case of the man of the pipe, he lasted so long because he was turned into smoked liver.

It injures the mind. Another eminent physician, for a long time superintendent of the insane asylum at Northampton, Mass., says: "Fully half the patients who have come to our asylum for treatment are the victims of tobacco." It is a sad thing, my brother, to damage the body; it is a worse thing to damage the mind, and any man of common sense knows that the nervous system immediately sets upon the brain. More than that; nearly all reformers will tell you that it tends to drunkenness. It creates unnatural thirst. There are those who use this narcotic who do not drink, but nearly all who drink use the narcotic, so that shows there is an immediate affinity between the two drugs. It was long ago demonstrated that a man cannot permanently reform from strong drink unless he gives up tobacco. In nearly all the cases where men having been reformed have fallen back, it has been shown they have first touched tobacco and then surrendered to intoxicants. The broad avenue leading down to the drunkard's grave and the drunkard's hell is strewn thick with tobacco leaves. What did Benjamine Franklin say: "I never saw a well man in the exercise of common sense, who would say that tobacco did him any good." What did Thomas Jefferson say when arguing against the culture of tobacco? He said: "It is a culture productive of indefinite wretchedness." Horace Greely said of it: "It is a profane stench." Daniel Webster said: "If those men must smoke, let them take the horse shed."

One reason why there are so many the victims of this habit is because there are so many ministers of religion who smoke and chew. They smoke until they get the bronchitis, and the dear people have to pay their expenses to Europe. They smoke until

THE NERVOUS SYSTEM BREAKS DOWN.

They smoke themselves to death. I could name three eminent clergymen who died of cancer in the mouth, and in every case the physician said it was tobacco. There has been many a clergyman whose tombstone was all covered up with eulogy, which ought to have had the honest epitaph, "Killed by too much cavendish." Some of them smoke until the room is blue and their spirits are blue, and the world is blue and everything is blue. Time was when God passed by such sins, but it becomes now the duty of the American clergy who indulge in this narcotic to repent. How can a man preach temperance to the people when he is himself indulging in an appetite like that? I have seen a cuspadore in a pulpit, where the minister should drop his cud before he gets up to read "Blessed are the pure in heart," and to read about "rolling sin as a sweet morsel under the tongue," and in Leviticus to read about the unclean animals that chew the cud. I have known presbyteries and general assemblies and general synods where there was a room set apart for the ministers to smoke in.

Oh, it is a sorry spectacle—a consecrated man, a holy man of God, looking around for something which you take to be looking for a larger field of usefulness. He is not looking for that at all. He is only looking for some place where he can discharge a mouthful of tobacco juice! I am glad the Methodist Church of the United States is nearly all of their conferences have passed resolutions against this habit, and it is time we had an anti-tobacco reform in the Presbyterian Church, and the Episcopal Church, and the Baptist Church, and the Congregational Church. About sixty years ago a young man graduated from Andover Theological Seminary into the ministry. He went straight to the front. He had an eloquence and personal magnetism before which nothing could stand; but he was soon thrown into for twenty years, and the doctor said it was tobacco that sent him there. According to the custom then in vogue he was allowed a small portion of tobacco every day. After he had been there nearly twenty years, walking the floor, one day he had a sudden return of reason, and he realized what was the matter. He threw the plug of tobacco through the iron gates, and said: "What brought me here? What keeps me here? Why am I here? Tobacco! Tobacco! O God, help! Help and I'll never use it again." He was restored. He was brought forth. For ten years he successfully preached the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and then went into a blissful immortality.

There are ministers of religion to-day indulging in narcotics, dying by inches, and they do not know what is the matter with them. I might in a word give my own experience. It took ten cigars to make a sermon. I got very nervous. One day I awakened to the outrage I was inflicting upon myself. I was about to change settlements, and a generous wholesale tobacconist in Philadelphia said if I would only come to Philadelphia he would, all the rest of my life, provide me with cigars free of charge. I said to myself: If in these war times when cigars are so costly and my salary is small I smoke more than I ought to, what would I do if I had gratitious and illimitable supply. And then and there, twenty-four years ago, I quit once and forever. It made a new man of me and though I have since then done as much hard work as anyone, I think I have had the best health God ever blessed a man with. A minister of religion cannot afford to smoke. Put into my hand the moneys wasted in tobacco in Brooklyn and I will support three orphan asylums as grand and and as beautiful as those already established. Put into my hands the moneys wasted in tobacco in the United States of America and I will clothe, feed and shelter all the suffering poor on this continent.

Now, I stand this morning not only in the presence of my God, to whom I must give an account for what I say to-day, but I stand in the presence of a great multitude of young men who are forming their habits. Between seventeen and twenty-three there are thousands of young men damaging themselves irretrievably by tobacco. You either use very good tobacco or very cheap tobacco. If you use cheap tobacco I want to tell you why it is cheap. It is a mixture of burdock, lamp-black, sawdust, coltsfoot, plantain leaves, fuller's earth, lime, salt, alum and a little tobacco. You cannot afford, my young brother, to take such a mess as that between your lips. If on the other hand you use costly tobacco, let me say I do not think you can afford it. You take that which you expend and will expend if you keep the habit all your life and put it aside and it will buy you a farm to make you comfortable in the afternoon of life. A merchant of New York gave this testimony:—"In early life I smoked six cigars a day at six and a half cents each—they averaged that. I thought to myself one day, "I'll just put aside all the money I am consuming in cigars and all I would consume if I kept on in the habit and I will see what it will come to by compound interest." And he gives

THIS TREMENDOUS STATISTIC:

"Last July completed thirty nine years since by the grace of God I was emancipated from the filthy habit, and the saving amounted to the enormous sum of $29,103.03 by compound interest. We lived in the city, but the children, who had learned something of the enjoyment of country life from their annual visits to their grandparents, longed for a home among the green fields. I found a very pleasant place in the country for sale. The cigar money now came into requisition and I found it amounted to a sufficient sum to purchase the place, and it is mine. Now, boys, you take your choice, smoking without a home, or a home without smoking."

Listen to that, young man, and take an account of it into consideration, and that is, that the value of property thus destroyed every year directly by this habit. An agent of an insurance company says:—"One half of our losses come from the sparks of the pipe and the cigar." One young man threw away his cigar lit in one of the cities and with it he threw away three millions of dollars' worth of the property of others that blazed up from that spark. Harper's splendid printing establishment years ago was destroyed by a plumber who, having lighted his pipe, threw the match away and it fell into a pot of camphene. The whole building was in flames. Five blocks went down. Two thousand employes thrown out of work and more than a million dollars of property destroyed.

But I am speaking of higher values to-day. Better destroy a whole city of stores than destroy one man. O, my young friends, if you will excuse the idiom I will say stop before you begin. Here is a serfdom which has a shackle that it is almost impossible to break. Gigantic intellects that could overcome every other bad habit have been flung down by this and kept down. Some one is seeking to persuade a man from the habit. The reply was: "Ask me to do anything under the canopy of Heaven but this. This I cannot give up and won't give up, though it take seven years off my life."

I take a step further. In all ages the world has sought out some flower or herb or weed to stimulate its lethargy or to compose it grief. A drug called nepenthe was widely used among the ancient Greeks and the ancient Egyptians for narcotic purposes. The Pheban women knew how to compound it. You had but to chew the leaves and your sadness was whelmed with hilarity. But nepenthe passed out from the consideration of the world. Next came hasheesh, which is made from Indian hemp. It is manufactured from the flowers at the top, or workmen in leather clothing walk through the fields of hemp, and the exudation from the hemp adheres to the leathern garments, and then this exudation is scraped off and prepared with aromatics and becomes an intoxicant for the people. Whole nations have been stimulated, narcotised and made imbecile with this accursed hasheesh. The visions kindled by that drug are said to be beyond all description; but it finally takes down body, mind and soul in terrible death.

GORGEOUS AND MAGNIFICENT

I knew one of the most brilliant men in his day. Whether he appeared in magazine or in book or in newspaper column, he was an enchantment. He could in the course of an hour's conversation produce more wit and strange information than any man I ever talked with; but he chewed hasheesh. He did so at first as a matter of curosity to see whether the powers ascribed to it really belonged to it. He put his hand into the cockatrice's den to see if it would bite, and he found out to his complete undoing. His father, who was a minister of the Gospel, prayed for him and counselled him and obtained for him the best medical prescription of the best physicians in New York, Philadelphia, Paris, London, Edinburg and Berlin. He said he could not stop. A large circle of friends put their wits together to try to rescue him, but he went on down. First his body gave way in pangs and convulsions of suffering; then his mind gave way and he became a raving maniac; then his immortal soul went, blaspheming God, into a starless eternity. He was only about 30 years of age. Behold the ravages of the Persian and Egyptian Weed called hasheesh.

Opium demands emphatic recognition. It is made, as you know, from the white poppy. It is not a new discovery. We read of it 300 years before Christ, but it was not until the 17th century that it began its death march, passing out from the medicinal and the curative, and by smoking and mastication becoming the scourge of nations. In the year 1861 there were imported into this country 107,000 pounds of opium, but in 1880, 107,000 pounds opium, but in 1880, 533,000 pounds of opium. It is estimated that in the year 1876 there were in this country 225,000 opium consumers; but I saw a statistic more recent that said there are probably now in the United States at least 600,000 opium consumers. The fact is appalling. Do not think that they are merely barbaric fanatics who go down under that stroke. Read the great DeQuincey's "Confessions of an Opium-eater." He says for the first ten years it gave him the keys of paradise; but it takes his own powerful pen to describe the horrors consequent. Samuel Taylor Coleridge, after conquering the world with his pen, was conquered by opium. The most magnetic and brilliant lawyer of this century fell a victim to its stroke, and there are thousands of men and women—but more women than men—who are being bound, body, mind and soul to this terrific habit.

There is a great mystery about some families. You do not know why they do not get on. The opium habit is so deathful. You can cure a hundred drunkards easier than you can cure one opium-eater. I have heard of cases of reformation. I hope there are cases of genuine reformation. I have seen men who for 40 years had been victims of strong drink thoroughly reformed; but the opium-eaters th & I have seen go on and go down. Their cry in the last hour of life is not for God, nor for prayer, nor for the Bible, but for opium. Perhaps there are only two persons outside the household who know what is the matter—the physician and the pastor; the physician called in for physical relief, the pastor called in for spiritual relief; but they both fail. The physician acknowledges his defeat, for it seems as if the Lord does not answer prayer for opium-eaters. O, man! O, woman! are you tampering with this habit? Have you just begun? Are you tampering with this habit? Have you just begun? Are you the assuagement of physical distresses or mental trouble making this a resource? I beg you to stop. The ecstacies at the start will not pay for the horrors at the last. The paradise is followed too soon by the pandemonium. Morphia is a blessing from God for the relief of sudden pang or acute dementia, but was never intended for prolonged use, and, what is the peculiar sadness of it is, it comes to people in their weak moments. DeQuincey says: "I took to it for rheumatism." Coleridge says: "I took it for insomnia or sleeplessness." What do you take it for? For God's sake do not take it too long.

SO STEALTHY, SO DECEITFUL,

What is remarkable they are going down from the highest and wealthiest classes and from the most fashionable circles of New York and Brooklyn—going down

BY HUNDREDS AND THOUSANDS.

My friends, it is all-important that by personal example in every possible way we contend against all influences injurious to society. Our opportunity for exercising such influence limited. What we do, we had better do right away. The clock ticks now and we hear it. After a while the clock will tick and we shall hear it. Seated by a country fireside I saw the fire kindle, blaze and go out. I gathered up from the hearth enough for profitable reflections. Our life is just like the fire on that hearth. We put on fresh faggots, and the fire bursts through and up and out, gay of flash, gay of crockle—emblem of boyhood. Then the fire reddens into coals. The heat is fiercer, and the more it is stirred the more it reddens. With the sweep of flame it cleaves its way, until all the hearth glows with the intensity—emblem of full manhood. Then comes a whiteness to the coals. The heat lessens. The flickering shadows have died along the wall. The faggots drop apart. The household hover over the expiring embers. The last breath of smoke has been lost in the chimney. Fire is out. Shovel up the white remains. Ashes!

It Saved My Wife's Life.

This is the report of a Princess street gentleman who had the opportunity a few nights since of testing Polson's NERVILINE, the great pain cure. Be prepared for any emergency by having a bottle of Nerviline at hand. It only costs 10 cents to test it, as you can buy test bottles at at any drug store. Get a 10 or 25 cent bottle to-day. Sure. in rheumatism, neuralgia cramps, colic, headache. Nerviline, the sure pop pain cure. All druggists, 25 cents a bottle.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. 45-26-eow.

SPRING TOOTH HARROWS

Granted by all who have used them to be the best purverizer ever introduced into the market. It cuts double the width and draws easier than the two horse cultivator. It will done do the work of Cultivator, Harrow, Pulveriser and Gang Plow. The teeth incline forward like those of a horse-rake, and when a tooth strikes any solid substance it springs back and upwards, thereby clearing the obstacle and immediately entering the ground again, without interfering with the working of the other teeth, or producing any perceptible extra draft on the team. The teeth being circular, keep constantly vibrating and spreading; thus they seldom clog with grass, weeds, stalks, stones or damp ground; and the frequency of lifting by hand, so common with other harrows, is avoided, and they cannot be upset when turning; hence, any boy capable of driving a team can use it.

CALL AND SEE OUR "ECONOMIST" PLOW.

It is light in weight, strong in construction, easy in outlines, does elegant work, and above all has a reversible self sharpening wing and point, which has delighted every Farmer to whom we have shown it. Both nose and wing are reversible. As soon as either part becomes worn rounded on the bottom, it is turned over bringing the self-sharpened upper edge to the bottom of the furrow and the process of alternately rounding up the lower, and sharpening the upper edge of the part repeated, until it is worn back to its bearings.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The Celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

REVISED OLD TESTAMENT.

Published Passages from the Old and New Versions.

MANY FAMILIAR PHRASES CHANGED.

LONDON, May 17.—The rush for copies of the revised Old Testament yesterday was unprecedented in England. It is stated the London correspondent of a New York newspaper offered $300 for a sight of an advance copy without success. The correspondent was authorized by his paper to spend $2,000 in telegraphing the main features of the new version. The first orders for the version amount to over a million copies. The following are some of the changes:

KING JAMES VERSION.	REVISED EDITION.
Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel.—Gen xlv. 4.	Unstable as water, thou shalt not excel.
There were giants on the earth in those days.—Gen. vi. 4.	The Nethinim were in the earth in those days.
Oh! that one would hear me! behold my desire is that the Almighty would answer me, and that mine adversary had written a book.—Job xxxi. 35.	Oh! that one would hear me! behold my desire is that the Almighty would answer me, and that I had the indictment which my adversary hath written.
For Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels.—Psalm viii. 5.	For thou has made him a little lower than God.
I said in my haste, All men are liars.—Psalm cxvi. 11.	I said when I made haste to escape all men are a lie.
Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter.—Ecclesiastes xii. 13.	This is the end of the matter. All hath been heard.
Fools make a mock at sin; but among the righteous there is favour.—Proverbs xiv. 9.	The foolish scorn the guilt offering, but among upright there is good will.
Behold my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.—Isaiah lii. 13.	Behold my servant shall deal wisely, he shall be lifted up and shall be very high.
He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised and we esteemed him not.—Isaiah liii. 3.	He is despised and rejected of men: a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, and as one from whom men hide their faces, He was despised and we esteemed him not.
He was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth; he is brought as a lamb to be slaughter.—Isaiah liii. 7.	He was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth, as a lamb that he led to the slaughter.
He was taken from prison and from judgment; and who shall declare his generation?—Isaiah liii. 8.	By oppression and judgment he was taken away and who considereth his generation.
The flood breaketh out from the inhabitant; even the waters forgotten of the foot; they are dried up, they are gone away from men.—Job xxxviii. 4.	He breaketh open a shaft away from where men sojourn. They are forgotten of the foot that passeth by. They swing to and fro.
Beware lest he take thee away with his stroke.—Job xxxvi. 18.	Beware lest thou be led away with thy sufficiency.
I will set him in safety from him that puffeth at him.—Psalm xii. 5.	I will set him in safety at whom they mock.
Extol him that rideth upon the heavens.—Psalm lxviii. 4.	Cast up a highway for him that rideth through the deserts.
Blessed be the Lord, who daily loadeth us with benefits.—Psalm lxviii. 19.	Blessed be the Lord, who daily beareth our burdens.
Rebuke the company of spearmen.—Psalm lxviii. 30.	Rebuke the wild beasts of the reeds.
As well the singers as the players on instruments.—Psalm lxxxvii. 7.	As well the singers as they that dance.
Let the righteous come to me; it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me; it shall be an excellent oil, which shall not break my head.—Psalm cxli. 5.	And let him reprove me, it shall be oil upon the head. Let not my head refuse it.
The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness. Prepare ye the way of the Lord.—Isaiah xl. 3.	The voice of one that cried. Prepare ye in the wilderness the way of the Lord.

Ginghams, Ginghams. A large stock of new Ginghams to arrive this week at Turnbull's. Look for them.

We are deluged with books that are born and fret their hour upon the counter and then are heard no more. Books—not account books, but books of no account. Books catalogued in the commonplace. Every one takes his turn at a novel or a drama, and society is the loser by it; for what might pass current in a spontaneous way for cleverness, when sawed up and dealt out in book formula, loses ground and proves itself not worth the savings. People are niggardly of being bright, clever and witty in society because they are saving up for the coming book that shall surely yet be written, and that every one is supposed to be writing. All the bon mots are carefully tucked away, nothing is given out of itself. Every story has a price in the book market, and the vapid consequence of all this is that in general society conversation has ceased to exist. People no longer meet to converse. Life is too absorbing. Quiet groups in pleasant parlors have passed away. A larger scale of entertainment interrupts all this. Parties are of the past—"receptions" are the only wear—very crushy, very vapid, very, very much all alike, unless a deliberate stand is taken by some wearied soul and a form of entertainment is fixed upon, and in such case one is invited to be the privileged guest at the unfolding of the statue of—i. e., Mr. ——'s MS., twenty foolscap pages, read by the author; or, it may be, Mrs. ——'s blank verse, or somebody will strain forth Browning. Society has little spontaneity since the whole world turned author, and publishers have taken from it what they cannot pay back.—Boston Transcript.

Catarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for Catarrh. Out of 2,000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the Catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure Catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured Catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple, and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favourable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on Catarrh.—Montreal Star, Nov 17, 1882. 48-52t

A Yosemite Squid.

"Pike" is a short, wiry little man, with pale, yellow hair, blue eyes and a florid skin. Some adversity has broken his nose and set it away on his face, and continued exposure and talking in the thin air of mountain summits has brought his voice down to a hoarse stage whisper. In his high boots, cheaked trousers, short buckskin coat, lined with felt, and wearing a broad sombrero, "Pike" is a picturesque figure. His speech is keen and racy, and punctuated with unconscious profanity, and whosoever goes out in the day under the care of this kindly centaur is sure of unlimited enjoyment.

Pike came out in the early days of the gold excitement, mixed up and down the country, and lived the life of Bret Harte's heroes. In later years he drifted into the valley, and for a long time has been a celebrated guide. Although outwardly a reckless humorist, Pike has a fund of knowledge at hand that college professors might envy, and the scientists who visit the valley will have no other guide but Pike. He knows not only the name of every peak, range, and depression in sight, but the name of every flower and growing thing as well, and though he never lets drop such words as triassic or crustaceous, his geology is exact enough to warrant his having a theory of valley formation all to himself. The true spirit of chivalry animates the heart under the buckskin coat, and for timorous womankind Pike is a mountain of refuge and strength. He always keeps a special eye out for the ladies, and puts the female riders to the front where he can be near them, and the prettier they are the closer in line they are ranged after the careful guide.

The sobriquet of "Pike," that has clung to him for so many years, is evidence of the hero's birth in the State of Missouri; but when someone asked him the other night: "Oh! what is your name in the East?" Pike looked up, with a twinkle in his eye, and said: "Nathan Bennet Phillips was my maiden name." The drolleries that he perpetrates and the racy responses that he gives are intensified by the hoarse dramatic whisper in which he speaks, and when he stands in the din of one of the great waterfalls and tries to talk his wild gestures and pantomime actions are wonderful. A reckless cross-questioner once asked him how he happened to lose his voice, and Pike whispered back: "Telling lies to tourists." When put on his honor Pike avers that he does not begin to tell lies until the 1st of April. He keeps up the fires of mendacity until the last tourist leaves the valley in the fall, and then swears off and revels in the cold truth all winter. "Suppose you were here when the valley was discovered?" said a facetious tourist one day. "When it was discovered?" croaked Pike in his highest whisper, "I was here when they were making it. I was called away to the south of France to help make the mountains there, and left it all soft in this valley. When I got back the rocks had hardened the way they are now. It is not the way I had planned it, but it does well enough to ride tourists over for a while." After such a speech Pike generally puts his heels into his horse's side and rides on, weaving mildly in the saddle, and looking around to see how the answer takes. If you insist upon a legend for any spot Pike's imagination can supply one, and he delights in puzzling and astounding the literal-minded and precise people who never can separate his facts from his fun and his fancy.—Cor. St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Where William Black Should Go.

A few adventurous Englishmen have borne its reputation to the old country, and the fame of Alaska as a wonderfully picturesque region is even better known across the seas than on the American Continent. Lord Dufferin made a trip up the British Columbia and Alaska Coast while Governor-General of Canada and his descriptions of the Archipelago and its scenery are among the most vivid and enthusiastic sketches that he has written of the New World. When a second William Black shall have arisen to paint the wonders of its high mountains, its dense forests, its clear, emerald waters, its skies and fogs and sunsets; to tempt the angler with his tales of the great salmon; to excite the hunter with hints of the deer, the bear, the mountain sheep and ruffed grouse that crowd these untrodden wilds, and to lure the artist and the idler on to these shores of eternal beauty, the Scotch Hebrides will be forgotten, and the placid waters of these picturesque channels and inlets will reflect the shapely hulls of unnumbered yachts. A summer spent in the Alexander Archipelago will mean more to the fashionable and æsthetic mind than six seasons off the coast of Maine, and two winters on a tedious dahabeah of the Nile. The seasick sufferers on other salt waters can sail the brine here for three weeks, and a month, without experiencing a qualm unless a great gale should blow when they cross the forty mile stretch of Hecate Strait and Dixon Sound, where the boundary line separates British Columbia and Alaska.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Farmers Arbitrate, Don't Litigate.

The law favors arbitration as a peaceable and inexpensive method of settling difficulties. In many of the States there are statutory provisions, by which a judgment of the Court may be rendered on the award or finding of arbitrators, concerning a matter duly submitted to them. It is almost always possible to take a case out of Court, and submit it to referees at any stage of its progress. In the absence of any statutory provisions it is always lawful for parties to agree to submit their differences to arbitrators, and abide by their decision. The agreement to do so may be either oral or written, but the latter is the better way. The form is not essential, except that the meaning should be carefully expressed. It is customary, in addition to the agreements for the parties to execute to each other an arbitration bond, conditioned on each party performing the award given by the arbitrators, whatever it may be. If the award is properly made, it then becomes binding on the parties.

Arbitration is well worth considering by farmers, who find themselves in dispute about some simple question of fact, as, for instance, the amount of damage which A's breechy cattle have done to B's corn, or as to what was the value of A's sheep which were killed by B's bad dog. Such questions can generally be quickly, cheapiy, and justly settled by one or more fair-minded neighbors, and the expense, delay, and aggravation of a suit in Court may thus be avoided.—American Agriculturist.

A Strange Story of Real Life.

William Leverich, the driver of Thirty eight's engine, made the most singular discovery that he had been living in the same town with his sister for three years, but all the time unknown to him, and the accidental occurrence of his name in a newspaper was the means of making the discovery. Leverich left home about thirteen years ago, and like so many other young men in obeying Horace Greeley's precept to go West, he drifted West and finally to California. He became careless in his correspondence, and for several years his folks did not know where he was. During this time his sister married a gentleman named J. S. Hunt, and three years ago they came to Los Angeles. As Mrs. Hunt did not know of her brother's whereabouts, and he did not know she was married or in California, they did not meet until yesterday, when Mrs. Hunt accidentally saw her brother's name in the Herald.—*Los Angeles (Cal.) Why He Didn't Associate with Him.

"Did I ever tell you how Dolph Jakes beat me out of $2.65?"

"No, Murphy; how was it?" said the listener.

"Why, I was sittin' in the Astor lunch one night, and in came Dolph. He walked up to the bar and took a drink. There was a big dish of hard boiled eggs at one end of the bar, and he began going for them. He picked up an egg, cracked it on the bar, picked the shell off, and ate it. But he didn't stop; he ate another, and another, until he had swallowed five. I was watching him, and it made me real mad to see him so greedy. So I said: 'Dolph, you had better eat 'em all, hain't you?'

"'So I will, Charles, if you'll pay for 'em,' said he.

"'Go right along,' I said; 'I'll pay if you finish the dish.'

"He never stopped until he had eaten twenty-five more. He then took a drink, ate an oyster stew, a plate of crackers, and finished the dish of eggs. There were twenty-three more. Fifty-three eggs was what he ate, and they had the cheek to charge me five cents apiece for 'em—just $2.65 I was out. I never spoke to Dolph again. I wouldn't associate with him after that."—The Gastronomer.

A Man Sings a Mouse to Death.

A New England lady writes: "Quite late the other evening my husband was humming a lively air, playfully keeping time with his feet as he sat in his easy chair, when he suddenly stopped and said: 'Do see that mouse?' It was only about four feet away and it did not manifest any fear. I said it is charmed with your singing. He began again, and going nearer sat down on the floor, resting his hand on the carpet. The mouse first ran a little further away, then came back and ran up his hand and arm, until he moved to prevent its going to his neck. I took it from his shoulder, but it instantly jumped to the floor and ran away in another direction. Mr. P. again sat down on the floor and the mouse came running back to him, when, finding it injured beyond recovery, he put an end to its sufferings. We have never before seen a mouse in that room, though troubled with them in the pantry and kitchen. It seemed to have been attracted by the singing to come in under the door to find help or sympathy, else why manifest such a preference for Mr. P."

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual as an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

The Government's Guilt.

A Conservative organ asserts that the commissioners appointed to investigate and adjust the claims of the halfbreeds in the Northwest, have "secured a great triumph for the Government. Their mission was one which required great skill and tact and they have made the most and best of the powers entrusted to them." It is to be hoped that this is correct, but at the same time the greater its truth the greater the condemnation of the Government. The latter have known for years that the Halfbreeds were disaffected and that they had real grievances. But nothing has been done in the matter except to allow favorites of the Government to overrun the Northwest, seeking their own gain and by their overbearing treatment of, the Halfbreeds intensify their discontent, and goad them into a rebellion that has cost the lives of about 70 of the most promising young citizens of the Dominion, and millions of money. There is a fearful responsibility resting on the Government from which no subterfuge can protect them. The people justly hold them alone guilty of a course of action that precipitated the unfortunate Northwest rebellion. The grievances, of the Halfbreeds, which the Government, by its appointment of a commission has formally recognised, have been known to the Government for months and months. Riel's presence in the Northwest and his fomenting of a rebellion could yet have escaped notice, yet no action was taken to do justice to the aggrieved, to conciliate the disaffected by redressing recognised wrongs or to anticipate by vigorous repressive and preventive measures the outbreak of rebellion. Fortunately for Canada, the patriotism of the people and of her citizen soldiery has resulted in a prompt crushing of the rising, and the alacrity with which the volunteers filled the breach and the gallant and vigorous campaign they helped in carrying out is a stinging practical rebuke to the supineness of the Government throughout this whole miserable business.

Pretext Upon Pretext.

Whatever excuse Sir John Macdonald may make in justification of the introduction of his Franchise Bill, the fact remains patent that it is only another of the political expedients and pretexts which he has employed and suggested throughout his political career especially since Confederation was established. Referring to this phase the Montreal Times aptly remarks that it "ought to be remembered in connection with Sir John Macdonald's Franchise Bill, as showing its connection with the appeal to the country which must ere long be made, that ever since Confederation the Premier has contrived some special and plausible pretext by means of which to influence the electors either in a corrupt sense or by some so-called, but equivocally patriotic issue. He went to the country with all the glamour that surrounded Confederation, which has since proven to be by no means what he represented. In 1872, he approached the people with the Canadian Pacific scheme, supported by the $360,000, the consideration for the sale of its charter. In 1878 he had the N.P.—much good has it done us. In 1882 he was assisted by the Gerrymander Act, and in 1885 he is making such arrangements as will enable him to rely upon the Indians and Revising Barristers to the disadvantage of our citizens. The unhappy and unsatisfactory remembrances of the past should induce the people all over Canada to rise and repudiate Sir John Macdonald and his Franchise Bill, which he seems to regard as of much greater importance than either the pacification of the North-West or the happiness and prosperity—commercial and financial—of the country or any portion of it.

British Politics.

In England at the present moment there is considerable excitement in domestic politics. Although Parliament is not sitting there is a good deal of discussion among politicians over the Irish Question, and even dissensions in the Cabinet are aroused and there is a prospect that the split may be widened to an actual breach almost any day. The Home Rulers are not inclined to be temperate in their demands and seem determined to complicate matters by forming coalitions of seemingly discordant elements for the purpose of accomplishing their schemes. The Crimes Act is the present bone of contention or rather discussion. The Home Rulers show a a strong determination not to permit of the renewal of the Act. The Radicals join with them, and the Conservatives, or a portion of them, who do not seem to be particular as to the company they keep so long as there is a ghost of a chance of coming into power, are inclined to join with these parties. And, indeed, the feeling has developed much stronger indications of the intensity of feeling on the subject. There is actual disagreement in the Cabinet over the question, and it may need all of Gladstone's marvellous tact to reconcile the discordant elements. On the eve of a general election it is probable that the matter will be so managed as not to imperil the chances of the Gladstone Government before the country. The up-shot may be that even greater measures of relief and concession than Gladstone has already given to Ireland, may be granted, as a means of disarming the hostility of the Home Rulers and Radicals.

Not of Our Party.

Many persons persist in hugging to their bosoms the delusion that the Reformers are friends of Riel, and that Riel was once a Reformer member of Parliament. It is true that while a Reform Government was in power, Riel, as member of Provencher, Manitoba, was smuggled into the House by Tory politicians, and in some similar smuggling way managed to sign the the roll. Riel was always a good Conservative, and a most obliging one, too. In 1872 he was a candidate for Provencher, but Sir John's right hand colleague, Sir George Cartier, was without a seat and Louis Reil resigned his chance in Sir George's favour; the latter was elected by acclamation, and the Tory rebel chieftain was very glad of it, as witness the following letter:

WINNIPEG, 16th SEPTEMBER, 1872.

To Hon. Sir George Et. Cartier, Bart., Montreal:

Your election in our county is by acclamation, and have reason to hope in success of the cause trusted into your hands.

Signed,

LOUIS RIEL,
JOSEPH ROYAL,
A. LEPINE,
JAMES DUBUC.

Editorial Notes.

Several years ago in John devoutly wished + Peterborough, Sir God that he could catch Riel. Now he has him, what does he propose to do with him?

Riel is qualified in one way to be a Dominion Senator. In 1872 he resigned his chance for Provencher in favor of Sir John's colleague, and Sir John is not the man to forget such generosity—that is if he can turn it to political advantage.

Recent advices give us to understand that the political disorders of Central America, which were suddenly checked by the death of Barrios, have again broken out in a new form, and that the project of a union of the five republics may again be brought up for determination on the field of battle.

Mr. Blake submitted a franchise scheme to the Dominion Parliament the other night which must commend itself to every Liberal. He favors a franchise for adult males based upon three qualifications—residence, citizenship by birth or naturalization, and intelligence—a knowledge of reading and writing being the test of the latter.

With heavy engagements to meet and a deficit of two million dollars staring them in the face this year, we are not surprised to hear that the Government are about to impose fresh duties on the people. The tariff resolutions are held back until the result of Sir S. L. Tilley's financial mission to London is ascertained. A serious crisis in Dominion affairs is fast looming up, and no wonder, says the Stratford Beacon.

"What will be done with Riel now that he is captured?" was asked of a prominent local Conservative. "Sir John had better make a Senator of him," was the reply. Sir John has done many more surprising things than that. It seems, however, considering Riel's criminality, that making a Conservative senator of him is hardly an adequate punishment.

The United (Independent) Order of Foresters, of the United States, has failed and become defunct—liabilities, $40,000; assets, $2,000. The failure is due to the neglect to establish a reserve fund. This failure does not affect the Canadian Order of Foresters, an entirely distinct organization. The Canadian Order has 4,000 members and a surplus of $12,000 after all outstanding debts are paid.

Very convenient for a candidate. If an ambitious limb of the law wishes to enter Parliament as a supporter of the Government he has it in his power to make his election sure. He has only to get the appointment as revising barrister, and, after fixing the voters' list so as to make them safe, he can then resign and become a candidate. Sir John's proposed Franchise Bill admits admits of such a monstrosity of fraud.

Our Conservative friends are discussing among themselves the question—whether Sir John would lose more political capital by letting Riel go or by hanging him. To borrow a parliamentary phrase, they have "got the old man down pretty fine." They know that Sir John can not be depended on to do what is right in the matter, but that he will take the course that will be most to his own advantage, in utter disregard of the interests of justice or the interests of the country.

The division of Algoma into two electoral districts—East and West Algoma—for the provincial legislature takes effect immediately, inasmuch as the old constituency of Algoma is at present vacant. For West Algoma, which includes Port Arthur, Mr. James Conmee is the Liberal candidate, and Mr. J. C. Gough, a relative by marriage of Hon. Peter Mitchell, the Tory candidate. Mr. Conmee's chances for election are excellent. He is well known throughout the district and has large business interests there.

All the officers of the Welland Teachers' Association are ladies. This is perhaps an unprecedented state of affairs in the history of teachers' meetings. In too many cases the ladies do not take such an active part in these meetings as they should. They leave all the public discussion to the sterner sex. If teaching is to become solely a ladies' profession, and more unlikely things have happened, it is about time they came forward and assumed the leading positions and responsibilities.

The New York Daily Indicator contains the following pertinent paragraphs:—"The last gap in the Canadian Pacific road is reported to have been closed. There are several gaps in the Dominion Treasury yet to be closed, however." * * * "The Canadian Pacific Syndicate, we judge, must have been 'seeing' some of the London press, from the loud tooting that is being done by the C. P. R. grab." * * * "The London Railway Times is among the loudest shriekers for the Canadian Pacific. Takes over a column to try and show that the road is reducing its debt." * * * "As the concern is trying to scoop $5,000,000 cash from the Government Treasury, we have no doubt the Syndicate would gladly go on indefinitely reducing its debt in the same way."

Under the heading of "Sir John's Mis-policy," the Toronto World says that "at a time when rebellion runs riot in large portion of the country, and more serious things demand attention, Sir John Macdonald has chosen to pass an uncalled for franchise bill, containing a provision that strikes straight at liberty. The independent press, the independent voters of the country to a man repudiate the revising barrister clause as an infringement of popular rights, pronounce it a scheme to perpetuate the Conservative party in power. The only place where no independence is shown is in the House. Not one Conservative has raised a protest, for the revising barrister will keep them in Parliament. The Conservative party at large will not profit by the measure. It will be the machinists only."

RIEL THE REBEL.

How He can be Tried—The Law fully provides for His Getting Justice—Sir John has Several sure ways of Hanging Him—The Statutes do not Provide for Paying Him $1000 Cheques to Leave the Country.

The Government of Sir John McDonald have now to decide upon the tribunal before which Reil is to be tried. The offences for which he may be tried are many, but they may be classed under the two felonies of "treason" and "murder," each of which subjects the offender convicted of them to capital punishment. The Act of 1768 provides that "In all cases of treason the sentence or judgment to be pronounced against any person convicted and adjudged guilty thereof, shall be—that he be hanged by the neck until he is dead."

For the felony of treason and murder committed in the provinces of Canada the ordinary tribunals have jurisdiction. But in the case of aliens found in arms against Her Majesty, or committing acts of hostility in Canada, the Act of 1867, (31 Vic., c. 14), founded upon the Upper Canada Act of 1840, (3 Vic. c. 12), provides that:—

"In case any person, being a citizen or subject of any foreign State or country at peace with Her Majesty, be or continues in arms against Her majesty within Canada, or commits any act of hostility therein, or enters Canada with design or intent to levy war against Her Majesty, or to commit any felony therein, for which any person would by the laws in force in any Province of Canada in which such offence is committed, be liable to suffer death, then the Governor may order an assembling of a Militia General Court-martial for the trial of such person, agreeably to the Militia Laws in force in such Province; and upon being found guilty by such Courtmartial of offending against this Act, such person shall be sentenced by such Courtmartial to suffer death, or such other punishment as shall be awarded by the Court."

This Act was made applicable to the North-West Territories by the Dominion Acts of 1873, 1885, and 1880. Only aliens can be tried by a Courtmartial under its provisions. And by the Imperial Naturalization Act of 1870, and the Dominion Naturalization Act of 1881, a British subject voluntarily becoming naturalised in a foreign State is to "be deemed to have "ceased to be a British "subject, and be regarded as an alien." Whether Reil can be regarded as an alien we are unable at present to say.

By 40 Vic. c. 11 no sentence of any Courtmartial is to be carried into effect until approved by Her M...sty, &c., the Governor-General in Council. Subjects of the Crown in the North-West Territories charged with felony, punishable by death, may, under the Dominion Act of 1880 (43 Vic., c. 25), be tried by a Stipendiary Magistrate and a justice of the Peace, with a jury of six, "summoned by the Stipendiary Magistrate from such male persons as he may think suitable in that behalf." Any person arraigned for treason or felony may challenge peremptorily and without cause not more than six jurors. It further provides that a person convicted of any offence punishable by death may appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench of Manitoba, which Court may confirm the conviction or order a new trial. And the Stipendiary Magistrate in every such case is to forward full notes of the evidence, and his report on the case to the Minister of Justice, and the execution is to be postponed from time to time "until such report is received, and the pleasure of the Governor thereon is communicated to the Lieutenant-Governor.

But by an Imperial Act of 1821 (1 and 2 Geo. IV., c. 66) the courts of Upper Canada (now Ontario) were vested with jurisdiction to try capital felonies committed within the Indian and Hudson Bay Companies in North America. By that Act the Crown was authorised to empower Justices of the Peace within such territories "to sit and hold Courts of Record for the trial of criminal offences and misdemeanours." But it restricted such Courts from trying any offender upon any charge or indictment for any felony made the subject of capital punishment, and enacted that:

"In every case of any offence subjecting the person committing the same to capital punishment or transportation, the Court, or any Judge of any such Court, or any Justice or Justices of the Peace before whom any such offender shall be brought shall commit such offender to safe custody, and such offender to be sent in such custody for trial in the Court of the Province of Upper Canada."

* * * * * *

Up to 1872 the Imperial Act of 1803, which gave the Courts of Upper and Lower Canada special jurisdiction over criminal offences committed in the Indian territories in the North-West, was in force. Under the Act De Reinhard was tried in Quebec, and Brown, McLellan, Grant and others, in York (now Toronto) in 1818, for offences committed in the Red River Territories. But by the Statute Law Revision Act of 1872 the Act was repealed, and the later Imperial Acts above referred to were, with slight modifications made in 1873 and 1874, left in force.

It may therefore be inferred that the tribunals which have jurisdiction to try felonies committed in the North-West are:—(1) A Militia Courtmartial, (2) Stipendiary Magistrates' Court, and (3) the Courts of Ontario. —Globe.

THE RIEL REBELLION.

The Causes of it—Hon. Edward Blake's Withering Arraignment of the Government—Placing the Responsibility—Noble Words of Praise for the Noble Volunteers.

In the House of Commons on Thursday, Hon. Mr. Blake took advantage of the Government's failure to make returns of papers that would tend to throw light on the causes of the North-West rebellion, to express his views on the subject, which he did in the following forcible and able speech :—

Mr. Blake said he was about to move that the House adjourn, which was the only regular motion he could make. If peace had been broken, if the authority of the Government had been violated, he held it to be the duty of the Government to grant, as it was the duty of the House to demand, all information, so that they might find how these things had happened, so that they might deal with the whole subject, so that they might fix the responsibility on the right shoulders, or share it if it were a mixed responsibility. More than eight weeks had now elapsed since the insurrection broke out, and from that time out he had been constantly pressing for information which might enable the House to reach a conclusion on this subject. The Opposition felt it to be their duty heartily to concur with the Government, heartily to assist any measure, to restore the public authority. Whatever the Government proposed they received without an instant's delay, and they received also the moral support and countenance of every member of Parliament in taking the earnest, most active, most energetic, and most complete steps that they could devise for the restoration of the public authority, but while doing that they must not lose sight of this other important duty, the duty on the part of the House to demand information,

THE OBLIGATION ON THE PART OF THE GOVERNMENT TO VINDICATE ITSELF and bring down all the materials upon which judgment could be pronounced. It was difficult to imagine that without some neglect or delay or wrong the events of the last few weeks could have taken place. It was quite true that they might have taken place without neglect or delay or mistake or misgovernment. That was possible, but, if there was to be any presumption, that presumption must be against those in authority, and it was for the Government to

REBUT THAT PRESUMPTION,

and they could only accomplish this by bringing down such full information as would enable the House to pass judgment between their fellow-citizens lately in arms and their rulers. It was not only the right, but the duty of the House, as the Great Inquest of the nation, to demand the information. This principle had been frequently adopted and acted upon in England. It was acted upon by the First Minister himself in the case of a former disturbance in 1869 and 1870. When they met in parliament in 1870 Louis Riel was in possession of the Red River settlement as President of the Government which he had assumed to form. Negotiations were going on with the people of that country, and the organization of an armed force to sustain the authority of the Crown was going on, or was contemplated. It was in such a condition of things that Parliament met on the 15th of February, 1870. On the 24th of Feruary the Government brought down, by a message from the Throne, voluntarily, and without solicitation, a document connected with the matter, which, when printed, covered 150 pages. These were brought down and referred to a committee formed from both sides of the House, whose duty it was to examine them and report to the House what papers it would be advisable to publish. The committee reported in favor of the publication of all the documents except a single despatch, and the names of two or three persons. What was the character of these papers? They were such as to throw light on the causes of the trouble, on the conduct of the Government, on the conduct of the Hudson Bay Company, on the conduct of the people, and on the conduct of the officers of the Government. He proposed to trouble the House with a few references to these papers with a view to showing

WHAT KIND OF INFORMATION

it was then thought proper to bring down, and also to throw some light on the present situation. He read a number of extracts from these papers, and contended that the difficulty in that direction arose partly from the neglect of the Hudson Bay Company in not informing the Government as to the true state of affairs, partly from the neglect of the Government because the people were not fully informed as to the nature of the government which was to be imposed upon them, and as to the rights of the people in their land. He also pointed out the difficulties which arose from the attempt to proceed with the surveys without extinguishing the Indian title, and without explaining clearly to the settler the intention with which the survey was made. With the dearly bought experience of the rebellion of 1870-71, the people's representatives began their course of governing the North-West Territories. Since that time fifteen years had elapsed, and the question was how they had used that experience, how they had fulfilled their mission, how they had exercised their power, and these questions were to be answered soon. He would only state them to-day, not attempt to answer them, for his opinion was that it was the Government's duty to furnish the House with authentic means of answering them. The actual terms of the grievance raised by the Manitoba rebellion embraced only a small Province, but beyond that small Province there were vast regions, dotted over here and there with Indian tribes, here and there with a few small settlements of what might be called Halfbreeds, a few whites, a mission, or a Hudson Bay post. The great settlement in the western part of the Territories was on the mighty Saskatchewan, as in Manitoba it was on the Red and on the Assiniboine rivers, and for the same cause the land was fertile, and the river furnished an artery for trade. For many years before 1870 the Churches had missionaries in that vast field, some near the centre of the present disturbance. The settlement was composed of missionaries, Hudson Bay employes, and Halfbreeds, who were freighters and hunters and who farmed a little with pioneers from the older Provinces and elsewhere. That settlement had the same system of occupying the river which had obtained in Manitoba, and which had originated, so far as Canada was concerned, in Quebec. It was largely because of association and habit and partly because the circumstances were much the same. There being the same class of people,

SIMILARLY CIRCUMSTANCED AS THOSE IN MANITOBA, it would not be unnatural to say that they would expect similar treatment or to suppose that what was just for one would be just for the other. There were the same questions as to the extinguishment of the Indian title of the Halfbreed, the rights of occupancy, of settlement with reference to river and surveys as had arisen in Manitoba. It was not unnatural to suppose that the course of the Government in Manitoba had raised the expectations, and at the same time had not furnished means for settling the difficulties of these people. This vast territory had been under the control of Canada for 15 years. There was no Hudson Bay Co. The Government were to blame for the difficulties arising. Canada must take the responsibility. The control exercised over that country by the Canadian Government was despotic, almost unlimited. For whatever power the Government felt it wanted it asked Parliament, and it was readily and unflinchingly granted. After

15 YEARS OF SUCH GOVERNMENT, HOW STOOD THE CASE

to-day? They knew how the case stood. Since the middle of March last the public peace had been broken, public order violated, the public authority defied, insurrection had raised its head, five thousand Canadians had been sent to battle by the Government with the willing support of the Parliament and the people. The lives of some of the best and bravest of Canada's sons had been lost. Many others had been wounded, and many in the natural course of things would suffer permanently from the hardships incidental to war. These hardships caused even more loss than the battlefield. They knew those hardships and difficulties had been borne uncomplainingly. (Cheers.) Though they did not bring the honour of a wound, they caused as much suffering, as much loss, as a wound could cause. They knew that had suffered, not only in feeling, but in comfort, that the pittance paid in many cases did not support them, and that the public of the various localities had been obliged to come forward in order to keep the wolf of hunger from the door of the wives and children of those who were fighting the country's battles in the North-West. In the duty set them to do the troops had done nobly. (Cheers.) They were not in the possession of information, even if they had the ability to criticize the military conduct of the campaign, but they had sufficient information, and they were to judge from unvarying testimony, that the troops had behaved nobly. (Cheers.) In endurance and powers, in the rapidity of the marches, in pluck, in dash, in steady courage, in military aptitude, they had surpassed the most glowing expectations of their countrymen. (Cheers.) They were in soldierly qualities the flower of Canada, though that flower was tinged with blood, and red colour which Canadians could not like, it was the flower of which Canadians had reason to be proud. (Cheers.) Let all be just also to their foes. Though wrong, doubly wrong, in what they did, misled, misguided, unhappy men, they too fought with skill, with bravery, and with determination. It would be doing less than justice to our own forces to say less than that. Those men had fought. Many had died, but worse than that, besides the horrid war there had been a still more horrid murder. Savage Indians had started out on a career of slaughter, rape, and pillage, Age, nor sex, nor sacred office, nor faithful friendship, availed to prevent the outrages, which the savage called war. Against these also the volunteers had done their duty like men and soldiers. The casualties, considering the number engaged, had been very great. So far as he had been able to learn, the deaths on our side were 66, and the wounded 119. On the side of the insurgents, the deaths were 64, and the wounded 161. Besides these, it was said the bodies of 105 Indian braves were counted after the attack upon Poundmaker's camp, with no account given of those wounded. Taking less than the average probability of deaths from wounds, the result would be

THE FAMILIES OF THOSE VOLUNTEERS

ABOUT 250 DEATHS,

and these with 400 cases of wounds, would represent the result of the operations of the North-West during the last two months. The valour of our soldiers was the one relieving feature in the midst of all this woe, and even in rejoicing at this, they must rejoice with chastened feeling at the thought that it was brought about by a conflict on Canadian soil between Canadian citizens on either side; in one case and between Canadian citizens and Indian bands in the other. It was surely the duty of the House to consider how could these things be in free, law abiding Canada. But great as were the perils of our soldiers, and deep as was the sympathy of the people flowing out to them, those perils were in the line of their duty as soldiers. But the perils and hardships had extended far beyond these, and had become the lot of the peaceful settler and his wife and children. The lives of some had been lost. Over a large area desolation, destruction, and privation prevailed, and over a still much larger area anxiety and distress. As giving an idea of the injury which had been done, he read from the Battleford Herald a description of the destruction wrought in the Battle River Valley. But it was not only on the side of the Loyalists that homes had been lost and dear associations broken up. As illustrating what the Halfbreeds had been forced to leave he read from a correspondent's description of a visit to a deserted Halfbreed settlement after the Fish Creek battle, showing the comfort in which these people formerly lived. All over the country where the Indian disturbances had spread, property had been taken and destroyed. The results of labor had been lost, the charm of the people had been broken, the habit of submission on the part of the Indian was ended, and hereafter the relation of the Government to him must assume a new and more difficult phase. The Halfbreed rising had been crushed. How much longer the

INDIAN WAR WOULD LAST

none could tell. It might be that in the end, cold, hunger, and want of ammunition on the part of the Indians would prove the most powerful allies of the loyal troops. A check had been given to immigration to the North-West, and those in Europe educated in the midst of shorter distances would not realise that there were vast tracts of this territory which were not affected by the difficulties. Millions of the public treasury had been spent. Millions more were yet to be spent, not only in the extraordinary measures now taken, but as a permanent increased charge for the maintenance of order. The growth of the North-West was checked, and Canada had to abandon for a time her golden dreams of increased revenue to be paid by the North-West. Thus both sides of the public ledger were injuriously affected at the same time. Canada's good name amongst the nations had suffered The Government had boasted that it knew best how to treat the settler, the pioneer, and the Indian. The Government had claimed that throughout the North-West there were no grievances, nothing but peace and prosperity. Several Ministers, several high officials of the Government had visited that country and found no grievances. "All well" was the cry of these sentinels of Canada. (Cheers.) The Minister of Public Works went up at the request of the leader of the Government, specially to find the grievances, and even his microscopic eye had failed to discover any, except on the part of two men who, if he (Mr. Blake) remembered the Minister's statement well, were discontented because there were so few ladies in the country. Many people in Canada thanked God to-day that there were not more. What a contrast the facts showed to those smooth speeches! He asked the House and the country if that contrast did not demand an explanation. The task of the Government was one of special responsibility commensurate with the vast power which they had claimed and obtained. A well-known publicist has said that while parliamentary government was the best for those represented it was the worst for those not represented. The Half-breeds were near places having representative institutions, and many of them came from the older Provinces, where they had breathed the free air of our representative system. More than that, they were of men having an immense country about them where they had order almost without law and little sense of Government action or interference. Some of them were not reconciled to the new state of things by the arrangement in the case of Manitoba, and chafed under the prospect of being deprived of the freedom under which they had lived. There was also the responsibility on the Administration of dealing with the Indian, resentful for his lost sovereignty, his vanished subsistence, the constraints imposed upon him, loyal rather from policy or fear than love, not inclined to work, yet not ready to starve. This was complicated by a policy of widely extended settlements. The white men and Indians were brought into contact at many points, adding greatly to the risk and responsibility. The difficulty to be contended with was that the management of this vast country, with its many grave problems, was to be done from a distance, from the offices in Ottawa, the policy being carried out through letters, agents, and clerks. It was the duty of the Government, therefore, to guard specially against the entanglements and delays of officialism. In dealing with Government each man considered his own a special case demanding special attention, making it the duty to act with decision and with promptness, but there were some advantages in favour of the Government. One was the experience of 1869-70, which taught the Government something of the feelings, prejudices, and customs of the people with whom they had to deal. They had the advantage of the settlement made in the case of Manitoba. They had all the money they chose to ask for, all the officers they chose to name, and they had years upon years of time before the case became one of the extremest urgency. They had also the advantage of

ACCUSTOMED TO THE FREEDOM

UTILIZING THAT LINK between the white man and the Indian, the Half-breed, and experience had shown the advantage of making use of the Half-breeds in dealing with the Indians. They had the advantage of missionaries with both Indians and Half-breeds, and he believed if there was one thing above another which had assisted the Government in dealing with the Indians it was the influence of these missionaries upon them. (Hear, hear.) In 1878 a special survey of the Prince Albert District was made. In the meantime, many Half-breeds had moved from Manitoba to different parts of the Territories; meantime also, there had been a location of the Canadian Pacific by the Yellowhead Pass, and that had stimulated immigration to the Valley of the Saskatchewan. The people hoped to be on the line of the Railway, and when that location was changed, naturally there was disappointment. It was the duty of the Government to tell the House what had taken place since that time, what had been represented by the people, and what answers had been made. There were claims of Half-breeds on various grounds, some claimants as residents of the Territories, some as not having received the benefit of the distribution of land in Manitoba. There were claims as to the cases of the rectangular system of survey of lots along the river front and general claims as to ownership. There were also

WHITE SETTLER'S CLAIMS of the same character, and there were claims with reference to colonization companies. When he (Mr. Blake) had spoken on this last point on a previous occasion the Prime Minister had said it showed the spirit in which he (Mr. Blake) approached the question, that any stick would do to beat the Government with. This showed plainly that the hon. gentleman himself did not understand the bearing of the question, for, in some of the representations made, one of the claims presented was for protection against these colonization companies. There was the question of the enormous original reserves for the Canadian Pacific in alternate sections, also the questions of local and river improvements. Then there was the Indian question, complicated by settlements and reserves. Then there was the question of home protection among the residents of the Territory. All of these were points necessarily taking the attention of the Government on which they had taken at different times different action. Added to all this there was a circumstance which arose in June last which added immensely to the responsibility of the Government, the coming to the Territory of Louis Reil, and his living from that time among the Half-breeds. He (Mr. Blake) did not need to go further that the statments of the Prime Minister himself to show the power and influence of Riel among those people. There were reports from Government officers as to what views were taken of Reil's coming and his actions, and what was likely to be the result. All the information he (Mr. Blake) had been able to gain convinced him that this matter needed explanations. There was an immense responsibility resting upon the Government and on the Government officers in this matter, and he contended that their reports and communications should be laid before the House that the people's representatives should be able to upon the proper shoulders. For these papers he has been pressing almost continuously for eight weeks. The Premier had brought down some of these papers, and when asked from time to time respecting others said they were being prepared, but they had not yet been brought down. He was not now saying, whatever might be his opinions on the information gained from outside, that the Government had not done what was proper under the circumstances. He did say, however, that their duties were such as he had described, and that the House had a right to the facts in order to judge how the duty had been performed. Since the Government took power six years had elapsed. What had been done in that time? What had been done lately? Surely Reil's coming sounded a warning note, and when that was sounded the Government should have redressed the real grievances if there were any, and removed misconceptions. What was done in these directions? What was done to provide security for the settlers and others? The Government had hosts of officers there. What did they do or say? It had a Council there, what did it or its members do or say? It had unofficial helpers in the person of Hudson Bay officers and missionaries deeply interested in the preservation of peace, what did they do or say? He did not attempt now to answer those questions. He contended simply that the information ought to be given which would enable the House to answer these momentous questions intelligently.

PLACE THE RESPONSIBILITY

JOSEPH REDMOND,
PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA.

Importer and Breeder of SHORT-HORN CATTLE, CLYDESDALE HORSES and BERKSHIRE SWINE.

My Short-horn Herd is composed of Cattle Imported from the Celebrated Herds of S. Campbell, W. Duthie and A. Cruikshank, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. Three of my imported Heifers received first, second, and third prizes at two of the largest Exhibitions in Scotland, in July, 1884. Three of which have calved since arriving in Canada.

The Bull I am using is one of the finest in the Dominion, and took first prize at the Toronto Exhibition, in 1883, was bred by J. & W. Watt, and is pronounced by competent judges to be a very fine animal. A choice lot of young Bulls and Heifers for sale at moderate prices. Young Bulls from 8 to 14 months old, weighing 1200 lbs.

I prefer personal inspection. Stockmen are always welcome, and will be conveyed from G. T. J., & O. & Q., trains to and from my farm, four miles from Peterborough.
